It was comparatively slow hockey except for the occasional flashes of speed and brilliance the smart Leafs showed. The Maroons were not up to their usual form and the home fans groaned in anguish as their idols dallied and toyed with the puck.

Charlie Conacher followed Red Horner down the ice in the first period, taking his pass at the defence for a burning shot from the boards. The flying puck slipped neatly between Flat Walsh's pads and the goal post. It was not until the third period that another goal was chalked up. Dave Trottier backhanded a shot into the cage behind Chabot after a mad scramble inside the Toronto defence. Both Babe Siebert and Nels Stewart figured in the play and drew assists.

Heavy cross checking and shocking body checks were plentiful all through, but nobody was seriously hurt and tempers were well under control.

Jimmy Ward was easily the most outstanding figure in a Maroon uniform, and Archie Wilcox and Lionel Conacher were fairly steady on the Montreal defence. The others had a bad night.

Leafs Unbeatable

The Leafs were in unbeatable form, skating fast, passing smartly and shooting accurately from all positions. Their defence was a far tougher proposition than when Maroons last ran up against them, and the forwards were right back every time to back-check and generally tie up the Maroon thrusts. Charlie Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson, the redoubtable Toronto (Kid) line, proved the best combination on the ice and Chuck Conacher's long shots heaved with terrific force from center ice almost bowled Walsh over from the impact.

The Maroons were practically helpless against the stubborn Toronto rearguard and the close checking forward lines. Shots that went wide, passes that slid unheeded across an open defence and a general listlessness were factors in the poor showing of the local team.

JOHNNY CLARK IS UNBEATABLE

Olympics and Tecs Battle Through 70 Minutes of Scoreless Hockey.

BULLDOGS IN DRAW.

TORONTO, April 1 (C.P.)—Herbie Mitchell has his well-drilled Bulldog machine running at top speed and heading the round-robin play-off series of the International Hockey League to-day. Holding the speedy Buffalo Bisons to a scoreless draw while London and Detroit were battling to a similar verdict, Windsor continued to set the pace in the play-offs and at present remain two points in the van of the pursuing pack.

Playing a stellar role in the Windsor cage when Bulldogs shutout Olympics, 1—0, in Detroit Sunday night, Normie Smith turned in another excellent performance in last night's fixture. Handling 34 shots without an error, Smith earned the distinction of having two straight shutouts in the play-offs. Although the game was a hard-fought contest from beginning to end, only one penalty was meted out.

Heavy checking made good hockey impossible in London, where Detroit and Tecumsehs battle through 70 minutes of bruising play without a score. A capacity house was in attendance and although the homesters had a good margin in the play they were unable to beat Johnny Clark in the Olympic cage. Nine penalties were meted out, with London getting five.

Major League Clubs Face New Problems

NEW YORK, April 1 (C.P.). — Faced with ten per cent. taxation on their tickets for the first time and the risks of uncertain gate receipts, major league baseball clubs will need to play their drawing cards skilfully this year to keep from dipping any further into the red ink.

Only seven of the sixteen American and National League organizations showed a profit at the close of 1931. The lop-sided character of the two pennant races was largely responsible for the slump in gate receipts, but the game, like every other sport, has felt the pinch of the times.

Player salaries have been reduced and the player limit cut, to bring about a saving estimated at about $750,000, but it will take additional measures to prevent further financial embarrassment for the magnates.

SARNIA SCHOOL LEADS ONTARIO SPORT EVENTS

Captures Interscholastic Gymnastic High Bar and German Horse Honors.

ST. ANDREW'S SECOND.

TORONTO, April 1 (By The Canadian Press) — Sarnia Collegiate yes-terday won the interscholastic high bar and German horse events from 13 other school teams in the competition, which started yesterday morning. St. Andrew's College, Aurora was second; and Central Collegiate, London, third.

St. Andrew's won the bar event and were second in the horses. Sarnia took second in the bar but came back heavily in the horse event to outscore their rivals.

The standings are:

High Bar

St. Andrew's, Aurora, 331.
Sarnia, 314.
Central, London, 296.5.
Trinity, Port Hope, 288.5.
Delta, Hamilton, 288.5.
Brantford, 212.
Westdale, Hamilton 185.5.

German Horse

Sarnia, 291.
Central, Toronto, 263.5.
Glebe, Ottawa, 238.
Central, London, 235.
St. Andrew's, 233.
Delta, 226.
Westdale, Hamilton, 183.5.
Brantford, 157.5.

In the aggregate scores for the two events, Sarnia had 605 points, St. Andrew's 654 and Central, London, 531. The events were for five men teams.

Sarnia's winning team was composed of T. Mathers, J. Hare, L. Smith, L. Mackenzie and D. McGregor.

Two more events remain, the parallel bar and mat, and they were staged late yesterday.

BOWLING LEADERS UNCHANGED TO-DAY

Joe Voss Belters Have Good Chance of Copping Team Honors.

DETROIT, Mich., April 1 (C.P.) —Buffalo and Cleveland lineups will monopolize most of the 32 alleys in the American Bowling Congress Tournament to-day, beginning a week-end assault which may change the situation among the team leaders in the pin classic.

Buffalo is sending 35 teams into action, including the well-known Caruana five, captained by Frank Caruana, one of the most colorful figures in the game.

Collingwood five, Cleveland, is also a standout lineup.

Saturday and Sunday the card will be filled with fast aggregations. Should the Joe Voss Belters retain their leadership until Monday, they stand an excellent chance of copping the title with their 3,046 total.

The leaders in all four events remain unchanged from yesterday.

LANDIS GRANTS OPTIONS

CHICAGO, Apr. 1. — Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis yesterday granted options permitting the St. Louis Cardinals to select one player from the Denver club of the Western League on or before next Sept. 1 and the Detroit Tigers to select one player from Toronto of the International League on or before Next Sept. 15.

BETTING FAVORS FULLER TO WIN

MEET TO-NIGHT.

NEW YORK, April 1 (C.P.). — Sentiment may be with Jack (Kid) Berg in his ten-round bout with Sammy Fuller of Boston in Madison Square Garden to-night, but hard cash favors the New Engand youngster.

Odds as high as 2 to 1 have been quoted that Fuller will outpoint the British veteran and perhaps earn a shot at Tony Canzoneri's lightweight championship.

The betting ring, which seldom allows sentiment to mix with business, evidently believes that Berg is decidedly on the down grade and that he no longer possesses the speed he will need to offset Fuller's unrelenting attack.

Two years ago there was no lightweight in the business harder to beat than Berg. The Briton had a whirlwind attack that kept all rivals on the defensive. A light hitter, he made up for this weakness with the speed with which he could punch. But last year he twice was beaten by Canzoneri in title bouts, once ea knockout in Chicago and again in New York on a decision. After the second defeat he left for a vacation in England, but the rest evidently did him little good if his recent bout with Buster Brown of Baltimore is to be taken as a criterion. Berg won an easy decision, but he did not look like the Berg of 1930.

DATES ANNOUNCED OLYMPIC TRIALS

Track and Field Events to be Held in Hamilton on July 15-16.

HAMILTON, April 1. — Official notification that the Canadian Olympic track and field tests would be held in Hamilton, presumably on July 15 and 16, was received by President Sam Manson of the Hamilton Olympic Club yesterday, and commencing on Tuesday night next, officers and members of the local body will commence making plans for the big two-day meet. The meet is to serve both as the Dominion championships and Olympics trials, and will be under the supervision of the Olympic committee, which will appoint officials.

Realizing that there is much work to be done, President Manson has called a general meeting for Tuesday night next to proceed with preliminary arrangements, and at this gathering the special committee appointed some time ago to go into the question of a special train to leave this city for the games in Los Angeles, will present their report.

In connection with the big meet a camp for athletes will be conducted here, operated by the Olympic Club. It will be open for one month prior to the trials and athletes from all parts of the Dominion will be allowed to take advantage of the coaching.

Another announcement of interest to Hamiltonians was also received yesterday to the effect that this city will be the scene of the girls' Ontario championships on June 9, and early in July the girls' Canadian championships and Olympic contests will also be held here.

SECOND PERIOD RALLY GIVES WINNIPEG 4-3 WIN OVER WOLVES

Superior Weight of Western Champions Used to Good Advantage.

SECOND GAME SATURDAY.

WINNIPEG, April 1.— Majestic in the role of defenders, Winnipeg Monarchs strode to methodical victory last night in the first game of the Canadian junior hockey championship series over Sudbury Wolves, sharp-shooting lightweights from Ontarios North country. The score was 4-3.

The heaviest junior team Manitoba has ever sent into intersectional combat, battling to retain the Memorial Cup Elmwood Millionaires brought here a year ago, turned back a shifty, lightning-fast attack with the same deadly perfection in defense that won the Western title.

Monarchs staved off one of the most desperate rallies patrons of the ancient amphitheatre rink have seen in years, as the flying Wolves came to the attack in the third period to cut a two-goal deficit to one goal, and nearly succeeded in tying the count. Art Rice-Jones, lanky Winnipeg net-minder, rose to the awkward occasion with a superlative display of puck stopping.

A big second-period rally provided the Western titlists with a lead that they attempted to work on in the last session. They had rallied by a single counter after the first stanza.

Wolves Try Hard.

Coming home, the big purple-clad machine settled back to defend its margin. Within three minutes, it had been reduced to a single goal. Adelard Lafrance, polished Wolf left-winger, put the puck in the Winnipeg net from the blue line with a low drive.

The mining country "kids" then went after the tying goal. They kept the puck in Monarch territory, repeatedly slamming shots at Rice-Jones from close range. Davie spoiled it all with a brilliant dash the length of the ice for another Monarch gaol. He pushed the rubber past prostrate Healy in the Sudbury net as he slid into the netman.

Weight Counts.

Outweighed ten pounds to the man, the Wolves fought an even battle for most of the game. Only in the second period did the Monarchs hold a distinct edge on play, but the Manitobans made their attack count.

Second game of the series will be played here on Saturday night. Monarchs will retain the Memorial Cup if they win, and a third game will be played Monday if they lose.

Sudbury— Goal, Healy; defense, R. McInnis and Porter; centre, Smith; wings, L. Lafrance and Bennett; alternates, Blake, A. Lafrance, Fraser and J. McInnis.

Monarchs—Goal, Rice-Jones; defense, Shewan and Davie; centre, Yellowlees; wings, Templeton and Brown; alternates, Makarsky, Creighton, Peeler and McBride.

Norwood High School Beats Havelock Aces

(Examiner Correspondence)

NORWOOD, April 1 — Thursday night was a busy night at the arena. The high school played Havelock Aces and won by a score of 2-1. While later the Rink Rats staged a game with a Warsaw team and were victorious by a score of 8-2.

No doubt the hockey games shall soon come to an end now as old Sol is bound to get too warm for the ice. But every citizen feels they have had a real winter of hockey and "good hockey" at that.

Sixteen games of hockey have been played in Norwood Arena this winter by the Combines. While two games were played by the Central League team early in the winter. Splendid crowds attended all these matches which was most gratifying to the Hockey Club and the Rink association.

Wrestling Last Night.

RECRUIT RANKS DWINDLE AS TRAINING PERIOD NEARS END

Athletics Retain Full Roster of Veterans—Keep Rookies as Utilities.

SEVERAL GOOD PROSPECTS

NEW YORK, April 1. (CP)—The ranks of the baseball rookies, although already rapidly dwindling as the big league teams start northward, apparently have produced at least a score of players who will make the regular payroll for the first time.

For every one who seems to have negotiated the sharp grade, however, at least a half dozen either have been cut adrift or will be shipped back to the minors.

Of those due to start their first major league season as regular, the brace of kid infielders obtained by be the cream of the crop. The New York club plans to open the campaign with Frank Crosetti and Otto Saltzgaver as its keystone combination while the Chicago outfit goes to the wire with Billy Herman on second and Stanley Hack holding down third base. The performances of all four have been among the spring's big sensations.

Keep Utilities

The Athletics present a solid front of veterans to the rookie challenge but Connie Mack has determined to keep four new men, Pitcher Merrit Cain, Outfielder Ed. Coleman, Catcher Ed. Madjeski and First Baseman Oscar Roettger for utility purposes.

The same thing is true of the world champion Cardinals, although they may get some real pitching help from James (Tex) Carleton, the Houston righthander who has overshadowed his more publicized teammate, Jerome (Dizzy) Dean.

The Brooklyn Dodgers appear to have only one sure-fire prospect. Van Mungo, one of the pitchers who helped Hartford spreadeagle the Eastern league last year. The St. Louis Browns likewise have a fine mound prospect in Louis America Polli, purchased from Milwaukee.

Checkers Champion

Detective-Sergeant Norman McGee, Oshawa police force, champion of Ontario Checker Association in the annual tournament just completed at Whitby. Mr. McGee defeated C. Rone of London with 32 points to 30.

ORIOLES NEED MORE HURLERS

Baltimore Has Well Balanced Team Except on the Mound.

NEW FIRST BASEMAN.

BALTIMORE, April 1. — Given two more experienced pitchers, Manager Fritiz Maisel of the Baltimore Orioles feels he will have the club to stop Rochester's march to a fifth straight flag in the International League.

The remainder of the team is set with balanced strength in the infield and outfield and capable catching. Just a little help in a hurling way and the Orioles might reclaim the glory that was theirs in the days of the late Jack Dunn.

Maisel needs a man to replace big Monte Weaver the right-hander sold to Washington last season. He is dickering with Brooklyn for either Van Mungo or Earl Mattingly and stands to get one or the other as the Dodgers owe Baltimore a player or cash from the Denny Southern deal.

Veteran Staff.

Either would round out a nice staff of veterans which includes Ken Holloway, Harry Smythe, Beryl Richmond, Joe Cascarella, Walter Tauscher, and Jack Hopkins. Ray Walker and Harry Gumbert are the most promising of a group of young pitchers.

Built around Buzz Arlett, big outfielder, who was with the Phils last year the Orioles' batting attack promises to be one of the most potent in the league. Arlett was bought during the winter to replace the slugging Ralph Gill, sold to Washington. Arlett is due to patrol left field, with Frank McGowan in centre and Ralph Boyle in right. Boyle was one of the best gardeners in the league last season. He trained with Washington early in the spring, but was returned for further seasoning.

New First Baseman.

Last year's infield is three-quarters intact, with Baxter Jordan at first base the only newcomer, Jordan, a hard hitter and steady fielder, came from Washington in the Gill deal, and it will be up to him to make the fans forget Joe Hauser, who was sold to Milwaukee of the American Association.

Bill Regan or the youngster, Dan Heffner, fill open the season at second, with the reliable Heinie Sand at shortstop and Jim Stroner at third.

Bob Linton had been expected to do most of the catching, but he reported late for training and Ed. Kenna now is conceded the inside track for the regular berth. Ike Danning will be retained for bull pen duty.

PULP PLANT ENLARGING.

CANTON, N.C., April 1 (C.P.S.—The Champion Fibre Company is completing a $1,750,000 addition to its pulp and paper plant here which will result in the increase of its payroll by 125 employees.

CASUAL COMMENT

At the executive meeting of the City League last night, two delegates were appointed to attend the O.B.A.A. convention in Toronto Saturday. With President H. Dinsdale calling for a decision one way or the other, Bill Prindible moved that Len Foster and Pat Calladine be sent up on the league's funds, after the entrance fee had been deducted. Mike O'Brien seconded it and the motion carried.

• • • • • • •

The delegates from here will oppose the proposed change in the Constitution which reads: "Juvenile and Bantam semi-final games shall be home and home games." It will likely be opposed generally by towns outside of Toronto, as the players, and the management has some sort of chance of getting back part of the money spent in getting his team that far.

• • • • • • •

All Saints' Athletic Club will be heard from in the City League this summer, as they are planning for it already, but there is still plenty to do. Harry McFadden is president, and those who remember him in connection with the Royals Junior team a few years back may expect action. Something definite should be heard at the club banquet April 8th. The Saints' meeting at 7.30 this evening should be well attended as several important matters will come up.

• • • • • • •

And so we slip casually over into summer sports, leaving the winter games in that limbo of "last winter" where unpleasant incidents are buried and happier memories recalled from time to time. The annual Ski Club dance the other night brought that sport's season to a close with very little skiing being done, because of poor weather conditions. Hockey, curling, etc., suffered for the same reason.

• • • • • • •

But Nature is like that, and what can be done about it? Next fall, this will be forgotten and ambitious plans will be drawn once again, and let us hope will have more success. A precaution that would assure Peterborough of hockey would be an artificial ice arena. In the meantime, summer sports are in order shortly, and adverse weather cannot interfere seriously with fun in the good old summer-time.

When the Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a great 1-all draw in Montreal last night, they established themselves as favorites over the Maroons in the return game, and should enter the Stanley Cup finals against New York Rangers next week. However, with Madison Square Garden booked for wrestling on Monday night and a circus taking over the arena on Wednesday, some confusion has existed on where the games will be played.

• • • • • • •

Colonel Hammond, president of the Rangers, is threatening to forfeit the series to Toronto or Montreal unless two games are played in New York. Whichever team wins, Leafs or Maroons, they won't feel like going right back on Sunday—after a hard battle on Saturday—and tangle with Rangers, and they can't be blamed. As the circus cannot be postponed for a day, the second game will be played in the Boston Arena.

• • • • • • •

The Rangers divided something like $22,000 by capturing the N.H.L. title from Canadiens, which meant about one grand to a player. The Stanley Cup finals should bring each player about $1,500, so it evidently pays to be a champion, not only for the honor, but for the gravy as well.

• • • • • • •

The girls' basketball play-offs down at the Y.W.C.A. are billed for Saturday evening instead of Friday, as previously announced. The senior fixture, between Westclox and St. Paul's starts at eight, to be followed by the Blue Petes-Choates junior tussle. Should Westclox and Choates win to-morrow night, third games will be necessary to decide the championships. Remember, it's the Y.W. on Saturday night.

Letters Awarded To Tricolor Stars

KINGSTON, April 1. — Queen's University Athletic Board of Control to-day awarded the "Q's." Senior "Q's" were awarded as follows:

Rugby — McKelvy, Carter, Gilmore, Caldwell, Simmons, Stanyar, Hamlin, Hallett, Dediana, Murphy, Stuart, Reist, Hendershot and Ralph.

Track—Scott, Kostuik and McKinnon.

Intermediate "Q's" were awarded to the hockey team and to the rifle team, while the hockey team, as winners of the intermediate championship, receive the C.I.A.U. crest.

The question of box lacrosse in the Jock Harty Arena was brought up, but it was pointed out that the cost of getting the arena in shape for box lacrosse would run well over $1,000, with little prospects of the game paying its way, and there would be also the danger of damage being done to the pipes. For the time being, at least, the matter was dropped by the board.

Firemen's Clothing Contract Given Riley

Riley and Hickey's tender for the firemen's uniform was accepted last night by the Fire, Water and Light Committee. The total amount of the Riley and Hickey tender for all the clothing required was $624.50, which was considerably lower than any other tenders offered.

For four-piece suits for the men, the price was $22.50 each; officers' four piece suits, $26.00; men's overcoats, $23.50; officers' coats, $25.00.

The selection of the firemen's shirts was left to the chairman of the committee, J. A. McNabb.

Northampton's Need

The directors of Northampton Town are confronted with a financial problem.

With soccer wages added to the loss incurred last season it is estimated that over £400 will be required to provide an adequate team to carry on, and they are to meet the committee of the Supporters' club with a view to finding the best means of raising the money.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS' RIFLE ASSOCIATION

A lively match was conducted in the minature range at the Armouries last night. Three practices were carried out; two in the prone position and the last on the object was to get as high a score as possible in three-quarters of a minute. During the month of March a five-man team was entered in a Dominion-wide competition, with the local team averaging 97. This score should place them up with the leading Canadian teams.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

THE BROKENEGG.

Who boldly fearless is, 'tis plain,
What he desires will obtain.
—Shadow the Weasel.

Farmer Brown's Boy had left the door of the sugar house open little way after bringing in an armful of wood. He was alone, for Farmer Brown had not spent the night in the sugar house.

"I'll have some bacon and eggs for breakfast," he decided.

As he reached to a shelf for the bacon a small white head was thrust through the crack left by the slightly open door and a pair of bold bright eyes in which there was no sign of fear watched him. As he turned the head vanished, but not before he had caught a fleeting glimpse of it.

"Now what was that?" said he and walked over to the door and looked out. He saw no one. "Must have been my imagination," he muttered and went back to fry the bacon. In a few minutes it was beginning to sizzle and that most appetizing of all odors, frying bacon, began to fill the sugar house.

Once more that small white head appeared. For a moment it remained motionless. Then a long, slim body followed inside and Shadow the Weasel sat up Squirrel Fashion, sniffing appreciatively that frying bacon. Farmer Brown's Boy saw him and, with a strip of bacon he was turning dangling from the end of a fork, stood perfectly still. Shadow advanced a few steps and sat up again. The smell of that bacon was delicious and tantalizing. He boldly stared back at Farmer Brown's Boy.

The latter put the strip of bacon back in the frying pan and turned toward Shadow. Shadow dodged back out of the doorway. But in less than a minute he was back. Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled.

"You bold little rascal," he said "I do believe that small as you are you are not a bit afraid of me."

In this he was right. Shadow was not afraid. If he had been he wouldn't have been so bold. He wasn't afraid because he had supreme confidence in his own ability to keep out of reach of Farmer Brown's Boy. He could whisk out of sight in a flash and he knew it. No one in all the Green Forest can move with the quickness of Shadow the Weasel. So he continued to stare at Farmer Brown's Boy and to sniff the odor of that bacon.

Farmer Brown's Boy jumped at him and cried "Scat!" Shadow simply vanished. He had dodged out that door so quickly that Farmer Brown's Boy was barely sure where he did go. No sooner did Farmer Brown's Boy turn back to his bacon than Shadow was back inside. For the time being he quite forgot what he had come there for in the first place. The odor of that bacon had put all thoughts of Mice out of his head. He had a lively curiosity as to what Farmer Brown's Boy was doing and for a few minutes he was satisfied to sit and watch.

The bacon was done and was taken from the pan. Then Farmer Brown's Boy picked up an egg to fry. It was just then that Shadow remembered what he had come in there for and began to run about with his nose to the floor trying to find the scent of Mice. Farmer Brown's Boy stood still, watching him, the egg still in his hand. Shadow investigated the corner in which still lay the hollow stick of wood in which Mrs. Whitefoot had had her home. Shadow vanished in the little round hole which had been her doorway. Her scent was still strong in there. A second later he was out, his little eyes glowing with the eagerness of the hunter. He knew that Mrs. Whitefoot had been there. He hadn't a doubt that she was still in that sugar house. He forgot the bacon. He forgot Farmer Brown's Boy. He forgot everything but the desire to find Mrs. Whitefoot. He started across the floor straight for the corner where the Whitefoot home now was in a syrup can under an old coat.

It was then that Farmer Brown's Boy thought of his little friends for the first time. In a few seconds that white-coated little hunter with the fierce eyes would be in that home! There was no time to lose. In his hand was that egg. With a yell he threw it. It struck just in front of Shadow, spattering his white coat and by its very suddenness frightening him. Like a flash he doubled back and darted out of the door.

CONVENTION CLOSES

TORONTO—The annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association concluded yesterday. After deliberating on the problems of education—academic, economic and administrate—for three days, delegates brought their sessions to a close yesterday with final meetings of important departments.

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 1st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., from 8 p.m. to 6:15 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Astrological portents for April 1st indicate a day of unusual and vivid experiences which will leave mental or spiritual imprints, but nothing of a material nature. Young men in life find truth in the saying that most clouds have their silver linings and conversely most roses have their thorns.

The child born on this April 1st will have an impulsive, somewhat careless nature. It will have both a busy mind and fingers, but its ideas and efforts will not always yield practical returns. It will not lack self-confidence and will, if anything, have a superiority complex. It will be big-hearted.

Born on April 1st, you find it difficult to get down to the bread and butter side of life. There is much poetry, music and romanticism in your nature, but few of those traits which go into the making of material-minded or commercial type people. Money is a necessity, not an inspiration with you. You never will know its economic value or be able to drive a good bargain.

You do not need, to be happy, many of the things which other people regard as important. You can do without all the useless trappings and silly veneers with which the ordinary run of humanity adorn their lives. You want simple not complicated machinery to carry out the essentials of living. You do need flowers, books, friendships, love and beauty. People of your temperament and intelligence do not need the world in general.

If you are fortunate enough to find your real "metier" you will love your work. You are carried away by those things which truly interest you. If circumstances compel you to grind out a living at some uncongenial work, your highly sensitive, nervous nature will suffer greatly thereby, and the sprightliness and youthfulness of your spirit will be killed. You are not versatile, and although capable of being almost a genius in some directions, you are almost stupid in others. You love wild life and are fond of all animals.

MILLBROOK.

The Easter dance, sponsored by the Millbrook Agricultural Society, held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, was well attended and quite successful from every standpoint, generally conceded to be one of the nicest social events of this nature so far this season. Music was supplied by the Kinsman and Anderson orchestra, and calling off for the square dances were Joe Thompson, Ernest Powell and Major A. V. Thorne, this section of the program always proving most popular with both the older and the young folk who attend such public gatherings. Looking after the service of refreshments were Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Miss Jean Stinson and a number of the directors, dancing being resumed after the supper hour for a considerable time.

Proceeds from the three dances and the concert, held under the auspices of the Agricultural Society in recent months, are intended to go toward the reducing of the financial obligation with which the organization is at present handicapped, and which it is making a determined effort to discharge. Public support is appreciated, and the entertainment committee, of which R. J. McKnight is chairman, will probably have other similar events to that of Tuesday evening in the near future.

SIX PERMITS FOR BUILDING

Permits During March, 1931, Only Totalled $145.

$12,475 LAST MONTH.

Last month saw far greater building activity in the city than the same month last year. Six permits totalling $12,475.00 were issued in the engineer's department last month as compared with one for only $145 during March last year.

To date this year permits totalling $23,925.00 have been taken out, the total for rthe same period last year being $16,670.

While building is ahead of last year, it is far below the peak years of 1930 and 1929.

An addition to Gillespie's garage on Aylmer street, at a cost of $3,000 and two new dwellings on O'Carroll avenue at $4,500 each make up the major portion of the building values. The rest is made up of small miscellaneous work.

WESTERN CANADA SHOWS INCREASE

While engineering contracts were down for March, contracts for building work went ahead of those for February. Western Canada showed the largest increase. The immediate outlook for increased building is better than for several months.

By groups, during March, 39% of the contracts applied to engineering work, the value being $4,196,900 Business building picked up, accounting for 38.4% or $4,137,400, 18% related to residential work, the value being $1,931,700. Industrial shows $500,700 or 4.6%.

D. A. McKINNON IS TRANSFERRED

Well Earned Promotion is Given Federal Hog Grader at Local Plant.

GOING TO TORONTO.

Donald A. McKinnon, who for the last seven years has been hog grader for the Federal Department of Agriculture at the local plant of Canada Packers, Limited, has been transferred to the Union Stock Yards, Toronto, where he will assume his new duties on Monday. In this position he will have charge of the grading at the Yards, a well earned promotion resulting from his successful work in Peterborough.

The removal of Mr. McKinnon from this city and district recalls his promotional activities among the swine breeders and farmers generally in the Counties of Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, and Victoria. Especially among the junior farmers was his educational efforts notably successful. The Boys' inter-county hog club, which he established three years ago, has proved to be a most helpful project, not only among the young farmers whom it attracted to its membership, but also as a stimulating adjunct of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and finally as an additional undertaking in junior farmer work to be adopted by that branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. McKinnon's enthusiasm and industry, his thorough attention to details, and his pleasing personality, have been greatly appreciated by the directors of the Exhibition Board, who will undoubtedly regret the loss of his valuable assistance, particularly among the younger exhibitors. He will also be missed by the young farmers whom he has inspired and encouraged to obtain a broader knowledge of the swine industry and incidentally to build up their self-confidence and widen their general outlook.

Mr. McKinnon has been an active member of the Knights of Columbus of which he was Grand Knight for one year. His many friends will extend to him their congratulations and wishes for his continued success in Toronto. He will be succeeded here by H. L. Ford, who has been grader at the Barrie Co-operative Packing plant.

Births Are Setting New Records In City

While births in the city month by month are hitting new records, and it looks as though 1932 will surpass all other years, marriage figures are far below last year. March maintained the average with 58 births as compared with 54 during the same month last year. There were ten marriages, nine less than in March, 1931. Deaths numbered 39, five fewer than the same month last year.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 59

By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

When Esteban and Owaza failed to return as they had promised to Flora Hawkes' camp, the members of that party at length concluded that the two had met with foul play. They decided to proceed towards their goal, the camp of the Arab ivory raiders. In place of the missing Owaza, Flora put in charge of the blacks a giant savage named Luvini. She could not have selected a worse villain. But he knew the country and all went well until the adventurers came within sight of the Arabs' tents and pitched their own on the desert's edge.

In the meantime, Jane Clayton and her Waziri picked up the spoor of Flora Hawkes' safari at the camp where the Waziri had last seen Esteban, whom they still thought to have been Tarzan of the Apes. Moving more rapidly than the Hawkes party, the Waziri sighted the ivory raiders shortly after the other had arrived. So it happened that two white women were encamped within a mile of each other, with the Arabs between. One, with treachers followers, was bent on riches. The other, surrounded by devoted blacks, searched only for the one she loved most.

Luvini and some of the more intelligent blacks knew that they were encamped outside the Arabs' stronghold for the purpose of stealing ivory. Now Luvini had a private plan of his own. It consisted in first slaying the Arabs and getting the tusks, as Flora planned. After that he would murder the whites. All except the girl, who Luvini desired to keep for sale as a slave. It was a wicked scheme—the whites to be aided in killing the Arabs, then to die themselves.

Now Luvini would have succeeded had it not been for the loyalty and affection of a young black boy attached to Flora Hawkes as her personal servant. The woman, notwithstanding the lengths to which she would go in the satisfaction of her greed and avarice, had some good traits. One of them was the kindness she had shown this ignorant black boy and which was to return her great dividends. The attack on the stores of ivory had been timed for this moonless night and all was in readiness.

Obituary

HAROLD VINCENT ELCOMBE

Harold Vincent Elcombe died at noon to-day in St Joseph's Hospital after a brief illness, at the age of 35 years. Less than a week ago he was at his regular employment at the Quaker Oats Company, where he had been employed for the past twenty years.

Born at Dundalk, as a child he came to this city with his parents receiving most of his schooling here. He had a most honorable war record, enlisting in 1915 with the 33rd Battery he served until the Armistice in France. On his return he was an active member of the Canadian Legion.

He was interested in promoting amateur athletics and was an enthusiastic officer of the Quaker Oats tennis club, of which he was recently elected chairman for 1932.

While Overseas he married Kathleen Hills at Folkestone, Kent. Besides his wife, he is survived by four small children, Harold, Jean, Norma and Douglas, also his mother, Mrs. J. Elcombe, 594 Downie street; five sisters, Mrs. Frank Greatrix, of this city; Mrs Herbert Hill, of Toronto; Miss Lulu F., of Ottawa; Miss Audrey J., and Miss Olive G., of this city; and two brothers, Clarence, of Toronto, and Fred of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Comstock's Funeral Parlors.

DAVID SIMMONS

FOREST, April 1.—The funeral of David Simmons, formerly of Bosanquet, was held recently from McFarlane and Maidmen's funeral chapel to Beechwood cemetery with a large attendance. The service was held in the Forest United Church by Rev. Andrew Lane, the pastor. The members of the Forest Masonic lodge attended in a body, and conducted the Masonic services at the grave.

The remains were accompanied to Forest by John Blakley, of Lakefield, and William Pollock, of Neepawa, Man., a nephew of the deceased, and both attended the funeral.

MRS. C. J. TABER

The death occurred this morning of Mrs. C. J. Taber of Orillia and formerly of this city.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband; two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Grisdale of Peterborough, and Mrs. A. Zettler of Hamilton.

The remains will arrive in this city on Saturday evening, and the funeral will take place on Monday morning at nine o'clock from the residence of her sister, 582 Aylmer street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's Cemetary for interment.

NOTED SURGEON PASSES.

KANE, Pa., April 1 (C.P.). — Dr Even O'Neill, Kane, who attained wide attention in 1919 by removing his own appendix and who recently performed a second operation upon himself, died to-day. He was 72 years old.

Due to the falling birthrate attendance at London elementary schools is 129 935 less than before the World war.

GREAT BRITAIN AT CROSS ROADS IN IMPERIAL FISCAL RELATIONS

MUST MOVE TOGETHER.

BEWDLEY, Worcester, England, April 2 (C.P. Cable)—We are really at the cross-roads in our Imperial fiscal relations, declared Stanley Baldwin, Conservative Leader and Lord President of the Council in a speech at the annual meeting of the Conservative Association of Bewdley, the constituency he has represented for many years.

We are bound to either go forward on the road that leads to closer economic union or else take another road, he said in reference to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa. Great Britain would go to Ottawa to help the process of evolution toward a larger economic unit, Mr. Baldwin said.

Great Opportunities

Never had a conference been held in which the opportunities were greater than at Ottawa, Mr. Baldwin continued. But if these opportunities were not taken, the course of events might lead all the partners apart.

The natural destiny of our country is economic union with our own flesh and blood, Mr. Baldwin said: but if this union is not accomplished we may be driven to look toward Europe. If the part of the Empire do not move to closer union among themselves, their economic interests might lead them half a century hence far away from those who are now their brothers.

If we all realize when we meet in July where the path of co-operation is, I am perfectly certain that whether the progress be great or small, it will be progress on the only lines likely to keep together the people of the Empire in the years before us.

NO RE-DRAFTING SAYS DE VALERA

Fiery Irishman Claims Free State Cabinet in Accord on Note.

OPINIONS UNCHANGED.

DUBLIN, April 2 (C.P. Cable).—President Eamon de Valera to-day emphatically denied reports the Irish Free State note to the British Government regarding abolition of the oath of allegiance and payment of land annuities had been redrafted because it did not meet with the unanimous approval of the Cabinet.

The note, which is in answer to the British declaration that Great Britain regards the oath and the land annuities as integral parts of the Anglo-Irish treaty, will be despatched to London on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

President de Valera to-day also contradicted suggestions the Cabinet regarded the oath as a matter for negotiation.. It is understood there is complete unanimity in the Free State Cabinet regarding abolition of the oath and retention of the annuities.

Another meeting of the Cabinet will be held on Monday to further consider the reply, which has been re-drafted.

CHICAGO, Ills., April 2. — (C.P.) — It may sound like a riddle, but Mrs. Clara Schauberger yesterday became legal mother of her foster-sister, who is her own natural child. Here's how:

When Mrs. Schauberger and Paul Schauberger were divorced last July she won the custody of Juanita, their seven-year-old daughter. Later the child's father consented to the child's adoption by her grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Munn on condition that alimony be waived.

In this manner Juanita became her grandmother's foster daughter and her mother's foster-sister. Yesterday Mrs Schauberger appeared before County Judge Jareckie and was granted his permission to adopt her own daughter, the grandmother agreeing.

BODY OF GIRL IS FOUND IN RIVER BY S. DARLING

Thought to be Body of Grace Donaldson Missing Since January 31.

FLOATING IN RIVER.

The unidentified body of a young woman was recovered from the Otonabee River at Wallace's Point at 2 o'clock to-day by Stewart Darling and H. J. Cardwell, farmers at Wallace's Point.

It is believed to be the body of Grace Donaldson, 21 years old, who stepped into a stop-log hole on the Quaker Oats dam into the water and was swept over the dam into the maelstrom of angry waters below on the evening of January 31. Miss Donaldson was crossing the dam in company with her mother on the way to attend service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, when she was swept from her mother's view amid the turbulent waters.

Searched For Weeks.

For weeks following the tragedy the river below the dam was searched and dragged. At one time it was believed that the body was located, but later it disappeared. Continued search by firemen, policemen and a band of sympathetic neighbors of the bereaved girl's family failed to gain any further sign of the body.

The theory was advanced that it was pinned beside one of the large stones strewn about the river bed below the dam, or that it was caught in some powerful eddy of the swift-flowing waters.

Mr. Herbert W. Cardwell telephoned police soon after the recovery of the unidentified body. Police immediately despatched Comstock's ambulance to Wallace's Point to carry the body to the city where attempts will be made to identify it.

Police believe that it is the body of Grace Donaldson, sine they are unaware of any other recent drowning in the Otoanbee river.

Telling of the discovery of the body, Herbert Cardwell said that Stewart Darling was paddling up the river in a canoe to visit his

Combined Bible And Prayer-Book Printed In 1629 Possessed By Rev. G. J. Bousfield

In a remarkable state of preservation considering its antiquity, a combined Bible and prayer book dated 1629, is in the possession of the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, Rural Dean of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough.

Existence of the volume, defeats the recent claim of F. N. Harvey of Whitby as possessor of the oldest Bible in Canada, by a matter of twenty-four years.

By reason of the fact that the first translation of the authorised version of the Bible was made in 1610, it will be realized that Mr Bousfield's family heirloom may be numbered among the earliest editions.

It was "imprinted at London by Bonham Norton and John Bill printers to the King's Most Excellent Majestie Anno Dom M.D.C. XXIX".

Among the numerous family records entered in the Book by Mr. Bousfield's ancestors, the first is "John Cock the son of John Cock born the 16th day of October 1657. He was baptised the 25th. October 1657". While yet legible, the ink with which the entries were made has faded with age. A leather binding encloses the volume. Its type is small and in Old English style.

It is interesting to note that prayers then in use for the Royal family are practically identical with those in use in the Anglican book of common prayer at the present time. Two of the prayers in the old Bible are headed, "A prayer for the Kings Majestie Sovereign Lord King Charles", and "A prayer for the Queene, Prince Fredericke, the Lady Elizabeth, his wife and their children."

MOURNED SON TURNS UP ALIVE

Father Gets Wire After Burying Body of Youth Believed Missing Offspring.

INVESTIGATION STARTS.

CHICAGO, April 2. —(Canadian Press)). — If the story of a youth located in Chicago is right Leon La Duke buried and mourned somebody else's son at a cemetery in Concord, N. H.

The coroner at Guthrie Centre, Ia. went through the pockets of a young man who died there recently and found papers identifying him as La Duke's son, 19 year old Roy, who left home last fall and was heard from only once from San Francisco.

The elder La Duke had the body sent to Concord and last Friday buried it. Monday, he received a letter from Chicago in Roy's handwriting asking for money so he could return home. The father appealed to welfare officials to help him determine whether his son was alive.

Last night, the writer of the letter was located here and said he was the real Roy. He said he had been travelling since he departed from Concord last November 16 and suggested the mistake in identity occurred because some letters and papers had been stolen from him.

He was waiting for word from Concord to-day.

POLITICS PLAY NO PART IN C.N. SAYS MANION

Claims Financial Fabric of Country Brought Into Jeopardy by Railway Position.

SLOGAN—ECONOMY.

Blank Cheque Bill Passes House—Rushed Through Senate.

OTTAWA, April 2. (C.P.)—Railway finances have brought the entire financial fabric of the country into jeopardy, said R. J. Manion, minister of railways when he presented to the House of Commons last night a comprehensive analysis of Canada's greatest problem—the railways. A bill authorizing the Canadian National Railway to float securities aggregating $61,500,000, required by the government-owned system in 1932, was before the House. It received second reading and was referred to a special parliamentary committee.

In emphasizing the need of economy, the railway minister said many services had been cut by the management of the Canadian National because of necessity not on political grounds. Politics played no part in the operation of the system, the role of the government being to urge a necessary and even vital economy upon the management.

MEASLES ARE OF MILD FORM

Present Epidemic in Peterborough is of Very Mild Nature.

Many Homes Quarantined.

Although the present epidemic of measles in this city resulted in the notification of some 114 patients during the month just closed, Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health gives the assurance that there is no cause for apprehension on the part of the general public. He does not however mean to suggest that there should be any relaxation in the observance of quarantine regulations.

"In the present instance" the doctor observed in an interview with The Examiner, "the measles is manifesting itself in one of the mildest forms I have seen."

From the records by Charles Stapleton, City Sanitary Inspector, it is noted that the outbreak of measles commenced at the end of January. PLANS ARE LAID BY FREE STATE FOR ANNUITIES

SUM OF $24,000,000.

British Attorney General's Speech in Scotland Stirs Hot Retort.

DUBLIN, April 2. (C. P. Cable)—While President Eamon de Valera's Republican Government still meditates its reply to Great Britain on the question of abolition of the oath of allegiance and the payment of the land annuities, Sean Macentee, Minister of Finance, is planning what to do with the $24,000,000 (at par) which would be retained if the Irish Free State withheld the annuities.

The Finance Minister's plan is understood to be two-fold. He intends to use part of the money in balancing the budget and putting the remainder to work on behalf of agriculture. Among the schemes suggested for the benefit of agriculture are:

(1) Concessions to industries utilizing home agricultural produce;

(2) Such assistance to the brew-industries using home grown grain as will help to develop tillage;

(3) Cheaper farm credits through an agricultural credit corporation.

(4) Facilities for insuring live-stock in transit.

If the land annuities are left out of consideration Macentee will have to follow the British idea and use the axe and tax—cut payments and increase revenue—to make the coming budget balance. Even De Valera's Irish Press of Dublin predicts an increase of sixpence or possibly a shilling in the income tax as virtually certain.

The celebration here developed into a near riot last night, in which fisticuffs were prevented by police. SIX SHOT DOWN IN SAVAGE RAID BY BANDIT TRIO

Desperadoes Open Fire When Dairyman Fails to Produce $5,000.

HUSBAND FEIGNS DEATH.

Wife, 3 Children Given No Chance—Two Women Escape by Fainting.

EL PASO, Tex. April 2.—Border officers joined today in a hunt for three bandits who slew six members of a Berino, N. M. dairyman's family in a savage raid last night.

Melquadio Espinosa, 60, the father, said the trio opened fire upon his family as they huddled in the kitchen of the home when he was unable to meet a demand for "that $5,000 you got when you sold your cattle." He denied the sale.

Espinosa escaped the death that overtook his wife and five children through a frontier trick and two women who fainted during the massacre were unharmed.

Visenti Espinosa, 18, a son, was shot through both legs. He was brought to an El Paso hospital, where he was expected to recover.

The dead:

Mrs. Felomena Merasde Espinosa, 48. Luis, 32, Edolilo, 26, and Andreas, 23, sons; and Juanita, 12, and Felipa, nine, daughters.

Confronted by the bandits' revolvers, the father dropped sprawling at the first shot. Powder-burned on the face, he feigned death. The trio ignored his blind mother, Mrs. Juanita Espinosa, 82, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Josefa Chabiri, who fainted.

The trio proceeded towards the rear of the house, herding the mother and all six sons and daughters in a corner in the kitchen.

"We want to know where that $5,000 is and we want to know quick," one of the bandits said. Members of the group replied they had no money. The bandits immediately shot them down, the bodies forming a heap in the corner.

The dairyman's mother and his sister-in-law walked into the kitchen while the slaughter was in progress. They fainted and fell over the prostrate forms.

Believing all of the household dead, the bandits ransacked trunks, dresser drawers and mattresses. Finding no money, they fled in their car.

CALL FERGUSON IN CIVIL ACTION

Motion Summons High Commissioner to Testify Next Thursday.

CASE AGAINST C.P.R.

MONTREAL, April 2.— (C.P.). — A Motion to require G. Howard Ferguson, Canada's High Commissioner to London, to testify here as a witness in a civil action was to-day granted by Mr. Justice Patterson. The motion was made yesterday by Thomas Neely, Toronto, who is a plaintiff in an action against the Canadian Pacific Railway for $50,000.

Mr. Ferguson was expected to arrive in Montreal to-day from Halifax. He is in Canada at his own request to testify before the Senate Committee on Bauharnois at Ottawa in connection with statements made to the committee by Senator Andrew Haydon.

The civil action taken against the railway is in respect to negotiations a few years ago for a hotel site in Toronto. Mr Neely in his claim says he was at first acting for the Canadian National Railways and later adian Pacific Railway. He contends he secured an option on a property, but later learned the Canadian Pacific had decided on the property where the Royal York Hotel was built. The action is for professional services. Mr. Neely declared yesterday before Mr. Justice Patterson that Mr. Ferguson had some knowledge of the matter and would be an important witness.

The motion requires the High Commissioner to testify here on Thursday.

TARDIEU'S FALL BEING PLOTTED BY SOCIALISTS

Radicals Confident of 20 Seat Gain in Election of May 1 to 8.

1,000 CANDIDATES OUT.

Herriot Likely Premier if Present Cabinet is Overthrown.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer)

PARIS, April 2.—Radical Socialists under the leadership of former Premier Edouard Herriot are entering the French general election campaign in the confident belief they will make a net gain of around thirty seats in the polling on May 1 and 8. They are counting on a net gain of seven seats in the western constituencies, four in the east and 20 over the rest of France. Any such gains would give the Radical-Socialists a representation of 140 in the chamber. Almost certainly, that would mean the overthrow of the Tardieu Government, and the formation of a new government strongly left in its complexion, with Herriot or possibly Joseph Paul-Boncour as Prime Minister.

190 in Next Chamber

Edouard Daladier, former leader of the Radical Socialists, claims that if the Parliamentary elections follow the last municipal elections, Radical-Socialists will have 190 in the next chamber. But one never knows, as the Radical-Socialists themselves admit.

In the general elections of 1924 an alliance of advanced parties known as the Left Cartel defeated the National bloc, and Herriot headed a government roughly equivalent to a British Labor Government. Definitely anti-clerical, the Herriot Government held office for a stormy 12 months; then fell.

Months followed of political uncertainties and shifting cabinets. With the franc once as low as two cents (it is now stabilized at four cents) France faced bankruptcy. Poincare formed his cabinet of National Union. It included six former premiers of whom one was Herriot, the others being Poincare himself, Barthou, Briand, Painleve and Leygues. Its policy was one of "save the franc." In the general elections of 1928 it received a decisive vote of confidence. The radical-Socialists lost 19 seats.

In the present fight both the Radical-Socialists led by Herriot and the more advanced Socialists of Leon Blum are emphatic that no Left Cartel is in view. On that, both headquarters are definite. Both parties claim they will have more than 500 candidates in the field, fighting under their own flag and for their own programme.

Now, while the Socialists of Leo Blum intend, according to their own declarations, to fight all and sundry in the first ballot, their weight in the second ballot will be thrown against the forces of reaction. Where the vote secured by their candidate in the first ballot shows that he has no chance of election, they will withdraw him, in favor of the candidate, whatever colors he may fly, who has the best chance of defeating reaction.

Premier Richards May Go To Bench

FREDERICTON, April 2 (C.P.).—Report here indicates a possibility that Mr. Justice Grimmer of Saint John will retire from the Provincial Supreme Court bench to accept the chairmanship of the Provincial Workmen's Compensation Board. Mr. Justice Grimmer was chairman of the commission which made a study of the workmen's compensation system of the province last year.

His retirement under pension would leave a vacancy on the Supreme Court bench. The report continues that this would doubtless be filled by the appointment to the bench of Premier C. D. Richards. Re-organization of the Compensation Board in the near future has already been intimated by the Government.

PEACE MAKERS GAINING GROUND

International Settlement Health Official Direct Cleaning Up of War Area.

FEAR EPIDEMIC.

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS
(A. P. Staff Correspondent)

SHANGHAI, April 2. — Chinese and Japanese peace negotiators were in somewhat closer agreement, it was announced after to-day's conference at the British consulate, but their opposing attitudes on the main issue of troop withdrawals remained unreconciled.

They adjourned for the week-end in order to consider the possibility of further concessions. The parleys will be resumed Monday afternoon.

Three problems in connection with the question of troop withdrawals remain unsettled. While the negotiators are practically agreed on the area into which the Japanese would withdraw, the Chinese remained unwilling to grant two of the areas specified by the Japanese. These are the village of Woosung and the vicinity of Markham Road, where it joins Western Chapei.

Two Points

The second point of disagreement is the time schedule for the withdrawals and the third relates to the Japanese objections to Chinese troops taking up positions on the Nantao and Pootung side of the Whangpoo River.

Delegates of both sides were guardedly optimistic at the close of to-day's session.

The tremendous task of cleaning up the refuse of war in devastated Chapei is making headway under the direction of health authorities of the International Settlement. Dr J. H. Jordan, health commissioner, said. He said danger of a widespread epidemic of dysentery, cholera and typhoid was definitely past.

MILITIA IN CONTROL.

MEXICO CITY, April 2 (A.P.) — The Mexican Army prepared to-day to clamp down strict martial law upon the country at 6 p.m., in preparation for the primary elections which will be held tomorrow to choose candidate for State and Congressional offices.

The military forces will be in absolute control of the country until 6 a.m. Monday. Mexico City, which ordinarily has from 3,000 to 4,000 policemen available for duty, will be policeless. Only traffic officers will remain at their posts, and these will be disarmed.

For a short period, also, the civilian population will be completely disarmed. By order of Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles, any civilian caught carrying a gun during the period will be arrested and jailed.

The emergency measures are being taken because of the tension developed during the primary campaign. More than 500 candidates are seeking the National revolutionary party's nominations for 168 deputy posts.

standing vote of 63 to 40. Closure was applied in committee stage, on the motion of Premier R. B. Bennett, 103 to 50. It was believed to be unique in Canadian parliamentary history that closure was applied twice in one week on different stages of the same measure.

In the main division of the day —third reading—Conservatives to a man voted favorably and enlisted the aid of two United Farmers, M. N. Campbell and A. M. Carmichael. Voting with the Liberals in Opposition were five other Ginger-ites, Robert Gardiner, H. E. Spencer, Miss Agnes Macphail, A. A. Heaps and Angus MacInnis.

For the remainder of the day, the House considered supplementary estimates totalling $1,059,474. They were for the financial year closing March, and represented deficiencies in the estimates passed last year. The largest single item was $85,000 for pensions.

$10,000,000 Extra

In addition to the $61,500,000 authorized in the Railway Bill, Dr. Manion said approximately $10,000,000 would be needed under the Maritime Freight Rates Act and for steamship services. The corresponding total for 1931 was $112,000,000.

Economy was the watchword of the Canadian National at the present time, proceeded Dr. Manion Gross earnings of the system struck a low ebb in 1931 and fell far short of raising the interest due to its bondholders let alone paying operating expenses.

As to the future, said Dr. Manion, with a reasonable return to business and commercial prosperity, with a fair attitude in demands regarding freight rates and capital expenditures, and with care, caution and economy on the part of the railway management, we may look to the future with hope.

ECONOMIC MEASURE.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In the interests of economy and efficiency, President Hoover yesterday asked abolition of the United States Shipping Board, which was raised by the world war from a small regulatory body to a colossal agency of administration and finance.

In a formal statement, the President suggested that Congress transfer the administrative functions of the present board to other government departments handling shipping matters.

He advised that a small regulatory board, composed perhaps of the present members, be substituted. In this way, Mr. Hoover thought government aid to shipping could be carried on more economically and efficiently, thus saving some of the $100,000,000 now spent annually in direct and indirect government aid to sea commerce.

Mr. Hoover's remarks were inspired by many letters asking who would fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Commissioner E. C. Plummer. The President said he did not intend to fill the post now.

The court was satisfied with McLean's explanation that he had impersonated a woman following a bet with other students.

CHIANG DECLARES MANCHURIA STILL INTEGRAL PART OF CHINA

Will Never Recognize New Regime Set Up By Jap Trickery.

PLAN RESISTANCE.

By James P. Howe, A. P. Staff Correspondent

(Copyright 1932 by the A.P.

NANKING, April 2. — General Chiang Kai-Shek, Chinese Generalissimo and former President, told me today in his first interview with a foreign newspaper correspondent in many months, that Manchuria is still part of China and that China would resist with arms any further attacks of the Japanese, although she is not preparing for war.

In Manchuria, he said, the Chinese would oppose by every peaceful means the tricky efforts of the Japanese to get up a puppet state in the three eastern provinces. In the eyes of the Chinese, he added no such government as that of Manchu[illegible] name given Manchuria under Henry Pu-Yi's new regime ever existed.

Still Part Of China

Manchuria is still an integral part of China and always will be, he said. No state exists. 'Manchukuo is pure camouflage by the Japanese The strenuous efforts to set up the new government is entirely their handiwork. China will never tolerate such a move, under any circumstances.

What few real Manchus are left are nearly all in China. Their civilization and culture has, all intents and purposes, been assimilated by the Chinese. There are a few, if any, representative Manchus in Manchuria today. Japanese claims to the contrary are pure fiction.

BLAMES BUSINESS TACTICS FOR CLOSING OF OFFICE

WINNIPEG, April 2. — Unwise business methods followed by the Manitoba Government were the cause of the closing of the provincial savings office, F. G. Taylor Conservative leader in the Manitoba legislature, told an audience here last night. He charged the legislative committee inquiring into the closing was spending more time trying to show that some Conservatives had told depositors to withdraw their accounts than in getting down to the real causes of the difficulties.

NAVIGATION IS OPENING TO-DAY ON LAKE ONTARIO

HAMILTON, April 2 (C.P.). — Navigation on Lake Ontario for the 1932 season begins to-day with the Canada Steamships Lines putting the freighter ss Coalhaven into service between Hamilton and Sodus N.Y. The vessel sails from this port to-day on the first run of the season. The ss Simcoe will sail tomorrow.

Fitting out of the entire package freight fleet is well under way, stated W. J. King, district manager All ships will be ready for operation at the beginning of the regular season.

While no sailing dates are given service will presumably start about the same time as the opening of the Welland Canal, which is announced for April 15.

BARN IS BURNED AT MILLBROOK

Walter Widdis Loses Implements, Hay, Grain—Stock is Saved.

LANTERN EXPLODES.

MILLBROOK, April 2 (Examiner Correspondence). — Fire destroyed the large barn on Walter Widdis' farm (the former Payne homstead), south of the village, Thursday evening, the loss including contents of several tons of hay, one hundred bushels of wheat, last season's clover still unthreshed, and other grain; besides a binder, separator, and some smaller farm implements.

The fire occurred about 8.30, and is believed to have resulted from the explosion of a lantern which Mr. Widdis had carried to the barn when he went to look after the stock and complete other chores for the night. Fortunately all the stock was saved, though as the flames spread with great rapidity the last last cattle driven out had their backs scorched, and the adjacent fences and trees were on fire.

Neighbors came to give assistance as soon as the alarm was received. Careful watching of the house, driving-shed, and other outbuildings, buckets of water being poured on the roofs or wherever sparks were seen to alight, checked the spread of the flames, though the barn was completely destroyed.

There is some insurance, but not enough to cover the loss involved.

"Two Years ago I'd have said it Couldn't be Done"

WALTER P. CHRYSLER TELLS ABOUT HIS NEW PLYMOUTH

I PRODUCED the first car that ever carried my name in 1924—only eight years ago. It sold for $2700 and caused a SENSATION.

The New Plymouth that I am introducing this week is exactly the same SIZE. It is just as POWERFUL. It is FASTER. It is ten times as SMART. And it is priced as low as $695.

Two years ago, if anyone had told me such a thing could happen, I would have said it couldn't be done.

The depression has made men THINK. And being forced to think, we have found new ways to overcome obstacles.

In creating the New Plymouth we had the problem of incorporating many new and important engineering improvements in a bigger and better automobile—of creating greater value.

In prosperous times we never could have done it. But under the pressure of adverse conditions we discovered necessity was the mother of INVENTION and that the seemingly impossible COULD BE DONE.

When you see this car, I ask particularly that you note its larger, roomier body. It is a BIG car, a more beautiful car, with longer wheelbase, with increased power, speed and performance. You will find that the 1932 Plymouth includes every feature that the most modern car can have. Above all it has one advantage found in NO OTHER car in its price class . . .

Floating Power . . . a revolutionary engine mounting that does away with vibration completely.

I think you will be impressed by the wonderfully easy-riding qualities of the New Plymouth. In my opinion you will find it is the most comfortable car you have ever driven.

Also, you can't help but be impressed by its extreme ease of handling. With the new Automatic Clutch it is almost effortless to drive. The Hydraulic Brakes make you safer and surer.

But I am really publishing this advertising to get you to go and SEE this car. After all, seeing is believing, and like myself you never would have believed it possible.

Like a Handful of Water

By WILLIAM SOUTHERN

MR. LYMAN ABBOTT, the great editor of The Outlook, one of the keenest and most logical thinkers of his age, said that the resurrection of Christ was "the best attested fact of history." Before and since His day a long line of noble men and women who believe in the resurrection as it is recorded in the New Testament includes philosophers, scientists, statesmen, editors, psychologists, leaders of thought and action.

But for the resurrection and the belief of men and women in that resurrection there would be no Christian church and no Christian civilization. It would all be like unto a handful of water. The life of Jesus did not begin with His birth but with His death.

The records which we have in the New Testament are found in the four gospels written many years after the events. No two accounts are exactly alike. Written by different hands, in another generation, if these accounts had been exactly alike and had exactly corresponded, it would have been cause for doubt. The differences in the accounts are slight and immaterial. The great central fact is attested in each one that Jesus died on the cross and afterward appeared unto Mary Magdalene, Peter and John, the Emmaeus travellers, the group of disciples and to hundreds of others.

Saul of Tarsus belonged to the intelligentsia of his day. He was probably as a collegian, materialistic and sceptical. His training was all against a belief in Jesus and yet in 1 Corinthians in the 15th chapter we have this testimony from Paul, "First and foremost, I passed on to you what I had myself received, namely, that Christ died for our sins as the scriptures had said, that He was buried, that He rose on the third day as the scriptures had said, and that He was seen by Cephas, then by the twelve; after that He was seen by over five hundred brothers all at once, the majority of whom survive to this day, though some have died.

That Jesus rose from the dead on the third day as we believe, was generally believed in all the country roundabout. There were those who said that it was not so and that His body had been stolen away. There are two facts we have which would refute any such a notion to any thinking mind. When the first followers entered the tomb, themselves not thinking about resurrection, they saw the napkin which had been bound about His head undisturbed and the grave clothes lying in orderly position. Had the body been stolen away these trappings would have certainly been left scattered about in disorder or removed entirely. There was so great a personal interest in disproving the resurrection, the interest of those who had repudiated Him, the interest of those who had done Him to death, that they left no stone unturned to disprove the resurrection and were unable to do so with all the wealth of ill-gotten gains at their command and all the power of high rank and position to carry out their desires.

The disciples themselves evidently were not expecting the resurrection. The women went to the tomb in sorrow and tears to pay the last sad tributes of respect. Mary Magdalene, to whom He first appeared, did not realize who it was and spoke as to a stranger. "Sir, if thou hast borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him." Then as He spoke her name she knew Him and, with hope and knowledge dawning in her eyes, she spoke the single word, "Rabboni."

A great artist has painted this picture. Mary standing with arms outstretched, her body poised forward, a great light in her eyes, a picture of hope and of knowledge.

All of the disciples did not believe. You remember that Thomas was not present in that upper room when Jesus appeared to the ten. When they told him that they had seen the risen Lord he would not believe and then when he placed his fingers in the wounded side he fell to his knees and said, "My Lord and my God."

Series: LIFE'S ULTIMATE QUESTIONS
IF GOD KNOWS ALL, WHY PRAY?

From Chinese Diary

THE steady tramp of sandaled feet on the slippery stones of the narrow streets of Foo Chow blended with the incessant drip-drip of the morning rain. The peddlers and chair carriers, shouting for right of way, jogged past each other at swift pace and hair-breadth proximity.

Across the crowded bridge adjoining the city street, where the great stone lions kept guard there appeared a bright spot of red. As it drew nearer it seemed to be a bridal chair with gorgeous red satin coverings, with trimmings of many paper flowers. The chair-bearers, in order to make the heavy weight less of a burden, were carrying it with a rhythmic swing which, though adding to their comfort, did not add at all to the pleasure of the poor little bride inside. She was bounced about on the small bamboo seat until she must have longed to scream, but it would never have done for a Chinese bride to make a noise. Besides, the windows of the chair were tightly closed, partly because of the rain, but mostly because there was a bride within.

The precious burden was now passing through the city, the third coolie running ahead of the chair, shouting and pushing for chair room. Finally, they emerged at the other end of the dark street, and ascended some stone steps. Up, up they bore the little bride, sitting quietly in her much-bedecked bridal chair. The paper flowers on the top of it glinted merrily as the sun peeped out from behind the clouds; the red curtains at the back, which hung out as they ascended, began to flap gently in the wind.—M.A.P.

Virtue

VIRTUE is not a mushroom that springeth up of itself in one night when we are asleep, or regard it not, but a delicate plant, that groweth slowly and tenderly, needing much pains to cultivate it, much care to guard it, much time to mature it. Neither is vice a spirit that will be conjured away by a charm, slain by a single blow or despatched by one stab. Who, then, will be so foolish as to leave the eradicating of vice, and the planting in of virtue in its place, to a few weeks or years? Yet he who procrastinates his repentance and amendment, grossly does so, with his eyes open, he abridges the time allotted for the longest and most important work he has to perform; he is a fool.—Dr. Isaac Barrow.

Confidence Makes Winners

WHAT a wonderful thing confidence is. A person who is confident is certain that he can do what he tries to do. This feeling of certainty enables him to do his best, to put forth his best efforts.

If an athlete lacks confidence he is almost beaten before he goes on the gridiron, the tennis court, the diamond or the basketball floor. If a fellow says, "They're better than we are. We haven't a chance," he or his team won't have a chance. On the other hand, if he says, "This is going to be a hard game, but we'll win if we fight hard. We're just as good as they are, anyway," he and his team will have an excellent chance to win. Many a team that was superior in skill has gone down to defeat before an aggregation of scrappers, fellows who fought and gave their all to the last.—Boys' World.

Powers Of The Mind

THE mind itself, whilst it roams over past ages, and travels wherever man has left the impress of his genius and his crimes, and absorbs into its own being all the elements of thought and action which have ever given character and impulse to the human race, must feel conscious of powers and instincts which attest the mobility of its nature, the grandeur of its destiny and the awful issues of its illimitable being. — Thomas Vasey.

True Singers Never Die

TRUE singers can never die:
Their life is a voice of higher things unseen to the common eye;
The truths and the beauties are clear to them. God's right and the human wrong;
The heroes who die unknown, and the weak who are chained and scourged by the strong.
And the people smile at the death-word, for the mystic voice is clear:
"The singer who lived is always alive; we hearken and always hear!"

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

Criticism

IT is much easier to be critical than correct. Constructive criticism may be, and often is, helpful; but destructive criticism robs one of courage, and usually degenerates into fault-finding. There is always something in others which is worthy of praise, and appreciation leads to further effort.—Evelyn Howe.

A Prayer

LET me do my work each day, and if the darkened hours of despair overcome me, may I not forget the strength that comforted me in the desolation of other times. May I still remember the bright hours that found me walking over the silent hills of my childhood, or dreaming on the margin of the quiet river, when a light glowed within me, and I promised my early God to have courage amid the tempests of the changing years. Spare me from bitterness and from the sharp passions of unguarded moments. May I not forget that poverty and riches are of the spirit. Though the world know me not, may my thoughts and actions be such as shall keep me friendly with myself. Lift my eyes from the earth, and let me not forget the use of the stars. Forbid that I should judge others lest I condemn myself. Let me not follow the clamor of the world, but walk calmly in my path. Give me a few friends who will love me for what I am; and keep ever burning before my vagrant steps the kindly light of hope. And though age and infirmity overtake me, and I come not within sight of the castle of my dreams, teach me still to be thankful for life, and for time's olden memories that are good and sweet; and may the evening's twilight find me gentle still. —Max Ehrmann.

ANGER.

He who can suppress a moment's anger may prevent a day of sorrow.

The Love of Jesus

ANXIOUS sinner, dost thou see,
That earnest, yearning look to thee,
Given in love from Calvary's tree.
By Jesus.

That pierced side and bleeding brow,
Proclaim salvation even now,
Look and your soul shall humbly bow
To Jesus.

Full atonement has been made,
God's demands have all been paid,
Thy many sins have all been laid
On Jesus.

Trust then and cast away your fears,
Your sins, self-righteousness and tears.
Rejoice for boundless grace appears
In Jesus.

Light And Darkness

TRUTH is every way better than error. Because this is so, it is better to emphasize one important truth than to denounce fifty dangerous errors. If a traveller be shown the right road to pursue, he has more practical help in his journeying than if he be told of fifty wrong ways that he must avoid, while still left in doubt, as to the one safe way. Letting in a single ray of clear sunlight gives more cheer in a room than trying to shut out a hundred tons of darkness. Oh, if men only realized this!

The Clouds

SOME clouds rise from stagnant bogs and fens, others from the wide, clean, large ocean. But either kind, thank God, will serve the angels to come down by. In the old stories of celestial visitants the clouds do much; and it is oftenest of all down the misty slope of griefs, and pains, and fears, that the most powerful joy slides into the hearts of men and women and children.

Beautiful are the feet of the men of science on the dust-heaps of the world, but the patient heart will yield a myriad times greater thanks for the clouds that give foothold to the shining angels. — George McDonald.

Learn To Laugh

LEARN to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. When you smile or laugh, your brain for a moment is freed from the load that it ordinarily carries.

Learn to tell a helpful story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick-room.

Learn to keep your troubles to yourself; the world is too busy to linger on your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in this world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns in their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.

Conscience

WHAT is there in all the gratification of passion, the pomp of the world, and the enjoyment of it, to the delights of a good conscience? It is the health of the mind; it is a sweet perfume that diffuses its fragrance over everything near it, without exhausting its store; unaccompanied with this, the gay pleasures of the world are like brilliants to a diseased eye, music to a deaf ear, wine to an ardent fever, or dainties in the languor of an ague. A good conscience is, indeed, the peace of God which passeth understanding; how happy is it to lie down with such a sweet companion after a day spent in communion with God and the necessary duties of life?—Dr. Knox.

Innocence

TOWER so high above you, little son,
You think me brave and strong and passing wise;
While I, with half life's battles fought and done,
Bow to the glory that around you lies:
The visions white you brought from paradise,
My soul soars to your level, spotless one;
Only when on my knees I meet your eyes—
Not when I tower above you, little son.

—Emily J. Lewis.

Disagreements

CASUAL disagreements have been considered as springs that give new force to love, and I believe they are so; yet as a spring too frequently or too forcibly used, remains at the place to which it is drawn back instead of flying forward so lovers will find that disagreements, if they are too frequent, will at length lose their elasticity and impel to love no more. —Greville.

Sorrow needs simple words for its consolation.

A Parable For The Travellers Through Life

By A. R. McLAUGHLIN.

A FOOLISH man, a cynic and a seer stood at the entrance of a country through which they had not passed before. Back of them lay the lands from which they had come and where they had gathered the equipment they carried with them. They were men in the prime of life, with health, vigor, strength and ambition.

Now each one carried some luggage, and as they rested before starting on the new trail, they talked of the country to which they were going.

The foolish man said, "I am taking gold and its equivalent; money will buy anything worth while. I care for no one and am going to make all the money I can in the land ahead."

The cynic sneered, "Someone will steal your gold. I want ease, pleasure and self-indulgence. I carry little parcels of vice, deceit and flattery in this bag. The only thing I care about people is to get as much from them and give as little in return as possible. Everybody has his price, and I will get what I want in this new country."

The seer looked earnestly toward the distant horizon, seeming eager to be on his way. He touched with reverent hands the bag he carried; it was large, but seemed light, for it contained the laughter of little children, the blessing of the poor, the benediction of the aged, and the music of a clear conscience. "I am going into this country to take joy to childhood; counsel to youth; cheer to the discouraged; comfort to the sorrowing; and a helping hand to the unfortunate," he said.

"You will have nothing when you come to the end of the trail," scoffed the fool and cynic. But the seer gave them no heed, for he knew better. With a prayer in his heart and a song on his lips, he shouldered his bag and started into the new country.—Congregationalist.

HEROISM REWARDED.

Peterborough citizens were undoubtedly gratified to learn that the bravery and presence of mind of some of the city's young people have been officially recognized by the Royal Humane Society.

Two of the society's medals for life saving and three certificates of merit have been allocated, one of the medals being post-humously awarded to Sidney Neiman, the young boy who sacrificed his life in the Otonabee River last December in trying to save a companion who had slipped into the water while skating, and the other being given to Ray Harding, who on the same occasion plunged into the icy river and risked death in attempting a rescue.

It is to be hoped that arrangements will be made for a public presentation of these awards to the four young people, and to the parents of Sidney Neiman, in order that the community may have the benefit of this tribute to heroism and self-sacrifice.

There is nothing finer than a willingness to risk one's life to save another, and when courage of this kind has been shown to such a marked degree, it is entirely fitting that it should be publicly recognized and acknowledged, not only in justice to the recipients themselves, but as an object lesson to the community.

THE MAIL AND EMPIRE'S ANNIVERSARY.

Congratulations are in order to one of Canada's most influential and widely read newspapers, the Toronto Mail and Empire, upon the fact that it this week celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of its founding.

The first publication was on March 30, 1872, and the paper has been before the public continuously ever since that date, its splendid news facilities, the excellence of its special features and the vigor of its editorial columns combining to give it wide circulation not only in Toronto but throughout the Province.

As The Mail and Empire has explained in an article this week, the paper was initiated by Sir John A. Macdonald and his political associates with the object of giving the Liberal-Conservative party "a voice in Ontario and keeping it a strong link in the newly-formed chain of Provinces."

Throughout six decades it has steadfastly adhered to the promotion of the cause on whose behalf it was launched; in all that time it has given consistent and powerful support to the Conservative party.

It, however, has been more than a party organ, for wise direction throughout its career has always emphasized the fact that a newspaper's duty to its readers was to provide news, and in that respect the Mail and Empire has ever been prominent in Canadian journalism.

Its diamond jubilee finds it as strong and vigorous as ever, and its multitude of friends will hope that it will continue on toward the century mark with equal success.

THE HOBBY SHOW.

The annual Hobby Show of the Y.M.C.A. boys' department, which comes to a close to-night, offers concrete proof that the boys of this city have a large number of interesting and useful spare-time occupations.

That is a development upon which the community is to be congratulated.

There is no better safety-valve for a vigorous young boy than the pursuit of some hobby, and by the same token older members of society are none the worse for something of the same kind to occupy their hours of leisure.

The lad with a harmless hobby very rarely gets into trouble, and the more interest he displays the more his mentality is developed as a result.

The Hobby Show with its opportunity to compete in almost every line likely to interest the boy of to-day serves a very useful purpose, and it is gratifying to note the large number of entries in all departments.

A large attendance on the part of the public will be a source of encouragement to the Y.M.C.A. and to the boys themselves, indicating that the public as a whole recognizes the important place hobbies have in the life of the boy, and is anxious to place the seal of its improvement upon this annual competition and the objects for which it has been organized.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENDITURE.

A good many people will agree with Frank J. Mitchell, of Windsor, in the following:

"It seems to me that they sit up night's devising ways and means to get taxes. I wonder if any one ever figures the other way—how to save money?"

The question is a timely one.

Within recent weeks various provincial governments have brought down their budgets, and in every case there have been heavy taxation increases in an effort to match revenues and expenditures.

The desirability of balancing budgets is obvious, but it should be equally plain that this feat cannot be performed every year by the expedient of tapping new sources of taxation.

There is a limit to the amount of money a people can provide in the way of taxes, and that limit would seem to have been reached in this country.

Governments cannot continue to increase taxation, and the only other alternative therefore is to cut down their overhead.

Some attempt, it is true, has been made to do so, but it has not gone deep enough to improve the situation, and until all our governments realize that up to the present they have only been making a gesture toward retrenchment, and that they must go a great deal further before their efforts will be of any real benefit, no worth-while relief can be effected.

We have got to get down to hard pan, and the sooner that fact is appreciated the sooner will the situation be righted.

RENDERING UNTO CAESAR.

There is one passage in the Scripture to which all our governing bodies appear to be giving their unanimous assent and approbation, and to have studied it so thoroughly as to have it quite at their fingers ends. It is this:

"There went out a decree in the days of Claudius Caesar, that all the world should be taxed."

Hardly a day now but word comes of some new tax, of some extraordinary ingenuity exercised by some government somewhere to add to its exchequer. Indeed it would be interesting to try to discover whether there remains any single object in the world that is of use or value to man that doesn't render tribute. If this seems exaggerated, then take a child, follow it through the nursery, through school into manhood, or womanhood, through marriage and a trade or profession, into old age and to the grave, and try to discover it at any stage through life's journey there was escape from taxation. Even tombstones are taxed.

Years ago Sydney Smith wrote a famous passage about taxation, about its growth. One wonders what he would say about it to-day. For it was this same Sydney Smith who wrote that the only business of a government was to get twelve good men into a jury box. To-day—and it is the real reason for taxes—governments do a thousand things. They are in everything, and touch everybody, reach out into private lives and activities; embrace humanity.

And it is what the people seem to want. They grumble about taxes while clamoring for things that are impossible without taxes. During the boom days all sorts of social services were started; we are now paying the piper in depression days. That's all. Yet there is this to be said: that while taxes are burdensome, life without taxes and the things taxes make possible might be a great deal worse. It was Montesquieu who once said: "In despotic states the equivalent for liberty and creature comforts is the lightness of taxation."—Ottawa Journal.

THIN LEADERS AND FAT.

It is not all the time a state of war between science and the rooted habits of mankind. With surprising and gratifying frequency scientific research comes to the defense of common behavior. The spirit of free inquiry is not always slaying ancient superstitions. It often vindicates ancient practices. We laugh at people who once upon a time closed the windows at night to keep out the baneful night air. But our studies in the health-giving properties of light rays justify mankind's ancient preference for sunshine over shadow and for light over dark, sometimes to the point of sunworship. Our recent progress in knowledge of the vitamins fully vindicates the ancient fondness of the human race for butter, milk and eggs. As the scope of research in the colleges and the laboratories has widened there has been increasing agreement between new findings and old experience. In sociology, in education, the special study and the questionnaire are more likely than not to prove that parents are, on the whole, fond of children; that good food and plenty of rest are excellent safeguards against rickets, and that the bright child is likely to get on faster in the world than the dull child.

A recent example of research striking hands with experience comes from the University of Illinois, where a three years' study has been going on in the metabolism of two different types of men. It has been ascertained that in stocky and heavy men the biological tempo is slower and more stable than in tall, thin men. The sturdy type takes life easily. The thin men are always up and doing. If they make you uncomfortable, you just call it the fidgets; if you approve of them, you call it initiative, energy, leadership, mounting in the extreme to genius. It is from the tall, thin, unstable type that our business leaders chiefly come. In this conclusion the University of Illinois scientists are in full accord, of course, with one of the most popular of human traditions. The lean who are eager and the fat who are stolid, the thin who innovate and the sturdy who insist on established rights, the tall and slender who make up the ruling classes and the chunky and squat who do the obeying—these are universal doctrine. The laboratories are in accord with Julius Caesar's predilection for having good, fat, safe men about him.

One difference, however, must be noted between science and ordinary experience when they agree. Science is apt to be much more dogmatic than experience, much more likely to suggest that its truths are universal. Experience, on the other hand, is ready to allow for exceptions. Thus, in the case of thin men as leaders and innovators, one can think immediately of many leaders who decidedly were not or are not thin: Napoleon, George Washington, Einstein, Lenin, Theodore Roosevelt, Mussolini, U. S. Grant. In the face of such offsets to Abraham Lincoln and R. W. Emerson, common experience will readily admit that you cannot always tell. But the usual report from the scientific laboratory is positive that you always can.—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It's got so now in Parliament that you can't discuss the same subject for three or four weeks without having closure slapped on you.

Mr. Ferguson is back in Canada, and there will be natural interest in what, if anything, he has to offer in the way of advice to Premier Henry.

The missionaries, as the Border Cities Star points out, have a great deal in their favor. Those whom they try to civilize can't see civilization.

Great Britain has balanced the budget. The Mother Country is leading the world back to a firmer footing.

Unfortunately the new car models are not yet fool-proof. They will not automatically stop and look and listen at railway crossings.

And now the Stanley Cup race has narrowed down to a point, where the championship will be fought out between a team of Canadians representing New York and other teams of Canadians representing Montreal or Toronto

Germany's Near Collapse Her Renaissance

By H. W. L. MAHOOD.

When the Great War ended Germany did not cease her fighting, as all the world has come to know. Since the signing of the Versailles Treaty she has with great determination fought many of the provisions of that document. She has fought and is still fighting Reparations, and the Unilateral Disarmament circumstances. She demands the revision of the Territorial clause of the Treaty, as far as they fix the eastern boundaries, and close the door of union with Austria.

The German people regard the Treaty of Versailles to be an instrument of moral injustice, and physically, impossible of fulfilment. To this view the civilized world is responding sympathetically. The Allies have come to see that the restrictions that hedge her about, and limit her activities, are cruel, and that they must be removed before the world will recover international confidence, and economic stability. At last the Allies are taking to heart, what it means, to the people who are seeking to establish a republic on the ruins of the Hohenzollern Empire, to continue to suffer, to be trampled on, to be impoverished, and to be disarmed.

Germany's transition from an empire to a republic, brought to her a serious handicap. Emperor William was autocratic. During his regime he suffered no understudies in political state craft. When he came to the throne, Bismarck was a power with whom the nations had to reckon, in all European affairs. He was too big for William. He was dismissed from office. The young Emperor proceded to take over into his own hands the direction of all domestic and international affairs of importance. Then, there was Von Buelow, a brilliant man of business and no mean statesman. He suffered a like fate. When Bismarck and Von Buelow had a hand in the national affairs of Germany the German policy was well understood at home and abroad. Her prestige was without a cloud. Since the Great War she has been without competent leadership to defend her right abroad, and to consolidate her domestic interest, and to unify the people.

Germany's greatest misfortune is not in the Reparations which she is unable to pay, nor in her Disarmament, nor in the Boundary issue. It is in her not being trained for self government. Schooling in the exercise of citizenship in a republic, and in statecraft, will be a matter of many years, before Germany will come to her self.

Students of pr sent day Germany will do well to ponder this token of a new Germany. The rediscovery of genuine religion has generally followed a time confusion, and bewilderment. Rather it has made its appearance in the midst of such times. But there are no challenging signs of this in either Canada or in the United States. But in Germany there are the tokens of another German reformation. The German churches are packed with eager worshippers as they have not been for generations. Prayer meetings are the vogue. Factories are setting aside rooms for noon hour services. Saxony has been a hot bed for Communism. Red meeting places are being turned into evangelistic meeting houses. The Soviet inspired Society of the Godless has lost its hold on the people.

A traveller in Germany reports that he turned up one Sunday night in a small industrial city. On the station bill-board he read the announcement of a Sunday night dance—free—at a nearby beer-garden. He strolled over. There were six couples on the floor. "Where is the crowd?" he asked the waiter. "In church."

Whereupon he went to church—the nearest church to the beer-garden. It was packed to the last seat, and a testimony meeting—Methodist style—was in progress. Not a moment was lost in that meeting. There were many people to testify and to lead in prayer. He visited four other churches. They were all packed to the door. He wandered back to the beer garden. The six couples had dwindled to three. Throughout Saxony and the rest of Germany a remarkable religious awakening is in progress. It may mean a New Reformation in the land of Luther. The people are demanding real evangelistic sermons and evangelistic church services. Canada and the United States are as much in need of his religious renaissance as is Germany.

DISTRICT NURSE

"Of course, Pete." Her tone was quiet, steadying. Gradually the hot color receded, leaving him a little whiter than normal.

"She hates me," he muttered.

"Don't be childish, Pete. She says that about you."

"About me?" His eyes were astonished—"about me— what have I done?" he inquired, with marked bitterness.

"Nothing. Everything. Oh, she said you were good to her, in the hospital."

"Good to her—?" He laughed abruptly. "She hates me, I tell you. She turned her face to the wall and cried, every time she saw me."

"That doesn't sound like hate," Ellen told him. "Perhaps it was— remembering."

"Remembering? How much has she remembered all these years? Do you think I've ever forgotten?" he asked, savagely. "I've tried. No one knows—by every possible means. Some of them weren't so pretty. You know, you've heard. No good. I kept thinking of her always, wondering—till my mind was sore, as if it had been beaten, as if my thoughts tore their way through. I used to walk through the wards and look at the women, the dopes, the alcoholics, the—"

"Pete—Pete—"

"Sorry. But it got me. What did I know.....? Just what the newspapers had. Just what your father said. Sometimes I dream of that night I went around to your place and he was there—and talked to me. You see it had always been Coral for me since we were kids. I sound like a—radio crooner," he ended abruptly, disgusted.

Ellen said, quietly, "Why don't you come to see Coral, Pete? Or don't you want to? Now—that you've seen her—are you trying to tell me you're—cured?"

He said, violently, "No, it's worse than ever. When I saw her there—when I brushed by you, on that filthly landing." He stopped, and his face worked terribly.

"Please don't," Ellen said. "We have to forget that, if we can, all of us."

"You know we can't, Ellen." He clenched his strong, nervous hand on the table. Words broke from him, isolated, ugly. She listened, unflinching. She said, "That's over, Pete. Over and done with, years and years ago."

"I know." He had the grace to flush. "I—I kept track. I looked things up; I knew men who worked on newspapers.

After a moment, during which Pete stared at her, Ellen said bravely, "I see no reason why I should defend her to you. She's had a rotten time. A damnable time. Lonely. Lost. Hungry often. Cold." She saw him wince at that; was glad. "Earning her living, somehow, in ways she may have hated but which were clean ways, Pete. Laughing through it, hard-boiled—like you—"

He was silent, remembering her dear response to his shy boy's passion before her burst out. "You're trying to tell me there wouldn't be a hundred men mad about her." He stopped. Ellen's eyes were blazing.

"I believe her," she said. "Listen, can't you see this straight? She was nothing but a youngster, dazzled by promises, thinking of the stage, of the man who offered her opportunity, in the most extravagant terms. She was a little crazy—you get like that when you're young and want life and good times. She was brought up in a pretty strict household. Rules and routine. And father was alive then. He and mother—you know, you've been with us enough. So wrapped up in each other there wasn't at that time much left over for us, except discipline and a sort of unexpressed affection. Father was absolutely puritanical in his ideas about us, you know that. And mother didn't fight for us, for the little freedom that might have contented Coral, who was older than Nancy or me. His word was law to her, she was dependant upon him, for everything, even her opinions. So Coral ran away, not thinking, not, I suppose, even caring. But it didn't mean she couldn't come back."

"She didn't come back," he said stubbornly.

"She wanted to; she was afraid. Afraid because she hadn't been successful, afraid because she couldn't say, no matter what happened long ago, I've put that all in back of me, I've made good. Can't you understand that? Even as a very little girl she had so much pride—"

He said, "I'm sorry. I—if I went to her, if I told her I love her—?"

"Do you, really, Pete?" she asked him, earnestly.

"What else?" He stared at her, in astonishment. "What else, all these years?"

"It could be—so much else," she murmured.

He ignored that.

"I do love her. I've never stopped, not for a moment, even when the thought of her was like dying. If I go to her and tell her I believe her—and trust her—and forgive her—"

"Forgive her?" Her eyes were clear scorn. "What have you to forgive, exactly?"

He flung a man's name at her, defiantly. He said, "You can't deny that, can you?"

"No," said Ellen, white. "I can't—we'll take that for granted. Very well. Shall we say then that you forgive her—because you've been perfectly chaste?"

"That's different," he said flushing, "That's not fair of you, Ellen. A man—"

"A man," said Ellen, grimly, "can, of course, do as he pleases. But, I suppose a woman—"

After a long minute he said, very humbly, "There's no need for us to quarrel over—anything, Ellen, if I go to her and ask her to forgive—?"

Her eyes were gentle now. But she said again, "For what? Oh, can't you understand, Pete, that there isn't such a word if you really love. Forgiveness—pardon—pretty cold terms. Love doesn't bother with them. Just is."

She believed that. Later she was to remember it.

After a long time he said, "If she'll have me, I'll be so good to her."

"You'll have to be more than good," said Ellen. "You'll have to be strong enough—to forget. Strong enough to get through the times when you're tired, when you're irritated, when reproaches come easily. If I thought for one moment that you couldn't be strong enough, I'd do everything in my power to keep you from ever seeing her again."

"You would, you know, Ellen," he said regarding her. "I believe you would. But—I've been a fool," he told her, quite simply." But somehow the hurt stayed raw, septic, wouldn't heal. Now, it's different. You've done a lot for me. Made me, perhaps, grow up. It was all, I suppose, jealousy. Damnable," he said, "you don't don't know—"

She didn't know—yet.

He leaned across the table, lean young face intent. "I may come, then? You'll ask her—"

"Just come," she said, smiling.

Later, on their way out, she saw in the front room two people. One was Gilda Esposito, another a young man whose face was vaguely familiar to her. She remembered, suddenly, Fontana, the man with the imitation pearl offerings whom "Gilda no like." She hesitated, wondering if she should go over and speak to them while Pete was getting his hat. No. They were quarreling, very openly. Gilda's face was flushed, and her eyes—Ellen could see her eyes. No, she would not stop.

Some one else was approaching their table, some one who had come in from a side door. It was Jim O'Connor. He pulled out a chair and sat down. Ellen went on out quickly with Pete. Her eyes were puzzled. Jim had said he didn't know Gilda. Perhaps he knew Fontana, rented to him, something of that sort. Then, she forgot them all, thinking of Coral and of Pete, confident that they were going to be happy.

INSTALMENT 16.

So Pete came to the house, but Coral was not, after all, unprepared. A letter reached her first, a thick letter. It came by special delivery. Nancy was there when it arrived.

"When she got it," she reported to Ellen afterwards, she looked so darned funny. Mother said, of course, 'Who's it from, dear?' And she said, 'Oh, Pete,' in that way she has, sort of tossing it off, as if it didn't matter. She didn't read it, for minutes. Mother asked, 'What does he say?' After a while she opened it. I saw her hands shake. She read it for a page or two. Then She read it for a page or two. Then what, and went into mother's bedroom with it. Shut the door. She came out after a while. She'd been crying, I guess. And when Mother said, 'Well?' sort of dragging it out the way she has, you know, Coral said, 'He just wants to know if he can come over some evening.' So that's that. She's called him up and asked him over for supper, his next night off."

"Did she talk long?" Ellen asked.

"No, just—"Hello, Pete, when do you get off? We'd like to have you for supper.' Something like that, anyway."

"All very well," said Ellen, "but I'll take mother to a movie—oh, I can't, but you can. In the late afternoon. Pete will get here early. I—they ought to have a little time alone, Nancy. You manage, will you? Now that mother's gone out once or twice she thinks it's quite all right. Look here, we've got to manage."

Ellen's calls kept her rather late that day. After that she made an errand or two an excuse to be even later. It was half past six before she got home. Nancy and Mrs. Adams hadn't as yet returned. "Pete," they had told Mrs. Adams, "will be awfully late. We can't possibly have supper till oh, way past seven. And you know you're dying to see Marie Dressler!"

Pete, as it happened, had managed to be early. Ellen had 'phoned him. "If you could—?" she said.

He could.

They were sitting rather close together when Ellen opened the door. Pete rose, self-consciously. Ellen dumped the packages into his arms. "Kitchen," she ordered briefly, "and make it snappy."

She looked at Coral. Coral, curled up in a corner of the davenport, looked back. She was ten years younger, and ten years softer. Her eyes were happy eyes; the corners of her mouth curled upward.

"Is it all right?" asked Ellen.

"It's all right. Coral said. "He—he wants me to marry him—as soon as he goes with Doctor Travers. We can live in the apartment above the office, you know, the third floor, which Doctor Travers fixed up for Mel. Ellen," she said, "should I—dare I?"

"Goose!" said Ellen, and kissed her.

Pete came back. He was whistling. He said, "She's told you, I see. I wanted to. Women can never keep anything to themselves. Like me for a brother?" he inquired.

STANDARD LIST CONTINUES EASY

Several Specialties Manage to Move Against Trend for Small Gains.

NORANDA IN DEMAND.

TORONTO, April 2 (C.P.).—Though several specialties managed to move against the trend for small gains general tone continued easy on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market in today's short session. Volume, light throughout, died out with signs of a rally near the close.

Noranda met good support in the second hour and finished the day around $17 for a 25c advance. International Nickel was off 5 to a new low of $8.10. Eldorado slipped 3 to $1.23 and Dominion Explorers lost a fraction.

Dome, dropping another 15 to $10.50, recorded the only change among higher-priced golds. In the cheaper issues Macassa, Ventures, Moffatt-Hall, Lebel Oro, and Ribago were firmer, but Moss, Bidgood, Alexandria, and McLeod River lost a little ground.

Oils were a soft group, Homestead losing 6, Chemical Research 5, Ajax Oil 4, and Peninsular Pete. and Acme Gas fractions apiece.

HEAVY SELLING IN RAIL ISSUES

Price Averages Penetrate New Low Levels for Third Day.

CLOSING TONE HEAVY.

NEW YORK, April 2 (C.P.).—Selling converged upon the railroad shares in to-day's short session of the stock market, and price averages penetrated new low levels for the third successive day.

Pressure was relaxed in the last hour, however, and enough short covering appeared to reduce the decline somewhat. Extreme losses of 1 to 4 points were numerous, but many of these were cut in half.

The industrials and utilities generally finished within fractions of yesterday's final level, but several rails were off 1 to 2 points. The closing tone was heavy. Trading was in fair volume for a two-hour session, transfers approximating a million shares.

New Canadian Mark Set By Ayrshire Cow

REDERICTON, N.B., April 2.—(C.P.)—A new Canadia. Ayrshire record has been completed by Fredericton Spottie 3rd (114055), owned by the Dominion Experimental Farm here.

This cow gave 15,491 pounds of milk, 765 pounds of fat, average test 4.94 per cent., in 365 days as a three year old and thus became the highest record fat producer in the three year old class, 365-day division in Canada.

The former Canadian record holder was Pride Bess [illegible], bred in Prince Edward Island. However, Pride Bess Dream, maintains her position of world's record three-year-old fat producer on two milkings a day as the record of Fredericton Spottie 3rd was made on three milkings a day.

Predict New Link Haiti-S. America

PRINCETON, N.J., April 2 (C.P.).—Another isthmus to link North and South America by way of the West Indies may result from movements of the earth's crust in the Caribbean, say scientists of Princeton University.

An expedition from the university, which has just completed a six-weeks' study in the West Indies, found that the islands forming a curving chain from Haiti to South America are gradually being pushed higher and higher above the sea.

CHURCHES ARE OPPOSED TO MOVIES ON SUNDAY

LONDON, April 2 (C.P. Cable).—In more than 3,000 churches of all denominations, sermons tomorrow will contain protests against the Sunday Performances Bill now before the House of Commons, which would legalize—under local option—Sunday opening of moving picture theatres.

The Government introduced the bill just before Easter and will leave second reading to a free vote of the House of Commons.

At present, moving picture theatres in certain places, notably London's West End, are open on Sundays in defiance of the letter of the law, but with the tacit sanction of the local authority.

Nickel-C.P.R. Holds Interest At Montreal

MONTREAL, April 2. (CP)—International Nickel and Canadian Pacific issues absorbed most of the volume of business of the quiet two-hour session of the Montreal stock exchange to-day. Both stocks were off fractionally at the end of the day, the former closing at 7⅞, of ⅛ and the latter at 14⅝, down ⅝. With the exception of National Steel Car, which dropped one point to 10, the rest of the list was generally firm. Brazilian closed at 10¾, up ⅛. Smelters was firm today selling at 46, unchanged from last night's close. This stock suffered a sharp loss following the publication of the company's annual report. McColl Frontenac and Quebec Power were down small fractions.

Canada Cement common and preferred, Canadian Car com. and preferred, Massey Harris, and Southern Canada Power were unchanged.

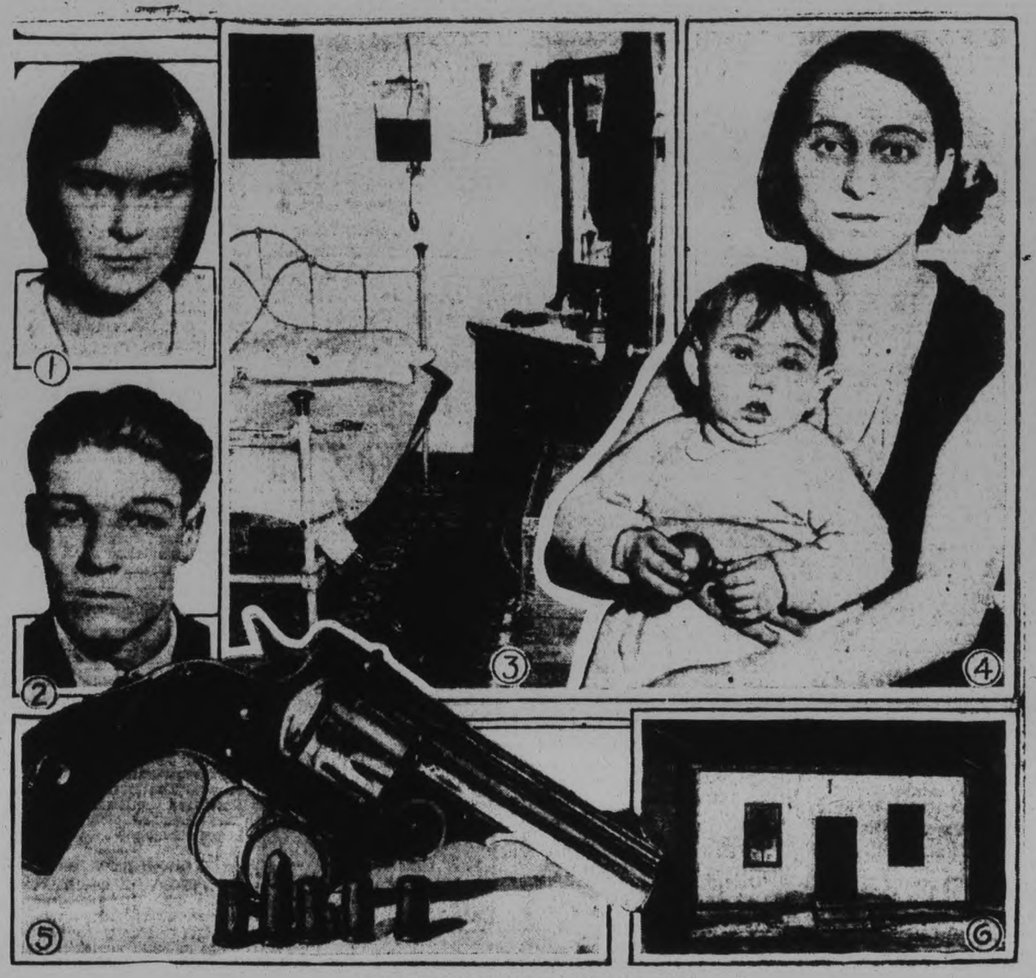
Double Tragedy Enacted In Tiny Cottage



BELLEVILLE MAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Within the hearing of his 15-year-old daughter, Margaret, who fled screaming from the scene, Samuel Bowler, 66, is alleged to have shot and killed his wife, Coral, this week and then to have killed himself. Margaret Bowler is shown in (1). His father had told him repeatedly he "was going to end it all some day," according to Horace Bowler, 19 (2). The dresser in the bedroom in which the slain woman was standing when she was shot is shown in (3). Horace Bowler's wife and baby daughter heard the sound of quarrelling and four shots. The daughter-in-law, who raised the alarm, is shown in (4). A snub-nosed .32 calibre revolver (5) was found beside the husband's body by Sergeant Harman when he and Constable Taylor arrived. The little plaster cottage where the double tragedy was enacted is shown in (6).

PIVOT ISSUES ARE ACCORDED MUCH BETTER SUPPORT TO-DAY

Several Prominent Leaders Drop to New Lows During Early Trading.

ON TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, April 2.—(C.P.).—Toronto stock exchange market recovered to-day, following the violent outburst of selling Friday. Stocks went lower the first half hour but offering were not overbearing and the recession was only of minor extent, though Nickel, Bell Telephone, Ford of Canada made new lows for the year, the former at 7 7-8, Bell Telephone at 101½ and Ford at 10½. In the second hour the pivotal issues received much better support and before the close had climbed above the level of Friday's close. Ford, especially made a good recovery, rising to 12 before the close for a net gain of almost a point. Nickel firmed to 80, Noranda got up to 17, Coast Copper rose ½ point and Smelters, not at all the wild acting stock of Friday, finished a point higher at 47.

C.P.R. at 14½, Consumers' Gas at 150, Walkers at 3 3-8 were all unchanged.

Oils were firm at the close, though they had to absorb some light selling at the opening. Turnover in this section was heavier than of late.

traps. He saw the body floating on the river. Hurriedly he swung about and paddled back to the landing at Wallace's Point, there securing a rope. H. J. Cardwell accompanied him in the boat out to the body.

The rope was tied to the coat on the body and it was towed to shore near the bridge at Wallaces' Point.

"The body is unrecognizable," Herbert Cardwell told The Examiner. "I wold not like to identify it even as a woman except for the blue coat with fur collar, which is certainly a young woman's coat. I could observe nothing else that would serve to identify it. It is fearfully decomposed."

Grace Donaldson was wearing a dark coat with a fur collar at the time that she was swept over the dam, The Examiner was informed by a member of the bereaved family.

Wallace's Point is ten miles from Peterborough by river and the river pitches over a dam at Lock street.

LITTLE BRITISH ISLE HAS KING OF ITS OWN

Owner of Lundy Issued Coins and Stamps But They're Banned

NO TAXES AT ALL

Martin Coles Harman Has Had an Amazing Career in High Finance

London.—Martin Coles Harman, the uncrowned king of Lundy Island, in the Bristol Channel, has been figuring in a high court drama. The case has concerned the transfer of securities worth £145,563 of the Morris and Jones, Ltd., Liverpool wholesale grocers, of which he was chairman.

Mr. Harman started his career as a clerk in a London office. He rose until companies with issued capital of £14,000,000 were under the control of himself and his associates.

He bought Lundy Island, whose forty inhabitants can tell centuries-old stories of pirates and buccaneers, for £16,000.

No rates or taxes are paid by the lucky forty.

Coins and stamps for use by the Lundy Islanders were issued by Mr. Harman, but they were banned, and at Bideford petty sessions, he was fined £5 for "unlawfully issuing a piece of metal, contrary to the coinage act."

The coins issued were called puffins and half-puffins, and had on them a bas-relief of Mr. Harman's head, with his full name round it.

On the island there is no register of births, deaths or marriages. There are no inquests.

Mr. Harman goes to his island for holidays from his activities in London. The "Harman group" of companies have been financially interested in many industries and projects.

Mr. Harman controls his own bank, the British Bank of Foreign Trade. The Rock Investment Co. Ltd. and the Chosen Corp. Ltd. are other companies of his.

DUBLIN PREPARING FOR CONGRESS WEEK

£15,000 for Street Decorations for Eucharistic Gathering

Dublin, Ireland.—Over £15,000 will be spent on the decorations for Dublin streets for the Eucharistic congress, which takes place in June. Floral baskets, triumphal arches, and yellow and white flags will span the main streets of the city, down which the fifteen-mile procession of people will march, with the Papal Legate at their head, after the celebration of the Pontifical high mass in Phoenix Park on Sunday, June 26th.

Preparations for the accommodation of thousands of visitors from abroad are well advanced. Several liners will be anchored in Dublin bay, and their passengers will return to them each night after spending the day in the city. A camp of two thousand tents, providing accommodation for six thousand persons, will also be established.

quarantined in the city during that length of time. 100 homes were placarded for measles and the remainder as a result of chicken-pox and scarlet fever.

For public protection quarantine regulations require that in any home where there is an outbreak of an infectious disease the house shall be placarded by the Sanitary Inspector. In the case of measles restrictions are imposed for a period of from seven to sixteen days according to whether there are other contacts in the house of not.

During that time visitors are not supposed to call on the family. By permission of the M.O.H. the breadwinner of a family, shall board elsewhere in a home that has no children.

Mr. Stapleton referring to his records pointed out that the last extensive outbreak of measles in this city occurred at about this time of the year in 1929. The epidemic started at Christmastime in 1928 reaching the peak at the end of January and early in February and showing signs of abatement in the first week of April 1929. "That epidemic was of a much worse type than the present one in which the outbreak of measles is preented in a very mild form" he said.

"There are some measles in the district, but it is a very mild form," Dr. N. H. Sutton, district M.O.H., told The Examiner.

The epidemic of mild "flu" has followed along the highways, was the theory advanced by Dr. Sutton. He stated that "flu" had been plentiful in the communities along Highway No. 2 and was spreading along Highway No. 28 and Highway No. 7. However, in but the odd case is the 1932 brand of "flu" serious, he declared.

"The health of the district taken as a whole is good" he concluded.

400 EXHIBITS WELL DISPLAYED AT HOBBY SHOW

Annual Boys' Hobby Show Opened in "Y" Last Evening.

SOME SPLENDID WORK.

New Records Are Set in Many of the Departments.

One of the best "Y" Boys' Hobby Shows in the history of the city flung wide its doors last night in the large dining room of the Y. M. C. A. building and welcomed hundreds of interested parents and other grown-ups to inspect the more than 400 exhibits, representing the handicraft of the boys.

The exhibits were all well displayed, much care having been taken in the mounting and the grouping of the various departments. Everything in which a normal healthy boy is interested is included in this great show, along with this it must be remembered that the whole exhibition represents the work of the boys, who even planned the exhibition and are conducting it under the guidance of James McClenaghan, the boys' secretary of the "Y". In many cases the exhibits were judged by the young managers of the departments.

On exhibition are the prized creations of many hours of patient work with saw, hammer and pincers—graceful airplanes, many of which are guaranteed to fly; bird houses, jardinier stands, wooden and workable toys, and hundreds of other articles that zealous lads can build in idle minutes. Most of the exhibits in the wood-working department were made by boys attending the Manual Training Classes of the Public School and the Peterborough Vocational School.

One of the new departments is that of leathercraft, which includes some cleverly designed belts and book marks. In all these exhibits the boy took plain strips of leather and did all the decorative work themselves, even making their own designing tools.

Another interesting department is that of soap sculpture, some of the best work being turned in by a boy nine years old.

The art exhibit in this year's show exceeds all those of the past. Sam McKinlay carries off most of the honors with some very clever cartoons and drawings; while paintings in oils by J. K. Dinesen and Ernest Ward exhibit real technic and merit.

Then the collector comes into his own with many exhibits of stamps, coins, car markers, newspaper heads, cartoons, coat labels and what-not.

The department of photography has some splendid exhibits of snapshots taken about the district, all of which were printed and developed by the exhibitors.

Much credit for the splendid show is due to the work of William Herd, president of the show, and George Biggs, vice-president. Gordon McIntyre is the hard-working secretary-treasurer.

PREMIER URGES LABOR ELECTORS TO GET FACTS, DO SOME THINKING

Scores Former Colleagues for Failure to Stand Test Last August.

REVIEWS SITUATION.

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, April 2—"If a caucus as extravagant as it has been blind has brought the Labor party for the time being to disaster, the ideals of the pioneers and founders will go on in other ways and through other organizations," declared Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald in the course of a caustic criticism of the Labor party appearing yesterday in the first number of a new fortnightly publication intended to set forth politics and event as viewed by the extreme right of Labor—those Laborites supporting the National Government.

Premier Macdonald accuses his former colleagues of knowing very well last August that something drastic had to be done, at a time when a budget deficit of $600,000,000 loomed. Curiously enough, his remarks come on the day after announcement the drastic steps taken by the National Government have succeeded in changing this ominous deficit into a small surplus. But they were afraid to sail the shallow seas, he added.

Stunt Appeal

"The caucus mind triumphed and refuge was sought in a stunt appeal and programme," Premier Macdonald wrote. "The movement was betrayed and misled into the crushing disaster of the general election. As one cares for what the Labor movement was created to advance, so one deplores the present doings and policy of the labor caucus. They may live to fight another day, but it will never be forgotten that at the time of great testing they turned tail and declined to do their duty."

Premier Macdonald remarks that Labor had been divided a long time over the economic question, but the trend of opinion was towards some form of protection, and only a National Government could have made the change possible. To work out a comprehensive system in which the tariff power will be used to maintain the standards of life and not merely business profits will take some time and will entail mistakes which have to be rectified and readjusted, but no one worthy of public confidence will shirk the task, he declared.

"The Labor electors must get the facts and do some stiff thinking," the Prime Minister added.

MADAM BLANCHE IS BUSY WOMAN

Local Woman is Known to Thousands of Radio Fans in America.

STACKS OF MAIL.

Engaged in one of the most unique pursuits and in receipt of what is probably the largest individual daily batch of correspondence in the entire city, an interesting personality known to thousands of radio fans all over the North American Continent as "Madame Blanche", was recently interviewed by The Examiner.

Madame Blanche is a graphologist—one versed in the art of character delineation from handwriting. She is at present under engagement with the Walter H. Lowney Chocolate Company, whose brand of confections known as Lowney's Vanity Package, each contains a graphoanalysis card entitling the purchaser of the chocolates to a free character reading. Details of the Lowney Company's novel offer are broadcast weekly over station CKAC, Montreal.

So besieged, is Madame Blanche, with requests that flow steadily from all quarters of the Dominion and from a large portion of the United States that she and her secretary are kept fully occupied. Every evening there are mailed an average of forty character readings, each approximating 250 words in length.

Merely from the signature and address Madame Blanche is able to sum a person up, to put it plainly, and it might be remarked she appears to do so with uncanny accuracy. Not only can she reveal the individual's mental make-up, but she can actually visualize physical characteristics, and can describe a person she has never seen with a remarkable degree of accuracy.

She drafts all her delineations out in pencil, handing them to her secretary for typing and mailing "In fifteen years experience", she remarked, "I have never come across two persons with identical handwriting." Like fingerprinting, she claims, handwriting is an infallible guide to identity. Incidentally her services have at times been enlisted by the police where important matters resting on the authenticity of a persons handwriting have been involved, she claims.

It was also contended by her that handwriting is just as much a part of ones individuality as the hair, the eyes, the teeth and other physical characteristics.

In private life Madame Blanche is Mrs. Ivy B. Draper. Of English birth, she has lived in Canada for twenty years with the exception of a brief period spent in her native land while her husband was on service during the War with a Canadian unit. At present she and her family reside at 524 Weller street.

Cherishing the ambition to become a successful writer of fiction, she completed a course of study with the Newspaper Institute of America and graduated in journalism. Besides having had several articles accepted by various newspapers, she has completed a novel entitled "Climbing a Family Tree". Although still in manuscript form the novel has received a favourable review from S. Morgan Powell, Montreal Star literary critic. When time permits, she is working on a second novel.

BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL PASSES

THREE WEEKS' BATTLE.

WASHINGTON, April 2 (C.P.).—The Billion Dollar Tax Bill was through the United States House of Representatives to-day after three bitter weeks of battling and bitter debate.

Surpassing in its rates any revenue raising proposal drafted in Congress during peace time, the Bill was approved by the House late yesterday evening. The Senate, favorably disposed toward it, will begin consideration early next week in committee hearings.

Combined with stringent economies in appropriations, the Bill is designed to end deficits and place the Government on a self-supporting basis for the coming fiscal year The Democrats controlling the House expect the Bill to achieve this aim, raising an estimated $1,032,400,000, to which they promise to add more than $200,000,000 of appropriation cuts.

Shortage Foreseen.

The Treasury shaves the estimates yield of the Bill to $997,400,000 and cuts the possible appropriation reductions to $155,500,000, thus expecting to fall short by about $88,000,000 of equalling the anticipated 11,241,000,000 deficit.

The vote by which the Bill went through was 327 to 64, on entirely non-partisan lines. In one vote, however, the membership recorded itself 236 to 16 0agaInst the general sales tax which was stricken from the Bill at the climax of the earlier revolt, and which the committee and the House leaders had abandoned.

In the Senate there is now definite assurance that the sales tax issue will not be revived.

A number of changes in the measure may result, but no wholesale alteration is in prospect.

Hero Gourley

"The Scrapper True and Great."

"To every man upon this earth
Death cometh soon or late;
And how can man die better
Than facing to the South,
And with some planks hand the Yanks
A swift one in the mouth?

"Get out the English language
With all the speed you may,
I with two more to help me
Will hold the foe in play.
In Canada a million
May well be stopped by three,
Now, who will stand on either hand
And do the job with me?"

Then out spake Hughes of Lindsay,
A peacherine was he:
"Lo, I will stand at they right hand
And execute with thee."
Then out spake H. Bourassa,
Another warm M.P.,
"Will I abide by thy left side?
I will with pleasure, Oui!"

In Parliament all morning,
The three in all debates
Arose and calmly walloped
The great United States,
And when they'd finished talking
The gory, blood-stained grass
Denoted death and slaughter
From Cal. to Boston, Mass.

When the good man mends his air ship,
In ninety years at least,
When eggs are cheaper and the great
Miss stone's at last released,
With weeping and with laughter
Still will the tale be told,
How with a bunch of words the Three
Had Teddy Roosevelt up a tree.
In the brave days of old.

INTERNATIONAL ICE PATROL SHIPS TO START NORTH SOON

Steamer General Greene Will Make St. John's Headquarters While Spying on Bergs.

OTHERS FROM HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, N. S., April 2.—March winds and April showers bring forth more than Mayflowers. They send huge icebergs rolling down from northern waters to menace liners in the Atlantic shipping lanes. These bergs, hiding thousands of tons of solid ice under water, spell disaster for the ship that strikes them. But they do not travel very far southward before apprehended, and from the time they are sighted their movements are broadcast to the world.

Danger has lessened since 1912, when the loss of the Titantic moved governments of shipping nations to co-operate in warning vessels about floating ice. The international ice patrol was established and now every berg is under observation before it reaches Newfoundland. The steamer General Greene, which keeps an eye on the northern section of the Atlantic each year, was in Halifax on March 8 on her way to St. John's, Newfoundland, her headquarters during the next four months.

Usually the bergs number hundreds. In 1930 the General Greene, under command of Lieutenant Commander Edward H. Smith, reported 440 of them. Last year, however, there were so few of them that the scientists were at a loss to explain their absence. The General Greene sighted only 13 bergs during the season, and of these only one ventured south of Newfoundland.

While the General Greene is cruising in northern waters, other cutters patrol the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the shipping lanes leading to American ports. The Tampa will leave Boston, Mass., on March 15 for a 21-day patrol during which she will make Halifax her headquarters. At the end of that period she will be relieved by the Pontchartrain. As soon as the bergs become numerous the Canadian government will put two steamers on patrol.

The extent of the international ice patrol activity is indicated in the figures for 1930, which show a total of 952 radio broadcasts to ships, amounting to 688,723 words. The cutters cruise over a radius of 5,000 to 6,000 miles, constantly on the lookout for bergs. Four daily reports are broadcast, in addition to one from East Coast Radio at Halifax, but more numerous reports are furnished at the request of any ship in the ice area.

CREEK DRAGGING PROVES FUTILE

Hundred Neighbors Joint For Farmer Missing Since Runaway.

BELIEVED DROWNED.

LISTOWEL, Ont., April 2—Dragging operations were resumed today in an attempt to find the body of Orlando Pike, 43-year-old Wallace Township farmer who is believed to have lost his life Thursday evening when he was plunged into a small creek, near his home which is located about six miles from Listowel.

Upwards of 100 neighbors worked tirelessly yesterday, dragging the creek, but to no avail.

Last night, Prof. Gladstone arrived from Hamilton to assist in the search. Said to have succeeded in naming the location of missing persons, Prof. Gladstone last night went to the scene of the fatality, but owing to the darkness postponed his work until this morning.

Mr. Pike, in company with Wesley Small, who had been in Pike's employ since last fall, was on his way to a farm about two miles distant, where Small was to take a position, when the tragedy occurred.

While crossing a bridge over the creek, a wheel on the buggy on which they were riding became detached, the horse took fright and bolted over the 8-foot embankment and into the creek.

Small was catapulted out of the buggy, landed on his head in the bottom of the creek, rose to the surface and scrambled to shore, but there was no trace of Pike.

HUNT CONTINUES FOR STOLEN BABY

Three Norfolk Intermediaries Are Awaiting Further Developments.

SURE OF CLUES.

NORFOLK, Va., April 2 (C.P.)—Three Norfolk men, who say they have never lost faith in their efforts to-day continued to await further developments in negotiations for the recovery of the kidnapped baby of Col. and Mrs. A. Lindbergh.

Rear-Admiral Guy G. Burrage, retired spokesman for the intermediaries, stated that there had been a new development since Thursday morning, but there was no other intimation of what progress was being made. Admiral Burrage said that disclosure of the new development would be harmful and declined to comment further.

John Hughes Curtis, who with the Very Rev. Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, former Canadian rector, is serving with Admiral Burrage, said the status of the negotiations continued to be largely a matter of watchful waiting, the description given to the negotiations during the last few days.

declared the Irish Free State would be the greatest sufferer if the Anglo-Irish Treaty were broken.

The speech was querulous and in bad taste and the speaker showed an amazing lack of humor and knowledge of attitude of the Irish people by threatening them with the loss of the 'advantages of connection with the United Kingdom' declared the Irish Free Press.

Nobody, the Republican organ continued, denies to any section of Irish citizens the right to criticize and oppose policies with whch they cannot agree but it is their responsibility to see that this criticism is guided by a scrupulous respect for the public interest. The government of this area announced its irrevocable decision on a question of policy for which it sought and obtained the approval of the electorate.

RUSSIA ISSUES RULES TO GUIDE ATHEIST GROUP

Moscow Plans Increase in Anti-Religious Literature.

FACTORIES WORK CENTRES

MOSCOW—To bring up a younger generation with a definitely anti-religious outlook on life is one of the main objectives of the Soviet system. More than 2,000,000 children in the elementary and high schools are now registered as atheists; and the Union of Militant Atheists, the central Soviet anti-religious organization, has recently issued a number of rules for the guidance of anti-religious work among children.

It is proposed to increase the amount of anti-religious literature issued for children, along with the number of toys, games, moving-picture films and placards of an atheistic character. At the same time the teacher to be "re-educated in an anti-religious direction "through conferences, lectures, short-term courses directed against religion and through the aid of pedagogical universities, which take as the basis of their instruction the theory of dialectic materialism.

Children Taught Atheism

The Union of Militant Atheists also urges the children of the Soviet Union to establish contact with young atheists in other countries and recommends anti-religious propaganda among the children of foreign specialists and workers employed in the Soviet Union. Anti-religious children's "universities" have been opened in a number of towns, the latest being at Orenburg. Here children are filled with atheist teaching and sent back to carry on active agitation in their schools or in the detachments of the Young Pioneers, the Communist children's organization.

No neutrality or passivity in the matter of giving anti-religious teaching is tolerated in Soviet schools. So the newspaper, Godless, leading organ of the Union of Militant Atheists, reports with great indignation the case of a primary school principal who, when asked how he proposed to influence children who go to church, replied.

"It isn't necessary to raise an outcry about this. Any such means of persuading children is violence to their consciences."

Godless is equally indignant over the case of a woman teacher who is said to have refused to deliver an anti-religious lecture with the remark: "No one has proved that there is no God and I don't want to deceive people." Godless repeats the familiar slogan that there is no place for religious teachers in Soviet schools.

Work Center in Factories

There is an equally strenuous campaign to win away the adolescent youth, especially the young workers at the many new factories and construction enterprises throughout the country, from any form of religious faith. Although the scales are heavily weighted against religious groups in their struggle for influence with the atheistic Union of Communist Youth, occasional cases where Baptists and Evangelical Christians (the main religious groups in Russia with a Protestant tendency) obtain followers among the workers are reported. At the large new Stalingrad tractor factory the Baptists are said to have organized a women's choir among the girl workers, while in the neighboring "Red October" steel plant 25 young workers joined a circle of Evangelical Christians.

Other cases of backsliding, from the Communist standpoint, were reported from a Mohammedan village in the Caucasus, where all the members of the local branch of the Union of Communist Youth went to pray at the mosque when the mullah issued his call and from the Jewish farm colonies of Crimea, where some Young Communist girls stayed away from work on a Jewish religious holiday. All such incidents are reported with a view to stimulating atheistic agitation and it has been decreed that "the center of anti-religious work among the Young Communists in the nearest future must be the anti-religious training of young workers, who have recently come into the factories and the tearing out of religious prejudices among young members of collective farms."

How to Escape FLU and Grippe

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take some Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve three Aspirin tablets in a quarter glassful of water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Montreal In Need Of Public Museum

MONTREAL, Que., April 2.—Erection of a seven or eight storey building on the McGill campus to house all public museums of the university under one roof was recommended in a recent survey of McGill University museums made by Dr. Cyril Fox, British museum authority.
"The absence of an adequate public museum in the City of Montreal," Dr. Fox pointed out in his report, "places on McGill University, by reason of its historic and important position in the cultural life of the city and district and its possession of so much museum material, the duty of doing its utmost to provide such a service.
"It is today more than ever important," he continued, "that McGill University should use every effort to confirm and extend its links with the life of the city and province, to demonstrate the value and importance of the cultural services which it can render to the community, to show that knowledge is an avenue to better, fuller and happier living, to improve facilities for the self-education of the adult as well as the education of the young."

Bigger And Better

The days when girls wore those hats that required an acre of room to move around may be lived over again if the new chapeaux at present the latest rage in Minalia, become popular up here. Dorothy Schier, resident of Manila, is seen displaying the latest style in hats now being worn on the island. The type now most popular is about two feet in diameter, made of straw.

Now Listen Children

Auntie May and the children are great collectors. George has a large book of stamps. Patsy has many boxes filled with shells, and little Jack once gathered a fine lot of colored pebbles, but since they are staying in the country where there is no chance of adding to these treasures, they all have to discover something to collect.
George has started on butterflies. He goes about with a large net of soft green gauze, a killing bottle with a glass stopper and a cork-lined box with a supply of pins in which he carries the butterflies after they are dead. He steals about very quietly, then with a swift movement the butterfly is imprisoned in the green gauze. He drives it into a corner of the net and holds it there, then he slips the bottle inside and shakes the butterfly into it very careful not let its wings get rubbed or broken. He quickly replaces the stopper till he is sure the poor thing is quite dead. He has setting boards at home on which he mounts them, and as soon as he finds out the butterfly's name he labels it. There are millions of ...ies, and George ... collect ... of each kind.
Butterflies live only two or three days, delicately sip... the nectar ... flowers. They have pow... to speak but w... ...es—eyes that can look in six directions all at once!

Their colors are very lovely, even now when they are removed from their sunlight. "They are ever and ever so much nicer than Patsy's flowers," says George.
Now since Patsy's fancy was flowers and George's fancy butterflies, little Jack decided on birds' eggs. "Better begin with the hens," said Auntie May. "Then I'll teach you how to blow the eggs."
It was great fun hunting for eggs, for the hens had a way of laying in nests in the wood and all kinds of odd places, hoping that no one could find them and that they would be able to sit and hatch out their chickens.
And now Auntie May herself became a collector. She discovered stored in an old barn a beautiful old four-poster bed—it looked rather worn and worm-eaten to the children. Auntie May said it was beautiful. So all of our collectors were happy in that they saw something beautiful in that which interested them most.—Selected.

Topsy-Turvy Mart Puzzles Farmers

THREE HILLS, Alta., April 2.—Production costs and shipping charges mean altogether too much for the comprehension of a couple of farmers and ranchers of this Alberta section. To them, and to many others, its all topsy-turvy.
Recently a farmer shipped a case of 21 pullets to Calgary. Eight weighed a total of 30 pounds and graded No. 2. He received after their sale, $1.50. When the freight bill came it was $1.75, and 13 of the pullets were shipped back to him marked "no market value."
The rancher who shipped 160 pounds of raw wool received a 3 cent stamp back as his "net" profit. But he was fortunate compared to the rancher who shipped wool and told the buyer to bill him with the freight. He had to draw on his bank account because the price he received for the wool was insufficient to meet the railway's charges.
Now the farmers and ranchers are wondering who bought the pullets and at what price? And who bought the wool and at what price?

Mother Shipton's Prophecy

(London, England, Year 1448)

A house of glass shall come to pass
In England, but alas!
War will follow with the work
In the land of the Pagan and Turk,
And state and state in fierce strife
Will seek each other's life.
But when the North shall divide the South,
An Eagle shall build in the Lion's Mouth.
Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with woe;
Primrose Hill in London shall be,
And in its centre a Bishop's See;
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
Water shall yet wonders do,
Now, strange, shall yet be true;
The world upside down shall be,
And gold found at the root of a tree.
Through hills man shall ride,
And no horse or ass be by his side.
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk;
In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black, in green;
Iron in the water shall float,
As easy as a wooden boat.
Gold shall be found, and found
In a land that's not now known.
Fire and water shall more wonders do,
England shall at last admit a Jew;
The Jew that was held in scorn
Shall of a Christian be born
Three times three shall lovely France
Be led to dance a bloody dance
Before her people shall be free,
Three tyrant rulers shall she see;
Three times the people rule alone,
Three times the people's hope is gone;
Three rulers in succession see,
Each springing from a different dynasty.
Then shall the worser fight be done
England and France shall be as one.

CANADA'S FORESTS SUPPLY MORE APPLE BARRELS THAN BEER KEGS

Statistics Show Many Peculiar Uses for Wood—From Boxes to Boats.

MAKE WOOL OF WOOD.

(By Wilfrid Eggleston)

OTTAWA, April 1 (Special to The Examiner)—The Canadian forest provides the raw material for at least 225 products, and they range all the way from caskets to excelsior, bird houses, to butter boxes, hat blocks to wooden heels. Whaleboats, wood wool, spinning wheels, target ducks, candle pins, candy sticks, bobbins and bungs are a few of the oddest in the list. The census of industry, directed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, has just issued its annual survey of wood-using in Canada.

The Canadian boy buys ten hockey sticks for every baseball bat, according to the official book, but perhaps he finds it easier to cut the latter from a hickory sapling. Nearly 700,00 hockey sticks were manufactured last year, and only 80,000 baseball bats.

Skis Lead Toboggans

The ski was only introduced to Canada a generation or so ago, but this Norwegian foot-sleigh already has the toboggan on the slide. There were 25,000 pairs of skis made in Canadian shops and factories, and only 17,000 toboggans.

It took fifty thousand tennis rackets to meet the market. Dr. Coats' staff didn't count the golf clubs and shafts, but the value of them ran to $165,000. Ten pins, strangely enough, were more in demand than five pins. Twenty-seven thousand sets of the former and only seven thousand of the latter, were made.

Croquet sets are still made, but they run a very bad list. Only 247 of them were made in the year reviewed.

Possibly you can't blame the curlers, but the fact is that nearly seven million broom-handles were turned out last year. That gives every home in Canada three apiece and still leaves a few hundred thousand for the roarin' game.

The list doesn't say anything about wooden heads, but wooden heels were an important item. Over three million pairs of them were ground out in one year.

Canadians use more cigar boxes than butter boxes, the figures seem to show. Or perhaps the butter boxes, last longer. A million and a half cigar boxes were made and only 1,400,000 butter boxes. Cheese boxes ran to 2,500,000 and berry boxes to the number of eighteen million (count them)! No less than a million apple barrels were needed—five times as many as the whiskey and beer barrels required.

Result the Opposite

When the wooden building was replaced by steel and cement building, the wooden ship gave way to the steel shop, and the wooden carriage was replaced by the steel automobile, some people professed to foresee the decline of many wood-using industries. As a matter of fact, the result was just the opposite, according to this report.

"There is to-day more wood used in building construction than was used in the past in the erection of buildings made almost entirely of wood," it says.

"Similarly with ship-building. The use of steel in place of wood in the hulls and other parts of a modern vessel has made it possible to build more and larger ships, and more wood is used annually in the interior fitting of steel vessels to-day than was used in building wooden ships in the past.

"The manufacturers of automobiles in America to-day use more wood as a secondary material or in an indirect way than was used by the manufacturers of horse-drawn vehicles when these were the prevalent means of land transportation."

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a little Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful or four tablets in water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Today is Chrysler Day

FIRST SHOWING OF NEW CHRYSLER CARS with FLOATING POWER

CHRYSLER announces four new Chrysler cars—a new Chrysler Six and three new Chrysler Eights—all with Floating Power!

That is the most important statement that could be made about a motor car—for Floating Power is the greatest engineering development of modern times.

Floating Powr gives Chrysler performance a smoothness never before expected of a motor car. When driving at any speed, power tremor is absolutely wiped out of both frame and body.

Easiest Cars to Drive

In addition to Floating Power, the new Chrysler Automatic Clutch makes driving supremely simple. Nothing for your left foot to do but be comfortable. You don't have to touch the clutch pedal when starting from a standstill, or changing gears, or even when using reverse. Your left foot is perfectly idle; nothing to press; nothing to touch.

Gear-shifting really isn't gear-shifting, in the old sense, with Chrysler's new Silent Gear Selector. When you release the accelerator, you move the lever freely into place in any direction, at any car speed, with no more effort than moving a lead pencil. Because—when you move the lever to select a higher or a lower speed, the transmission gears are not revolving. They are at rest, disconnected from the engine by the Automatic Clutch, and disconnected from the rear wheels by the entirely separate Free Wheeling unit behind the transmission.

You may, of course, lock out both the Automatic Clutch and the Free Wheeling unit, and instantly return to conventional driving at any time or speed by simply pulling out a button on the dash.

PLUS

AUTOMATIC CLUTCH
SILENT GEAR SELECTOR
FREE WHEELING HYDRAULIC BRAKES
ALL-STEEL BODY
OILITE SQUEAK-PROOF SPRINGS
DOUBLE-DROP GIRDER-TRUSS FRAME

Finer, Safer Brakes

A definite new advantage has been added to Chrysler's self-equalizing Hydraulic Brakes in the form of new Centrifuse brake drums. A steel drum with cast-iron lining—permanently fused together. Under all conditions, Chrysler brakes last longer, remain cooler, retain uniform efficiency and give a quicker, "softer" and more positive action. A development that adds safety at faster speeds.

Chrysler steel bodies are All-Steel construction—rigidly reinforced and welded into one piece—the kind of construction that gives you the safety you should have and should demand. Adding still further to your protection and comfort is a new Double-Drop Girder-Truss Frame of tremendous strength and rigidity.

Good-bye All Spring Squeaks

New patented Oilite Squeak-Proof Springs on all three of the new Eights have the great advantages of never squeaking, and never needing lubrication.

Besides all of these outstanding superiorities, Chrysler retains the following important basic features—pioneered or popularized by Chrysler and features of Chrysler cars for years: In the Eights, a 4-speed transmission with internal Dual High Gears; in the Six, a Silent-Second Easy-Shift Transmission; all have the high-compression engine; full force-feed lubrication; ventilated crankcase; aluminum alloy Invar Strut pistons; counterweighted crankshaft; modern fuel system with fuel pump; oil filter; air cleaner and intake silencer; noiseless spring shackles; cowl ventilators; small base wheels and large tires; adjustable front seat; interior sun visors; indirectly lighted instrument panel; treadle-type accelerator—and many others.

Very Low—Very Smart

All of the new Chryslers are noticeably low, smart and fleet in appearance. The bodies are larger and roomier, with greatly increased luxury in design, finish and appointments.

More powerful cars than ever. Faster than ever. If you like real speed, Chrysler has it. You may never care to drive 75—85—90 miles an hour, but the great power that makes these speeds possible makes Chrysler performance at any speed you choose to drive, the most enjoyable performance under the sun.

A new Chrysler Six, five body models, $1195 to $1295 (Automatic Clutch on all Sixes at slight extra cost); a new Chrysler Eight, four body models, $2025 to $2075; a new Chrysler Imperial Eight, two body models $2695 to $2725 and a new Chrysler Imperial Custom Eight, with six body models, (prices furnished on specifications required). All prices f. o. b. Windsor, Ontario, including standard factory equipment (freight and taxes extra).

In The Automotive World WEEK-BY-WEEK

England is at last to enter the international motor racing field with real racing cars driven by skilled drivers, who will train and work together and form a formidable fighting team.

A Coventry motor car manufacturing company have in stock three machines which are intended to answer the challenge to British car racing supremacy to be found in the racing cars now being prepared by France, Italy and Germany.

It is the first time in a long period that cars have been built in England for the sole purpose of racing. British manufacturers have, in the past few years, confined their racing activities mainly to events for sports cars and have done splendidly in this field. Kaye Don, who will return seriously to motor racing this year, and George Eyston, who holds the world's record for baby cars, will be two of the drivers. The three cars will cost something like $250,000 to build and maintain. These cars are solely experimental. The British motor industry has learned many valuable lessons from racing experience in the past

Apart from any desire to assist British prestige, the car manufacturing company is anxious to test a number of theories, which, if they survive the gruelling test of the speedway, will be incorporated in standard cars.

The following procedure on putting the car in shape for spring and summer operation after the "rigors" of winter driving is recommended by many automotive engineers:

Flush the radiator until the water runs perfectly clear. Inspect the rubber hose connections, replacing if necessary. Disconnect hot water heaters. Check front wheels for proper alignment and steering gear for proper adjustment. Adjust brakes, relining them if necessary. Inspect and clean gasoline strainer. Drain off winter oil from the engine and flush the crankcase. Refill with a summer grade oil. If the present oil filter cartridge has been in use 8,000 or 10,000 miles, install a new one. Drain transmission and differential grease and replace with summer lubricant Clean and re-oil air cleaner. Inspect wiring; oil generator and check charging rate; check breaker contact points for proper spacing; replace spark plugs if used more than 10,000 miles; if used less than this, clean them and adjust the gaps; clean battery terminals with ammonia water solution; tighten terminals and grease with vaseline; inspect battery water level and if gravity reading is low, re-charge. With these simple but highly essential adjustments, a spring of care-free driving should be enjoyed, that is, if your car isn't over ten years old.

Our new serial. She started to back the car into the garage—to be continued (when she comes out of the hospital).

The chief results of the 1,000 miles Royal Automobile Club rally in England were made known recently following the slow-running, acceleration and braking tests at Torquay.

Col. A. H. Loughborough was the winner. His car showed the amazing range of one mile an hour to nearly 70 miles an hour in high gear. With 260 of the entrants finishing the 1,000 miles reliability run with full marks the final results depended on the marks gained in the final test.

Big cars with old transmission systems jerked their way along the slow run in high gear, but cars with the latest transmission crept forward while spectators glued their eyes on the wheels, uncertain whether they were moving or not. In the acceleration test, some cars took five minutes to travel 100 yards in high gear and then with silky smoothness accelerated to 45 miles an hour within as many seconds—pulling up dead within a foot or two of a chalked line. A driver of one of the old type cars had difficulty in keeping his speed below eight miles an hour, and then, after acceleration, it began to get going only when it reached the white line.

"Run the wrecks off the road." That, in effect, is the call sounded by one of the leaders of the national committee carrying on an anti-hoarding campaign.

"People," he says, "are wearing their motor cars threadbare. What I suspect is that we'll come to a day when the government will begin to inspect some of the dangerously obsolete automobiles that are racing up and down the highways and condemn them, in the name of safety, to the junk pile. When the car becomes a menace to other people, it should lose its road rights. If legislation takes these wrecks off the roads, it will give a big impetus to business."

Conditions with regard to dilapidated cars on the highways are not much different in Canada, and reductions of their number on the grounds of safety would be a natural spur to business here as well as across the line.

During 1931 there were 440 miles of all-concrete roadway laid in the British Isles, 149 miles more than in any previous year. Roads are now constructed in buff, red and green concrete as being more sightly and offering a striking contrast to curbs and direction signals.

In his paper before the New England section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, J. L. Arthur outlined the general applications of electricity in the automobile. Mr. Arthur stated that the trend of the day is for more accessories on automobiles, mostly electrically operated. He claims that people are driving faster, calling for more distant illumination, larger candlepower lights of multiple beam. Electric motors for water heaters, cigar lighters, etc., he continued, all add to the generator requirements without provision always being made for the larger generator required.

Thus it is self-evident that a satisfactory performing automobile constitutes one which the electrical requirements receive very careful consideration. The motor vehicle is being propelled rapidly toward the goal of perfection, with many agents of transportation lending aid, but none care to forecast the ultimate result in cars.

One Philadelphia department store has solved the problem of providing parking space for customers' cars by constructing a serrated curb on one side of the building. This saw-tooth curbing with its triangular projections compels each car to park at the proper angle and in the proper space, and also makes certain that the parked autos are parallel. In addition, passengers step out of their cars directly onto the sidewalk instead of into the street as in ordinary oblique parking.

A new burglar-proof safe has been invented which has been guaranteed as impossible to open. The inventor probably got his idea from a taxi-cab window.

Records Disclose Strange Accidents

WINNIPEG, Man., April 2.—Comedy mingles with tragedy in many mishaps listed in police records.

A resident of northern Saskatchewan tested the strength of his teeth once too often. Opening a bottle of homebrew with them the gas and froth rose so quickly it blew the bottle-top down his throat. He recovered after an operation.

In Winnipeg: Crawling under the bed after an elusive collar-button a man's chest was pierced by a needle lying on the carpet. He died within a few days and a postmortem revealed the needle-point had worked inwards until it reached the heart.

Another man dreamed he was being chased by a bull, kicked at the animal and hit the wall so hard he broke his toe. Another sleeper on a hot night set an electric fan near the foot of the bed. He rolled over in his sleep and his toe was cut off by the blades.

A waitress slipped on a grease spot while hurrying kitchenward with a tray of dishes. She was unhurt, but before she could rise a bus boy tripped on the broken dishes and scalded the girl with hot coffee.

At a supper dance a man's nose was broken when it came in contact with the elbow of another dancer.

A joker pointed a 25-cent toy revolver at a friend and pulled the trigger. The heavily-charged powder cap produced a flame that burned the friend's hand to the bone, and a doctor had to be called

O.E.A. President

Malcolm MacBeth, Milverton editor, has been elected president of Ontario Educational Association in succession to Inspector J. H. Putman of Ottawa. If Rev. W. M. Morris, secretary of the trustees section, had lived, he would have been given the presidential chair this year, as he was vice-president.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Apr. 2.—There was a different tone to the local butter market this week. Buyers failed to take even a fair quantity of supplies offered and prices sagged accordingly. The good business that took place early in March dwindled last week-end to just fair trading and at the opening of this week there was only slight activity, which gradually resulted in a dead market for the week-end. Local brokers were offering regraded grass butter at 27½c at the first of the week. A day later the price was 27c, and at the close of the week there was a nominal figure of 26½. But there was no trading. Brokers were quite emphatic in this regard and investigation proved them correct. Montreal issued storage stocks figures on Thursday and Toronto report w on hand yesterday and though the latter statement showed 11,600 boxes, about a third of the total for March 1, there was no activity.

Cream Steady

Cream prices held during the week and country shippers were quoted the same levels as when butter was at the peak, and trading was good. Local buyers offered 24c for special, 23c for No. 1, and 20c for No. 2, f.o.b., country points.

Cheese Easier

Trade in new cheese was fair this week, but prices eased before the close ½c per pound. Local brokers quoted new large at 11¼c to 11½c, twins at 11½c to 11⅝c and triplets at 11⅝c to 12c. Retailers were offered new makes at 13c for large, 13¼c for twins, 13½c for triplets and 15½c for stiltons.

Eggs Steady

Prices for eggs struck steady levels this week and many believed that the bottom of the market in this city had been reached. Country shippers were quoted 13c to 14c for extras, 11c to 12c for firsts and 9c to 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Trade was quiet. Receipts were not heavy for the season, but the demand was poor. Brokers offered graded eggs, in free cases, at 15c to 16c for extras, 13c to 14c for firsts and 13c for seconds. Retailers were quoted supplies at 20c for extras in cartons, 18c for extras loose, 16c for firsts, loose, and 14c for seconds loose.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 2. — With bears in control, butter plunged down 1½c on the produce and dairy market here yesterday. Eggs were generally firm, while cheese and potatoes held unchanged.

Bears pressed sales, and, in the absence of good demand regraded No. 1 butter, in car lots or less, was forced down to 24½c to 26, ½c to 1½c below Thursday's closing quotion. Fresh butter has started to arrive and is being sold ½c to 1c below the regraded level. Toronto dealers were reported to be buying here, as stocks in Toronto are tight. Receipts were 294 boxes.

Fresh graded Ontario eggs in car lots or broken lots were steady, extras being quoted at 17 cto 18c, firsts at 16c, and seconds at 14c to 15c a dozen. Quotations of fresh eggs, in cartons, to retailers, lost a cent, specials being quoted at 24c to 25c, extras at 22c to 23c, firsts at 21c to 22c, and seconds at 20c to 21c a dozen. Receipts were 2,312 cases.

Current cheese was firm at 10½c to 11c, as was summer make at 12c to 12½c a pound. Receipts were 161 boxes.

The potato market was unchanged, quotations of broken lots, per 80-pound bag, being 30c to 40c for Quebec Whites and 45c to 50c for Quebec and New Brunswick Green Mountains. Car lot prices were 10c a bag cheaper than the broken lot levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The bottom fell out of the corn market yesterday, and prices outdid the lowest record heretofore this season and for many years back.

Stop-loss selling of corn developed owing partly to seasonal liquidating of accounts by holders of May delivery contracts, but also as a result of almost complete absence of shipping demand here and on account of fairly large country offerings. A nadded incentive to let go of corn was word that planting of the new 1932 corn crop had got under way in Oklahoma.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅝-1⅝ below Thursday's finish, wheat ⅝-1⅛c below, oats ⅛-¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 10c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 2. — Indifferent trade with scant exports and fair offerings swinging the balance downward featured activity in the grain pit yesterday At the close, values were ⅜c to ⅝c lower.

May dropped ⅜c to 60⅜c; July, ⅝c to 62⅝c, and October ⅝c to 64⅛c.

Initial firmness due to bullish estimates of the United States winter wheat crop was dissipated when support crumbled, and prices reacted under a fair volume of selling Bulk of offering of a local character and from no particular section of the trade.

New York confirmed sales of both Canadian and United States wheat and indicated further inquiry, but the aggregate of sales was not large. The average yield of winter wheat in the United States was given as 500,000,000 bushels, a loss of 300,000,000 bushels compared with last year's harvest.

Cash wheat and coarse grain trading generally was slow, with spreads unchanged.

Havelock

Mr. Will Kelsh, who lives with his mother here, received a nasty gash on the left leg Thursday morning as he was cutting wood along the Hydro right of way. He was able to proceed to his home, however, but will be obliged to halt his wood - cutting activities for a few days. A number of the young fellows are cutting wood along the same right of way, and there have been a number of minor accidents. Yesterday, Murray Fraser inflicted a large gash on the right leg in the same manner. The wound was dressed by one of the local doctors.

Prosperity Lodge Order of Eastern Star held a delightful afternoon bridge in the Orange Hall on Thursday, March 31st, when four tables were played. The prize for highest score was awarded to Mrs. Armstrong with a score of 2,200 in five rubbers. Mrs. James Wilde was second with 1,900. No lunch was served, but each table was kept well supplied with delicious home-made candy.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sw—.
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sour the mind
But each shall seek the common weal
The good of all mankind

WARSAW

When Mr. Putnam sent out notices to the various branches limiting the number of summer series lectures in the province to 434 instead of about 750, he was much gratified after all reports were in to find that the women of the province in the various districts had arranged it so that there are to be only about 330 summer series meetings.

Among the speakers are many women who have been on the staff for years, and who have devoted much of their time to Institute work. Mrs. Laura Rose Stephens, the first lady Women's Institute lecturer in Canada, is known to many branches and to all who attend Women's Institute conventions in Toronto, also in the other areas. Last year was the first convention she has missed. In connection with the Institute and other education work, she has travelled from the Atlantic to the Pacific, visited and throughout the United States. She makes constant contributions to many Canadian and American journals. She visited Warsaw in the early days of the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Towrlss also known to Warsaw members composed our ode, our anthem, and many songs bearing on Institute work.

Practically every one in East Peterborough at least knows of Miss Flora MacLean Alexander, though because of her health she has not lectured for the past two years. Mrs. Clarence Hayes of Georgetown, though unknown as a lecturer to East Peterborough is a most interesting and practical lecturer. A woman of Irish origin, intensely fond of children, and a great believer in the special work of Women's Institutes. Miss Emily Guest is another devoted Institute lecturer, quite decided in her own ideas but she has reason to be, as she was brought up on a farm, and knows how to do all any woman on a farm may need to, has travelled a great deal, been well educated, has a lively interest in community life, and is thoroughly practical in her ideas.

Mrs. Walker, president of Ontario Institutes is a delightful speaker, who readily sees things from the point of the farmer's wife and the country community life. Incidentally, she is a distant cousin of the Choates. Her anvestors came to Canada with that of the Choates, who were so long in Warsaw.

There are many more most of whom are just as earnest as those mentioned, though many are not able to devote quite so much time.

MOUNT PLEASANT

"Good taste" is a subject of interest to all Institute members particularly the junior Institutes. "Someone has said that a person is composed of three parts—soul, body and clothes, to feel her best, to be free from self-consciousness and to be accorded respect, a woman must be well dressed. This does not necessarily mean expensively dressed, for a woman may spend a small fortune on her raiment and merely look ridiculous.

It does mean, however, that the line, color, style and material of our clothing must be appropriate for the occasion on which it is worn. This commonly means simple cotton dresses for housework and porch dresses for the office in hot weather. Tailored looking street dresses. Cotton dresses for tennis and other sports. Modest crepe dresses or those of similar material for afternoon, church, the club, the convention or travel. Something fluffy for the informal party and something of velvet or lace or satin or taffeta or soft silk for formal events, if any.

We should analyze ourselves—hair, eyes, complexion, figure—to determine what will be most becoming to us. This may be done by studying a color chart or reading a book on the subject, such as may be found in most modern libraries. Consult the clothing specialist in your dry goods store or the home economics teacher of your school, if you are not sure of your own conclusions.

Most of us dress to cover up our physical defects. We should rather dress to play up our good points. If one is not certain of her taste, the best policy is to dress modestly with softened down tints and medium styles which do not attract attention. Gentility is always dressed quietly and the most aristocratic styles are the most simple.

Why dress for a party when you are going to school? Your dress is likely to set your mood. Your mood decides the quality of the job you are going to do. The trained nurse needs her starched uniform. The chef needs his cap and apron. The worker needs his overalls and the scholar his cap and gown. They are at once a notice to the outside world and a support to the inner strength of the wearer. Dress for the occasion and you will be in good taste. Dress for a party and go to a class and you are showing bad taste. You can't be twins. The best you can hope for is to be one fairly adequate person.

The chief product of good taste is beauty, and one of the essential qualities of beauty is proportion. If you get things out of proportion you create ugliness and ugliness is headed for the junk pile.

Consider the car that we want to drive. It is out of proportion to all we are, beginning with self control and going all the way. A car is a terrific force. It allows you no room for a mistake. When we take the wheel of a car, we take the lives of other people, as well as our own into our keeping. If we have an accident how helpless we are. Others must bear the weight of our foolishness. We are likely to carry a burden of sorrow all the days of our life. Of course, we will be careful, we don't want to kill anybody.

Good manners are a phase of good taste. They are a sort of dress uniform that stiffens the spirit for its daily struggle with the everyday affairs of life. For one thing they put a check on the tongue Many a one has been sad and sorry for the sharp word, the same retort of a hasty moment. Anybody can speak, only the strongest spirit can maintain silence under provocation.

Manners are the defenses of well bred people, of people experienced in the ways of the world. They are the forerunners of morals. What we do or refrain from doing to-day because good manners demand it we do tomorrow because right thinking and right living demand it. Good manners are the beginning of that long, slow growth we make from childhood to old age.

Discussion regarding healthful food is a frequent topic at Institute gatherings.

Among the fruit and vegetables, we usually find the majority of the members enthusiastic over the use of tomatoes, and agree that the various ways in which they can be used are valuable additions to the family menu. They are appetizing and nutritious, both when used fresh from the garden or from the can.

Tomato juice is among the most health-giving drinks that a housewife can prepare from raw fruits or vegetables for her family. Although it is not rich in actual energy-producing constituents, it contains such high proportions of vitamins A, B and C and minerals, particularly iron, that it assists materially in the assimilation of the heavier foods. Mineral acids particularly citric, which assist in the digestion processes, are also present. Research work on vitamines carried shown that vitamin A increases resistance to colds, sinus trouble, pnuemonia and other infection, and promotes normal development of children. Vitamin B is generally promotive of health, and is an aid to keeping the appetite keen. Vitamin C is a factor in the growth of children, and a preventive of many diseases. An abundance of vitamin C in the diet helps to overcome irritable and restless tendencies.

Where tomatoes are plentiful, tomato juice can be made in the home, and is a great deal cheaper than its equivalent in orange or other citrus juices. Probably more Canadian diets are lacking in vitamine C than any other one constituent, and tomatoes which are our most economical source should be more widely used for supplying this constituent.

Prepare choice tomatoes, slightly pulp with a potato masher, and place on the stove in a covered kettle. Heat almost to boiling. It is wise to fill the kettle in order to exclude the air, which slowly destroys the vitamins by oxidation. After the pulp has reached the desired temperature it is ready to be passed through a sieve to remove the skin and seeds. Do this quickly and return the extracted juice to the kettle and bring just to boiling. At the same time have sealers or small bottles hot in the oven. Fill these with the juice, seal and place in boiling water. Remember to fill the bottles well up into the neck and to keep the juice hot. A cook of 2 minutes in boiling water is sufficient for small bottles while sealers should receive 4 to 5 minutes.

If it is to be used by adults as a drink, it is improved by the addition of salt and sugar at the rate of a level tablespoonful of both to each gallon of juice. If cocktails for dinner are desired, small amounts of mild spices may be added in addition to the salt and sugar. If tomato juice has not been put away in the home, it can be prepared by pouring the juice from the ordinary canned tomatoes straining, heating and flavoring.

MILLBROOK

"Kitchen Pointers" was the title given the suggestions advanced at a recent gathering of Institute workers, many helpful tid-bits of information being jotted down in note-books, and put to practical use in later days.

A question from one of those present regarding sour milk replacing sweet milk in various recipes brought the reply that "sour milk and soda are always usable instead of sweet milk and baking-powder, the rule being to use one-half teaspoon soda to each cup of sour milk. To make a perfect light result add also one-half teaspoon baking powder for each cup of flour in the recipe."

A "Sour milk precaution" was added by another member, who declared that many cooks hesitate to use sour milk and soda for biscuits because of the uncertainty of the amount of soda to combine perfectly with the acid in the milk, her own disappointment being that the tea cakes were often yellowed in baking. "My plan, evolved after several experiments since I always have more sour milk than sweet available for cooking, is to put in the flour-sifter one teaspoon of soda, half a teaspoon of cream of tartar, and salt. Then I add the flour and lard, and mix with the sour milk, handling as little and lightly as possible. Everyone praises the delicious and fluffy result, and I find the same idea works splendidly with dumplings, meat-pie crusts, and other things in which sour milk and soda play a part."

Another advanced a 'biscuit trick' recommended as an improvement on the ordinary plan: "When making baking powder biscuits I find them much better if I roll the dough thinner than usual, and use two cuts for one biscuit, laying one on top of the other. Made in this way they break open more readily and evenly, and are daintier, especially if I am making the tiny kind for use at afternoon tea."

Continuing the subject of soda recipes, a workable hint came from a quiet little woman who had not hitherto spoken, who said when she was using sour milk recipes that called for baking-soda she had found it a great improvement to use one-fourth teaspoon soda and one teaspoon of baking powder instead of each spoonful of soda called for in the recipe. "You will be delighted with the result, for the food will be lighter and there is no taste of the soda whatever."

"Biscuits which wait" came from still another source, this worker telling of her plan: "When I want to serve luncheon in a hurry, and the menu includes warm biscuits, I make them in the morning and put them out, when baked, on a cloth-covered tray to cool. Just before the meal, luncheon or tea, when they are to be used, I dampen them over the top with water (lightly), stand them on edge in my bread pan, close together, and slip them into a hot oven for a few moments. No one knows but what they have been just freshly baked, and it saves much time and bother at the last minute, "particularly if I have company and do not wish to leave my guests alone too long."

As a final item on this practical program, the hint on light dumplings was appropriate: "Many a good cook has felt her spirits 'fall' when her dumplings dropped. I worked out this plan successfully: After preparing the dough according to any tried recipe, I have the chicken stock at the boiling point on the stove, and drop the dumplings from a spoon into the broth and let them cook a few minutes; then I set the pan in the oven (hot) and let them finish baking. Made in this way they may be left indefinitely, in case of a delayed meal and will still remain light and fluffy."

LIFFORD LINE

Continuing the discussion of various types of flour

"The whole grain is used for making graham flour, so called after the man who originated the process. For whole wheat or entire wheat flour a portion of the outer bran layers is removed. These products do not keep so well so it is not wise to purchase in too large quantities at time.

Flours and meals are made from other grains such as buckwheat rye, rice and corn. These are useful to give variety to the bill of fare but are less adapted for general cookery purposes.

Accurate measurement of flour is always essential to the success of dishes in which is an ingredient Sift it once before measuring, then sift it lightly into the standard size measuring cup and level it off with a knife. Never pack it in any way: remember one cupful of flour means one cupful of sifted flour lightly handled and accurately measured.

In culinary practice flour serves many purposes. It is the basis of all batters and doughs, it thickens liquid such as sauces gravies and soups, it gives body to cake fillings and certain desserts it helps to bind ingredients in such mixtures as croquettes, meat loaves, and fish cakes and aids in browning meats and many other dishes.

Flour in all its forms is a wholesome food. With it a housekeeper makes an array of economical but tempting viands to please palate and nourish her household. For grain products are among the cheapest articles of diet and are prominent from a nutritional point of view.

Flours from whole grain cost practically the same as flour for which only a portion of the kernel is used. This is due to the greater preference and demand for the latter type which has a wider range of rises. It is combined with various nutritious products in the making of many dishes which are as a rule eaten with such foods as meat, milk, eggs and cheese or with fruit and vegetables. They help to provide an economical well-balanced diet.

When we consider the frequency with which grain in some form is served and the prominence of these products in the days meal, we realize the importance of Canada's wheat fields and their contribution to the nation's dietary.

Yachting Or Yawning Here Is What They Will Wear

Anytime is pyjama time now and the young miss wears them in boat or boudoir. Bath toweling in stripe effect (1) makes a smart outfit for a sailing trip or to don after a swim. (2) The Bell-hop pyjamas. Smart, aren't they? In linen, bright red for the jacket, with silver buttons, white for the trousers and a nautical stripe of blue down each side. A scarf keeps the wind from blowing too hard through golden locks. (3) Jersey-top pyjamas combining a light colored top, buttoned at the side of the neck, and darker tone trousers. New ankle length, too. (4) To sail the seas and no mistake. There is a definite air of the sailor about this costume which is of bright blue trousers and bolero. The mannish little vest is of canary yellow and the little skull cap follows the same tone. (5) You are all wrong. It isn't her hair, it is a bathing cap! The newest thing of rubber, ribbed to look like hair and fitted tightly to the scalp. More becoming than most bathing caps, you must admit. (6) A lacy sweater-top makes this one particularly up-to-date. The contrasting trousers, band around the throat and cap are matched by smart sandal shoes. Pretty snappy, for a sailor lass.

PLEASING PROGRAM C.G.I.T. MEETING

Millbrook Wide-awakes Hold Gathering at Home of Mary O'Brian.

MILLBROOK, Apr. 2. (Examiner Correspondence)—The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group met on Tuesday evening, at the leader's home, with the president, Marian O'Brian, in the chair, and the Herald's office filled by Bernice Smith.

Business items discussed included a practice of the group 'yell', a prize having been awarded the two girls who composed the new 'slogan' which until now had not been thoroughly learned. A song which the group might adopt as its own was discussed, and a committee will shortly be appointed to compose and submit for aproval onpe or two verses, set to a familiar tune, that may be sung at gatherings under Wide Awakes' auspices.

The devotional period opened with the group ritual, the girls reading alternately Isaiah 53, and the leader following with a brief talk on the chapter, the meeting being dismissed with prayer.

A practice for the public service the group is sponsoring on Sunday evening, April 24, took up an hour of time after dismissal, and the usual social hour was enjoyed at the close. Practice for the "Light of the Word, and the Cross," will be held again on Tuesday, April 5, at 7.30 p.m. A visitor welcomed on Tuesday evening was Miss Norma Dunsford, of Oshawa, who is a member of a junior C.G.I.T. group in that city.

Strange Law Governs Selling Of Aspirin

MONTREAL, Que., April 2.—An appeal to the wholesale trade to cease selling arpirin and other medicines, such as paregoric and iodine to grocers was made recently by Rosario Messier, Quebec provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. This procedure was suggested as the best in view of the anomally of the existing law which allows wholesale grocers to sell asprin to retail grocers but does not authorize the latter to sell to its customers.

"The Pharmaceutical Association of Quebec continues to take action against grocers for selling aspirin and other medicines, and the first thing a grocer knows is that he is condemned to pay a fine of $50 with costs, "Mr. Messier pointed out. "I think we should make an appeal to the wholesale grocers not to sell asprin to retail grocers or at least to inform the retail grocers they cannot sell the medicine to the public. These sales to retailers amount to an inducement to commit an illegal act. We have done what we could to inform the members of our association as to what they can sell, and it remains with the wholesalers to co-operate with us," Mr. Messier said.

YOUR KIDNEYS, too, NEED A SPRING CLEANING

In the Spring the Kidneys are tired and worn out after a Winter's hard work. Imperfect Kidney action means impure blood, which causes that dull, listless, tired and generally run-down condition—and eventually some more serious form of Kidney trouble.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Spring medicine, for they act directly on the Kidneys and restore them to perfect action; then a full supply of pure, rich blood flows through every nerve, every muscle, and every fibre of the body.

Vigor and strength take the place of languor and weakness. That dull, tired, run-down feeling gives place to one of robust health; the eye grows bright; the brain becomes clear and active and that sprightly step of health returns. Don't neglect your Kidneys. Get some Dodd's today!

One of the very successful dances for which The Examiner Social Club is noted was held last night in the hall of the Canadian Legion, under joint auspices of the Legion and the club, with proceeds to be devoted to relief work. In spite of inclement weather, the attendance was large, over three hundred people, many from out of town, assembling for a jolly evening of dancing to splendid music played by Mose Yokom and his six-piece orchestra, who excelled themselves in the quality of the music provided, in "red hot blues" and the slow dreamy waltzes with Mose alone at the piano. A double spot-light playing in effective style on the musicians and the crowd of dancers. Mr. Fred Scates, who excels in putting over popular dances, was Master of Ceremonies and handled the program in characteristic style, sending the dancers away asking for more, shortly after one o'clock. Decorations were in gay paper streamers and festoons, with the "moon" and "blinker" wall lights providing illumination for special numbers and very effective spot-light effects introduced by Messrs. T. Stenton and M. Morgan of the Opera House mechanical staff. During the evening a special number was the singing of Mr. Earle Waterman, Peterborough's "Smiling Boy Tenor," who put several songs over in great style and got a good hand from the audience. The balloon dance was a favorite event, with over two hundred colored balloons donated by McDermid and Jury. Prizes for this dance, donated by J. A. McNabb and Grant and Thorpe were won by Miss Louise Thompson and Mr. Ron Start. The special prize of the evening, drawn for by Mr. Arnold Everitt, president of the Canadian Legion, was won by Mr. Neal Clarke, and was donated by McBride and Franks, while prizes for the spot dance, donated by Schneider Brothers and McLeod's Drug Store, were won by Miss Jenkinson and Mr. E. Orville Wainman, small son of Mr and Mrs. R. A. Wainman, and soprano boy soloist, gave a vocal recital in Brantford, this week, under the auspices of the Chancel Guild of Grace Church. The account of the recital says, in part: "The silvery treble voice of the boy soloist, Master C ville Wainman, of Peterborough, enchanted a large audience. The fine liquid notes of remarkable clarity that floated from the lips of the diminutive singer denoted clearly, as Canon A. L. Clarke remarked, that Canada is able to produce boy vocalists as able as the famed choristers of England." Mrs. Wainman played accompaniments for her son, whose program included a trio of sacred numbers appropriate to the Easter season, in "The Empty Tomb." "In Faith I Shall Rise" and "The Prayer Perfect," also "Rosebud," "Sylvia," "The Rosary," "Pickaninny Sandman," "Keep on Hoping" "Daddy," and several encores: "The Big Bear that Hugged His Lair" and "Come Once Again, Joy of My Heart." At the close of the recital, the Chancel Guild tentertained the musicians.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The problem of places to put things which closets will not hold in the bedroom of the city dweller or occupant of the small house, is well met in a suggestion to-day.

* * * * * *

An open bookshelf may be used, in what may be termed the bedroom bookcase. This is distinguished from other bookcases by the fact that only a portion of the shelf space is devoted to books and the rest outfitted for the accommodation of hats, shoes, stockings, or whatever you wish to put in the uniform containers.

* * * * * *

In the bedroom bookcase described to-day and taken from one in active use, the owner secured open shelves about five feet high. The lower three shelves are curtained in a striped material of gold and dull blue to match the bed covering.

* * * * * *

The curtain is suspended from a slender rod, held by screws at each end, and is in two sections so that it can be parted in the centre, making the shelf contents very accessible.

* * * * * *

* * * * * *

Between the books on the shelves above is placed an occasional upright box of similar proportion to the books, in which are filed letters, travel booklets, catalogues of museums, etc.

* * * * * *

Two hat boxes, bright and covered with attractive plain paper contrasting to the cover, are on either side of the top shelf.

* * * * * *

These are small hat boxes, separated by a Chinese lacquer box, useful for all sorts of odds and ends, and giving a well balanced feeling to this arrangement which turns out to be decorative as well as utilarian.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A WAY THEY HAVE IN THE NAVY

Perhaps due to the fact that cards are a pasteboard reproduction of problems involved in military strategy and tactics, the army and navy both boast many fine Contract players. The officers, daily grappling with problems of which the game of Contract is a miniature reproduction, often recognize the hands involving complex problems more readily than those whose training has been along the paths of peace. To Commander W. B. Howe of the United States Navy I am indebted for the hand below in which bold defensive bidding averted the bidding and making of an adverse Slam.

South—Dealer.
North and South not vulnerable.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ J 3 ♡ — ◇ 10 9 8 7 6 5 2 ♣ 8 6 3 2

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1◇	2◇(1)	6◇(2)	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(3)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—As Commander Howe points out, West's best bid was probably two spades.

2—North fears that a bid of five diamonds would not be high enough to stop East and West from bidding. His bid of six diamonds is not made with the expectation of making the contract but on the principle of choosing the lesser of two evils.

3—Shut out from learning anything about East's honor strength or distribution, West decided to play for a penalty rather than risk being penalized.

In the play of the hand, South lost 4 tricks and was therefore penalized 400 points. A study of the cards, however, disclosed the fact that East and West have a Grand Slam at hearts or spades, or for that matter clubs. The Grand Slam, of course, should not be bid, as its success depends upon the favorable location of the heart King, but a Small Slam unquestionably would have been reached and made had not North decided with his hand, void of honor values, but rich in distribution, to exclude his opponents from bidding.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: What is meant by

(b) A half honor-trick?

Answer:
(a) An honor card or combination that is reasonably certain to take a trick.
(b) An honor card or combination that, about half the time will win a trick.

MUSIC CLUB IS UNABLE TO FIND NEW PRESIDENT

Four Ladies Will Lead Organization Until the Fall.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Women's Music Club joined the ranks yesterday of local women's societies carrying on without a president and with more than one woman assuming the leadership of affairs.

Following the reading of a resolution from the nominating committee, by Mrs. J. E. Middleton, whose two co-workers, Mrs. H. M. Yelland and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, with herself, were unable to obtain a president for the club, after the resignation, through press of other duties, of the president for the past four years, Miss Mabel Clarry,—a resolution recommending that the activities of the club be suspended for one year, or until a president could be found, it was moved by Mrs. R. Gliddon and seconded by Mrs. J. Smith, that a committee of four ladies be appointed to carry on in the Fall. This was adopted by the meeting, with the following ladies as the committee: Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. J. H. Vernor, Mrs. G. E. Porter, and Miss Mabel Clarry.

A very eloquently-worded appreciation of Miss Clarry's "indefatigable services" was voiced by Mrs. Blackwell and seconded by Mrs. Gliddon. Miss Clarry has guided the fortunes of the club for the past four years, succeeding Mrs. J. F. Allan as president, after the latter's two years' term of office. The Women's Music Club, an afternoon musical organization, took the place of the old Morning Musicale, nonexistent during the war years.

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. G. E. Porter, who also read the report of the treasurer, Mrs. James Matthews.

The balance from last year was $40.23, with fees of $108, receipts of $114.80 from the picture, "Royal Remembrances," shown at the Regent Theatre and sponsored by the club, $49.25 from the Jean McPherson recital, and $32 from the bridge parties of the club. Total receipts were $358.50 and total expenditures $351.01, leaving a balance on hand of $7.57. Expenses included $168.10 for visiting artists, $15 for the picture, "Royal Remembrances," and $25 for the scholarship to be awarded at the forthcoming Kiwanis Club's Musical Festival.

Varied Program

The program of music yesterday was varied and delightful, and included two vocalists, a violinist and a pianiste.

Mrs. E. O. Bradshaw of Toronto was the visiting guest artist of the day, playing several violin numbers with accompaniments by her sister, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran. With a delightfully rounded, smooth tone and a great deal of technical skill, Mrs. Bradshaw delighted her audience with four selections: MacDowell's graceful composition, "To a Wild Rose"; d'Ambrosio's "Canzonetta", the latter a brilliant, difficult number; and Kreisler's arrangement of the "Farewell to Cuchullain" (Londonderry Air).

Mrs. L. M. Brooks, a pupil of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, sang in very attractive rich soprano voice, "Still as the Night," a German song of much expressive sweetness, and Tschaikowski's "None but the Lonely Heart." Mrs. Brooks' accompaniments were played by Mrs. D. R. Howat.

Miss Grace Johnson, a pupil of Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, of youthful age but possessed of much expertness as a pianiste, played with charming, pliant tone and skilful ease, Debussy's graceful composition, "Claire de Lune"; Schutt's sparkling and attractive number, "Etude Mignonne," and Liszt's "Sonat de la Petrarca," with its halting rhythm and haunting melody.

H. Ridgeley, a former pupil of Signor Carboni of Toronto, and accompanied by F. G. Mann, L.Mus., possessor of a powerful tenor-baritone voice capable of a very wide range, sang with much expression the favorite song, "The Trumpeter," also "Will o' the Wisp" (not the commonly known song of that name, but the robust music of the cruel bandit of the lonely road, the "will o' the wisp" of the midnight), and its encore, "Duna."

The afternoon, which marked the last meeting until the Fall season, closed with the service of tea.

CHICAGO, April 2.—What grandma could do, we can—so get down the spinning wheel;

Bring up the old soap vats.

That's the 1932 theme song of the farmers' wives in United States, according to Mrs. W. J. Fulton of Waukegan, President of the Illinois Farmers' Institute.

And it has been set to music by necessity. For, said Mrs. Fulton:

"With the farmers' finances in the condition they are now, their wives are being compelled to start all over again with the methods of their grandmothers—baking their own bread, making their own soap, curing meats and in some instances spinning cloth.

"Since the covered wagon days, the tendency has been to take industry out of the home," she said, but now the pendulum has swung and industry is going back into the home."

Finally Sees Baby

Sixteen months after her baby was born, Mrs. Earl Jacques of Woodstock, Ont. saw it clearly for the first time, when she was fitted with a pair of "contact lenses" fitting closely over the eyeball. The baby had previously appeared an indistinct blur.

That Body of Yours

By Iremes W. Barton, M.D

GOITRE OPERATIONS IN CHILDREN

Notwithstanding that the majority of patients with an enlarged thyroid gland-goitre, do not have to undergo operation, nevertheless after the iodine and rest, radium, and X ray methods have been used in vain, surgery is now saving the lives of thousands yearly.

Drs. E. I. Grene and J. M. Mora in reporting a series of 1200 cases coming consecutively, or one right after the other, make note of 26 cases of children between the ages of 8 and 16. There were 22 girls, and 4 boys.

The chief symptoms in these cases are very rapid heart beat (tachycardia) great nervousness, enlargement of the thyroid gland (goitre) trembling of the body, gradual loss of weight, palpitation of the heart, irritability, weakness and restlessness.

You can see that with symptoms such as these in a growing boy or girl the amount of poisoning in the system must have been quite severe, and that it must have been a severe strain not only on the youngster, but upon the parents who were caring for them.

What were the results after operation?

The blood pressure which averaged about 132, the blood pressure of a middle aged adult, was reduced to 108, which is about the normal pressure for boys and girls between 8 and 16.

The average rate at which the body processes were being driven was about 35 per cent above normal. This was the cause of the rapid heart beat, the restlessness, nervousness, irritability, and tiredness. After the operation the rate at which the body processes were working was about 6 percent below normal; thus resting the entire body instead of driving it to exhaustion.

Instead of doing the operation in two or three sections or parts, removing a small part of the gland at one time until a suficient amount had been removed, in every case the complete operation was done at one time.

It is encouraging to know that these cases which have gone beyond the stage where iodine, rest, X rays and other treatment is of help, can be saved by surgery.

Roberts, leading St. Thomas citizens, crashed their car into a Hydro post and landed in the ditch. The party escaped with a severe shaking-up. The car was driven by Dr. Buck, who found the driving treacherous on account of a light fall of snow.

LORD APSLEY HAS MARVELLOUS ESCAPE

Climbs From Under Crashed Plane and Asks for a Cigarette

Bristol, Eng.—Lord Apsley, Conservative M.P. for the Central Division of Bristol, had a marvellous escape from death in an aeroplane accident when landing on the Bristol aerodrome.

He was returning from a flight to Wales, and his aeroplane was coming over the entrance to the landing ground when the tip of the wing of his machine, a two-seater monoplane, touched the pole of a tall wind vane.

It swung around and crashed on its back

Stewards and members of the Wessex Aeroplane club rushed to Lord Apsley's assistance, and were amazed to find him only partially stunned, and suffering bruises and cuts.

As they extricated him from the machine, he stood up and asked for a cigarette.

The only parts of the aeroplane which were not smashed were one wing and the pilot's seat.

Lady Apsley dislocated her spine while hunting in December, 1930.

RESTFUL SLEEP for FRETFUL, FEVERISH CHILD

... with Castoria's regulation

When your child tosses and cries out in his sleep, it means he is not comfortable. It may be an overloaded stomach, a starting cold, a little fever.

More often than not the trouble is that poisonous waste matter is not being carried off as it should be. Bowels need help—mild, gentle help—but effective. Just the kind Castoria gives.

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for children's ailments. It contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. And children take it without coaxing. They like its taste.

Don't let your child's rest—and your own—be interrupted. A prompt dose of Castoria will urge stubborn little bowels to act. Then come relaxed comfort and restful sleep! You'll know genuine Castoria—by the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package.

Berg Battles Fuller to a Draw at New York

12,000 FANS SEE LIGHTWEIGHTS STAGE GREAT BATTLE IN GARDEN

A BRILLIANT DUEL.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Far from being all washed up, Jack (Kid) Berg of England still must be reckoned with in any discussion over leading contenders for Tony Canzoneri's lightweight championship. The busy Briton, believed all through after taking two beatings from Canzoneri last year, surprised 12,000 fans in Madison Square Garden last night by holding the highly touted Boston youngster, Sammy Fuller, to a draw in a fast ten round battle.

Garden officials had planned to match the winner against Canzoneri for the title May 6 but instead may ask Fuller and Berg to meet again on that date, probably at 12 rounds.

Although Berg was no worse than a draw in the official verdict, some ringsiders thought Fuller was entitled to the nod on the basis of his cleaner punches. The Associated Press score card gave Fuller six rounds and Berg four.

Both judges, however, voted it a draw, while the referee cast his ballot for Berg. As the judges agreed the referee's vote did not count.

HANSON DEFEATED BY GUS SONNENBERG

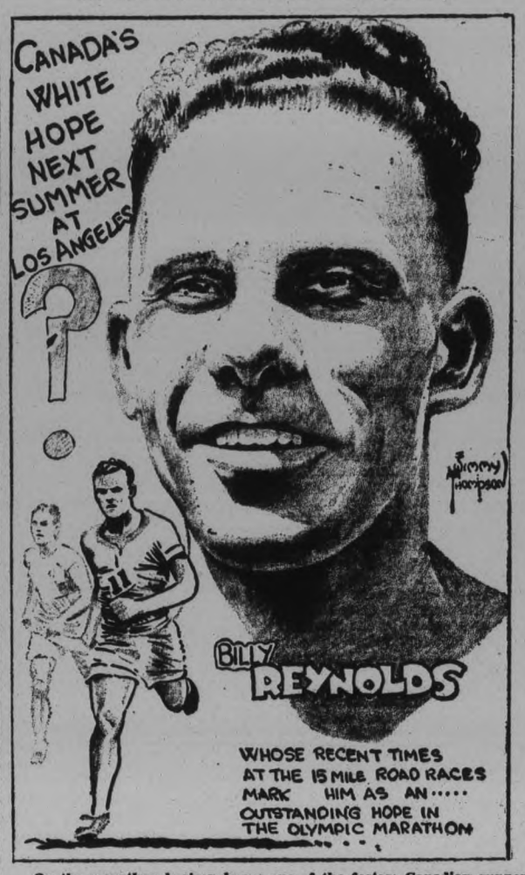
Latter Scores First and Third Falls of Toronto Bout.

TORONTO, April 2.—Gus Sonnenberg, one of the pioneers of the flying-tackle style of wrestling, stretched his Toronto winning streak to something like twelve bouts when he took the first and third falls of the Arena A.C. main event from Charlie Hanson, Minnesota Swede. The victory was not a decisive one, nor was it popular with very many of the 4,300 fans in attendance, Hanson being very much the favorite, especially after he had evened the bout by scoring the second fall. It was Hanson's fourth Toronto bout, his previous three having resulted in victories for him, and in losing to Sonnenberg he gained prestige rather than lost it. He had previously been regarded as a clever wrestler, but, not having met a first-rater, but, had been to a certain extent an unknown quantity. In last night's but he left no doubt whatever as to the fact that he has plenty of wrestling ability, his work suffering not at all in comparison with that of Sonnenoerg.

Sonnenberg took the first fall in 26 minutes and 37 seconds and the third in 3.02, with the intervening one going to Hanson after a lapse of 21.15. The Sonnenberg specialty, a flying tackle, or, rather, a series of those dangerous offensive efforts, started "Dynamite Gus" on his way to victory. Hanson tied the score, as it were, when he grasped Sonnenberg around the waist and slammed him to the mat for a fall, which was vehemently but unavailingly protested by the man who lost it.

France proposes to make its annual outdoor agricultural show at Strasbourg in May a large national affair.

Canadian Marathon Luminary



On the marathon horizon looms one of the fastest Canadian runners to be developed in a long time, Billy Reynolds, who won the annual Good Friday Challenge Cup Marathon in Toronto and set a new course record this year. He's a Galt Ontario Boy. His track time for the fifteen mile grind was 1.26.49 4-5 which set a course record. Billy is certainly one of the best prospects for Canada in the 10,000 metre class for the Olympics. He will be at the trials at Hamilton, running in this class. He is former holder of the Canadian record in this distance, his record being beaten only at the British Empire games. Billy went over with the Canadian Olympic team to Amsterdam in 1928.

SIDELINE SHOTS FROM ENGLISH SOCCER FIELDS

A young player of distinct promise has been secured by the Glasgow Celtic Club in John Browning, a clever left halfback. He is the eldest son of Johnnie Browning, the once noted Celtic outside left, better known as "Smiler" Browning.

Young Browning, who is only 17 years of age, is a native of Vale of Leven, and is a product of Boys' Brigade football. In his native vale he has played for Celtic "A," Bridgeton Waverley and St. Rochs.

New Back for Q.P.R.

After being much under observation for some time, Hirdman, the Consett outside right, has been signed by Queen's Park Rangers. Hirdman is barely eighteen years old.

Grimsby Town are now said to be on the track of W. Kidd, a clever young left back of Pegswood United, an East Northumberland minor club, who recently had a three weeks' trial with Chesterfield.

Sunderland's envoys did not allow the long-drawn-out Durham junior cup-ties between Wheatley Hill and the result is that Watson, the outside right of the first named, has signed amateur forms for the Wearsiders.

Free State League Changes?

Changes are predicted in the constitution of the Free State League next season. It is hinted that Jacobs do not intend to seek re-election.

If Cork Bohemiams apply for admission the Munster side would make capable substitutes but if not what is going to happen? Will the league clubs be reduced to ten?

All-Ireland Championship

Shamrock Rovers, the Free State league champions, will make a tour in Northern Ireland before the end of the season.

Linfield have suggested a match for April 25, and a clash between the champions of both North and South will be very attractive. The Rovers' tour also includes fixtures with Derry City, Coleraine and Ballymena.

Leafs Are Favored To Defeat Maroons

TORONTO, April 2. (C.P.) — Canada's entry in the Stanley Cup final will be decided in Toronto tonight when Sprague Cleghorn leads his Montreal Maroons into the second game of the total-goal series with Toronto Maple Leafs. Holding Maroons to a 1-1 tie on their home ice Tuesday Leafs are highly favored to eliminate the Montrealers and advance into the cup finals against New York Rangers.

The sold-right-out sign decorated the doors of the Gardens soon after the seat plan went on sale Thursday and from advance notices the game will draw the largest crowd to ever witness a hockey game in Toronto.

Following the gruelling test in Montreal, Toronto returned home with only two minor casualties in their ranks. King Clancy, rugged defenceman, is suffering from a bruised spine as a result of a fall while Andy Blair has two stiches in his leg from a deep skate gash. Both will be in the game, however.

George Mallinson, Montreal and Mike Rodden, Toronto, officials who handled the first game in Montreal will again be on duty.

Len Spence Creates New World's Record

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2. —Breaking the world's record for the second time yesterday, the New York Athletic Club last night retained its United States national senior A.A.U. championship in the 400-yard relay in the performance that brought the mark down to 3 minutes 31 4-5 seconds from 3.32 3-5.

Johnny Howland, George Fishler, George Kojac and Walter Spence, brother of the 220-yard breast stroke winner, outclassed three rival teams to win the relay.

The Illinois A.C. led early in the race, but trailed by about four yards at the finish to take second place. The Los Angeles A.C. placed third.

All River Swans Owned by Crown

Penalty for Killing Is $100 But Recent Offenders Escape With $250

London.—A swan in olden times often figured in the repasts of Britain's sovereigns. But it is a risky thing these days for the subjects of King George to dine on any swans caught in an open river, for by law they are the property of the crown.

Only by grant of the crown can a subject have property in swans in an open river. This privilege is enjoyed by one of the famous city companies so far as the Thames is concerned. It now owns nearly as many as the King himself.

A few days ago two men, George Kemp and Arthur Kemp, were each fined the equivalent of $2.50 and costs for killing a cygnet belonging to the King. It was said in extenuation that the offenders were unemployed and in poor circumstances and had killed the cygnet for food. They got off lightly, because the maximum penalty is $100.

QUEEN MARY VISITS HER SICK CHAUFFEUR

He Was Operated on by Royal Household Surgeon

London.—Simpson is one of the royal chauffeurs. He is in the London hospital, where he is recovering after an operation to his foot. He is progressing well, but the other day made a great leap towards recovery. He was delighted because he had an unexpected visit from the Queen.

The Queen went to the hospital to pay a private visit—the first since Sir William Goschen became chairman of the Londen hospital.

Suddenly she remarked: "I must see Simpson!" And they conducted her across to the Sophia ward, where the royal employee was, after having been operated on by Mr. A. J. Walton, surgeon to the royal household, who recently operated on the Duke of Gloucester.

The Queen sat for some time chatting to Simpson, and heard all about his illness. She told him how glad she will be when he can resume work.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, what with me picking them to win and Monsieur Pit Lepin breaking a leg and Monsieur Aurel Joliat nearly busting his, the Canadiens is out of the N.H.L. playoffs, and the N.Y. Rangers has win the championship of the league and is in the finals for the Stanley mug. Who's going to win? Well, seeing I guessed wrong once. I'd better play safe now and say it looks like the Rangers, the Leaves or the Maroons.

The Canadiens, the way I see it, Mac, beat themselves last Sat. nite when with the 1st game in hand and them leading 2 goals in the 3rd period of the 2nd game, they got a little careless and woke up to find the game tied in a knot. The hour overtime took more outa the light Canucks than it did outa the Rangers, and besides it made a cripple outa Monsieur Joliat. Rangers finally grabbed that long contest, and then with Joliat out of the next game and the clever Mons. Lepine smashing his leg, the serious was in the bag for the Rangers. You can't spot that hustling N.Y. aggregation 2 players like Joliat and Lepine and hope to take 'em in a short dash. The Canadiens fought until the last ditch, but it was hopeless.

Meanwhile the thundering herd, the Maroons, was knocking Detroit outa the race and the Toronto Leaves was shooting the Chicago Black Hawks down on the wing. The Toronto gang had a deficit of 1 marker following the 1st game in Chicago, and 1 goal with Mister Chuck Gardiner to beat is quite a lead, but Mister Connie Smythe's lads went to work in the return game as if they had never heard of Gardiner and company. They had Chicago beat all of the way, and when the final poll was heard from they were leading 6 to 1 on the game and 6 to 2 on the round, which, neighbors, is quite a beating in the cash and carry playoffs.

You'll notice, Mac, that former Peterborough players ain't doing so badly this season. In the Stanley Cup serious they's Mister Bailey with the Leaves and Mister Doug. Brennan with the Rangers. In the American Association playoffs they's Mister Bert McLeod and Biffer Ranger with the Kansas City Pla-mors, and in the International finals they's Mister Babe Bogardis with Buffalo. And on the line-up of the National Sea Fleas, which has now reached the Allan Cup finals, is Mister Frank Collins and Ken. Kane. Incidentally, how would you like to see all the above 6 lined up as a Peterborough senior team again?

Well, Mac, by this time next week most of the titles oughta to be decided. Until then, I'll be saying farewell.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

LEGITIMATE STAGE REGAINS FAVOR OF ST. JOHN PUBLIC

Community Theatre Guild Develops Local Talent in Series of Productions.

MUSICAL COMEDY POPULAR

SAINT JOHN, N. B., April 2.—Activity in music and the legitimate stage is keener in Saint John than it has been for many years. The trend is toward a revival of musical comedy productions. Noted concert artists rarely appear in this city, and amateurs are playing to the satisfaction of a public that has few opportunities of seeing and hearing outside talent. Particular preference is given English productions, although Broadway plays have been given a prominent place by local producers.

Outstanding in theatricals here is a new organization, The Saint John Community Theatre Guild, which made its bow to the public in January with the well-known English play "Three Live Ghosts." The Theatre Guild's next production will be of the "Pierrot" type.

At present upwards of 200 people are associated with this new organization. A leader of its activities is Major H. C. Christie, local playwright and retired Indian army officer who is known by the pseudonym "Sirhindi." Major Christie was the librettist of "Merry Maymein," a tale of Burmah, presented by the Y's Men's Club.

The Theatre Guild offers to its membership 24 classes of work, including legitimate acting, musical acting, dancing, stage, dance and musical direction, stage management, costume and scene designing, costume making, wigmaking, stage carpentry and lighting.

The nucleus of an organization to be known as the Saint John Community Concert Association has been formed. It will launch a membership drive and proposes bringing to Saint John each year three or four leading artists of Canada and the United States, with the preference in selection to be given Canadians.

Late in February a 100-voice choir under the direction of Dr. H. C. Dunlop gave its second year's oratorio. Solo "leads" were sung by two of Canada's most prominent artists, Madame Jeanne Dusseau, soprano of Montreal, and Stanley Maxted, Toronto tenor. The oratorio Elijah was sung by the choir last year.

The Saint John Male Choral Club, now in its fourth season, will present its eighth concert in April. This club gives two concerts yearly—one for the benefit of charity.

The Choral Club, numbering approximately 50 members, is affiliated with the Associated Glee Clubs of America. This affiliation it is hoped, will facilitate the promotion of a Maritime musical festival as envisaged by the Choral Club's founder, the late Professor T. H. Allwood, A. R. C. O. This would give the Maritime Provinces a huge, widely representative festival similar to those enjoyed in other parts of the Dominion and the United States.

Two members of the Choral Club Omar and David Thompson, are nephews of Sir Hugh Robertson, one of Great Britain's most eminent composers and conductor of the Glasgow Orpheus Choir.

The "Mikado" will be presented here this month by the Red Chevron Club, a returned soldiers' organization. Many years have passed since this familiar play was produced in Saint John. The Knights of Columbus put on the "Gypsy Rover" last month, and St. David's Choir will present "Pirates of Penzance" in April.

The Sydney and Acadia teams will battle for the Provincial intermediate title. They will play two games at Wolfville, the first to-day and the second on Monday.

Official Japanese Olympic Pin

TWO REASONS WHY JAPAN SHOULD WIN.

Here we have Misses Chiyoke Umeda and Yaeko Hatekinka, a pair of Nipponese beauties who have introduced the official Japanese Olympia pin at Los Angeles in order ot aid the financing of their country's team at the 1932 Games. Japan not only plans to send the largest team of any foreign nation, but also expects to send along some 5 000 rooters to cheer her athletes. The pin design shows the intermixture of the colors and stars of the United States with the flag of Japan and the five rings of the Olympic Games insignia.

CLOSE MARGINS IN "Y" GAMES

BOYS' HOBBY SHOW

The Kingdon Juniors and Cruther's Intermediates won the divisional championships of the Y. M. C. A. Basketball Tournament, in connection with the Boys' Hobby Show, at the "Y", last night. Both final games were exceptionally close, ending in 11-8 scores, with the former team defeating Fair's, and the Sedgewick Intermediates bowing to Cruthers'.

Twelve teams were entered in the tourney, six in each section. They played twenty-two games Thursday, with the finalists meeting last night. The two winners received gym. shirts, and "Y" crests, donated by the Boys' Hobby Show. Much promising material was uncovered in the cage tussles, captained by experienced players and evenly balanced by boys with some knowledge of the game and beginners. Practically all the games ended by close scores.

In the junior play-off contest, last night, the Kingdon crew a little superiority in all-round play and came through with an 11 to 8 victory over Al Fair's boys. The count at half-time was 8-6 for the winners, and they managed to outscore their opponents, 3-2, in the last hectic session. Both squads battled themselves out and the result was very much in doubt until the final whistle.

Good Team Play.

The team play, checking and shooting displayed was surprising when the boys' ages were considered. Allan Fair and Doug. McPherson were outstanding for the losers, the former getting five points. Len Symonds notched a basket and Gord Johnston counted one point. For the victors, Bun Kingdon went best, pushing in four baskets himself. Roy Heard, getting three points and Tommy Townsend also showed to advantage.

No. 1: Kingdon, Townsend, Heard, West and Allison.

No. 2: Fair, Symonds, McPherson, Allan and Johnston.

Referee: Vincent Holmes; umpire, Gord McIntrye.

The Cruthers' quintet captured intermediate honors in the second battle, finishing stronger to take the big end of an 11-8 score over Sedgewick's. It was exceptionally hard-fought with little difference appartnt in the teams' strength until the last half of the second frame. Then the champs unloosed a hard offensive that took them within close range several times and their shooting was deadly. At the half-way mark, the count read 4-3 for the losers, but they could only get four more in the final set-to compared with eight for the Cruthers' cagers.

Turn in Good Game

Sedgewick and Pearse were the best for the losing side, but all turned in a hard effort. Sedgewick scored four points, while Milliken had two apiece. Offensively, Burns and Galley showed class for the winners, the former hitting the mark for seven points, with Galley doing the niping for the other four. Ascott went good on the defence, and the others rounded out a smart, speedy aggregation of basketeers. The teams:

No. 1: Cruthers, Ascott, Miller, Galley, Burns and Gunsolus.

No. 2: Sedgewick, Pearse, Langley, Smith, Milliken and Williams.

Referee: Vincent Holmes; umpire, Gord. McIntyre.

CASUAL COMMENT

The girl basketeers hold the centre of the stage to-night when they meet in the second—and perhaps the last—play-off games at the Y.W.C.A. St. Paul's and Westclox start it off at eight, followed by the juniors, Blue Petes and Choates, at 8.45. As it's the best two out of three for the junior and senior titles, either the Alarm damsels of the Hardware lasses—or both—will have to come out on top to force the series to a third contest. The place will be sold out down there.

The junior badminton competitions at the Market Hall the other evening produced some fine play, showing that the Peterborough Badminton Club is looking ahead. Some of the wisners were: Misses Ann Macdonald, Louise Hall, Alicia Langley, Sherry Bond, and Art Wood and Bobby Hewitt. The Port Hope Garrison Club sends up two dozen players a week from to-night for their annual match with the local club to be played in the Market Hall.

A fine hockey picture, that of the South-end League bantams, Athetics, was sent to us yesterday, and it is now in The Examiner's window. "Shocky" 'Mein managed the team, a bunch of boys playing together for several years and including some of the most promising youngsters in the city. The picture was taken in the Ken Baker Studio immediately after the A's hectic titular series with the Maple Leafs.

Charlie Hallat, Toronto promoter, was in town the other day and said he expected to stage another professional wrestling show here before the end of this month. He plans to put on several before the weather becomes too hot, bringing in outstanding mitt and mat artists. This will be good news to a flock of fans.

The old type of pug-and-tug grappling was dying on its feet a few years ago when Gus Sonnenburg's flying tackles injected the needed shot of dope that brought the game back with a bang. It's still a racket, but one that the fans all over go for in a big way, and even the most bloodthirsty are satisfied by the way the huskies slam each other around, jumping on fallen opponents, kicking them anywhere, etc. The neckless grunters sure earn their shekels nowadays.

The games throughout the season will be staged at Earlscourt Park, Goodyear Park, and in Oshawa. The next C.O.B.L. meeting is booked for Kingston a week from to-day.

Great horned toads! Now they're racing them, the first International Horned Toad Derby taking place in California yesterday. Taxicab, a lanky, gimlet-eyed desert scooter from a Los Angeles stable, coming first. George Bancroft's entry finished third, while Eddie Cantor's Whoopee was out of the money. Some heavy sugar was bet as the toad touters mingled in the huge crowd of spectators. What will be next in the world of sports?

Mel Glionna, Toronto boxer, who recently won from Ned Minicola here, lost a five-round decision to Harvey Fleet, Ontario lightweight champ, last night, before 1,000 Kitchener fans. Instead of the usual three three-minute rounds, they boxed five two-minute ones and it went over big. That idea might be tried out successfully here, as the shorter sessions should provide continuous action from start to finish, something followers of the belters crave in large quantities.

BOXERS FAVORED TO COP HONORS

Netherlands Will Concentrate Activity in Equestrian Sports and Cycling.

STRONG CZECH TEAM.

(By Maxwell Stiles)

LOS ANGELES, Apr. 2 (Special to The Examiner)—Holland's participation in the Olympic games will glorify the horse and the bicycle. The Netherlands will concentrate its Olympic activity in equestrian sports and cycling, only two or three track and field athletes to be included in the party of approximately fifteen competitors that Holland plans to send to Los Angeles. This information is supplied by Adrian Hartog, consul for Holland in Los Angeles.

Holland won the cycling championship in the 1928 Olympic games held in Amsterdam. Holland tied with Poland for the team honors in equestrian sports.

Hartog is in receipt of a letter from a Netherlands cavalry officer which states that present plans call for a Holland Olympic team of about fifteen competitors as follows:

Four or five cavalry officers with eight or ten horses for the equestrian events.

One or two boxers.

One or two cyclists.

One yachtsman (that is, one skipper with his boat and crew).

Two women swimmers.

Two or three track and field athletes.

The women swimmers will be Miss Baron and Miss Marie Braun. Miss Baron in the 1928 Olympics placed second in the 200-metre breast stroke and fourth in the women's high diving. Miss Braun won the 100-metre backstroke and placed second in the 400-metre free style.

Has Champion Gymnast

Czechoslovakia, with the world's champion gymnast and a man who may win the championship in the shot-put for the reason that he has tied the official world's record, definitely will be represented in the Olympic games here next summer. Assurance of this has been given by Felix Janovsky, honorary consul of the Czechoslovakian republic in Los Angeles, who is serving as Olympic attache for his country.

"We expect to send 20 to 30 men to Los Angeles," Janovsky assures us. "The exact number depends on finances, which are most uncertain at this time."

"In which sports does Czechoslovakia hope to be represented if adequate funds are forthcoming?" Janovsky was asked.

"I understand that A. Hudec, who won the world's gymnastic championship at Paris last year, is coming," the attache answered. "It is unfortunate, however, that we cannot be fully represented by a team of gymnasts, in which sport we placed second to Switzerland in the 1928 games at Amsterdam.

"This happens to be the year of the ninth Czecho-Sokol in Prague, which will be held in June or July."

The Sokol held every six years, is a gigantic national gymnastic festival.

"We expect to enter a strong team in equestrian sports," Janovsky said.

"We also hope to compete in track and field for both men and women, boxing, swimming for men and women. Graeco-Roman wrestling and the fine arts."

The Czech track and field forces are led by F. Douda, who last summer put the 16-pound shot 52 feet 7½ inches. This tied the official world record held by Emil Hirchfield of Germany, which mark also was equalled by Herman Brix of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Bettered the Record

It is the hope of Argentine sportsmen that Argentina may be represented in men's track and field, swimming for both men and women, boxing, cycling, rowing, shooting and yachting. Participation in women's track, equestrian sports, field hockey, gymnastics, lacrosse, modern pentathlon, water polo, wrestling and weight lifting is regarded as very likely.

The importance of Argentine participation may be seen at a glance. One of Argentina's athletes, Sabala, made the best time for the marathon made anywhere in the world in 1931, if reports are correct that he ran the 26 miles in 2 hours 33 minutes 19 seconds. Sabala has announced that he will come to Los Angeles three months early to train for the 10,000 metres and marathon.

A fleet-footed Argentine boy named Juan Pina last summer ran 100 metres in 10.4 seconds, bettering the Olympic record and clipping a fifth from the fastest recorded 100 metres time ever made by Frank Wykoff, who is ranked as the outstanding favorite in this event.

A handsome Argentine lad named Albert Gorilla won the Olympic 400 metres free style swimming championship in the games at Amsterdam four years ago. He should be here to defend that title.

A team of Argentine boxers tied with Italy for the boxing championship in the Amsterdam games, two of its members winning the light heavyweight and heavyweight titles. Argentina is certain to play an important part in the boxing tourney.

In full payment for four tons of cabbages which he had sent to the market at Sydney, N.S.W., a farmer received a six cent stamp, the balance of the sales price being consumed by transport charges.

SEVERAL CHANGES ARE MADE IN MONTREAL CLUB'S ROSTER

Pitching Staff and Infield Show Several Changes From 1931.

QUALITY COUNTS.

MONTREAL, April 2. — While Spring breezes blew through the empty seats at Montreal Stadium, all is bustle in the business office of Montreal Royals, where plans are being laid to-day for the coming baseball campaign in the International League. A high-class collection of baseball talent is now in training at Hot Springs, down in Arkansas?

If the squad's numbers have been pared down to a minimum by Manager Ed Holly and Frank Shaughnessy, business manager and scout, quality has not been neglected. Lanky Shaughnessy thinks the Royals have the strongest club Montreal has ever entered in the league race.

Batteries started training March 10, the main force followed soon afterwards. Royals have the pick of last season's star hurlers and a few new ones as well. Herb Thormahlen, John Pomorski, Walter Brown, Gowell Classet, Chester Falk, Summer Collingwood and Clarence Fisher all worked with Montreal last season and will be back this year.

To the staff have been added a few new moundsmen. Peter Leam and Roy Brannon farmed out last season to Beckley of the Mid-Atlantic League and Williamsport of the New York-Penn. League respectively, will probably play here this year. Charlie Sullivan, lately with Detroit Tigers, has been purchased, and Orville Jorgenn will be brought up from Harrisburgh to complete the mound staff. Thormahlen, Falk, Slaset and Collingwood are the southpaws of the squad.

Once again Royals can boast of the tallest pitching staff in the International circuit. Only three of the list, Beam, Brown and Collingwood, fail to touch the six-foot mark. Claset offsets their deficiency, however, towering six-feet-four above the turf.

Head Behind Bat

Albert Lee Head, who did most of the catching last season, will be in action again. Charlie Neibergall, reported to be angling for a managerial position, made the trip to Hot Springs for training. John Grabowski, bought from Detroit, will work alternately with Head and Neibergall.

Joe Maley from Bridgeport in the Eastern League is out for the first sack job as well as Fred Henry. Fred was substitute first baseman last year between scouting trips. Shaughnessy will do the scouting trip this year, and Henry will aid Holly as assistant manager.

Walter "Doc" Gautreau will work at second base and Herb Thomas from Newark at shortstop. Bob Smith, with Hazelton in the New York-Penn. loop last season, rounds out the infield material. Ernie Olsen, newcomer from Buffalo, may be used as utility infielder.

Of the outfielders John Conlan, Tom Gulley and Jim Ripple were all with the Royals last year. Ivy Shiver is a newcomer from Toronto Leafs. Shiver stands six-feet-one and weighs 190 pounds.

With all the newcomers there must be absent faces. Roy Buckalew, a right hand twirler, will be sold. Bucky Gaudette and Eddie Conley, outfielders, will likely be sent out on option. None of the three reported for Spring training. The club has had little trouble with holdouts.

WOLF BOUNTY CLAIMS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 2.— In the first three months of 1932 the Ontario Government paid out $2,300 in bounties to the wolf hunters for Algoma, according to figures obtained from the Game and Fisheries Office here. In January, February and March 92 wolves were despatched. There were 47 victims in January. In February 24 were killed and 22 in March

LEAFS WILL PLAY AT INDIANAPOLIS

Former Arrives at Tennessee City En Route North to Summer Schedule.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 2.—Arriving here from Nashville yesterday morning the Leafs found much the same kind of weather prevailing as they ran into in the Tennessee city, but warmer, if anything. They will open a four-game series with the Indianapolis American Association team to-day, and it is possible that two extra contests may be arranged with the Indians for April 6 and 7, two off-days the Leafs have on their schedule at present.

When the Leafs meet the Indians they will be up against a team which began its spring training in Florida as early as February 28. The Indians worked out yesterday afternoon in their brand new ball park and they appeared to be in splendid condition. They have almost enough players for two teams.

Fred Bedore, former Leaf infielder, is with Indianapolis, and he had a great time greeting old friends in the Toronto squad. Bedore is slated for utility work with the Indians.

The Leafs also practiced yesterday afternoon. At least Manager Daly had all his batterymen out as well as a number of the other players. He announced last night that Art Smith and Art Mills would handle the pitching assignment in to-day's game.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

CHATHAM FIRM SOLD

CHATHAM, April 2.—An important business deal has been consummated in this city, whereby the Walker - Fell Overall Company passes into the possession of the American Pad and Textile Company. It is the intention of the purchasers, for the present, to continue the business of the Walker-Fell Overall Company under the present management.

WATERLOO TAX RATE

KITCHENER, April 2. — The Waterloo town council will be asked to adopt a tax rate of 39 mills on Monday, as a result of the finance committee's success in slashing seven-tenths of a mill off last year's rate of 39.7 mills. A surplus of $9,000 and general reductions in operating costs permitted the lower rate. The total to be raised is $247,499.02.

Doubt Phar Lap Will Race In England

LONDON, April 2 (A.P.).—British turfmen doubt Phar Lap, winner of the big Agua Caliente Handicap ever will be sent to England to add to his long series of New Zealand, Australian and United States triumphs.

Reports that Phar Lap will head for Epsom and other English tracks are now taken seriously, because many years ago owners of horses that earned fame in the Antipodes gave up hope of similar success in the Motherland, largely on account of the difference in climate.

2nd Junior Final Winnipeg To-Night

WINNIPEG, April 2. —(By the Canadian Press.)—With the Memorial Cup, emblematkic of the junior hockey championship of Canada, at stake, the Winnipeg Monarchs and Sudbury Wolves meet here to-night for the second game of the final playoffs. If Monarchs win to-night the cup stays in Winnipeg, whither it was brought last year by the Elmwood Millionaires. If Sudbury wins another game will have to be played, for Monarchs took the first for the wto-out-of-three series Thursday night.

The small and speedy Sudbury lads showed in the first game they were not overawed by the size of the Monarchs, an unusually heavy junior team. They fought right to the end and the best the Winnipegers could do was win by a one-goal margin at 4-3.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

THE LOYALTY OF FARMER BROWN'S BOY.

No greater blessing's given you
Than loyal friendship, staunch and true.
—Old Mother Nature.

"Well, well, well, what is going on here? Had an accident?" asked Farmer Brown as he entered the sugar house just as Farmer Brown's Boy was cleaning up the egg he had thrown at Shadow the Weasel.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "I gave Shadow the Weasel a scrambled egg for breakfast, but he didn't appear to appreciate it," said he. Then he told of Shadow's bold visit and how he had had to act quickly to save the lives of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and his family. Having the egg in his hand (he was just going to fry it for his breakfast) he had thrown it.

"Where did that rascal go?" asked Farmer Brown

"Outside, and he went in a hurry," was the reply.

"He'll be back," replied Farmer

Brown. "There is no one more persistent than a Weasel. He will slip in here the first chance he gets and that will be the end of your Mice."

"I know that," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "We've got to keep the door shut all the time and keep him out."

"That is easier said than done," replied Farmer Brown. "One of us is bound to forget and leave that door ajar. Why don't you go over to the house and get your gun? Then you can shoot him the next time you see him. There was a twinkle in Farmer Brown's eyes as he said this.

Farmer Brown's Boy shook his head in a most decided manner. "No," said he. "I wouldn't do that. He isn't doing us any harm. He has hunted Mice all his life and he knows no reason why he shouldn't hunt these Mice in here. He isn't doing anything wrong. If he had come up to our barn when we had so many Rats and Mice there we would have welcomed him. There wouldn't be any justice in shooting him just because he is doing only what Mother Nature intended him to do. At the same time I have grown very fond of those Mice and I don't want anything to happen to them. We've got to keep that door shut and I've got to think of some way to drive him away so that he will stay away.

"Trap him," said Farmer Brown.

"Trap him and keep him a prisoner.

"I'll do it, only I won't keep him a prisoner. I'll take him away somewhere and let him go," replied Farmer Brown's Boy.

So that evening after the work of the day was over he made a box trap which, if Shadow entered it, would catch him alive without in any way hurting him. He did not quite finish it before becoming so sleepy that he just had to go to bed. He was up early in the morning, completed the trap, baited it with a piece of meat and set it just outside the door.

Meanwhile Whitefoot and Mrs. Whitefoot had somewhat recovered from the dreadful fright that Shadow had given them and had ventured out to get the good things Farmer Brown's Boy had provided for them. They were still very nervous, for they knew that Shadow had been in the sugar house. Whitefoot had been peeping out when Shadow had first entered. He had dodged back into the old syrup can and there he and Mrs. Whitefoot had waited in terror and despair for the end they were sure was at hand. They had not known why Shadow had not followed them in, but after awhile they had guessed that he had been driven out by Farmer Brown's Boy, and they tried to show him how grateful they were by unhesitatingly climbing into his lap and taking food from his hands.

They knew that he was their friend, but of course they didn't and couldn't know how true and loyal a friend he was.

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 8:15 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Astrological tendencies for April 2nd: Financially favorable for the more prosperous to whom sound investments will be proffered. To those for whom conditions are unsettled, a change is foreseen. Family worries though affairs of the younger members. A propitious time for correspondence, especially business letters.

The child born on this April 2nd will be shy, yet self-possessed. It will have a great deal of latent ability, which will not "blossom out" until almost maturity. It will be naturally high principled, honest, considerate, dependable, ambitious, energetic, affectionate, loyal, neat and tidy.

Born on April 2nd, you will have rather a stoical and Puritanical nature. You bear pain and trouble silently, and take your joys soberly. You have a very strict conscience which tries to keep your life in order. It will not allow you to take a lenient attitude toward right or wrong in either your own life or that of another. Your judgments are harsh and severe; you would administer justice unsavored with mercy. As you grow older you will realize more, that to err is human and that compassion is divine. You invite the respect of your associates without winning their spontaneous love.

Your work will be the big factor in your life, and from choice if not from actual necessity, you will always be a very busy person. When once you start a thing you are never happy until it is finished, and unfinished tagends annoy you. You are very systematic and make every movement count. Your brain is not quick, but given the time you can study and think things out very correctly.

There is a great deal of love in your heart, although your emotions are too suppressed for people to readily realize the depth of your real feelings. You may be intolerant, but you are not thoughtless or selfish. You are very generous both with money and your services.

Sunday, April 3rd.

If April 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9:40 a.m., from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

An atmosphere of restlessness will prevail on April 3rd, and it will be difficult to settle down to any of the attractions of the day. Throw off any vague fears which may haunt you, as although there are clouds in the immediate horizon, the silver lining will soon be shown.

The child born on this April 3rd will have a versatile nature, but may lack application. It should have deft, intelligent hands and graceful physical movements. It will be restless and a typical little wriggler. It will be sensitive, sympathetic and affectionate.

Volatility, intellectuality, resourcefulness and spontaneity are some of the outstanding characteristics which you possess, if born April 3rd. The things which you do best in life are done extemporaneously. You have a very strong desire for self-expression, and everything which you do or say is indelibly marked with your stamp of individuality. From childhood on you have hated any kind of supervision and cannot bear to be told things, no matter how much it may be to your benefit. Experience is the only teacher for whom you will have proper respect. You are very cheerful and philosophical about your own mistakes.

It is not a question of what you can do, but what you will do in life. You start many things and finish few. You are a victim of boredom, and are not self-disciplined enough to make yourself go on when your enthusiasm is gone. If concentration, patience and stick-to-it iveness were positive and not negative traits of yours you would make much more of yourself.

You are a popular person where a "feast of reason and a flow of soul" is the passport. You can be the life of any party. You are as a rule good-natured and very witty. You love to "take off" other people's eccentricities or to dramatize a situation. You neither hate or love with any degree of intensity. You will always fight for your own comforts and your own pleasures.

DENIES ENGAGEMENT

LONDON, April 2 (AP)—Nancy Meyrick, daughter of Kate Meyrick, "Queen of the night clubs" to-day denied a newspaper report that she was engaged to the Honorable Charlie S. Fitzroy, heir to Lord Southampton.

"Mr. Fitbrey and I are just friends, nothing else," she said.

Madoc

MADOC, April 2 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Wednesday, Mar. 30th, 1932, Mrs. Archie Thompson, of Madoc, celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of her birth, and in the afternoon many of her friends and neighbors gathered with her relatives and family to do honor to a kind and valued neighbor, and to wish her a happy birthday and many of them.

With her daughter, Mrs. S. S. Ashley as hostess and granddaughters assisting, a pleasant afternoon was spent, and five o'clock tea enjoyed, while spending one more social time with Mrs. Thompson. One son, Charles Thompson, ex-Warden of the county, was present, and his two daughters, Hazel and Jennie, of Madoc Township, two daughters, Ida, (Mrs. S. S. Ashley, of Madoc, and Tillie, Mrs. Stanley Morton of Brockville, with her daughter and son, Isabel and Ralph. Many nieces and nephews were present and with friends and neighbors, about fifty guests were gathered for the occasion. Many beautiful presents were brought as a gracious reminder of the day. The friends and neighbors presented a beautiful cameo pin, while nearer relatives presented jewelry, stationery, flowers, confectionery, china and other useful articles.

Mrs. Ashley received the guests, and Miss Isabel Morton, assisted at the door, while Mrs. Morton and the misses served tea and dainty refreshments.

When good-byes were said all joined in again wishing their friend many happy returns of the day.

Madoc hockey boys held a very enjoyable bridge and dance at the Armouries on Monday evening. Owing to the condition of the roads the attendance was not as large as desired, but all enjoyed a splendid time. The music for the dance was furnished by Inglis' Orchestra of Grafton.

SOVIET PLANS RE-ORGANIZATION OF LIVESTOCK, DAIRY INDUSTRIES

Scores of Farm Administrators to be Prosecuted for Inefficiency.

FAIL TO FILL CONTRACTS.

(By Stanley P. Richardson, A.P. Staff Correspondent)

MOSCOW, Apr. 2 (A.P.) — A sweeping reorganization of Soviet Russia's livestock and dairy industries, including prosecution and dismissal of scores of directors of state breeding farms, has been decreed by the Council of People's Commissars, the central committee of the communist party and the commissariat for agriculture.

The order, bearing the signatures of Premier Molotoff, Joseph Stalin and M. Yakovlev, coincides with the presence here of Robert P. Lamont, Jr., of the United States, who is considering an offer to undertake rehabilitation and development of Soviet cattle breeding operations.

The decree charges gross inefficiency and carelessness from top to bottom, from the cattle, swine and sheep breeding trust and butter and chicken trusts down to state farms devoted to these purposes.

Livestock Perish

It cites unsatisfactory care of livestock resulting in the death of large numbers and the leaving of numbers of others in poor condition, waste under which the farms failed to fulfill government contracts, poor labor organization, lack of cost accounting on various farms and inadequate leadership.

At the same time it announced that 88 farm administrators were dismissed from their jobs and 33 would be prosecuted on criminal charges. It called for completion of the reorganization not later than Aug. 1 in order to complete the 1932 plan for deliveries to the government, which include 63,945,385 pounds of beef, 128,100,000 pounds of pork, 43,767,500 pounds of butter, 39,542,335 pounds of mutton, and 2,705,500 pounds of wool.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Immediately after dark, the revolt of the slaves and the murder of the Arabs was to take place. The whites were eager for action. While Flora Hawkes sat alone in her tent, awaiting the signal for the attack, a little black boy crept in—terribly frightened. At the girl's order to speak he finally found words: "Put your ear close, lady," he said, "while I tell you what Luvini is planning."

Flora heard from his lips how the huge Luvini had given orders to kill her white companions and to sell her into slavery after the Arabs had been slain and their ivory taken. She went white with rage at the news. Then fear shook her. Seizing her pistol she strode toward the tent's flap. "I'll teach that scoundrel a lesson!" she cried. The boy clung to her, fearful of her dangerous resolve.

"No! No!" he begged, "It will only mean they will kill the white men sooner and take you prisoner just the same. Every black boy in camp is against you. Luvini has promised the ivory shall be equally divided." The girl stood looking at the faithful boy a moment. "What shall I do then?" she asked. "There is but one hope," he replied, "you and the white men must escape into the jungle. Not even I may accompany you."

Flora bade him go before suspicion fell upon him. Then she walked casually across the open and went to Kraski's tent. Here she told the white men of what they boy had said. They pondered the revelation in silence. Far outnumbered by the natives, they realized their situation was serious. From the distance came the night sounds of wild beasts, giving added fear to the group.

PIRATES OF PENZANCE DELIGHTS BIG AUDIENCE IN OPERA HOUSE

Comic Opera Presented By St. Pau's Choir and Men's Associations.

SPLENDID COSTUMING.

(By Jeanette)

The "Pirates of Penzance" enrolled themselves in the musical history of Peterborough last night, with a flourish and a swagger that sent their audience, between seven and eight hundred strong, out into the night humming the gay tunes they sang as the disported themselves on a rocky seashore on the coast of Cornwall, as the program described their habitat.

Despite numerous small misadventures, the type that lurk in wait for any amateur production and also despite a very serious matter, the last-minute illness of the principal lady of the cast, the "Pirates" gave a triumphant account of themselves and proved to be one of the most worthwhile of the many excellent productions which the choir and Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church have sponsored in the past.

Mrs Grace Munro, who was cast for the principal role, the heroine of the production, was unable to sing through illness, and Miss Mary Sedgewick, with only the slender preparation of the past three days to support her, sailed through the part in a manner thoroughly satisfying and very pleasing. Then in Miss Sedgewick's original role of Edith, one of General Stanley's daughters, Miss Helen Veitch also proved to be a scratch performer of no mean ability, making one of the pretty trio of daughters for the fortunate and very youthful General, who, in spite of the fact that he was convoyed about by a regular harem of lovely maidens, was cast down in spirit for most of the time.

The Pirates of Penzance" is one of the very tuneful and melodious comic operas which made Gilbert and Sullivan famous. It has plenty of rollicking and lovely tunes, one of the most notable being that old favorite of congenial gatherings, "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here". To see the sixteen men of the force, a group of "the finest"—"come one and all, the dark men in blue" as Mabel described them, resplendent in their navy outfits, their helmets, their batons and buttons and white gloves, singing this famous ditty that has become identified with a portion of the future life, and to see them also, probably because of their policedemeanor, scratching matches on the sacred precincts of the Opera House stage, was to see and hear something quite extraordinary. Led by a dougty sergeant of police whose voluminous whisker growth somewhat obscured the clarity of his words, they disported themselves in a manner that brought them resounding and renewed applause.

Then there was the bevy of graceful girls in their lovely long gowns of pale pink and green and yellow and blue, resembling a garden of flowers as they floated about the stage, little colored slippers peeping out from filmy hems, large picture hats shading dainty faces.

The Orphan Complex

"The Pirates" scintillates with the rib-tickling humour that Gilbert thought about, and that Sullivan set to his famous tunes. It has a band of pirates whose movements are dictated by conscience. Duty is their stern taskmaster; they refuse to attack any band that is weaker than their own (and in consequence are always getting licked by stronger pirates), and they have a high and heavy regard for orphans that leads them to spare all and sundry of that ilk.

It was this orphan complex on the part of his captors that led them to spare Major-General Stanley of the British Army, when he, with his large family of lovely girls, appeared in their lair, and it was remorse on the part of the General for his dreadful lie in the matter that led to a unique scene in the second act. In this portion, the General, his small moustache and rather red nose still much in evidence, appears in a nightshirt, with red hose and nightcap, sitting remorsefully on the tomb of his "ancestors by purchase" and mediating on his transgression in the matter of claiming orphancy.

The cast, as they appear on the program, includes Harold Coulson, as Richard, a Pirate Chief; John Anderson, as Samuel, his lieutenant; Stanley Willis, as Frederic, a pirate apprentice; George Coleman, Junior, as Major-General Stanley of the British Army; George East as Edward, a sergeant of police; Miss Mary Sedgewick, as Mabel, General Stanley's youngest daughter; Miss Emma Lou Chenhall, as Kate, a member of a trio of the the General's daughters, which includes also Miss Helen Veitch, as Edith, and Miss Lily B. Kay as Isabel. Miss Jessie Pattison has the role of Ruth, a piratical maid of all work. It is because of Miss Pattison's confusing of the word pilot with pirate that Frederic becomes an apprentice to the robber band, but, as she naively remarks to Frederic when begging his pardon for the error, "the two words are very much alike." And he amiably agrees, although he assures the pirates that, while he admires them individually, as a collection they are hateful in his sight, and must be exterminated as rapidly as possibly. They also agree, asking that the process be carried out as painlessly as may be.

Outstanding is Harold Coulson's singing of "I am the Pirate King"; the opening duett between Miss Pattison and Mr. Willis; the many pretty solos which fall to the lot of Miss Sedgewick in the stellar role; the well-known monologue in music of the General, Mr Coleman, describing at length his varied knowledge of "matters vegetable, animal and mineral; the extremely laughable trio about the Paradox, sung in such excellent style by Miss Pattison, Mr. Willis and Mr. Coulson, in a manner that brought down the house; the duett between Miss Sedgewick and Mr. Willis, "O leave me not to pine alone"; the famous chorus of the policemen, "A policeman's lot is not a happy one"; and that very intriguing chorus of the maidens, where they discourse at length about the weather, while keeping an ear open for the talk between the two lovers.

The jolly music of the chorus, "Poor Wandering One" brought the production to a close, as it set the note for the gay opening.

Spendid Costuming

The costuming was perfect in detail, throughout. The pirates were as sinister as possible, with head scarfs and breeches, cutlasses and dirks; the pirate chieftain with his rigid backbone, was marvellously attired in the traditional piratical fashion, with a skull and crossbones on his chapeau, and Ruth was a real pirate's dream of a maid of all work. Playing mumbity-peg and looking as ferocious as imaginable, the pirates opened the picture, but they made their exit in a very Gilbertian manner as English nobelmen "gone wrong."

It was hilarious and nonsensical fun, set to music, and it had a very successful production under direction of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., with Mrs. John Foster, violinist, directing the very capable orchestra which accompanied it, with members as follows: Walter Townsend, clarinet; Walter Hughes, cornet; W. H. Cunningham, bass; Robert Beach, drums; Alfred E. McKeown, violin; Fred Peryer, trombone, Martin Chenhall, Junior, 'cello.

Mrs. J. W. Armstrong was in charge of the ladies' costumes.

Advertising the forthcoming Y.W.C.A. gym pageant, Miss Sophia Yeotes in frilly mauve and white costume, "toed" her way across the stage and back again, with an advertising poster.

Several lovely bouquets of flowers were presented to Miss Mary Sedgewick, who did so splendily in a difficult role at such short notice, and who received an ovation for a very fine performance. Miss Jessie Pattison also received flowers as did the three principal daughters, the Misses Emma Lou Chenhall, Helen Veitch and Lily Kay. The bouquets were presented by little Nancy Barr, Dorothy Reid and Mary Dodds.

The chorus of General Stanley's daughters included Mesdames A. E. Earrie, F. Board, G. Coleman, J. B. Fowler, B. Hemphill, J. C. Smith, A. E. Strong and the Misses A. Archibald, M. Armstrong, P. Coleman, I. Duthie, M. Duthie, I. Hamilton, A. Hunter, K. Isbister, M. Maynecord, I. Mackey, M. I. Reid, P. Reme, S. Sands, L. Smith, G. Thompson.

The chorus of Pirates included Messrs. K. Bailey, G. Bradley, H. Chenhall, C. Clarke, H. Hope, W. Grieves, J. Hill, D. Mackay, K. Meredith, T. Parker, E. Searight, G. Shackleton, W. H. Shackleton, F. Skinner, J. C. Smith, C. A. Tawse, E. Watson, J. Clayton, H. Dodds and F. Linton.

The chorus of Policemen included Messrs. R. C. Currie, A. Davidson, J. Fowler, S. Hall, C. M Lawrence, W. Lyburn, H. McFee, G. Matthews, A. Sands, C. Matthews, D. Snelgrove, R. Wilson, B. Williamson, W. Baptie, H. Morgan, J. W. Armstrong.

H. Dodds acted a business manager; G. Wilson Craw was in charge of publicity; H. Young of makeup; R. Haddow and D. S. Clarke of programs; Reg Turner was at the door; H. L. Hope was in charge of stage scenery and R. T. Currie as stage carpenter. Ushers were A. Sollitt, G. W. Craw, R. Haddow, J. W. Anderson, W. Perks, J. Gillespie, Gordon Hill, R. Taylor, R. J. Goring, James Dutton, Junior and C. E. Blewett.

The boys, with time on their hands, suggested a swim, and the dare was no sooner expressed than off came clothes and they dove "au naturel" into the icy waters of the river. A couple of their buddies stood on the bank and cheered them on.

LINDSAY HYDRO SHOWS PROFIT

Workers on Coboconk-Dorset Highway Granted Another Month's Work.

FUR CATCH PROMISING.

LINDSAY, April 2. (Examiner Correspondence).—The local Hydro Commission in the annual statement of the municipal auditor showed an annual profit of over $4,000. The Commission has set aside $5,000 as a reserve in case big power users should drop off and revenue decrease.

It has been announced that the workers on the Coboconk-Dorset highway have been granted another month's work by the Provincial Highways Department.

The management of the big fur farm situated on Emily Creek has everything set for a big catch of muskrats this spring. This farm or reserve is one of the biggest in the country, and those behind the concern expect to realize handsomely on the season's catch.

The death is announced at Sunderland of Mr. Leo Doyle, one of the best known residents of that section. The deceased, who was the father of fifteen children, was in his fifty-fourth year. Interment took place on Saturday at Vroomanton.

Drilling operations for the purpose of supplying the town with suitable water for domestic purposes have been held up during the past few days. The drilling company was able to strike a copious supply of water, a sample of which was sent to the Provincial Board of Health, which has failed to send in a report. Hence the tie-up in drilling operations.

GERMANY OPENS ELECTION DRIVE WITH 3 KILLED

Scores Wounded, Hundreds Arrested as Clashes Occur All Over Country.

HITLER MOST ACTIVE.

Former German Crown Prince Speaks in Favor of Nazi Cause.

(By John A. Bouman, A.P. Staff Writer.)

BERLIN, April 4.—Three dead, scores wounded and hundreds arrested to-day marked the toll of the first day of Germany's second presidential election campaign in less than a month, to be held on April 10.

Throughout the country, while Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, mounted the stump again to denounce in fiery speeches the Government under President Paul von Hindenburg, his "Nazi" forces fought with Communist, Communists fought with "Nazis" and both battled the police and the "iron men" of the Republic.

Hitler began his campaign promptly on the stroke of noon yesterday, ending the political truce ordered by the Government for the Easter holidays. He mounted a rostrum at Leipsic before an audience of 50,000 and scored the Government for "failing to show any positive achievements in 14 years of existence."

Fight to End

Preceding him on the platform was August Wilhelm, son of the former Kaiser, who declared the Nazis were not fighting President von Hindenburg as a man, but the "poltroons who misused his name for their own nefarious purposes."

Adam Stegerwald, Minister of Labor in Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's cabinet, led off Von Hindenburg's campaign.

The Nazis, he said, "seek to establish a dictatorship similar to that of Italy and to create a party of the army to enforce heir dilettante views upon the German people. Such a state of affairs

MASSACRE LAID TO IDLE BOAST

Officers Believe Raid Made After Dairyman's Tales of Riches While Drunk.

POSSE STILL OUT.

EL PASO, Texas, April 4 (C.P.). —Officers considered a theory that boasts of imaginary wealth caused the massacre of seven members of the family of Malquadio Espinosa as they pressed a search for the killers over the border country today.

The 60-year-old Berino, N.M., dairyman, and members of his household who survived the slaughter on Friday night said his wife and six children were shot down when they were unable to comply with a demand of three robbers for $5,000.

Mrs. Luis Espinosa, widow of one of the victims, said that the father, although he seldom drank always imagined himself fabulously rich when intoxicated.

Espinosa, his mother, Mrs. Juanita Espinosa, 83, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Chabiri, and a Mexican whose identity was not revealed, were questioned by officers at Las Cruces, N.M. They were released last night.

Officers revealed that the three robbers fired a "tiro de gracia" (mercy shot) into the bodies of each of the seven Espinosas slain. The "tiro de gracia" is a wound in a vital spot to end the suffering of the victims.

All were buried yesterday in a single grave.

Police were told a dispute over the younger man shaving with the aid of a saucer instead of shaving cup precipitated the shooting.

POLICE CAPTURE INDIAN WANTED IN MURDER CASE

Joseph Bomberry is Held for Shooting of His Common-law Wife.

CHILDREN SEE TRAGEDY.

Arrest Made on Six Nations Reserve After Two-day Hunt.

BRANTFORD, April 4 (C.P.). — Wanted for the alleged murder of Lily Eliza Johns, his common-law wife, Joseph Bomberry, Six Nations Indian, was arrested at the home of his father to-day after a search which had been in progress since the shooting Saturday. His arrest followed closely a preliminary inquest which had been held this morning, and which was adjourned until this afternoon.

With five of the women's children present, Bomberry is alleged to have picked up a shot-gun and emptied its contents into her body, and then fled to the fastnesses of the reserve. Provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police formed posses and patrolled the reservation incessantly, the search never ceasing until Bomberry had been taken into custody shortly before noon.

Inspector On Job.

The search was intensified this morning by the arrival of Inspector John I. Miller, of the Criminal Investigation Department, Toronto, who took charge of Provincial police efforts.

The slaying occurred in the Bomberry shack on the Sour Springs Road, and the last seen of the Indian until to-day was when he passed a motorist Saturday night, still carrying the shotgun. The motorist, William Miller, informed the Mounted Police and the search narrowed to the vicinity of Levi Bomberry's home, where Joseph was finally arrested.

FOUR CHILDREN ARE DROWNED

Wagon Upsets on Bridge and Topples Into Creek

RETURNING FROM FUNERAL

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 4 (C.P.)—Four children were drowned near Hodgeville, Sask., last night when the wagon on which they were riding upset while crossing a bridge and toppled them into a creek, according to word received here today.

The dead, whose names are not known here, were cousins. They were a son and daughter of A. Goertz, and two sons of J. Goertz. Their ages ranged from two to five years.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Goertz and Mr. and Mrs. J. Goertz and a baby in arms also were precipitated into the water, but managed to reach shore safely.

The two families were returning to their farm homes near Hodgeville from a funeral.

High Liquor Cost Slows Up Revel

HELSINGFORS, April 4. — (AP). Whiskey at $6.50 a bottle and cognac at $8.25 dampened somewhat the widespread celebrations planned for to-morrow, when Finland's twelve-year-old prohibition law goes into the discard, following last December's referendum.

Some restaurants declared they would refuse to handle the newly-legalized "hard" liquor because of the high price fixed by the Government, which has sole control over the trade under the new law.

PICKING OF JURY IN MURDER CASE LONG PROCEDURE

Police Surround Court House as Famous Honolulu Lynching Trial Opens.

DARROW FOR DEFENSE.

HONOLULU, April 4 (C.P.). — With a police guard surrounding the Judiciary Building to keep the curious away, trial of the most sensational criminal case in the history of Honolulu opens in a little court room in that grey stone structure to-day.

It was from this building that Joseph Kahahawai, young Hawaiian, was lured by a fake court summons on January 8. His friends never saw him alive again.

Later the same day his body, shot through the chest, was found shrouded in a sheet in a motor car driven by Mrs. Granville Fortescue, grey-haired United States society woman, and wife of the soldier-author. Also in the car were her son-in-law, Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, U.S.N., and E. J. Lord, a naval enlisted man.

Four on Trial.

These three, with Albert O Jones, another sailor who was found on guard at the Massie home, faced trial on charges of second degree murder for Kahahawai's death.

When the young Hawaiian was abducted he was making his daily report at the Judiciary Building pending a retrial, with four others, on charges of assaulting Mrs. Thalia Massie, attractive 20-year-old wife of the Lieutenant and daughter of Mrs. Fortescue.

The full first week of the trial lawyers said, may be consumed by selection of a jury from panels on which Orientals and Islanders may be expected to outnumber the whites. Each side has 24 peremptory challenges.

The trial will be further prolonged by the ruling of Circuit Judge Charles S. Davis limiting sessions to three hours daily in deference to Clarence Darrow, brilliant veteran of many court battles, who heads defence counsel.

Asks Acquittal.

Darrow, who has already asked for "acquittal" as the best present he could receive on the 75th birthday anniversary he expects to spend in the court room two weeks from to-day, is assisted by an array of less noted lawyers.

Against him is John C. Kelley, an Irishman, with a "liking for a fight," handling his first important case as Public Prosecutor—an office created by a special legislative session as a result of demands for reform following the attack on Mrs. Massie, the lynching of Kahahawai, and a series of assaults upon women.

BATTLE TO GET CAPONE'S GANG TOLD BY SENATE

Gangster's "Unbelievable Arrogance" in Revealing Terms Foiled Light Sentence.

CHALLENGE TO GOV'T.

Attorney Relaties Trouble of Getting Witnesses—Many Murdered.

(By Nathan Robertson, A.P. Writer.)

WASHINGTON, April 4 (A.P.)— An astounding story of the power of Al Capone and his Chicago gangsters told in the words of the man who finally made them surrender before the strong arm of the United States Government has been made public by a United States Senate committee.

It was the inside story of the Government's long battle against Capone and his gang as told by District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, at Chicago, to the Senate Judiciary subcommittee considering the nomination of Judge James H. Wilkerson to the Circuit Court.

True Circumstances

Wilkerson sentenced Capone to 11 years in the penitentiary after overturning an agreement by Johnson to recommend 2½ years if Capone would plead guilty. In his sensational testimony at an executive session of the committee last Tuesday, Johnson revealed what he said were the true circumstances of that agreement for the first time.

He said Judge Wilkerson approved of the agreement but later overturned it after Capone himself had shown his "unbelieveable arrogance" by making the terms of the agreement public.

Johnson testified that he was "embarrassed" when the agreement was rejected but had begun to believe himself that it was a "mistake" and felt that Wilkerson had "not done anything judicially improper."

The most amazing part of Johnson's sensational testimony was his description of the power of gangland, the intimidation of witnesses, and forces the government had to overcome in administering justice against the powerful racketeers.

ARDEN PIONEER AGED 100 DEAD

Mrs. Peter Thompson Celebrated Hundredth Birthday Little Over Week Ago.

BORN NEAR WOOLER.

KINGSTON, April 4 (C.P.). — A pioneer of the northern part of Frontenac County, Mrs. Peter Thompson, died on Saturday at Arden after celebrating her 100th birthday little more than a week ago. Her husband, John Pringle, died 72 years ago, and her second husband, Peter Thompson, more than 40 years ago. She is survived by two sons, W. W. Pringle of Arden and Abbott Thompson, as well as one daughter, Mrs Vincent Lindsay of Toronto. There are also a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Thompson, whose maiden name was Susan Dauncey, was born in Brighton Township, near Wooler, on March 24, 1832, her parents having come to Canada from Staffordshire, England. With her husband she moved to the Township of Kennebec over 70 years ago when the only means of travel was by sleighs on the frozen lakes and rivers.

There were at that time no roads out of the district that could be used in summer.

The funeral takes place at Arden to-day.

VOTERS DECIDE FATE OF HOUDE AT POLLS TODAY

Rinfret is Main Opponent for Chief Magistrate's Chair of Montreal.

HUGE VOTE PREDICTED.

Eighty-eight Candidates Seek 34 Seats in New City Council.

MONTREAL, April 4 (C.P.) — Two doughty political fighters today awaited the decision of the voters as to the next occupant of the Chief Magistrate's chair of Montreal. A new city council was also being chosen.

Camillien Houde, leader of the Provincial Conservative party, and present Mayor, concluded his campaign for re-election last night. His principal opponent was a former Liberal Dominion Cabinet Minister, Fernand Rinfret, ex-Secretary of State. Also seeking the office of Mayor were Seraphim Ouimet, civil engineer, and O. L. Gingras, Labor.

The intensity with which the campaign was waged during the past eight days apparently pointed to a huge vote to-day. In all, the city had 212,538 duly qualified voters. Polls opened at 9 a.m., to close at 7 p.m.

Control of Council

Overshadowing all else in the aldermanic contest was the question as to which group would control the next City Council and elect the executive committee, a "cabinet" of five members. During Mayor Houde's first two-year term of office, from 1928 to 1930, he faced an antagonistic council. Then in 1930, he led his own slate into the field and was successful, capturing a majority of the 35 seats. Eighty-eight candidate to-day sought 34 seats, the 35th having gone by acclamation.

Mayor Houde was again at the head of his group, 15 former aldermen and 12 new candidates being pledged to support him. Opposing Body Identified as That of Grace Donaldson Drowned January 31.

FUNERAL ON SUNDAY.

The body of the young woman recovered from the Otonabee river at Wallace's Point at 2 o'colck Saturday afternoon was identified as that of Grace Donaldson, 21-year-old Peterborough girl, who was drowned at the Quaker Oats' dam on the evening of January 31.

Immediate relatives of the girl identified the body by the clothing and other characteristics at Comstock's undertaking parlors soon after the body was brought here late Saturday afternoon.

The body was interred in Little Lake cemetery Sunday afternoon. Dr. A. T. Barr, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and Rev. C. D. Daniel of Mark street United church conducted the service.

No inquest will be held into the drowning, Coroner Dr. T. W. H Young said to-day. "There would be nothing gained by such a hearing and it would only increase the sorrow of the bereaved family," he stated.

Trapped in Fire 5 Burn to Death

CHICAGO, April 4. — Five members of one family were trapped in a flaming house in suburban Brookfield and burned to death yesterday and the sixth was alive because he accidentally fell through an open window while groping about in blinding smoke.

Passersby noticed the fire early and banged a warning on the door. Walter W. Smeathen, 70 year old owner of the house, heard the warning but took time to dress. The flames enveloped the frame building rapidly and soon all exits were blocked.

Smeathen perished with his daughter, Miss Louise Smeathen, 23; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lytton Hepburn, 40, and Mrs. Hepburn's children, Lytton, Jr., 5, and Gordon, 8. Hepburn was the lone survivor. Firemen said an overheated furnace started the blaze.

CONDITIONS IN FLORIDA ARE IN VERY BAD WAY

State Suffering From Over-Expansion Ross L. Dobbin Tells Rotary Club.

STAGGERING DEBTS.

Rotarians Hear Fine Musical Program at Club Luncheon.

A state suffering from over-expansion with nearly everything, including two out of its three railways in the hands of a receiver, and with municipalities staggering beneath an overwhelming burden of debt, was the unusual description of Florida etched for the benefit of the Peterborough Rotary Club today by Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin.

Mr. Dobbin, who has just returned from a waterworks convention in Florida, during which he motored from one end of that state to the other, gave a breezy resume of his tour, depicting the conditions in each section in a characteristically witty style. The feature most worthy of note, he said, was that people everywhere in Florida had gambled on great expansion, and the result was seen on every hand. In one city where the daily consumption of water was only a quarter of a million gallons, there was a plant capable of developing eight millions a day. In another with an area as great as Montreal and a municipal debt of twice as big as the Canadian metropolis there was a population of only 40,000 people, 1,000-room hotels with only about ten guests, two of the railways in the receivers'

TWO STUDENTS GO UPON TRIAL

IN MOSCOW.

MOSCOW, April 4 (C.P.). — Two former students of Moscow University admitted their guilt when they went on trial to-day for the attempted assassination of Dr. Fritz von Twardkovski, German Embassy counsellor, a month ago.

Judas Stern, one of the men, insisted that he alone was responsible for the pistol attack on the German counsellor in a Moscow street, and said his purpose was to endanger Soviet relations with her Western neighbors. He denied that Japan had figured in the conspiracy, but admitted he had discussed the Far East with his companion and co-defendant, Serge Vassiliev.

Vassiliev had the same privilege as Stern of making a statement when he pleaded guilty, but declined to exercise his prerogative, and sat mute as the examination of the witnesses proceeded.

The Government charged that the two youths were inspired by "certain Polish citizens," and many of the Diplomatic Corps including the German Ambassador, the Japanese envoy, and representatives of the Polish Embassy were present.

The victim was reported suffering from complications from a wound in the neck and unable to be present.

SEVEN HEAD WOUNDS.

Wife of Victim's Employer Claims She Was Not Asked to Give First Aid.

ROCKLAND, April 4 (C.P.). — A fracture of the skull caused the death of Leo Bergeron, 27-year-old farm hand, killed on the farm of William J. Larocque, near here, two weeks ago, according to the testimony of Dr. T. R. Little, pathologist of Ottawa.

Called at the coroner's inquest which opened before a crowded court room to-day, Dr. Little said Bergeron's head bore seven wounds; there was a bruise on the right shoulder and abdomen; the skull was fractured and the brain was crushed.

None of the wounds on the torso, said Dr. Little, could have been mortal. The cause of death was the fracture of the skull.

"A dull instrument, such as a stick of wood or a horse's hoof would cause a lacerated wound such as some of those found on Bergeron," added the doctor.

Bear Probing.

"If one did not have the history of the case he would put it down as 'accidental death,'" said Dr. Little, "but I have concluded it is one which will bear a lot of investigation."

Bergeron, on whose life William J. Larocque, his employer, held a $5,000 double indemnity insurance policy, is alleged to have been trampled to death by a team of frightened horses during the moving of a threshing mill. Rumors of foul play were followed by a police investigation. Larocque and Emmanuel Lavictoire were present when Bergeron died.

First witnesses called to-day, Mrs. Larocque and her daughter, Leola, both denied knowledge of the insurance policy on Bergeron's life. Lavictoire had told her of the "accident at the barn" but she was not requested to give first aid, Mrs. Larocque asserted to Coroner Martin Powers.

The body did not look to me like one that had been kicked around by horses," declared Dr. David Irwin, of Navan, who was called to the Larocque farm. He had made a careful examination of the body, but found that the clothes were not disturbed very much.

In answer to a juror, Dr. Irwin said Bergeron might have received one wound which knocked him down. "Every one of those wounds, however, could have been caused by horses, he added.

Chaff Covered Stains

Sergt. M. Storey, of the Ontario Provincial police, one of the investigating officers, said in his examination of the barn floor he had found some chaff and straw which appeared to have been thrown over blood stains. A fork handle, with red marks, was found, he said, 14 feet from the body on a beam in the barn. Later, the marks had been identified as stain of human blood.

The hearing continues this afternoon, but it is not expected to conclude for two days. More than two score witnesses are to testify.

Spring Work Starts In Western Canada

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask., April 4 (C.P.) — First reports of spring work on the land in Western Canada reached here to-day from Hatton, Sask., on the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway near the Saskatchewan - Alberta boundary. Several farmers have started harrowing, discing and plowing on light land, with the expectation of beginning to seed later in the week.

Moisture conditions in the district were said to be excellent but the heavier land is too wet to be worked at present. Prospects of good early growth of grass for feed are good.

25 EMPLOYEES ARE OVERCOME BY CHLORINE

Ton of Escaping Gas Seeps Cardinal Factory.

HORSE IS KILLED.

Four Doctors Called to Attend the Stricken Workmen.

CARDINAL, April 4 (C.P.) — Overcoming more than 25 employees and killing a horse directly in its path, a greenish-yellow cloud of chlorine gas hovered over the Canada Starch Company's plant here for several hours Saturday after a safety plug blew out of a one-ton tank of chlorine.

Floating along on a mild wind, hugging the ground and creeping into several buildings in the plant, the gas was finally carried out over the St. Lawrence River. Reports from six miles up the river indicated it was still visible there, but casualties were confined to the Starch Plant itself.

Several remained unconscious for as long as three hours, but the majority were sufficiently recovered to go home shortly after being overcome. None of those affected was in a serious condition to-day. Some have developed bronchitis and pneumonia will have to be guarded again, doctors said.

The chlorine was contained in one of 15 tanks in a yard of the plant. It had not been touched since delivery here, and plant officials could not explain the accident.

Four men working beside the tank received the full force of the gas as the safety valve blew, but as it had not yet mixed sufficiently with oxygen, they were not affected.

Witnesses believed only the direction of the wind, which took the gas cloud out over the river and away from the town, saved residents of Cardinal from being overcome.

Using a fire hose, employees of the plant battled the cloud while it was still within range, and the water had some effect in dissolving the dangerous fumes. The ton of chlorine, however, was still formidable as it was wafted over the water, and the residents of the town watched with relief as the danger rolled away.

VETERANS DEBT WORRIES HOUSE

Proposal to Pay $2,000,000,000 if Passed Would Unbalance U.S. Budget.

CONGRESS FAVORABLE.

(By Ken Clark—C.P. Staff Writer).

WASHINGTON, April 4. — One little matter the Canadian Government will not have to deal with in its budgetary endeavors, will for the next few weeks disturb United States executives and legislators. This is the proposal, almost certain to go through Congress, to give veterans of the Great War immediately some $2,000,000,000 legally owed them in 1945. The project will be taken up by the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives next Monday. It would unbalance the budget.

In the meantime the Senate Finance Committee will begin hearings on the House Revenue Bill which proposes by an increase in income taxes, corporation taxes, estate taxes, gift taxes, taxes on bond and stock sales, an extra tariff on oil and coal, an increase in the postage rate and excise taxes on a variety of luxuries and little odds and ends, to raise $1,032,000,000 and balance the budget allowing for Governmental savings optimistically estimated at $200,000,000.

Different Aspect.

When the Senate gets through with the House bill and when it is again gone over by a joint committee of the Senate and House, it will probably look entirely different. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, an administration man, has already given notice he will attempt to reintroduce the sales tax proposal killed by the House with sneers, jeers and generally vociferous indignation.

Special interests affected by the taxes in the bill have already gone into action determined to save their own particular bacon. Wall Street, disliking the idea of a tax of ½ of one per cent. on stock sales—½ of one per cent. on short sales—has registered its disapproval of softness.

President Hoover is holding sessions with the senators urging them to speed the tax bill on its way. Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the Treasury, has issued a pronouncement praising the House for its energy in passing the bill, but averring it contains "serious defects and discriminations."

FOUR GREAT LEADERS PREPARE WAYS OF GIVING FINANCIAL AID TO SAVE DISASTROUS SHAKE-UP

Fear Storm May Have World-wide Consequences Unless Remedied.

PARLEY WEDNESDAY.

Tardieu Meets MacDonald Over Week-end to Arrange Preliminaries.

LONDON, April 4.—(AP)—It was definitely settled today that the four-power conference which meets here Wednesday will discuss not only means of extending financial aid to the nations on the Danube, but the whole of Europe's difficulties, including reparations, disarmament and war debts.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald made the announcement late last night after a preliminary conversation with Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, who came here yesterday and remained for further discussions today.

The conference, at which representatives of France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain will sit in, originally was intended to go into the finances of Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Rumania. After the two statesmen had talked for an hour and a quarter yesterday, however, the Prime Minister announced that the disarmament situation at Geneva and the Lausanne conference on reparations would also be discussed.

Visitors Welcomed

The two ministers sat together in the study at 10 Downing Street. Premier Tardieu, with Pierre Flandin, Minister of Finances and other members of their party, arrived at Victoria Station at 4 p.m. in a drizzling rain. Sir John Simon British secretary of Foreign Affairs accompanied Prime Minister MacDonald to welcome them.

Once settled in the famous No. 10, traditional home of Britain's Premiers, they turned their attention to the Danube, where five nations have declared in effect that unless urgent measures are taken to reconsruct their finances, another financial storm such as tossed the whole of Central Europe last summer may again sweep the Continent, bringing world-wide consequences.

M. Tardieu's visit was planned to turn back such a possibility by negotiating an Anglo-French understanding for extending rapid financial relief along the Danube. After a preliminary survey, the statesmen all attended a dinner at the French Embassy.

Co-operation, Keynote

"The intention of the British Government," Prime Minister MacDonald said, "is sincere and disinterested in getting the maximum amount of goodwill and international co-operation brought to bear on the solution of problems before us. One country cannot do it. The policy we are working out is a policy of co-operation with everybody who is aiming at peace."

A joint declaration of the two Premiers was issued to allay a suspicion regarding the meeting, spread in some European countries. It said:

"There are no agreements beforehand. There are no drafts of proposals beforehand. We want an agreement which will be consistent with the interests and well-being of each nation concerned. Our policy is for practical steps to establish and maintain the peace and well-being of Europe and the world."

Your itching bleeding or protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this. Internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, dissolves congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. Hem-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city that McDermid & Jury, and Bond's Drug Store, say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

DRIVER HAS CLOSE CALL WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

Michigan Man Escapes By Seconds At Cobourg Crossing.

COBOURG, April 4. — Escaping death by seconds, R. A. Chagnon of Pontiac, Mich., leaped from his car as it was struck by a fast Canadian Pacific Railway flier at Kingston crossing, east of here, on Saturday morning. Chagnon was driving to Kingston to attend the funeral of his father. Approaching the crossing from the west, he saw the gates were down and applied his brakes, but the thin covering of snow on the highway made them ineffective, and the coupe rolled on to the track in the path of the flier. Chagnon had just time to jump out before the car was struck by the train and wrecked.

ONE CANADIAN APPEAL LISTED

Privy Council's Judicial Committee to Rule in Lady M. Davis' Action.

AUSTRALIA FEATURING.

LONDON, April 4.—(C.P.)—The only Canadian appeal listed for hearing before the judicial committee of the privy council in the ensuing term is the Davis appeal, an appeal by Lady Mortimer Davis, from rulings in the Quebec courts against their action to remove Lord Shaughnessy and Alexander Reaper as trustees and executors under the will of the late Sir Mortimer Davis.

An important case is the appeal from Australia which raises the question of whether the Parliament of New South Wales has power to abolish the state legislative council without first taking a referendum. The Labor Government of the state has charged the upper house with obstruction on many occasions but the Governor refused to sanction bills abolishing the Upper Chamber.

VOTERS DECIDE

his slate were 10 "anti-Houde" members of the retiring council and a large number of new candidates.

Mr. Rinfret declared during his campaign he was leading no party and did not intend to interfere with the council. He was in favor, he said, of "restoring" the position of Mayor to what he interpreted the charter meant it to be. Under the charter, he claimed, the mayor was limited to honorary functions, with the right of making such suggestions as he saw fit. The mayor was not a part, much less the hub, of the administration, Mr. Rinfret said.

Ouimet's Plans

An elaborate plan of construction subways and other engineering projects formed the basis of Mr. Ouimet's plea for election. He declared, he said, to improve the city on a large scale, thereby providing work.

Concentration on labor problems, lower electricity rates and revision of tramway schedules formed Mr. Gingras's chief planks.

Mayor Houde was engaged in a sturdy defence of his administration which he has called "the most important and progressive" one the city has ever had.

Fuse Burns Out Bombing is Foiled

NELSON, B. C., April 4.—(C.P.)—Attempt to bomb the Krestova schoolhouse has been reported to the provincial police here. An infernal machine was found by the Doukhobor watchman a short distance from the building with a portion of the fuse burned. It had failed to explode.

This is the fourth outrage in the Doukhobor settlement within the last two weeks, the others being the blowing up of a section of the Pass Creek irrigation flume, an attempt to bomb a government owned power graded near Brilliant, and the bombing of a two-room schoolhouse at Glade.

FREAKISH STORM HITS DISTRICT

Lightning and Thunder During Saturday Night's Storm.

LITTLE DAMAGE.

Freakish weather was experienced over Peterborough and district on Saturday, when a snowstorm suddenly changed into a blinding hailstorm, to be accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning and the rumbling of thunder.

Motorists caught in the storm unawares, or forced to be outdoors on business, forced their cars through the deep drifts of granulated snow with difficulty, while driving was made doubly arduous by reason of frosted windshields which obscured the driver's vision.

The stay-at-homes came into their own, the friendly comfort of an easy chair and a companionable book appearing to be the more desirable in contrast with the petulant mood of nature.

A check-up by The Examiner fails to disclose the presence of any extensive damage to the lines of communication or to the power and light services. Inconvenience was suffered however, by motorists and drivers of other wheeled vehicles but the delivery men for their part turned out in sleighs and found the breaking of trails through the deep snow a not too heavy undertaking.

H. H. P. Johnston district manager of the Bell Telephone Company stated to The Examiner that despite the severity of the storm no trouble was experienced locally on the system. On the Lakshore between Kingston and Cobourg one hundred poles were brought down at various places. The trouble was located by the Cobourg crew after which the repair gang from Division headquarters at Toronto was sent out.

AT CAMPBELLFORD

A freak storm swept this section of the country on Saturday evening when severe thunder and lightning cleaved the sky at the same time that a blizzard was raging. Commencing early in the evening snow began to fall heavily with a strong south-east wind blowing. Late in the evening an electric storm burst out with startling suddenness. No damage was reported however except to hinder radio reception. Later in the night the snow turned to hail and from that to rain. Sunday morning the district presented a mid-winter scene and people going to church had to crunch their way through 5 inches of frozen snow.

MEXICO RUNS OFF ELECTION IN OLD SPELLING-BEE FASHION

Voters of 3,000 Districts Lined up on Streets and Counted—Army Watches.

ONLY TWO KILLED.

MEXICO CITY, April 4 (C.P.) — Mexico's first nation-wide primary election, held like an old-fashioned spelling bee passed into history today with two dead and more than two score injured as its toll.

At the stroke of noon, once the eyes of 60,000 regular army troops, heavily armed and on the streets in 3,000 voting districts throughout the country, and were counted off by officials. It was all over in an hour and the counting boards made their tallies, announcing the winners shortly afterward.

Violence, to any serious extent, occurred only in three places. One man was killed and six wounded at Villa Juarez, Tamaulipas State when supporters of one gubernatorial candidate loaded several buses with stones and attacked the partisans of another.

Gill Defeated.

In this contest Emilio Portes Gill, former provisional President of Mexico, was defeated by Dr. Rafael Villarreal, native of the little fishing hamlet of Soto La Marina, 130 miles south of Browns ille. Senor Portes Gill recently returned from Paris, where he was Mexican Ambassador, to become a candidate for Governor.

The other death occurred in a fight at Pueblo. Twenty-two were injured there and as many more in the Federal district, in which Mexico City is located.

Most of the battles yesterday were fought with stones, which replaced the pistol duels of previous Mexican elections.

In addition to the 168 Congressional or deputy posts to be filled eighteen Federal senatorial candidates were nominated and State officials, including governors, were nominated in several states.

Child Recovering From Body Scalds

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 4. — Although still in a serious condition from body scalds hope is held out for the recovery of five-year-old little Gordon Curle who fell in a kettle of boiling sap on Thursday afternoon sustaining severe burns on his arms and legs. The son of Marcus Curle, Seymour township farmer, he had been watching his father boil sap. Escaping from the house after they had returned there, it is thought that the little fellow dropped his cap into the kettle, and reaching in for it lost his balance and fell into the syrup.

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In the article which appeared in the column last Thursday, there was a line omitted and although it may have read all right, nevertheless some of the readers knew something was wrong.

* * * * * * *

Down at the 10th paragraph the line should have read: "Dip the powder puff in the powder and rub the flowers lightly with it. The powder will fill the interstices (or crevices) in the textile and insure a better white quality."

* * * * * * *

All the books on etiquette will tell you how to eat or drink soup.

* * * * * * *

But etiquette tells you that you must imbibe it slowly and noiselessly, with very great emphasis on the noiselessness. If you sputter or splash the tasty liquid as it passes into your mouth, you are committing an unpardonable sin.

* * * * * * *

"He gurgles his soup" the hostess or guests are likely to remark. And you are barred forever from polite society. If you do not know how to eat or drink soup, you are an outcast from all social realms.

* * * * * * *

Most of us eat soup because it tastes good. The ultimate object of soup is, however, to nourish the body. Very few people realize the tremendous importance of taste.

* * * * * * *

Food that does not have a pleasing flavor should never be eaten. It is not needed for the body at that time as nourishment. It is the enjoyment of food that stimulates the activities of the glands that furnish the digestive juices to the stomach, and these are essential to proper digestion and assimilation.

* * * * * * *

This is what Bernard Macfadden says in an article on "The Art of Eating Soup" and he goes on to say, "I hate to make a disgusting comparison but if you want to know the right way to eat soup to get the most taste and nourishment out of it, just listen to some hungry pigs as they splash and splutter when they are going after a troughful of milk."

* * * * * * *

"Social etiquette has no influence upon them. They eat in a way to get the most out of the foaming liquid. A warning, however, is hardly needed to be very careful in attempting to follow their example."

DRAPERIES MADE NEW

"When we resumed housekeeping a month ago I found my draperies had become creased from packing. I hung them out on the line, hoping to remove the creases. Then I forgot them. The result was they became badly faded and sun-spotted.

"I was heartsick until the happy thought struck me to dye them. I just dyed them a deeper green, and as I used Diamond Dyes they look gorgeous and new. I have never seen easier dyes to use than Diamond Dyes. They give the most beautiful colors—when used either for tinting or dyeing—and never take the life out of cloth as other dyes do."

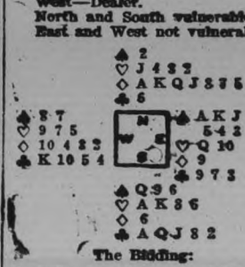
BIDDING FOR SLAMS

While it is probably correct to say that Slam bidding at Contract as practiced by many Contract players is a losing venture, because it sacrifices easily attainable games on the altar of Slam worship, it is equally correct that the bidding and making of Slams furnish the thrill that lasts throughout the evening. When you are able to so value your hands that you feel you have an even chance of making 12 tricks, you are entitled to bid a Small Slam. Often, in fact generally, in acquiring this information, there is a great deal of information exchanged between the partners, all below the game level. Other hands, however, lend themselves to almost direct Slam bidding, as witness the following example from the recent individual Masters' Tournament by that master bidder and player, Mr. Waldemar von Zedtwitz. Mr. von Zedtwitz held the North hand.

West—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.
East and West not vulnerable.



The Bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass(1)	Pass(2)	1♣(3)
Pass	1◇(4)	1♠	2♡
Pass	6◇(5)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Wisely refusing to yield to the temptation to make an unsound Opening bid of one or a foolish pre-emptive bid.
2—East expects to show his strong spade suit if South opens the bidding.
3—A slight portent of the approaching storm.
4—No hint here of what is so soon to happen.
5—No need for further approaching. South's Fourth Hand bid has shown a hand of considerable strength and his two bids have located a large share of it. North cannot expect South to have adequate support for his seven-card diamond suit. The honor count, as well as the great length, are the determining factors in making the Slam try in diamonds rather than hearts.

There is nothing to the play. The heart suit breaks perfectly and the only trick Mr. von Zedtwitz lost was the first one which went to the King of spades, that suit being opened against him.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: Upon what is the distributional count based?

Answer: Upon the fact that a suit is presumed to be established after three rounds.

LABORATORY YIELDS NEW FACTS ON KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

Its "Bulk" and Vitamin B Help Relieve Constipation; Also Has Blood-building Iron

New laboratory experiments demonstrate that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has sufficient "bulk" to exercise the intestines, as well as Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Now you can overcome common constipation by this pleasant "cereal way," and banish the headaches, backaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

No need to worry along with pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Instead, just eat two tablespoonfuls daily of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—adequate for most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming. Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

NOW IS TIME FOR PAPERING

Week of April 2 to 9 is Sunworthy Wallpaper Week.

SPRING CLEANING.

Canadian wallpaper manufacturers, dealers and decorators are just now co-operating closely in a unique campaign designed to show Canadian homemakers the wisdom and economy of early action on their plans for Spring decoration.

Practically every home is treated each Spring to some "sprucing up", and the re-papering of at least one room is a very common item on this decoration program. In many homes, of course, several rooms are refreshed and transformed by bright, new wallpaper.

Citizens of Peterborough are urged to do what ever papering they can this year. Thus they will not only increase business but will aid many men who are at present out of work.

There are definite reasons why this work should be done now rather than be left until later in the Spring. The new patterns and colors are now on display in complete stock. Decorators are in a position to do better work now than later in the season. The charm of freshly redecorated rooms will be enjoyed during the several weeks that still remain of the "indoor season."

Co-operating For Economy.

To encourage this early decoration and the use of better quality Canadian papers, the leading Canadian manufacturers of light-resisting wallpapers placed at the disposal of dealers and decorators a wide range of the latest designs in wallpapers at especially attractive prices. This plan has enabled the stores to offer Canadian women superior wallpaper at the cost of ordinary papers.

Limited to Week of April 2 to 9.

"Sunworthy Wallpaper Week" was the name selected for this special campaign—limited to the week of April 2 to 9—because of the fact that all of the papers offered at special prices during this period are "Sunworthy" wallpapers. That means wallpapers of lasting beauty. These papers keep their fresh bloom long after ordinary wallpapers have faded into ugliness.

It is, by the way, a source of pride to the Canadian people that the "Sunworthy" feature in wallpaper was invented and developed by Canadian wallpaper manufacturers.

Pointing out that the labor costs are just as high for hanging ordinary wallpaper of uncertain "life" as for lastingly lovely papers, dealers and decorators strongly recommend using "Sunworthy" for sidewalls, ceilings and borders, in order that the entire room will be protected against the fading effects of light, particularly of sunlight.

ONLY ACTIVE SURVIVOR

COBOURG, April 4.—Cobourg's Chief of Police, J. C. Ruse, is the only remaining active member of the only remaining active member of the original Chief Constables' Association organized more than twenty-seven years ago. Last year there were four active members of the association left, Chief Dodds of Fort William, who has since died; Inspector Edward Foster, now retired; Chief Constable O'Neill of Kitchener, whose retirement is announced in the March issue of the Canadian Police Bulletin; and Chief Ruse. The Chief is 73 years of age.

Reporting to the Kilkenny corporation on the flooding of the low-lying parts of the city, Professor P. F. Purcell stated that the cost of works to give effective relief would be between £30,000 and £40,000, and any attempt to carry out a partial scheme would be merely a waste of money.

THE MODERN MAN BURNS HIMSELF UP.

Excepting trained athletes, we moderns are puny creatures compared with our forefathers. Even athletes soon burn out, eating acid-forming foods, the great cause of modern physical inferiority. From 32 to 50 Dr. Jackson was one of the unfit. At 50 Dr. Osler gave him four months to live, dying from acid-forming foods. He then invented alkali-forming Roman Meal. Before that he had lived on the ground floor, unable to climb stairs. Four years afterwards he climbed the fifty storeys in Washington's Monument, up and down, solely due to the alkalinizing properties in Roman Meal. In January, 1930, when seventy-two, he ran five miles in forty-seven minutes—was not even winded; again due to Roman Meal. NOT ON A HIGH LEVEL.

The Toronto Star's rebuke to Mr. Hepburn (Liberal) and Mr. Gott (Conservative) for the quality of the language they have been using in the debate in the House of Commons merely put into words what thousands of Canadians must have been thinking.

When a member of Parliament refers to another as a person upon whom insect powder should be sprayed, as Mr. Hepburn did in a recent speech, or characterized a fellow-member as a bug, as did Mr. Gott, it must be admitted that debate is being conducted on a decidedly low plane.

Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Gott are not the only offenders; within the past few days speakers have applied such expressions to members of the House as "buffoon," and worse still, "baboon."

That sort of language might possibly be tolerated in a rough-and-tumble election campaign—although even there it is offensive—but when the deliberations of Canada's Federal Parliament are marred by personal abuse and billingsgate of the nature referred to, it is no wonder that many people are coming to the opinion that $4,000 a year and free railway fare is too high a price to pay for "oratory" of that type.

Leaders of the various parties would do well to take the offenders into a corner and instruct them as to the amenities of parliamentary debate—or if they consider reformation impossible, they should apply their own private gag.

GIVE A MAN A JOB.

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated upon circularizing its members in the interest of the unemployment and with the object of securing support for the "Give a man a job" plan.

"Give a man a job," says the letter sent to every member of the organization, "and he needs materials. The carpenter will need lumber and hardware, the painter will need paint, the electrician fixtures, and so on down the line. We can start a considerable sum of money into circulation—and the 'man with a job' will pay his grocer, his coal dealer, his doctor, his bills generally."

There is sound common sense in that sizing up of the situation, and the Chamber's suggestion is worthy the attention of all citizens who are in a position to help.

At this time of the year there should be the seasonable number of odd jobs, repairs, alterations, painting, decorating, etc., that if undertaken now would provide many of the city's unemployed with a much-needed opportunity to earn some money, and it is to be hoped that there will be a general response to this invitation to give a man a job.

At the same time the Chamber of Commerce does well to explode the fallacy that if a citizen paints his house, puts a new floor on his verandah replaces old eave-troughs or undertakes similar repairs the assessor will immediately proceed to raise his assessment.

Necessary repairs and alterations, it should be understood, are not taken into consideration by the assessor, so there is no need for worry on that score

CAUSES FOR OPTIMISM.

There are indications for those who have the courage to look for them that the worst of the period of depression has passed, and that Canada is beginning to battle her way back to normal economic conditions.

At least recent bulletins of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics contain the following hopeful factors as listed by the Ottawa Journal:

1. Bank deposits are showing gain.
2. There is a slight betterment in general manufacturing activity.
3. There is a considerable improvement in the steel and motor car industries.
4. Exports of planks and boards in February exceeded exports in January by nearly 7,000,000 feet.
5. There is increased activity in meat packing establishments.
6. Exports of nickel in February were more than 1,000,000 lbs. greater than in the preceding month.
7. The railway freight movement in February exceeded that of January by nearly 9,000 cars.

The Financial Post finds other causes for optimism, mentioning as the three most important the early opening of navigation which should help Canada's export trade, the Imperial Economic Conference with its possibilities of expanding trade within the Empire, and the prospects for good crops throughout the country.

It is well to stop and consider these healthy signs, which may be pointing the way toward a more prosperous Dominion.

THE BLANK CHEQUE BILL.

There is significance in the fact that the Senate only took five minutes to pass the Unemployment and Farm Relief Act over which the Commons debated for five weeks and which required two applications of closure to get through the Lower House in that time.

If worry over the constitutional issue involved in the extension of the "blank cheque" relief measure had any serious foundation it might be expected that the venerable Senators, steeped in the traditions and precedents of parliamentary procedure, would have had some scruples about passing such legislation, but the Senate, as a matter of fact, never even hesitated, putting the act through in record time.

Such quick action would seem to indicate that the Upper Chamber recognized that the blockade set up by the Opposition in the Commons was a mistake, and that it would have been much sounder tactics to have allowed the measure to go through after the Opposition position had been clearly established.

The opinion of the majority of Canadians is well summed up by the Toronto Globe in the following paragraph:

"The Liberal opposition in the House of Commons has adopted a somewhat undignified and unwise course in its policy of deliberate obstruction of the Government's emergency relief measures. The Globe agrees, with most of the other independent newspapers in Canada, that the blank cheque principle embodies in this particular Bennett bill is not only wrong but dangerous as tending to perpetuate a bad precedent. Any efficient Opposition might have been expected clearly and emphatically to oppose the principle and expose the perils of such a measure. But to prolong the process of opposition beyond all reasonable limits was merely to broadcast the impression that the Opposition was more interested in political manoeuvres than in constitutional principles."

WHEAT FOR FRANCE.

Good news for Canadian wheat producers is apparently offered in the Paris announcement that France has increased to 35 per cent. the amount of foreign grain which may be used in making French bread.

A succession of three poor wheat crops, resulting in depletion of the domestic wheat stores, has occasioned the action. With Russia practically off the export market, and concentrating her otherwise saleable wheat surplus in great and famine-ridden provinces of her own country, Canada might logically expect to cash in on the fortune offered her through the misfortune of the French farmers.

The chief danger is offered by the enormous wheat surplus accumulated by the Farm Board of the United States which, a year and a half ago or so, bought millions of bushels of grain, in a futile effort to stem the flood of tumbling wheat prices. Threats that this great stock may shortly be dumped on the market have recently further depressed prices.

On the brighter side, however, is the fact that Canada, having served notice of the forthcoming cancellation of her trade treaty with France, is now negotiating a new pact, designed to cement still closer the commercial relations of the two countries. Since an export market for her wheat is one of this country's chief concerns, it may be assumed that an increased channel for the commodity is being sought by Ottawa. In that case, and with the old treaty still in effect, Canadian wheat will probably have first call in France, as the latter nation begins importing heavily to offset the depletion in her home reserves.—Border Cities Star.

RUSSIAN TIMBER EXPORTS.

Recently, the Duchess of Atholl, a Conservative member of the British Parliament, raised in the House of Commons the question of the huge contract for Russian timber recently announced as having been concluded by certain British importers with the Soviet authorities. She spoke at some length, pointing out the serious effect of the contract on the exporters of Canadian lumber and describing the labor conditions under which much of the Russian product is handled in transport and exportation. She also urged the Government to give the six months' notice necessary to terminate the present commercial treaty between Britain and Russia entered into in 1930.

Similar protests were made earlier in the United States Congress, but the Washington Government appears now to have abandoned the attempt to exclude Soviet Russian products from the United States. When, about two years ago, coal, pulpwood timber, manganese and other products from Russia began to appear in American ports, it was believed that there was "enough law" to keep them out. Under the tariff act, convict-produced goods may be excluded, and since it was common knowledge that the Soviet Government maintained a number of convict camps in the forest regions of Russia, an attempt was made to enforce this provision against Russian imports, former Secretary of State Mellon made a ruling that, in the case of any imports coming from the vicinity of the convict-camp regions, the burden of proof that they were not produced or handled by convict labor rested upon the shipper.

Apparently the authorities were convinced that this assumption of guilt until innocence was proved would not stand up in the courts. At any rate, it was found impossible in a single case to prove that a cargo of Russian products was produced in whole or in part by convicts. All were allowed to enter. However, after January 1, 1933, a provision of the tariff law goes into effect under which the products of forced labor may be excluded.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The whole country will experience a sense of relief that the long debate on the Government's relief measure is at last over.

They sometimes refer to it as the drowsy Senate, but it will be noticed that the Upper House put the Unemployment and Farm Relief Act through in record time.

The Globe refers to Mr. Ferguson's arrival back in Canada as "the return from Elba," but who is going to play the role of Wellington—Mr. Hepburn or Mr. Sinclair?

They worship bigness across the border, so the disclosure of the largest national deficit in the world's history should cause our cousins to points with pride.

At least Premier Henry has outshone Mr. Ferguson in one particular. Legislation permitting the formation of township school boards has at last been passed.

In times like this, it behooves business leaders and the press to disseminate their views very thoughtfully and intelligently, in order to counteract the hooey put out by fortune tellers and politicians.—Kansas City Star

TOURISTS AND BEER BY THE GLASS.

Mr. Home Smith, spokesman for the Moderation League, has returned to the combat. Speaking on March 28th before the Home Builders' Association, he stressed, as he sees it, the dire financial situation of Ontario hotels, and dwelt upon freer beer as the means of securing tourist traffic to bring prosperity to the hotels and to various other interests.

The Moderation League has in the past made numerous statements so far from the facts, and has urged proposals the fulfilment of which proved so different from the prospects presented, that the public will be justified in demanding some definite data before accepting, at face value, its utterances.

Hotel-keepers, in common with other businesses have, no doubt, felt the present depression severely, but their interests are not to be preferred above those of others. Beer by the glass as a stimulus to business is very doubtful. In the last year Quebec has felt the depression rather more keenly than Ontario. Of the 2,404 business failures in Canada in 1930, Quebec had 886 while Ontario has 716; and of the 2,472 business failures in 1931, Quebec had 1,122 while Ontario had 807. Ontario's failures increased in 1931 over 1930 by 12.8 per cent. but Quebec's failures by 26.6 per cent. Extra beer privileges do not seem to have helped business materially.

Mr. Smith has not yet furnished any definite data to support his statement that Ontario is losing tourist traffic to Quebec. What reliable data we have seen certainly does not confirm his utterance. Ontario has steadily distanced Quebec in the number of cars entering the Province year by year. In 1930, for every foreign car entering Quebec directly over six entered Ontario, the numbers being 649,935 and 4,164,608 respectively. When we compare the tourist traffic for 1926 with that of 1930, we find that the number of cars entering Ontario in the latetr year has increased over the former 168 per cent, while the number entering Quebec has increased only 148 per cent.

The Bureau of Statistics has until recently made annual estimates of the money spent by tourist visitors in the various provinces. We are in agreement with Mr. Smith in the opinion that the money value of our tourist traffic has been grossly overestimated, but we know of no reason why the relative estimates as between the provinces are not proportionately fair. These estimates are interesting, and for Ontario and Quebec for the years given are as follows:

Year	Ontario	Quebec
1926	$108,524,040	$51,857,980
1927	116,882,180	62,086,060
1928	109,200,000	45,077,000
1929	125,780,000	30,759,600

Later figures are not available.

The rise in estimated expenditures in Ontario in 1929 as compared with 1927 is $9,000,000; as between the same years the estimates for Quebec dropped over $30,000,000. The claim that beer would attract purse-filled tourists does not gather much support from these figures.

British Columbia is another province that has had beer parlors for some years, yet its estimated receipts from tourist traffic dropped from $29,217,140 in 1927 to $19,189,000 in 1929.

Quebec and British Columbia are pioneer provinces of Government sale. They also have had very free sale of beer in what are practically beer-saloons, but in the estimation of our public authorities who have been trying to assay the value of our tourist traffic in the various parts of the country, the program of abundance of beer has not at all saved these provinces from declining profits.

It is fairly evident that if Ontario adopts beer-by-the glass she will "lean on a broken reed"; and, in the words of the proverb, it is altogether likely that it will "run into her own hand."

DISTRICT NURSE

by Faith Baldwin

"She'd make you a better wife," said Coral, "nurse and all. Why didn't you fall in love with her—instead—instead—" A sudden unusual shyness overcame her. Pete laughed and put his big fine hand roughly on her short pretty hair. "She's going to let her hair grow," he announced importantly. Then, "Why didn't I fall in love with Ellen? I don't know. It would have been suitable, wouldn't it? But she wouldn't have looked at me."

"Mother," Coral reminded them, "mother—I wonder how she'll take it. I mean, leaving her, and all."

"But you won't be. You'll be right around the corner, more or less. And mother will adore a married daughter. She's despaired of Nancy and me, you know."

Ellen went to change her uniform and to start supper. Coral and Pete helped, in a very desultory fashion. Nancy and Mrs. Adams came in presently. Mrs. Adams considerably fluttered. "You did get here, after all, didn't you Pete? And Ellen, is she home?"

"Can you hear me in the kitchen?" Ellen called. "We're having—all sorts of things. It's a celebration."

"A celebration?" asked Mrs. Adams.

Nancy without another word went over and hugged both Coral and Pete impartially. Mrs. Adams looked from one to the other. Pete said, gently, "It's all right with you, isn't it, Mrs. Adams? Coral and I, I mean."

Laughter and tears and embraces. If it had been Ellen perhaps, or Nancy, things might have been different. But Coral—Coral would be secure now forever, and contented, Coral would be doubly her own.

"Remember," said Ellen, when the first excitement had passed and Pete had mopped his future mother-in-law's eyes with his own large handkerchief, "remember, Coral, it won't be roses all the way. What a young doctor's wife has to endure, waiting meals, being pleasant to his patients and making out his bill is just nobody's business."

"I'll hound 'em," said Coral placidly. "I'll say. See here, here's your doctor's bill and here's my butcher's bill and let's call it square!"

"I put it up to her, Ellen, Pete said, "Mallory's offer, I mean. She says she'd rather stay here, with me."

"He'll be happier," said Coral.

Oh, everything was clear between them now. That you could see. If only it would stay so.

But looking at the two of them, Ellen was content, and no longer afraid. Coral crept into the living room long after Pete had gone and Nancy had gone, after Mrs. Adams slept and Ellen was tucked in on the davenport. "You know I'm happy, Ellen?"

"Crawl in here, little idiot. There's room enough if I lie close to the wall. You're shivering."

"I'm not cold, Ellen. 'Pete said he saw you, talked with you."

"He took me to dinner," said Ellen.

"I know—but, Ellen, you do understand? You do believe me, all I said. You and Nancy and of course, mother, although we've not talked much. And Pete. That's all that matter. I—I will be a good wife," said Coral, "I will. I love him so much. I never stopped, really, down deep. I thought he despised me. But—"

She was crying now. She said, once, "so happy." And again "safe." Ellen let her cry herself to sleep.

A few days later, Ellen saw Jim and told him about Coral and Pete. "Gee, that's great," said Jim with enthusiasm. "I haven't seen much of Pete in years but he's a good guy. So Coral's the first to be married," he reminded her slowly and asked, "Who's next?"

"Nancy," she said firmly.

They were in his new, his shining car coming home from dancing somewhere. He guided it deftly through the traffic, flashing his white teeth at a sedate traffic officer who saluted him, grinning, but who afterwards looked after the car, its newness, and its expensive lines with a frown of speculation on his Irish brow.

"Is that so?" asked Jim after a while. Ellen, dreaming to herself, regarded him, startled.

"Is what so?" she demanded.

"Nancy. I suppose you mean that chief whatever it is of hers."

"Chick. No, I don't think so. I don't think she's in love with him," said Ellen. "I don't think she's in love with any one. She's just having a good time, playing around."

"Like you?"

"Like me? I don't," said Ellen, smiling faintly, "play around much, after all. By the way," she went on, changing the subject, "I saw you the other night. In the Napoli. We were going out of the door—Petes and I—and you were coming in a side door, and sitting down with Gilda Esposito, and some man." She wrinkled her brow. "Fontana, isn't he? A young Italian, I saw him at the Espositos' once."

"Who, me?" asked Jim astonished. "I haven't been in the Napoli for months."

She thought, "He's lying." She said, stubbornly, "As if I wouldn't know you! Don't be silly!"

"But it wasn't me," he protested. "I tell you I haven't been near the place."

Well, perhaps she'd been mistaken. She hadn't seen, very clearly, the face of the man who had gone up to Gilda's table. She had, she supposed, recognized Jim by his walk, the set and swing of his shoulders. It didn't matter, anyway. Why on earth should he lie about it? It didn't make sense, she told herself. She was always telling herself things didn't make sense.

It was some days later that she saw Gilda. Ellen had made her last call for the day and had returned by subway. Coming up the stairs crowded with people she thought she saw Gilda just ahead of her and hurried to catch up with her but lost her in the crowd. Arriving at the street level, she looked for her but did not see her again. Then, she did see her, walking swiftly, gracefully ahead of her, on the way home. Ellen increased her pace, but was halted by lights crossing a side street, and Gilda had slipped across as they were changing. On the opposite side of the street, a car was drawn to the curb, its engine running. A blue car, a sedan. Ellen noted mechanically. There was a stationer's shop at the corner, the outside newspaper stand crowded with people who picked up papers, threw down pennies and dispersed. There were two half-grown boys about, cutting up monkeyshines with a grocer's wheelbarrow.

"Gilda," called Ellen.

Gilda didn't hear. Now she was passing the car. Some one must have spoken to her from within it, for she stopped a moment and turned inquiringly. The door opened. Some one reached out.

The door shut. Gilda was gone. The car pulled out, suddenly, swiftly—

Friends of Gilda's, giving her a lift home. But she lived only a block, two blocks away. Ellen reached a corner. The boy who had been holding the wheelbarrow had dropped it—and the other boy in it—with a clamorous sound of crashing metal. "Jees," said the boy to the other, "dive see dat?"

"See what?" asked Ellen.

They had not seen her come up to them. They knew her, well enough. One was the stationer's son. He grinned at Ellen.

"I mean," he explained, "it looked funny, what I mean. That was the Esposito dame, wasn't it, coming home? The car's been there, half an hour. We didn't pay no attention, see? Cars wait here to pick up people from the subway, see? But she goes along, easy like, and some one shouts something from the car and she stops and then, first thing we know, they yank her in and drive off."

"Probably friends," said Ellen; but she was frowning.

"She hollered," said the other, younger boy, suddenly.

"Gwan! I didn't hear no holler," said the stationer's son.

"Wash your ears," advised his comrade. "I heard her holler. Not loud. Sort of surprise. Then she quit."

"You didn't, I suppose, look at the number of the car while it was standing here," asked Ellen.

"Naw," said both boys, amiably, then one remembered. It hadn't borne a New York license plate, but a New Jersey one, he said. He didn't notice the number.

Ellen went on home. Somehow, she couldn't dismiss the incident from her mind. On the surface it was absurd to think—anything.

Graf Strikes Tower Starting On Flight

FRIEDERICHSHAFEN, Germany, April 4.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, veteran on non-stop flights from here across the Atlantic to Pernambuco, Brazil, was forced to postpone a scheduled flight today when, in taking off, a great rent, 35 feet long, was torn in the hull.

The start was made at 5:05 a.m. less than an hour later persons at the airdrome were surprised to see the ship returning. It circled for some time and landed at 6:32.

The Zeppelin works issued a statement declaring that because of the great difference in temperature the ship rose slowly, causing the hull to swipe a radio tower.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, April 4. (CP)—Toronto stock exchange rallied in the last hour to-day and extreme losses of from two to four points were mostly recovered.

The turn in New York accounted for the trend of the local market and there were no domestic developments to cause such a sway of prices. The market opened weak and for a time ran into moderately heavy liquidation. Bell Telephone sold under par, duplicating the price of 1921, the only other time the stock had been under par since before the war. Before the close Bell was up to 101½ compared with 102 at the close Saturday. Nickel was slightly above its former close. C.P.R., Brazilian, Noranda recovered small losses, and Ford moved up from its low.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, April 4 (C.P.).—While interlisted stocks sold off with industrial listings, the general list on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market was merely irregular in action to-day.

Noranda was firm around $17 all day and closed above Saturday's final. Nilkel established a new low for the bear market at $7.75, and closed down 35, and Hudson Bay, Sudbury Basin and Falconbridge were easy. Eldorado was inactive but a cent or so higher.

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, April 4.—(C.P.) — Stocks Rallied slowly in the last hour to-day, reducing and in some instances erasing early losses of 1 to 4 points. Closing prices, however, were generally lower. New York Central and Case made full recovery while U. S. Steel, American Telephone and American Can halved declines of around two points. Trading was fairly active until after noon, but offerings then dried up and a moderate amount of short covering ensued. Transactions approximated 1,500,000 shares.

AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL, April 4.—The majority of active issues worked slightly lower in to-day's trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Turnover was reduced in volume as compared with the late sessions of last week. While distinct softness ruled to-day, leaders held within narrow limits.

Consolidated Smelters again met selling pressure, breaking 4½ points to 42½.

Canadian Pacific Common was one of the few issues to close higher on the day. The final for C.P.R. at 14⅞ represented a net gain of ½. Brazilian gained ¼ at 11, while International Nickel closed unchanged at 7⅞.

Among the less prominent issues Eastern Dairies was a weak spot, yielding two points to 12.

Agricultural conditions in Chile are improving.

IT'S MAPLE SYRUP TIME AGAIN

It's maple syrup time on the farms, and here are two pretty Aurora, Ont., girls taking full advantage of it at their father's camp. The layout (ABOVE) shows: (1) Camp containing the syrup boiling equipment on the farm of Walter Wood. LEFT is Leonard Wood, chopping wood for the ever-hungry fires; next is Grover Wood, on duty as the chief engineer of the works. Beside him is Mr. Wood, holding Lucille Case, his granddaughter, and on the RIGHT Jack Wood with the powerful team which hauls the finished syrup up a steep hill to the farm half a mile away. (2) Mary Wood examines one of the many tins in the 1,000-tree grove; (3) Lavilla, her sister, takes a drink of the ice-cold sap, and (4) the gray likes maple sap, too. Jack Wood is the driver.

NICKEL DROPS TO LOW RECORD

Consolidated Smelters Also Declines 4½ Points Before Mid-day.

TORONTO TRADING.

TORONTO, April 4 (C.P.) — Toronto Stock Exchange market sank again this morning, with declines most noticeable late in the second hour.

Consolidated Smelters, which held unchanged at 47 after the opening, dropped 4½ points to 42½ before midday. Nickel eased to 7⅝ to establish a new low, while Bell Telephone made a new low in ten years or more when it dropped to par.

C.P.R. up slightly the first hour lost that gain and slipped off another ½ point. Ford of Canada was down ½ from Saturday's final and the oils were fractions easier.

Walkers eased, both the old and new Common, though the new Preferred was unchanged at 9½. Dominion Stores came out at 17¼.

Montreal Leaders Hold Firm To-Day

MONTREAL, April 4. (C.P.) — Stock prices continued to weaken on the Montreal stock exchange this morning. Leaders were fairly firm but a few other issues registered losses of aroundd a point.

Brazilian was quiet and held an early gain of ¼ at 1. After some firmness, Nickel eased ⅛ to ¾. Canadian Pacific was not traded in board lots throughout the morning.

Eastern Dairies broke 1½ points to 12½. Charles Gurd was off 1 point at 14 and B.C. Power "A" dropped 1 to 23. Smelters was actively traded and eased 2 points to 45. Canadian Car common sold off ⅛ at 6 and Canada Cement, Massey-Harris, McColl Frontenac, Quebec Power, Cement preferred, and others were unchanged.

Most of the Beauharnois Committee members are also on the Senate's Banking and Commerce Committee, which meets on Wednesday to examine the contentious insurance Bill.

YORK, Eng., April 4. — (C. P. Cable.)—A notable declaration was made by Sir T. M. Wilford, High Commissioner of New Zealand in London, speaking here in connection with the Imperial economic conference to be held at Ottawa in July. He declared that any delegation going to the Canadian capital from any part of the Empire hoping to "win" at the conference was the enemy of the Empire.

The conference, he said, should be the ground on which economic understanding should be arrived at, not in a bargaining spirit but through co-operation.

BATTLE TO GET CAPONE'S GANG

gangsters had a "stock phrase," he said, which was: "If you want to send me to prison, all right, but I will not talk, because you know I will be taken for a ride."

"That is true" Johnson commented, as he told of a man who "gave evidence which was very hopeful to the government" about the "Juliano mob" which was credited with many murders.

Murdered for Talking

"Just before Christmas, 1929," Johnson said, "I took him before the grand jury and talked to him about 11 o'clock. We were getting ready to return an indictment but that night he was murdered before 9 o'clock. I have had many experiences of that kind."

The District Attorney told of a conspiracy case against 21 men in which six of them were murdered before the case went to trial and eight of their associates, including some witnesses, were killed.

Turning to the Capone case, Johnson described how the government had finally got him by first working on his associates and putting them in jail.

"Organized crime had become a business in 1927," Mr. Johnson said, "and the gangsters worked at it with a great deal of arrogance. Some of them posed as political leaders. They had the temerity to go to public banquets with public men. With it all, there were a great many murders.

"There was one gang headed by Alderman Titus Haffa, a member of the City Council. His racket was bootlegging and gambling. He operated stills. They were all convicted and received two-year sentences in the penitentiary.

Challenge to Government.

"The whole thing seemed to be a challenge to the government, and then I came to Washington and interested the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the Assistant Attorney-General in charge, then Mrs. Willebrandt. I took it up with Mr. Blair and others. I outlined to them a campaign to use the income-tax laws, because I discovered that the gangs left traces—they killed witnesses, and obliterated their traces in other ways, but they did have bank accounts.

MONTCLAIR, N.J., April 4 (CP) Mrs. Winifred Fosdick, wife of Raymond Blaine Fosdick, New York lawyer and former under Secretary General of the League of Nations, shot and killed their two children and then ended her own life to-day.

She then went to the bedroom where her nine-year-old son, Blaine, was sleeping, killed him with a shot in the temple and then turned the weapon on herself, firing a bullet into her heart.

CONDITIONS IN

hands, and the third about to lard in the same place, tax bills unpaid These were some of the conditions Mr. Dobbin noticed during his visit "It is a common saying down there," said the speaker, "that you can buy anything from a 1,000-room hotel down for $1 and payment of the taxes. When municipal taxes are in arrears the authorities are afraid to seize the property because they would have to pay the county and state taxes."

Mr. Dobbin told many stories of the various cities he visited, and his description of conditions was followed with great interest.

The program to-day was enriched by a number of splendid musical selections by an orchestra consisting of Harry Northrop, pianist; Stanley Northrop, violinist, and J. Thackeray, 'cellist. The ensemble gave a spirited rendition of the always popular "No, No, Nanette" selection, and played the "Auf Weidersein, My Dear," number in finished style. Stanley Northrop played "Deep River" most effectively as a violin solo, while Mr. Thackeray was heard to great advantage in his 'cello solo, "Tarantelle," by W. H. Squire.

Rotarian Alex. Mowat expressed the thanks of the club to the musicians and to the speaker.

Vice-President James Juby was in the chair, in the absence of President R. F. Downey. It was decided that the vice-president should nominate a committee to decide whether or not Rotary should hold a street fair this summer.

Rotarian George Macdonald urged club support for the annual Y.W.C.A. pageant, and Rotarian Jack Gillespie called attention to the district conference to be held at Hamilton, and appealed for a large representation from the Peterborough club.

Smart Young Women Now Smoking Pipes

BRIGHTON, Eng., April 4.—(By mail, A. P.)—The smart young women of Brighton, time honored British seashore resort, have taken to pipe-smoking and Brighton tobacconists wish they knew exactly what to do about it.

The smart set isn't very stable with its fads. A few months ago the girls were all smoking mannikin cigars, but that didn't last long and the tobacco dealers would like to know how long pipe-smoking is going to last before they lay in a supply of expensive fancy meerschaums and swan-necked calabashes.

Some of the more enterprising dealers have a highly scented blend of pipe tobacco but one of the new customers insists on thick twist tobacco.

CABINET RESIGNS

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, April 4 (A.P.)—The Cabinet of Premier General Peter Zivkovitch resigned to-day.

General Zivkovitch's Cabinet resigned on January 4, following the last Jugoslavian elections, but the Premier was requested immediately to form a new one, which he did on the next day.

SOFTER TONE ON STANDARD

Nickel Slips From Saturday's Close to New Low of $7.90.

HIGHER GOLDS DOWN.

TORONTO, April 4 (C.P.) —While light volume held movements within a narrow range, prices opened the week on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market with last week's easier tendency still in evidence.

International Nickel slipped 20 cents from Saturday's close to a new low of $7.90, but Noranda was holding though quiet. Among higher-priced golds, Teck Hughes, Pioneer of B.C., and Wright-Hargreaves slipped a few cents apiece.

In the cheaper sections Macassa and Moffatt-Hall were slightly stronger, but Moss, McLeod River and Bidgood lost a little ground. Ajax slipped another cent to 94, while oil selections recovered a fraction to 4.

DENY WINDSOR SCHOOLS TO BE FORCED TO CLOSE

WINDSOR, April 4.—(CP)—Any statement emanating from the Windsor Board of Education or any other source indicating that the city council will force the closing of schools or the stoppage of essential school services through lack of funds, is not founded on fact, Mayor Croll said this morning.

Referring particularly to a statement issued by Trustee Norman L. Spencer of the board, the mayor declared that while the council undoubtedly means to see that every sign of frills or extravagance in the operation of Windsor public schools and collegiates is lopped off this year, no pupil will be refused tuition for the full school term and every child will have a place in a class conducted by a fully qualified teacher.

HEAVY TAXATION SHUTS ANOTHER OLD MANSION

LONDON, April 4.—C. P. Cable.) —Ruford Abbey, the stately mansion of the late Lord Saville in that area of Nottinghamshire known as the Dukeries is being closed owing to the effects of heavy taxation. Only Welbeck Abbey, the seat of the Duke of Portland remains fully occupied. Clumber House, belonging to the Duke of Newcastle, is empty, its art treasures having been removed. Thoresby House, the seat of the Earl of Manvers, is partially closed.

The Dukeries is in the northwest of Nottinghamshire, forming part of Sherwood Forest. The name was taken from the existence of several adjacent demesnes of noblemen and the character of the forest is to some extent preserved here.

Brilliant Young M.P. Ends Life With Shot

HAILSHAM, East Sussex, Eng. April 4.—(AP)—The coroner today returned a verdict that Edward Marjoribanks, brilliant young Conservative Member of Parliament from the Eastbourne division, committed suicide Saturday night while not in his sound mind.

Young Marjoribanks, in his early 30's was found shot to death in the billiard room in the home of his stepfather, Lord Hailsham. Relatives said he had been suffering from insomnia as the result of overwork.

The M. P. well over six feet, was one of the best looking men in the House of Commons, and his death caused a sensation in social and political circles.

Children leaving British schools this year average higher in physical condition than those 10 years ago.

PRIEST FORCES DOOR OF CHURCH

Milling Factions Make Scene at Oshawa on Sunday Morning.

LAW SUIT POSSIBLE.

OSHAWA, April 4.—Feeling between two factions of the congregation of the Greek Orthodox Catholic Church, Bloor street, was further strained yesterday when Rev. Father Chrustawaka forced the locks on the door, it is said, and held service as usual.

The new lock had been placed there the day previous by members of the trustee board for the purpose of keeping Father Chrustawka out of the church. A month ago the board disagreed with the priest and ordered him to leave, but supported by a section of the congregation, he has remained.

Members of both factions milled about the church door yesterday morning as Rev. Father Chrustawka forced the lock on the door and prepared to hold service. Threats were exchanged between the members of the two factions, but supporters of Father Chrustawka followed him into the church and there was no violence. All the while a constable kept watch outside.

The congregation numbers about two hundred, mostly Ukrainian people.

Peter Hrehoruk, Bloor street east, chairman of the trustee board of the church, claimed the trouble first started three months ago when Rev. Father Chrustawka attempted to change the creed of the church. Early last December Rev. Chrustawka left Oshawa after serving the church here for five years, to take a church in Winnipeg, but returned last January at the request of the congregation.

A lawsuit may be necessary to decide the ownership of the chuurch.

NEW BANS LAID BY MANCHURIA

Pi-Yu's Officials Will Ask All Chinese Officials to Keep Out.

WANT MORE JAP TROOPS.

BY GLENN BABB
(A. P. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, April 4.—Henry Pu-Yi's new regime in Manchuria intends to order officials of the Chinese Government to keep out, the Japanese consul at Changchun reported to-day to the foreign office here.

Firt, the Manchukuo government of the young former boy Emperor plans to protest the entry of Dr. Wellington Koo, former Chinese foreign minister, into the country with the League of Nations investigating commission when it proceeds there, the consul reported, and official were undertood also to be drafting a note to send to Nanking, declaring all Chinese officials are unwelcome.

Dr. Koo is acting as Chinese assessor with the League investigating commission, when it proceeds there, the consul reported, and officials were understood also to be drafting a note to send to Nanking, declaring all Chinese officials are unwecome.

Dr. Koo is acting as Chinese assesor with the League investigating commission. The cause of the ban, as reported by the Consul, is indignation over Nankings denunciation of the Pu-Yi regime and its refusal to consider Manchuria as anything other than still part of China.

Ask Extra Troops

In the meantime, General Sadao Araki, Minister of war, prepared to ask the cabinet to-morrow to authorize sending two army brigades to Manchuria to replace Korean unit sent there during the campaign late last year.

This will give Japan a total of five divisions in Manchuria and two just across the border. There are also several groups of auxiliaries of the Manchurian divisions.

Tokyo gave a heroes welcome today to Lieutenant-General Tokutaro Koto, commander of the eleventh division, and Major General Mukaya, commander of the twenty-fourth brigade, when they returned from Shanghai with their troops.

COME AND LAUGH OFF THAT DEPRESSION FEELING AT "THE RIVALS."

PREDICTS COOL, WET SUMMER

Toronto Sage Sees Few Nice Days in April—May Cold. Heavy Winds.

AUGUST WARM.

TRENT RIVER, April 4.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—W. Radley, of Toronto, who last September predicted that the next six months would be "the mildest in living memory" predicts the coming summer will be "the coolest and wettest in many years." Mr. Radley bases his prediction on the directoin of the wind on September 21st and March 21st.

For eighteen hours after the sun had crossed the line on March 21 the wind remained strong east and there wasn't a change for 18 hours, then the wind turned to be from the north, and then northeast, then north-west."

Mr. Radley's predictions for the next six months are: "There will be very little improved change of weather until between March 29 and April 2. During April there will be few moderately warm days. May will be very cool and there will be much rain, with heavy winds. The first part of June will be fairly warm. June 11 to June 19 will be changeable, with wind and rain. July will likely go down as the coolest in many years. There will be heavy rains. August and the first week in September will be the warmest part of the summer.

Last September Mr. Radley predicted that there would be three times more rain than normal, about two feet of snow and five or six thunder storms, and that the coldest part of winter would be from March 8th to 18th.

Obituary

MRS. F. J. TATE

In the passing of the late Mrs. F. J. Tate, Lakefield has lost a lady whose name is imprinted deeply in the annals of our Northern neighbor. Older residents will remember her lavish hospitality. Her benevolence knew no bounds, for her purse was always open to the call of the needy or afflicted, no matter what their station or the cause for which her help was required.

Her home, even up to the last few weeks was the centre of church activities and the congregation of St. John's, of which she was a member for close on sixty years will feel her loss most deeply.

In her later years she had many sorrows, and these, combined with growing infirmities caused her to lead a very retired life. But through all her trials she showed a magnificent courage and preserved a bearing that told of true aristocratic rearing.

Lakefield has had many notable residents, but it would be hard to point to one who, in her own quiet and unassuming way, relieved more distress and dispensed more cheer among her friends than the lady whose loss we now chronicle.

ABRAHAM ROBINSON

MARMORA, April 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death took place on Friday at his home in Madoc Township of Abraham Robinson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, pioneer settlers. The deceased, who was in his seventy-sixth year, had been ailing for several months but recently appeared to be better and was confined to his bed but a few days before his death.

Like all his brothers, he was of an industrious nature. The Robinson farm is well known as one of the best in the locality. "Abe," as he was known, was quite an expert in handling the bees which have been kept by the Robinson boys, as they were familiary known for many years.

The deceased is survived by two sisters and a brother: Mrs. Henry Gawley of Eldorado, Miss Eliza Robinson and Lemuel Robinson, who are residing on the old homestead. The funeral service was held at the house at 2 p.m. on Sunday afternoon, with Rev. A. B. Caldwell officiating. Despite the extremely bad roads leading to the farm, sympathizing friends from near and far attended to pay their last respects. Two hymns were sung, hymns which perhaps have been used at more funerals than others, and yet as at this particular funeral, stir the emotions of worshippers with their wonderful appeal. The hymns referred to are "Rock of Ages," and "Abide With Me." Strikingly appropriate and consoling was the discourse of the officiating clergyman, who chose as his text, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth but I go that I may awake him out of his sleep."

The interment took place in the plot on the Robinson farm set aside as a private cemetery in December, 1864, when the late James Robinson was buried there.

THE MARKETS

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 4. — Encouraged by enlarged exports and further reports of damage to winter wheat crops in the South-west States, wheat prices shot upward for substantial gains in all three futures in yesterday's short session. Values at the close were 2½ cents to 2 cents above Friday's final figures.

May improved 2⅛ cents at 62¼ cents, July gained 2 cents at 64⅜ cents, while October advanced 2⅛ cents at 66⅞ cents.

The Winnipeg May future was the favored month, and good purchases of this option were made in the last hour of trading, when top levels were reached and gains of about 2 cents recorded.

Opening with a burst of strength, induced by strength of Liverpool wheat quotations, the market had no difficulty in holding gains and finished quite strong. Friendly strength from Chicago where a good-sized export trade in hard winters was worked, also helped the bull movement.

Boosting of the French foreign wheat quota another 5 per cent. was well received. Millers now are permitted to use 45 per cent. of the foreign product in their mill mix.

Demand for Durums featured the cash wheat section; spreads at the top grades were one cent better. Cash interest in coarse grains was slow. Futures showed fair gains near the close.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 4—Butter and egg prices turned downward on the produce and dairy market here last week, with cheese and potato quotations holding steady. On Saturday butter was lower and eggs irregular, while cheese and potatoes remained unchanged.

Following Friday's decline of a half to one and a half cents, regraded No. 1 butter, in carlots or broken lots, eased a cent on Saturday at 24½ to 25 cents a pound. Fresh butter was quoted a cent below the regraded level. Last week's receipts were 3,724 boxes.

Ontario graded fresh eggs, in carlots or less, were slightly higher, firsts advancing half a cent at 16 to 16½ cents and seconds being up a cent at 15 cents, while extras held firm at 17 to 18 cents a dozen. To retailers fresh seconds, in cartons lost a cent at 19 to 20 cents, with specials at 24 to 25 cents, extras at 22 to 23 cents, and firsts at 21 to 22 cents remaining unchanged. Receipts for the week were 16,664 cases.

Current cheese was steady at 10½ to 11 cents as was summer make at 12 to 12½ cents a pound. Last week's receipts were 409 boxes.

The potato market ruled firm, quotations of broken lots per 80-pound bag being 30 to 40 cents for Quebec whites and 45 to 50 cents for Quebec and New Brunswick Green Mountains. Carlot prices were ten cents a bag cheaper than the broken lots level.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Rapid widening of the areas of crop damage complaints, together with broader export demand, hoisted wheat prices quickly Saturday and led the flurried general buying.

A maximum jump of 3c a bushel for wheat ensued, with the market closing at the day's tip-top figures. Giving special impetus to the upward flight of values was a further increase of the French import quota to 45 per cent., emphasizing indications that the available supply of breadstuffs abroad of British Columbia threatens to had been radically reduced as compared with the total a year ago.

Wheat closed buoyant, 2¾ to 3 higher than Friday's finish; corn, ⅝c up; oats, ¼c to ½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 15c down.

Can Now Run Upstairs.

"I became run-down and unable to do my work for a family of seven," writes Mrs. W. P. Fitzpatrick, Marquis, Sask. "I was told I had anaemia, and I took treatment, but with very little improvement. Finally my sister, who had had the same disease, advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they had done her so much good. I have taken seven boxes. Today I'm well; able to do my own work; no more tired feeling or weak spells. I can run upstairs without puffing. I sleep and eat well. My friends are astonished at my changed appearance and never fail to ask what I'm taking. My reply is: 'Dr. Williams' Pink Pills'."

Maple Leafs Qualify For Stanley Cup Finals

GRACIE SCORES WINNING GOAL IN OVERTIME OF 3-2 VICTORY TO OUST MAROONS FROM SERIES

Teams Engage in Hardest Fought Battle Ever Held on Toronto Ice.

GOALIES ARE STARS.

Freak Goals Pave Way for Two of the Five Counters.

TORONTO, April 4. (CP)—On the smooth team work and polished stickhandling ability of Toronto Maple Leafs depend Canadian hopes for the retention of the Stanley Cup in the Dominion Saturday night before more than 15,000 roaring fans in Toronto, Leafs earned a thrilling overtime victory over Montreal Maroons. Their victory entitled them to a three of five game series with New York Rangers for the coveted trophy and the world's professional hockey championship.

Maroons fell victims to a carefully planned system of play developed by Dick Irvin, mentor of the Toronto sextette, and lost out 3-2 after almost 20 minutes of overtime. Having tied in the first game at Montreal, 1-1, Maroons dropped the round 4-3, and lost a chance to go into the Stanley cup final.

Playing a heady offensive game with their forwards always willing to back check, Leafs clearly deserved their win over the conquerers of Detroit Falcons and held a wide margin in play in all but the second period.

Freak goals paved the way for two of the five scores tallied before the capacity crowd. Toronto's first score, one of the fluky markers, came from the stick of "Red" Horner, rugged defenceman who looped a long shot into Maroon's cage while "Flat" Wash was lying on the ice in the first period.

Jimmy Ward notched an equalizer late in the middle period while Hooley Smith got the final fluke goal early in the third period to send Maroons into the lead. "Happy" Day came through with a million dollar score when he tied the count for Toronto midway through the final stanza on a solo dash while Bob Gracie delivered the finishing blow, a driving hard shot into the Montreal net after more than 18 minutes of overtime.

Bob Gracie

Although Maroons went down fighting before a flasy Toronto attack they never really had a chance with the speedy Leafs. "Flat" Walsh, sterling net guardian, was responsile for Maroons remaining in the hunt as long as they did for his spectacular saves continually drew applause from the crowded Gardens.

Several times during the regulation time, Harvey Jackson, youthful Toronto wingman, and leading point getter in the National Hockey League's regular schedule, was through the Maroon rearguard but failed to outguess the clever Walsh.

Gracie, however, proved the hero with the overtime tally and was carried from the ice by his teammates when the red light flashed behind the Maroon citadel after the overtime period.

KINSMEN PLAY BEING PRODUCED BY STRONG CAST

18TH CENTURY COSTUMES.

First Produced at Covent Garden Theatre in January, 1775.

Dramatic scenes which are only accentuated by the free interposition of brilliant wit and sparkling humour, to which may be added the picturesque costumes and scenery common to the gay, lively eighteenth century in which the play was first produced assures that "The Rivals" will commend itself as a worthwile entertainment, and also promises that it will be well received by the public of Peterborough.

From the pen of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, famous dramatist and statesman, the play was first produced at Covent Garden Theatre in January 1775. Withdrawn after the first night and subject to revision, it was again staged with a remarkable degree of success.

Under the direction of Adrian Macdonald the play is to be reproduced almost in its entirety by a strong local cast under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club. It is to be held on Friday evening of this week at the Collegiate Auditorium.

Proceeds For Service Work

While the production can be confidently recommended on its own merits, it is pointed out that the Kinsmen Club relies on the proceeds from the effort to enable the club to carry on a large portion of its service work. If for the latter reason alone, the members of the club earnestly solicit the wholehearted support of the citizens.

Besides supervising and directing the play, Adrian Macdonald is playing one of the principle roles as Sir Anthony Absolute. He needs no introduction to local audiences, having long since earned a reputation for his ability along this line. He has of course figured in several other plays and it will be recalled that the directed production of Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," the Kinsmen Club's first annual amateur theatrical venture last Spring.

Five of the members of the cast in the forthcoming production featured in the play staged by the club last year, and it will be remembered received wonderful public support and approbation.

Representative of Peterborough's most charming members of the fair sex. "The Rivals" cast includes Mrs. D. A. MacTavish as the voluble Mrs. Malaprop; Miss Nan Parsons as the lovely Lydia Languish; Miss Marcelle McNulty as Julia and Miss Edith Cottrell as Lucy.

Of the remaining members of the male cast there are included: H. H. P. Johnson as Sir Lucius O'Trigger; Allan Neal as Captain Jack Absolute; Fred Stannard as Faulkland, and Dr. Ralph C. Honey as Bob Acres.

In their roles as manservants Dr Herbert Young and Rod Davis are the vehicles for the interjection of much of the comedy element. A third manservant Thomas, the coachman, handles a brief minor part, important only in so much as his conversation with Mr. Fag (Dr Young) upon the rise of the curtain introduces certain important features necessary to the intelligent following by the audience of the continuity of the play. In this connection patrons are reminded that in order that their appreciation of the plot be not spoiled, it is essential that they be in their seats before the rise of the curtain.

BUFFALO HEADS INTERNATIONAL ROBIN SERIES

Stands With Windsor as Only Clubs to Register Victory.

WINS SATURDAY 3-1.

Tecumsehs and Detroit Battle to Scoreless Draw.

TORONTO, April 4 (C.P.). — Buffalo Bisons stand to the fore in the International Hockey League's round-robin championship series to-day for the Oke Trophy. By downing Herbie Mitchell's Windsor Bulldogs, Bisons scored their initial victory of the series and along with Windsor stand as the only clubs to have registered a win.

Two tie games against a stalemate and a defeat for Windsor gives Bisons a one-point edge over Bulldogs and shows them heading the parade with five points. London and Detroit, the two other contending teams, continued their scoreless sessions in the American city last night when they battled through 70 minutes of bruising hockey to their second goalless draw of the week.

A well-timed Bison passing attack coupled with an airtight defence aided Buffalo in their 3-1 triumph over Windsor. Jumping to the front with goals in each of the first and third periods before Johnny Gallagher notched the lone Bulldog tally, Bisons managed to hold their edge and finished strong scoring a goal in the final minute of play.

Roter Roth was the leading point getter for the Thundering Herd, passing to Carr and Bogardis for the first two scores, while Carl Voss figured in the assist for Martin's last-minute score.

An outstanding display of puck-stopping by Herbie Stuart, sensational London goalie, was the main feature in Detroit's scoreless draw with Tecumsehs at Olympia. Barging through the London defence for close-in shots at Stuart, Olympic snipers were unable to outwit the cautious Londoner who scored his second straight shutout.

Emmett Venne Returns

Goalie Johnnie Clark, reported to have been suffering from appendicitis when Olympics lost to Windsor last week, again took his position between the posts for Detroit. He was injured, early in the second period and after considerable delay Emmett Venne, regular Olympic net guardian, who has been out with injuries for the past three weeks, got into the game. His absence had no effect on his sight however as he turned in a dazzling performance to aid in blanking the Londoners.

CHOATE JUNIORS BLANK BLUE PETES' QUINTET, 2–0

SAINTS WINNERS 12-7.

St. Paul's won the Senior Girls' Basketball League championship for 1932 Saturday night, defeating Westclox 12 to 7 to take the second straight game of the playoff series, giving them the title and the silverware. The Choate Juniors blanked Blue Petes, 2-0, in the other contest to force the series to a third game, which will be staged at the Y. W. at seven Wednesday evening.

A packed gallery witnessed the best girl cagers in the city put on two fine exhibitions of the hoop game, the junior affair being one of the best seen in several seasons, very close checking and brilliant defensive work for both sides resulting in the unusually low score of 2 to nil. St. Paul's defeated Westclox Seniors twice in a row by close scores to win the senior title, but each of the junior outfits won in hard-fought battles, and a third game is necessary to settle the honors.

The senior finalists started it off at the Y. W. C. A. in Saturday night's doubleheader, and they set a fast pace from the first whistle. Their team-play was good, but with effective checking and off-shooting, the first half ended with little being done. The Saints were in front, 4 to 1. E. Bradley dropping in a free toss for the Alarm Clockers and M. Cowan helping herself to two baskets.

Maisie Cowan Leads Attack

The losers worked hard in the second session and threatened at times, but again were outscored, this time 8 to 6. The victors were too strong and, led by M. Cowan, hooped the ball four times, while their opponents could only count two baskets and a pair of penalty throws. M. Cowan got credit for four points in this half, with her teammates, C. Patterson and A. Comstock, each getting two. For the other side, B. Thirnbeck, G. Mortimer and D. Webb each shoved in a couple of points. With the players of both teams all turning in a fine performance, no one girl appeared outstanding, though M. Cowan was most effective for the champions. The teams:

Westclox.—E. Bradley, B. Thirnbeck, M. Mortimer, D. Webb, D. Millar, H. Joyce, M. Lord, C. Mason, and G. Mortimer.

St. Paul's.—M. Cowan C. Patterson, A. Comstock, J. Howson, E. Morrow, I. Cowan and S. Jackson.

The junior teams, Blue Petes and Choates, stole the show with a wonderful display of clever, close-checking basketba'l, the Hardware lassies getting the lone basket in the opening stanza. They played cautiously but at a good clip throughout, each outfit waiting for the breaks and watching their checks every minute. While a certain amount of combination was in evidence, few players could get set close to their opponents' basket for a good try.

E. Rose dropped a perfect one shortly after the first half opened to give the East City quintet two points, and they kept their narrow margin to the finish, despite repeated thrusts by the Blue Petes, particularly in the dying minutes of the second chapter. The forwards of each crew were stopped in their tracks by the guards on every sortie down the floor, and the final whistle found two tired girls' teams still battling desperately. The guards of both squads starred and the forwards turned in a great performance but couldn't sink the ball, outside of that lone Ashburnham marker. The teams:

Blue Petes.—M. Brocks, R. Millyard, A. Mark, H. Bradley, G. Sorby and M. Harvey.

Choates.—M. Blade, B. Blade, G. Hawks, E. Rose, M. Self, L. Heffernan and L. Ellis.

Reds Take First Game of Canadian-American Playoffs by 4-2 Count.

16,400 SEE GAME.

BOSTON, April 4.—The Providence Reds blinded the Boston Cubs with speed Saturday night to take the opening clash of the Canadian-American Hockey League's championship series, 4 goals to 2. A capacity crowd of 16,400 saw the game.

The Reds, who set the pace in the six-club loop during most of the regular season, put on a terrific second-period drive that netted three tallies, and clinched the victory. "Hago" Harrington, second-string left-winger, drove two goals into the Boston net, and Leo Murray and Art Giroux provided the other pair of Providence scores.

Lloyd Klein, Boston left-winger, and the circuit's leading scorer, registered both of the Cubs' goals.

Eddie Burke, the Cubs' aggressive right-winger, gamely fought off an attack of pleurisy for two periods before retiring from the game.

The second conflict of this best three-out-of-five series will be played in Providence Tuesday.

WINDSOR WINS O.H.A. HONORS

Doherty A. C. Holds Mic-Macs to 2-all Tie But Lose on Round.

80 MINUTES OF HOCKEY.

WINDSOR, April 4—Windsor Mic Macs, as game a team as ever represented this district in amateur hockey ranks, are the newly-crowned O.H.A. intermediate champions. They earned the title here Saturday night by battling Toronto Doherty A.C. to a 2-2 tie in 80 minutes of the most thrilling brand of puck-chasing seen here this winter. Mic Macs won the first game of the series in Toronto last Wednesday 3 to 2 and captured the round 5 to 4.

An action-packed second overtime session that was just concluded as the hour of midnight tolled was the one that sent some 2,000-odd fans home lauding the fighting qualities of the Border Cities' first O.H.A. intermediate championship aggregation.

Harvey McLelland Scores

The teams struggled on even terms from then until nearly three minutes of the second overtime session had elapsed, when the visitors came through with their second goal of the game to take the lead on the series, Harvey McLelland, overworked right-winger, was the marksman when he cut around the right side of the Mic Mac defense to blaze the rubber past Teno from point-blank range.

The hopes of Mic Mac supporters ebbed low as they saw the red light flash, but they failed to take into consideration the fighting qualities of the locals.

Gibbs drew a penalty for upsetting Bert Foote and Mic Macs took advantage of the extra man to tie the series again. Fittingly enough, it was one of the two veterans remaining from last year's senior B championship aggregation, Robbie Robson, who played the hero role from this point on.

Mic Macs sent all hands up on the attack as Gibbs wended his way to the penalty box. Ten players were swarming in the Doherty defensive area when Robson took a pass-out from Hastie from behind the visiting cage to blast the equalizer past Goldie.

Gibbs had not more than returned to the ice when Heintzman drew Dohertys' second penalty of the period for tripping Foote when the latter was in for what looked like a goal.

Again it was Robbie who came to bat for the locals. This time he played a lone hand in notching the goal that brought Mic Macs their first O.H.A. intermediate title. Robson picked up the puck at his own blue line and steamed down right wing to backhand the disc past the Doherty goal-guardian as he swept in from along the boards. There was but two minutes left to play and Mic Macs easily held the visitors at bay as the fans bellowed their victory song.

WOLVES BEAT MONARCHS 2-1 IN OVERTIME

A. Lefrance Scores Winning Goal as Sudbury Evens Series.

TWO REGULARS OUT.

Deciding Game Will Be Played To-night—6,000 See Tussle.

WINNIPEG, April 4.—Sudbury's wounded Wolves snarled Saturday night at the purple door that leads to junior hockey's throne-room.

While two regulars looked on, out of the battle with injuries, the Wolves poured a relentless fire into the full-strength ranks of Winnipeg Monarchs here on Saturday night and won the second game of the Memorial Cup finals 2 to 1 in overtime. The deciding game will be played tonight.

Six thousand partisan fans who crowded every corner of the Amphitheatre Rink to cheer on Monarchs to the Canadian championship stayed to pay tribute to a fighting, courageous brigade that wouldn't be beaten—and wasn't. Smooth-haired Adelard LaFrance, polished Sudbury leftwinger, drove in the winning goal after two minutes and twenty seconds of the ten-minute overtime period.

Monarchs won the first game of the series Thursday night 4 to 3.

"Nakina" Smith Hurt

Wolves struggled through nearly the whole game without Bob McInnis, stocky little defenceman and "Nakina" Smith, spark-plug of the first-string line. McInnis was out of action with an injured arm, received in the first series game Thursday, and Smith went down and out early in the first period when he collided with "Pinkie" Davie, Monarch defense star.

Smith's face was jolted and the jaw badly sprained. Both he and McInnis will be in the game tomorrow night, Coach Sammy Rothschild announced.

The Eastern champions fought cautiously, then desperately, and finally sensationally to whip the bulkier Monarchs, Memorial Cup defenders. Anthony ("Ant") Healy played a superlative game in the Sudbury net to hold off the Western titlists and his defense. Jack McInnis and ("Red") Porter, stood up manfully to the job of stopping the fleet Winnipeg attacks.

Rough for a period and a half, the game settled down to a drama of straight hockey after a wild free-for-all in the second stanza. George Brown, 180-pound Monarch left winger, and Adelard Lafrance came to blows and started a general fist-fight in which every player on both squads, with the exception of the goalkeepers, took part.

Police Quell Melee

Lafrance's stick cut Brown across the face as the two fought for the puck at centre ice. Brown pulled off his gloves and went after the Sudbury forward with his fists. Without delay their teammates dropped sticks and took sides, picked opponents and started to throw punches. It was several minutes before police quelled the player riot. Lafrance and Brown each drew a five-minute penalty.

Sudbury—Goal, Healy; defense, Porter and J. McInnis; centre, Smith; wings, Bennett and A. Lafrance; subs, Grant, L. Lafrance, Blake and Fraser.

MOTION PASSED TO INCREASE REVENUE OF THE ASSOCIATION

Over Hundred Delegates Take Part in 14th Annual Convention of O.B.A.A.

SMALL BUSINESS PROGRAM

TORONTO, April 4.—The fourteenth annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, held at the Carls-Rite Hotel, Saturday, was the biggest and most enthusiastic gathering in history with over a hundred delegates from all over the province in attendance. The visitors were tendered a noon hour luncheon by the City, the guest speaker being Judge Hawley S. Mott, whose talk on the work in the development of Canadian citizenship by those engaged in organizing athletic activities for the boys of the country, was the feature of the affair.

Few Changes Made

Few changes were made in the personnel of the executive, Chas. K. Jutten of Hamilton was elected President, W. A. Smith, 1st vice-president, and A. J. Walsh of Toronto, 2nd vice-president.

The agenda was one of the smallest on record with most of the changes to the constitution to clarify rules. The only important motion was to increase the revenue of the association, to give the O.B.A.A. 25 percent. of the gates in all third playdown games, where the distance travelled was less than 150 miles, and the receipts were $300 or more. This motion was passed after considerable discussion, several alterations being made to the original resolution.

The representatives of Hamilton and Toronto brought in similar ideas to allow juniors who had finished their playing season and were playing their last year in that series to advance to a team in a higher series after July 15th. The Queen City idea was for all minor players, while that from the Ambitious City was to act only where a senior or intermediate one. They both passed.

290 Clubs Listed

Secretary Snyder's report showed that the association had governed 62 leagues composed of 290 clubs and had passed 8,300 playing certificates.

The statement of Treasurer A. Hillmer of Oakville, showed an operating profit during the past season of $800 with a bank balance of $3,700.

The following is the list of officers: Life Member, W. J. Smith, Toronto; Immediate Past President, R. A. Elliott, Deloro; President, W. A. Smith, Galt; 2nd Vice-President, A. J. Walsh, Toronto; Secretary, W. J. Snyder, Hamilton; Treasurer, A. Hillmer, Oakville; A.A.U. of C. Governor, P. J. Kennedy, Toronto; Executive Committee (four elected and three to be appointed), R. G. Fraser, Toronto; J. A. Scott, Kitchener; Wm. Kay, Peterborough, and H. J. Carmichael St. Catharines.

WINDSOR ALUMNI DEFEATS LIZZIES

Captures O. A. B. A. Senior Title With 31-29 Playoff Win.

TORONTO, April 4. — (By the Canadian Press.) — Interest runs high in Canadian basketball circles to-day following a series of week-end matches which decided senior title holders in two provinces of the Dominion.

University of Saskatchewan were crowned senior champions of the province in Saskatchewan Saturday, when they downed the strong Regina Caps 33-32 in a thrilling struggle. Carrying an eight-point lead from the first game Varsity took the round 67-58 and earned the right to meet the winners of the British Columbia-Alberta series, April 14 and 16.

A dashing offensive which bewildered Toronto Lizzies at times brought Windsor Alumni a 31-29 victory and the right to meet the winner of the Ottawa-Montreal game in the first round of the Dominion playdowns.

With the majority of provincial champions already declared the Dominion playdowns will get under way this week.

FIRST STANLEY TROPHY FINAL TUESDAY NIGHT

Two Survivors of Play-offs Will Play Best Three Out of Five Games.

BOTH TITULAR CALIBRE.

First Time Toronto Leafs Have Entered Coveted Cup Finals.

NEW YORK, April 4. (CP) After two weeks of preliminary gestures, and a whole season of preparation, the final series for the Stanley cup historic emblem of the World's professional hockey championship, is scheduled to get under way tomorrow with the Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers as the contestants.

The two survivors of the long round of preliminary playoffs will play the best three out of five games. The first will take place at New York to-morrow night; the second at Boston, chosen for the Rangers' "home ice" when Madison Square Garden was found unavailable, Thursday and the rest at Toronto beginning Saturday.

There seems to be little doubt that the playoffs have served their purpose in bringing the National League's best two teams to battle for the cup, first donated as an amateur trophy by Lord Stanley of Preston in 1893. In addition to impressive records, they both have the playing material in every department to make a champion team and a pair of forward lines that are rivals for the title of hockey's best.

A Play-off Record

The Rangers have a remarkable play-off record to uphold. In their six seasons in the National League they never have failed to make the play-offs. In 1928 they were the first team in the circuit and the second in hockey history to bring the cup to the United States. Seattle won the trophy in 1917 in an east-west series between the National and Pacific coast champions.

The Leafs never have won the Stanley Cup although their predecessors in big league hockey in Toronto, the St. Pats, captured it three times, the last in 1922.

After resting their last tilt with Canadiens, Rangers held a snappy workout yesterday which cost the Garden management $300. The players skated around at a cost of $5 per minute as there was no ice in the Garden Saturday and the sheet was "rolled" up immediately after the practice to make way for to-night's wrestling show in which Earl McCready, of Amulet, Sask., meets the German, Dick Shikat, in the headline bout.

Keen Competition In Water Events

A good-sized crowd witnessed the Junior Boys' Swimming Meet in the "Y" pool Saturday night, in connection with the Boys' Hobby Show. Seven events provided good competition with ribbons being awarded the first three winners in each case. Following are the events and the winners:

Twenty yards free style, boys 12 and under.—1, Jerry Whaley; 2, Bob Flitton; 3, L. Thomas.

Forty yards free style, boys 14 and under.—1, Ward. Wright; 2, Don Anderson; 3, I. Wigg.

CASUAL COMMENT

A flock of local hockey followers took in that great Leaf-Maroon tussle in Toronto Saturday and those who couldn't go heard it over the radio. And what a swell win that was for the fighting Maple Leafs! They go into the final round against Rangers in New York tomorrow night, the second game being in Boston Thursday and then back to Toronto Saturday.

• • • • • • •

It will be tough trying to get tickets to that game in Toronto next Saturday, but we know quite a few who are figuring on going up from here. The last game of hockey won't be over until nearly a week after the baseball seasons opens with Boston, of the American League, playing in Washington a week from today. However, the International Baseball League desn't get under way till May.

• • • • • • •

Several of the local hockey players are thinking of taking a try at box lacrosse this summer for the first time, just to see if the game is very much like hockey. At least four of last winter's intermediates will be seen in the fast new seven-man game here.

• • • • • • •

The Ontario intermediate hockey title goes to Windsor Mic Macs this year, and they earned it by holding Doherty A. C. to a 2-2 tie in eighty minutes of thrilling hockey in the Border City on Saturday night, after licking the Toronto outfit, 3 to 2, in the first playoff game. Sudbury Juniors meet Winnipeg in the final tilt tonight, and the Allan Cup finals start this p.m. between Sea Fleas and Fort William in Montreal in a two-out-of-three series.

The O.B.A.A. convention in Toronto Saturday went off in good style, though there wasn't much to be done outside of electing officers. Bill Kay, of Peterborough, was again voted on the executive, having little opposition. Toronto delegates were badly defeated in their efforts to make minor league semi-final playoffs sudden-death games. All those who went up from here report being treated royally and having a fine time.

In the local girls' basketball playoffs Saturday night at the Y. W. C. A., St. Paul's proved too good for the Westclox Seniors and romped home with the title, but not by a one-sided score by any means. The Saints took the tussle 12 to 7 to repeat their victory of a week ago. In a great junior battle, Choates beat Blue Petes, 2-0, to force the series to a third game, the latter gals having won the first game by an 11-3 count.

• • • • • • •

London Aces won the Ontario intermediate basketball championship by turning back Toronto "Lizzies", 58-36, in a sudden-death game in the Forest City Saturday. The junior title went to Toronto Elizabeths over Windsor Arrows in two straight games, and the order was reversed in the senior playoffs when Windsor Alumni took the second straight contest from the Queen City "Lizzies."

Five Belleville scrappers will be here for the Foster Club boxing show at the Legion Hall Wednesday night. Art Angell meets Art Hunter, Scotty Kline fights Jack Gardner, Jack Parks goes on against a local newcomer, Jimmie Dugan, George Semark will be here again, and one other pug, a middleweight, is to meet Bill Hope. Some of the other local mittsers who will be seen in action are Jordan, DeNoble, Wahl and Earl Harrington.

• • • • • • •

The Quinte City boys have been training for the past two weeks, and from what they showed in their former appearances here, the home town scrappers will have to be in the pink to take them. Angell put up a great battle against Cleric Jones, Toronto, not so long ago, and he will extend Art Hunter. More particulars about the card later.

SEVERAL CHANGES IN PIN LEADERS

J. M. Potter's Oilers Tops 64 Teams in Ten Pins at Detroit.

DETROIT, April 4 (C.P.). — Thirty-one cities throughout Canada and the United States will be represented in the American Bowling Congress tourney to-night as 64 teams attempt to dislodge the leading Verifines of Milwaukee from the top spot in the team division of the ten-pin classic.

J. M. Potter's Oilers, of Akron, Ohio, topped the 64 teams carded last night. The Ohio line-up opened with 931, followed with 1,0.0, and then slipped back to 953, missing a berth among the pace-setters.

A terrific bombardment on the matinee card brought about six changes on Sunday among the minor event leaders. Hugh Stewart, veteran Cincinnati pinster, stood out as the king pin of the day.

Stewart let loose an attack on the new maples which resulted in a 1,980 all-events aggregate, for the lead. He averaged 220 for the nine games.

Lou Levine, Chicago, went into sixth with 1,913, and George Collett, Kalamazoo, took eighth with 1,907.

MARK IS EQUALLED FOR LATE CURLING

First Time in Twenty-four Years Playing in April Possible.

Tom Donaldson this morning skipped his rink to victory over Herb. Martin's aggregate in a game at Charlotte Street Curling Rink which is outstanding in so much as the game has not been possible so late in the season for a period of twenty-four years.

Angus McIntosh, veteran ice-maker and umpire to the club can recall a tightening-up in the weather which made curling and hockey possible as late as April 19. That happened in the year 1908. Mr. McIntosh believes, when the curlers occupied the ice at Charlotte Street Rink and the hockey players turned out at Brock Street Rink.

During the intervening period of twenty-four years the game of curling has invariably terminated at the end of March, with one exception, when curling was played on April, 1923.

Jack Mayneord, secretary of the Curling Club, expressed the opinion at noon to-day that the ice would be in good shape for play to-night.

The participating rinks this morning were made up as follows:

J. Cullen vs. J. T. Braund.

W. J. Gatfield vs. G. Kirkwood

George Hall vs. Dr. N. H. Sutton.

Herb. Martin 7 vs. Tom Donaldson 13.

SHAW IS HOME FROM S. AFRICA

Claims Dutch Don't Know Boer War is Over—Missionaries Needed.

IRISH IN SAME BOAT.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., April 4. — (C.P.).—George Bernard Shaw arrived to-day from his winter sojourn in Cape Colony, South Africa, with shavian remarks about the south particularly and Ireland in general.

Here's what he told the reporters who met him at the gangplank:

"South Africa does not know the war is over—the Boer war. The British and Dutch are still conducting a lively feud.

"The Dutch are a remarkable people mentally and physically, but religiously they live in the seventeenth century, and believe in a brimstone hell. The Empire ought to send a few missionaries to them. I have done all I can.

"There is a terrible native question in South Africa, and no place for poor white people. The only thing for poor whites is the lethal chamber.

"Ireland is like South Africa—the Irish don't know the war is over. The Irish Republican Army still thinks Ireland is enslaved, and must go on being 'agin' the Government."

Truck and bus competition is estimated to have cost a loss of $30,000,000 in revenue to British railways last year.

Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Board, is asking for a list from Ottawa of all makers of home-brew in Ontario who are registered with the Federal Excise Department, but The Examiner was unable to learn today from local Excise officials the number of persons in Peterborough who brew their own beer under Federal permission.

"That is departmental information," The Examiner was told, "and we cannot divulge it."

It is reported that in Victoria and Haliburton Counties the number brewing their own beer under license totals 1,200.

Hoover Asks Help On Economy Program

WASHINGTON, April 4 (A.P.)—In a surprise special message to the United States Congress, President Hoover to-day called for the appointment of delegates from both the Senate and the House of Representatives to work with him in framing "a complete national program of economy."

The President declared further reduction of Federal expenditures for the next year to be an absolute necessity.

He asserted, however, that various agencies in Congress working toward this end lacked the necessary unit yet action.

FARMER BROWN'S BOY OPENS THE TRAP.

The thing we know, or think we know,
Will sometimes prove to not be so.
—Farmer Brown s Boy.

It does happen this way sometimes. We are absolutely sure of a thing and suddenly discover that we are very much mistaken It doesn't do to be too sure of anything.

Farmer Brown's Boy had made a box trap and set it just outside the door of the sugar house. Then he had closed the door and gone off to collect sap from the sugar maples to be boiled down into syrup and sugar That trap had been baited with a piece of meat and set for Shadow the Weasel and he hadn't any doubt that Shadow would be caught.

"Shadow is so bold that he will not hesitate to enter that trap," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "He'll see that trap and he will investigate it to see what it is and satisfy his curiosity. He will smell that bit of fresh meat and in he'll go to get it. If he isn't caught by the time I get back I am going to be mightily surprised."

When at last he did return to the sugar house he looked eagerly to see if the trap was sprung. He could see it from some distance away and it was sprung. "I've got him!" he exclaimed, and hurried to the trap.

Of course he couldn't see inside the trap for it was made of a box, and now that the door had dropped there was no way of peeping inside except by raising the door a little and this he would not do, for he knew how quick Shadow is and what amazingly small cracks he can slip through. He could hear some one moving inside and that was enough.

"I won't take any chances by trying to look in," thought he. "I've got him and that is enough for me. Now the first chance I get I'll take him so far away that he won't come back. Then those Mice will be safe."

Late that afternoon when he had an opportunity he picked up the trap and started off through the Green Forest.

"Are you sure you have got that Weasel?" called Farmer Brown.

"Of course I'm sure," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "You don't for a minute think I would take this long tramp if I didn't know that I have him, do you? I can hear him moving about inside now."

"All right, Son," replied Farmer Brown. "Hurry back as soon as you have let him go. There is a lot of work to be done."

Farmer Brown's Boy promised that he would and tramped off through the Green Forest with the trap under one arm. From time to time he stopped to listen for sounds of his captive and always heard them.

"I'll take him way over to the ledges" thought he. "There are all sorts of cracks and holes there and Shadow will soon feel at home. It is so far from the sugar house that there is small chance that he will return there So no harm will have come to Whitefoot and his family and no harm will have come to Shadow and we'll all be happy."

At last he reached the ledges. He put the trap on a flat rock and sat down to rest for a few minutes. He could hear his little captive moving about uneasily inside the trap.

"Patience, Shadow; patience," said he. "In just a few minutes you will be free. How do you like being a prisoner? I hope it has taught you a lesson and that hereafter you will stay away from places where you are not wanted."

After a few minutes of rest he turned to the trap and slowly opened the door He expected to see Shadow's white form dart out and disappear in one of the cracks. For a second or two there was no movement. Then there was the scurry of little feet and out darted, not the white form of Shadow the Weasel, but a small person in a red coat! It was Chatterer the Red Squirrel!

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 4th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:20 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., and from 7 p.m to 8:20 p.m The danger periods are from noon to 1 p.m., and from 10:30 p.m to 11:45 p.m.

Many who have planned ahead for April 4th without considering the hand of Fate will find that they have built on quicksand, and that "the best laid schemes o' mice and men gang aft a-gley." An unfavorable time for current business affairs, but a favorable time for social functions.

The child born on this April 4th will be a natural drifter, and will fall into the easiest and safest niches in life it can find Its vocal cords will be much used in discourses about itself and its experiences. It will have refined tastes and will be wholesome-minded.

Born on April 4th, you have a shrewd, but not a brilliant, mind You are not asleep when often you are thought to be, and come out with some surprise move or "wisecrack." You do a lot of thinking, a little talking, and well-timed acting. A pronounced sense of duty and force of habit will keep you faithful to your job. You do not hanker after novelty and change, and will always love to have old familiar faces and things around you. You are not adaptable enough to take new root easily

Whatever congenital peculiarities you may have will be harmless ones, too petty to be called vices. You will suffer from a few complexes of pride and prejudice. You are too stubborn about your convictions and have a few bigoted ideas to which you will always adhere, but in the main you are an easy person with whom to live or associate.

You have good powers of concentration and can be a whole man to one thing at a time. You are a patient digger and do not easily give up. You never try to fly high, and you leave all spectacular stunts to others. You are seldom seen playing in any roles where discourtesy, real selfishness or thoughtlessness predominate. You will both give and receive real love, and should know the meaning of a happy home.

JUNIOR FARMERS HOLD COMPETITION

Under the auspices of Belmont Junior Farmers' Club a successful three-day livestock and grain judging competition was recently concluded under the supervision of J. B. Nelson, local agricultural representative.

There was a large and enthusiastic turnout of young farmers. Two special features of the event was the judging of Ayrshire cattle at Peoples Brothers' farm and the judging of Holstein cattle at the Bredin farm near Norwood.

Addresses were delivered to the boys by T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., and J. A. Sexsmith, ex-M.P. The former spoke of the work which the Provincial Department of Agriculture is fostering in the interests of better agriculture and offered encouragement to the young farmers, while Mr. Sexsmith gave the boys interesting pointers on dairy cattle.

Mr. Nelson considered the competition to have been one of the best ever held in this district. Besides a large attendance of juniors, he said, the competition was well attended by neighbouring farmers.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 61

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Flora was the brains of the party and she it was who decided upon their means of escape. "We must wait," she advised, "until the attack upon the Arabs is well under way. We will still have our weapons, as Luvini intends to steal them after the Arabs are slain. In the confusion of the fight we must make our escape into the jungle, and after that—who knows?" Soon Luvini came to them. "All is ready, Bwanas. When you hear a shot, that will be the signal."

He explained to Flora that she would be safer staying in the tent. She pretended to agree and satisfied that things could not have worked into his hands to better advantage, the black villain left them. The three white men and the girl armed themselves and waited. None of them showed fear, not even Flora, though at heart she realized how hopeless was their situation. Darkness had fallen when suddenly the silence was shattered by the sharp staccato report of a rifle.

Carl Kraski seized Flora by the arm. "It's our chance!" he whispered. "Come!" They made their hurried way toward the gate of the palisade. By now the air was filled with the hoarse cries of fighting men and the report of rifles. Far outnumbered, the nomads of the north were shot down to the last man. But before that happened Kraski and his three companions had opened the gates and fled into the darkness of the jungle.

The fight won, Luvini was now ready to attempt the second part of his program, the murder of his white employers and the capture of the tempting white girl. Discovering that they had fled he realized that someone must have betrayed him. Calling his warriors, he told them that the whites would surely return with reinforcements to punish them. Thus he aroused their fears. Two hundred blacks started out in pursuit of the luckless Flora and her confederates.

MISSIONARY SERVICE IS HELD IN ST. JAMES' UNITED CHURCH

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse Delivers Inspiring Address on Sunday.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

W.M.S. Day was fittingly observed in St. James' United Church when the organization filled the central pews, and an inspiring missionary message was delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse.

Beautiful flowering plants and foliages were tastefully arranged around the pulpit and platform, creating a cheerful springlike atmosphere.

Adding much to the spirit of the service was the fine musical program arranged by Frank Stevens, organist and choir leader, with Mrs. J. Monks, soloist, singing "In Jesus," as her selection.

The anthem, "Pardon and Peace" (Bowles), by the choir, and "Speed the Light (Hoffman), by the Junior Choir, were both in accord with the theme of the day.

Moffatt's beautiful translation of the Easter Story, as told in the 14th chapter of St. Mark's Gospel, was chosen as the Scripture lesson. With the addition of two verses from Romans, 16th chapter.

The first thought stressed in this passage was found in the words, "She hath done what she could." "Would this statement apply to individual members of your society?"

With her instinctive powers of intuition, Mary foresaw the coming sufferings of her Lord and came beforehand to anoint His body with the precious spikenard.

Throughout the world to-day, womankind is breaking her "alabaster box" for a living Christ. By little acts of self-sacrifice and service, the women of the W.M.S. are quietly, month by month, working to send the Gospel to their sisters all over the world.

The thrilling stories of women who have given their lives in this service, both at home and in the foreign fields, were cited. Outstanding is the work of Miss Frances Patterson, who is stationed 275 miles north of Norway House, in our own Canadian West. Here, far from home and friends, she works among the native Indians. Surely she is bringing her gift of precious ointment to the Lord in a sacrifice of which we know very little. Similar stories were told of the work courageously carried on by Mrs. Judson in Burma, and Miss Ann Taylor in Tibet.

In closing, the pastor gave a brief glimpse of the magnitude of the work being accomplished by the women of this society, and brought to the congregation the plea in Paul's words to the Romans, on behalf of Phebe, "That ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you."

The Easter thankoffering showed a gratifying response and was taken by members of the W.M.S., who also acted as ushers for the service.

Millbrook

E. G. Britton for the past four years manager of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto has been moved to Petrolia and has gone to assume the duties of his new position. Mrs. Britton and Peter to follow shortly as soon as their household effects are packed and ready for transportation. The new manager has not yet arrived, E. H. Barnes, accountant, acting in this capacity until the office is filled by the expected head.

Mrs. Maurice W. Gray has gone to her former home at Brighton for a brief stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. McQuillkin.

Dr. and Mrs. Alvin Richards, of Curtisville, Pa., were called to the village owing to the serious illness of his father, C. W. Richards, editor of the local paper, the Mirror-Reporter.

Mr. John Ridge, who has spent the winter with his family in Millbrook, leaves this month to resume his position as second engineer on one of the Lake Ontario boats for the current season.

The annual community dance, sponsored by the local branch of the Women's Institute and held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, met with the success which has always crowned this occasion in previous years, the younger element predominating in the attendance, which was just large enough to allow the floor to be comfortably filled with dancers for each number on the program.

The usual custom of having the earlier part of the evening devoted to a program of readings, musical selections, etc., with chairman's address, and a social good time preceding the dancing was dispensed with this year, and evidently the newer form of entertainment met with popular approval.

The Continuation School orchestra, with Principal H. W. Jordan in charge, provided the music to the satisfaction of all present, this being the first occasion when these young musicians have been engaged for a local dance. Messrs. J. L. Byam and J. W. Hutchison gave some assistance with the music during the evening, allowing the young folk of the orchestra a chance to enjoy a dance or two themselves. A. Lunn called off for the square dances which are always a popular part of the program, particularly when some of the older guests take their places on the floor and participate in the evening's enjoyment.

The members of the orchestra include Jack Stinson, Wilson Ford, Gordon and Nelson Davis, Gerald Todd, with Mary Burnham and Bryar Edmunds as pianists; Henry Gray is also a member and is prepared to do the 'calling off' for old-time dances, but was prevented from being present on Friday night owing to a recent bereavement in the family.

Acting as hostesses, on behalf of the Women's Institute, looking after the service of refreshments at the supper hour, and generally doing all in their power to make the social event a decided success were the president Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. Thomas Harkness, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. George Fallis, Miss Grandy, and other officers and members of the entertaining society.

W. Petrie, before vacating the chair, thanked his fellow officers for the support and co-operation which he had received from them during his term as president.

LINDBERGH GOES ON QUIET TRIPS

Refuses to Answer Reporters' Questions—State Police Mum.

BOAT BEING SOUGHT.

HOPEWELL, N.J., April 4.—Col Charles A. Lindbergh became today an active figure in the hunt for his stolen baby.

His own automobile, with the Colonel at the wheel, slid into the garage at his Sourland Hills estate shortly after midnight, ending a mysterious 24-hour trip which Lindbergh and the State Police declined absolutely to discuss.

"We will answer no questions as to the whereabouts of any member of the Lindbergh family," was the way the State police put it.

On a back road near the estate, the Lindbergh car had met a machine carrying newspapermen, and stopped.

"Are you police officers?" Col. Lindbergh asked.

The reporters identified themselves and asked him where he had been.

"Thank you," Col. Lindbergh replied, ignoring their questions, and drove on to his Sourland home.

24-Hour Journey

The Associated Press had learned earlier that Col. Lindbergh left the estate by motor Saturday night. Where he spent the 24-hour period, however, remained a secret.

An amphibian plane landed at Gosnold Island near Martha's Vineyard, Mass., yesterday. Three men —two described as elderly and one as young—disembarked and made inquiries concerning a boat they referred to as the "Sally". No such boat had been seen in those waters, and after a two-hour stopover, during which the men lunched, they flew away. One of the men was frequently addressed as "Colonel" and one of the others as "Doctor." Residents of the island said none of the men resembled Col. Lindbergh.

Significance was attached to the plane's flight to Gosnold Island in view of the fact that John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder and one of the three Norfolk "intermediaries" acting in the kidnap case, had announced upon leaving Norfolk Saturday that Martha's Vineyard was its destination. Neither of his two associates at Norfolk, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage and the Rev. H. Dobson Peacock, would comment.

The possibility that Col. Lindbergh himself may have been at Martha's Vineyard yesterday was not overlooked, though it was without confirmation.

Believe Baby Alive.

The State police revealed yesterday that they are pursuing their search in the belief that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., is still alive.

Col. Lindbergh's trip over Sunday was the first he has made from the estate, so far as is known, since his baby was stolen the night of March 1.

The three Norfolk intermediaries, who hold no official status, but who have been the most active of all during the past week, had no progress to report.

Hero Of Russian Fairy Tale

COURTS PRINCESS DISGUISED AS WORKMAN

Edsel B. Ford, son of the multi-millionaire motor manufacturer, shown here with his wife, is the hero of Moscow's favorite fairy story. According to the legend, which is believed by thousands, he met an exiled Russian princess who was working as a waitress in Constantinople. Disguised as a poor workman, he courted and won her; then revealed his identity when assured that she loved him for himself, not for his money. The story, we guarantee, is 100 per cent false.

LIQUOR RUNNER LOSES IN RACE

$40,000 CARGO.

WESTPORT, Mass., April 4 (C. P.). — A coastguard boat captured the speed boat Yvette June early to-day with nearly 1,000 cases of liquor after the stern of the craft had been riddled by machine gun fire and her crew had beached the craft and fled.

The Westport police, who were co-operating with the coastguard to-day in trying to float the boat, said the Yvette Jun ehad been hailed off Horseneck Beach and ordered to halt.

When she failed to obey the command, the Government boat opened fire with a machine gun, the police said. The captain of the alleged rum-runner guided the craft into the Westport River and beached her near the Westport Bridge, with the obvious intention of enabling the crew to escape.

The police said there was no evidence that any one aboard the boat had been injured. They said the craft, which was fast in nearly two feet of sand, carried a cargo of contraband which they valued at $40,000.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at nine o'clock this morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, when Lucile Wilhelmine, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Doris, Sophia street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Patrick Joseph Clark of Toronto, son of John Clark and the late Mrs. Clark. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dean O'Sullivan.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of pink marquisette, ruffled from neck to hem, with a jacquette of pink velvet. A picture hat of pink maline trimmed with silk velvet ribbon, pink satin slippers and matching hose, with pink lace mittens, completed a beautiful ensemble. The bride carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and lily of the valley.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Keith Braund was matron of honor, wearing pale blue satin, the short waist finished with a wide band of sequins. Her large picture hat was of blue shiny straw and she wore blue satin slippers, white lace mittens and a coat of white velvet trimmed with Hudson seal. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

William A. Wilson of Toronto acted as best man and ushers were William Hickey and Frank Doris of Peterborough.

During the nuptial Mass, Mrs. Leo Picard sang several hymns. The wedding music was played by Miss Leona Hummel.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The table was done with American Beauty roses and pink candles and was centered by the bride's cake, topped by a minature bride and bridegroom.

Mr. Clark and his bride left later by train for a trip to New York, after which they will live in Toronto. The bride travelled in a suit of green broadcloth trimmed with grey fox, with hat, shoes and accessories to match.

GASOLINE FIRE UNDER CONTROL IN SIX SECONDS

New Fire Fighting Equipment Tested Out in Ashburnham.

CITY WELL PROTECTED.

Fomon Will Be Used in Fighting Gasoline and Oil Fires.

"It certainly proves that the city is well protected from gasoline fires now," was the satisfied comment of Alderman J. A. McNabb, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to Fire Chief George Gimblett following the demonstration of the new Fomon fire-fighting equipment recently purchased by the city, and which was undertaken at James' Stevenson Park this afternoon. In the presence of members of the City Council, and representatives of manufacturers of oil and gasoline depots an awe inspiring fire was started in a specially prepared pit. A large quantity of oil and gasoline was used.

Ignited with a long torch, the fire blazed furiously for three minutes, a great sheet of crimson flame showing up to advantage against the dark solid background of thick wreathing smoke.

It was a matter of 6 seconds, according to T. H. Theobald, official timekeeper, from the time the stream of Fomon was brought into play, before the flames were completely extinguished.

The Fomon placed an effective blanket of minute bubbles over the blazing oil, which were later removed by a fireman who waded into the oil with rubber knee boots. Attempts to re-kindle the fire proved ineffective, and drew forth the satisfied comment from the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee quoted above.

60 Gallons of Oil and Gas

In the test, it was endeavored to reproduce as nearly as possible conditions of an actual oil blaze. In the pit ten feet wide by fifteen feet long and one foot deep, was placed 45-gallons of used crankcase oil and 15 gallons of gasoline.

Set on fire the highly inflammable mixture was allowed to burn for some minutes, after which the stream of Fomon was directed on it. The fire was extinguished completely in a matter of a few seconds.

If it were possible to trap a fire, shutting off every outside source of air, it would go out as soon as it had exhausted the oxygen supply. That is the principle on which Fomon works. It smothers the fire by an air-tight blanket made up of millions of minute, heat-resisting bubbles containing carbon dioxide gas. The blanket of Fomon adheres to or floats on any burning surface, cutting off the supply of oxygen that is necessary to support combustion.

The Fomon generator is a complete self-contained unit in itself, embodying the latest developed principles of oil-fire fighting with the use of two separate dry chemicals.

It was recently purchased by the City Council on recommendation of the Fire Chief at a total cost of $600.00 including one ton of chemicals. The equipment is manufactured by the American Fomon Company of Philadelphia.

The generator constructed of brightly polished alloy metal combining lightness and durability, couples right into the hose line. It is easily portable and can be operated by one man with ease. It weighs but 32 pounds.

By using two separate chemicals, not mixed until the moment of the production of foam there is absolutely no possibility for the two separated chemical ingredients to act upon one another chemically.

CAPONE TURNS TO TERRORISM IN COOK COUNTY

Special Grand Jury Named to Probe Extent of Part in Primary.

CANDIDATES THREATENED.

Officials Told Gangster is Named for Committeeman in Every Chicago Ward.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Scarface Al Capone is in jail but the city that breathed with relief at its riddance when his 11 year sentence was pronounced once more finds itself embroiled in as bitter a political strife as it ever was in the gang lord's heyday.

The fire of the overlord of crime, it is charged, has risen from within the walls of Cook county jail where he is confined to blight the hope of a peaceful primary election a week from to-day with terror and violence of old.

Rumors that Capone was trying to strengthen his political influence to escape serving all or most of his sentence for income tax evasion have been vaguely heard for some time, but now they have come out into the open.

Special Probe.

A special grand jury investigation was ordered yesterday by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, himself a candidate for the Republican nomination of State's Attorney, to determine to what extent if any Capone and his hoodlums are employing terrorist tactics to force unfavorable candidates to withdraw and control the primary.

And from a prominent civic worker, President Fred W. Sargent of the Chicago Northwestern Railroad, came a statement that Capone has a candidate for ward committeeman in the primary in every ward of Chicago.

Capone, Sargent said, has so gained control of law enforcement in Cook County that Government is breaking down. Capone derives his power, he declared, from revenues that 10,000 saloons and 1,000 gambling houses bring him.

Candidates Withdraw

Candidates for ward committeemen have withdrawn hurriedly in recent days and told of being threatened. A precinct captain who refused to stop working for a certain candidate was shot to death last Sunday, and others have been beaten and fired upon.

The special grand jury enquiry was prompted by a request of two residents of the fashionable Goal Coast colony, one of them running for ward committeeman. They cited 17 alleged acts of pre-election violence and charged Capone with trying to coerce the election of committeemen to work for his pardon.

Judge Feinberg recommended the 80-year-old crusader, Frank J. Loesch to lead the grand jury enquiry, but Loesch has not yet decided whether to accept.

NO REPARATION IN NEW BUDGET

Omission By Germany is in Line With Brueing's Recent Statement.

FIRST TIME SINCE WAR.

BERLIN, April 5 (C.P.).—For the first time since the close of the World War, the German budget for the fiscal year 1932-33, which is in the course of preparation, makes no provision for reparations payments, it was understood to-day.

The Government is making an effort to balance national accounts at roughly 8,500,000,000 marks (about $2,040,000,000).

It was understood the present budget year would end with a deficit of 350,000,000 marks, 400,000,000 of which fall under the ordinary budget.

The budget will be discussed by the Reichstag in the middle of this month. The omission of reparation payments from the budget is in line with the declaration of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to the British Ambassador that Germany is unable to pay them.

The thieves also attempted to steal a car owned by Robertson but were unable to get it started.

BROADCASTING HISTORY IS TOLD TO HOUSE GROUP

British Corporation Was Organized in 1912 by Six Manufacturers.

GOVERNMENT OWNED 1925.

Licenses on 4,556,740 Sets Yield Million Pounds Profit in 1931.

OTTAWA, April 5 (C.P.)—The House of Commons Committee on radio broadcasting to-day heard the story of the organization of the British Broadcasting Corporation, the publicly-owned system which controls radio programs and broadcasting in the British Isles. Major Gladstone Murray, a native of British Columbia and a Canadian war veteran, who has been for nine years associated with the B.B.C., was brought before the committee through the activity of the Canadian Radio League, which is advocating the nationalization of broadcasting in the Dominion.

The B.B.C. was organized in 1922 at the suggestion of the leading manufacturers, six of whom contributed ten thousand pounds each for the initial expenditures. The existing broadcasting facilities, already being operated by manufacturers, were pooled. The corporation was then privately owned with profits limited to 7½ per cent.

In 1925 a Royal Commission found that the corporation, under private monopoly, had made tremendous progress but decided that such a powerful medium of contact should not be vested in one particular class.

Taken Over in 1925

The B.B.C. was then over in its entirety with a board of governors representing the Crown replacing the Trade Board, Major Murray said. Shareholders were paid at par and the staff transferred without change of organization. The new company were given a royal charter and licensed for ten years.

From 1926, when the new company took control, until February, 1932, the number of receiving sets grew from 1,840,375 to 4,556,740, at ten shillings per set per annum. This income from licenses pays the expenses of operation and earned for the Government a profit of a million pounds in the last year.

The company is thus enabled to operate entirely without sponsored programs or advertising, and is in-

CITY ASSESSOR DENIES RUMOUR

Painting and Decorating a Home Does Not Increase Assessment.

REPAIRS A NECESSITY.

Use of a paint brush and the doing of repairs to Peterborough homes does not mean that the assessment will be increased, stated W. J. Henry, city assessor, to-day in correcting the erroneous opinion that seems to have gone abroad among local householders that as soon as painters and decorators have finished with a house the assessment is jacked up several hundred dollars.

"We consider painting, decorating, shingling, repairs to verandas, etc., as necessary to upkeep and such improvements do not create an increased assessment and more taxes," declared Mr. Henry.

"Of course," he added, "if a garage is built or an ornate veranda replaces a small, dilipated one, it must follow that the assessment goes up since the value of the house has been increased."

In urging citizens to undertake needed repairs to their homes to give employment to idle men and also to improve the appearance of their homes and the city, Mayor Denne also stated that it had never been the city's practice to increase the assessment for such work.

"The idea seems to have spread about that as soon as a house has been painted or its rooms redecorated that the assessment is jumped up. This is absolutely incorrect," said the Mayor. "We try to encourage house owners to do such work, not deter them by increasing the assessment for such small necessary work."

In a letter to its members the Chamber of Commerce recently urged its members to give work by having necessary repairs made to their homes, and Mayor Denne today expressed his thanks to the Chamber for such co-operation in a proposal that would react to the public welfare.

PLAN CHANGES IN INSURANCE FOR WORKLESS

British Government Will Place Whole System on Permanent Basis.

WAIT ON REPORT.

Minister Claims Action Necessary as Legislation in Chaotic State.

LONDON, April 5.—(C. P. Cable.)—The British Government proposes to place the whole system of unemployment insurance on a permanent footing.

The Government, Sir Henry Betterton, Minister of Labor, told the House of Commons this afternoon, is now awaiting the report of the Royal Commission which had the situation under review. When this report is received the matter will be taken in hand.

Sir Henry admitted the present state of the unemployment insurance legislation was chaotic. There had been so many temporary enactments the public mind was confused and much uncertainty existed.

Figures Drop

The minister spoke hopefully of the British unemployment situation. For the first time in two years, the figures announced yesterday had shown a decrease as compared with the corresponding week of the previous year. Not since December, 1929, had the figure decreased as compard with a year previous.

I don't mean to say, Sir Henry added, that we should regard the figures with complacency. But I do think these figures justify us in the hope that when world conditions show that economic chaos is being replaced by something like ordered progress, we shall be among the first of the nations to take advantage of it.

Favor Businessmen Going To Conference

LONDON, April 5.—(C.P. Cable.)—The British Government is favorably disposed towards the proposal that representatives of business and organized labor should be attached to the United Kingdom's delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa for advisory purposes, J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominion Affairs, this afternoon informed the House of Commons. The Minister added he was in communcation with other governments of the Empire in this connection.

SYSTEM SAVED FRANCE.

PARIS.—The import quota system to which foreign business interests have objected has saved French industry from being swamped by foreign imports, Maurice Petsch, Under-Secretary in the Tardieu Cabinet, told the Council of National Economics to-day.

BADLY WANTED AT BRANTFORD IN SERIOUS CASE

Faces Manslaughter Charge Following Death of 15-Year Girl.

HUNTED WEEKS.

Arrest Made After Suspicious Actions on Ferry—Extradition Sought.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 5 (C.P.). — Dr. Thomas Vaughn, wanted at Brantford, Ont., on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of a fifteen-year-old girl there, was arrested at Tonawanda, N.Y., to-day. He was arrested shortly after he and two strangers had been seen getting off the Grand Island Ferry.

Vaughn escaped arrest here some time ago by driving over the bridge into Canada after he had been turned back by United States immigration officers. Vaughn, it is understood, entered the United States on foot the following day, but was not able to take his car with him.

Spent Night on Island.

Chief Supples of Tonawanda, who arrested Vaughn, says that Vaughn and two other men last night set out in a rowboat and intended getting the car and having it driven back to the United States, but the river was so full of ice that they could make no progress, and they spent the night on Grand Island, and the appearance of the three strangers on the island ferry attracted suspicion.

Vaughn finally admitted his identity, and is being held until the Provincial Police are heard from. Vaughn is also charged with posing as a medical practitioner in Ontario, an offence for which he served nine months in New York State some time ag.l

SEEK EXTRADITION.

BRANTFORD, April 5 (C.P.). — Arrangements are being made to have Thomas Vaughn, arrested in Tonawanda, N.Y., on a manslaughter charge, extradited from the United States to Canada.

Ninety-nine-year-old Antide Battau, of Chambray, has just received his "war" card from the French War Office intimating that he might soon be called for military service.

Reds Using Planes For Sowing Grain

MOSCOW, Apl. 5—Aeroplanes roaring less than 100 feet above the ground at a speed of from 60 to 75 miles an hour recently demonstrated the feasibility of sowing wheat from the air on a Soviet state farm in Central Asia.

The planes sowed an area of about eight acres on each flight, covering a total of 300 acres a day. In just a fortnight four planes sowed 8,000 acres. Each plane is equipped with sowing spray 65 feet wide.

ONE GAVE HIS LIFE.

Public recognition of the self-sacrificing heroism of two Peterborough boys, one of whom lost his life in a fearless attempt to rescue a friend from the icy waters of the Otonabee River, will be made Friday evening in the Collegiate auditorium during the showing of the Kinsmen play, "The Rivals."

Presentation of the Royal Humane Society's bronze medals for conspicuous bravery will be made by Mayor Denne to Ray Harding, hero of a drowning tragedy at the Goose Pond on December 29, last, and to the parents of Sidney Neiman, the 14-year-old Lithuanian boy, who gave his life in attempting to get Kenneth Perram, of Ottawa, from the river's icy grip. Perram broke through the ice while skating, and both Neiman and Harding flung themselves into the water, fully clothed and weighed down with skates, to save him.

The presentation of the medals by His Worship will be made between acts. The medals were received this week by City Clerk Armstrong, who on behalf of the city, informed the Royal Humane Society of the heroism of the two local boys.

Floods In Rumania Bring Heavy Losses

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 5 (C.P.).—Spring floods have brought disaster to the farms and villages on the banks of Rumanian rivers. Houses have been carried away, cattle drowned and numerous inhabitants along the Nzamos, Maros and Pruth Rivers are reported missing.

Eight railroad lines have been washed out and most of the bridges over the Maros have been carried away. The industrial section of Klausenburg is flooded and all the factories are under water. In several districts of Kischinew the householders were driven to the roofs. Jassy also was flooded and Czernowitz was in danger.

ELECT RINFRET AS NEW MAYOR OF MONTREAL

Ex-Mayor Loses in Council Fight for Control, Winning Only 9 of 35 Seats.

SWEEPING CHANGES.

Officials Estimate 19 of 88 Candidates Will Lose $500 Deposits.

MONTREAL, April 5.—(C P) — The political picture at Montreal's City Hall was completely changed today. Camillien Houde, mayor for four years, was decisively defeated yesterday by Fernand Rinfret for the Chief Magistrate's chair while the pro-Houde majority in the city council had been turned into a weak minority.

Although four candidates sought the mayoralty, the fight was solely between Messrs. Rinfret and Houde. The final vote, with all of the 1,028 polls reported, was: Rinfret, 64,556; Houde, 52,014; Seraphim Ouimet, 7,008 and O. L. Gingras, 1,913.

The sweeping changes was illustrated by comparing former Mayor Houde's vote yesterday with that of two years ago. In 1930 he received 78,917 votes and defeated Alderman Mathewson by 41,634 votes. This majority was yesterday converted into a minority of 12,542, representing a turn of 64,556 electors away from the mayor.

Leads Own Slate

In the aldermanic field Mr. Houde again led his own slate into the campaign, as he did successfully in 1930. Of the 35 seats, however, he won only 9 while 20 of his opponents were successful, 3 were elected who were unpledged but believed friendly to Rinfret, 1 was Independent and two seats were still doubtful, of which one seemed destined to the Houde ranks and one to the new administration.

Mr. Rinfret, who is a Member of Parliament and a former Dominion Cabinet Minister, was successful over Mr. Houde practically all through the city. Of the 35 wards, 31 gave Mr. Rinfret a majority, the exceptions being Notre Dame de Grace, Papineau, Rosemount and Mercier.

Mr. Houde first came into real prominence in the public field in 1928 when, comparatively unknown, he defeated the traditional Mayor of Montreal, Medéric Martin, in a bitter fight centering around the "water deal," in which the city purchased the property of the Montreal Water and Power Company.

Opposed Purchase

Houde was opposed to the purchase. In 1929 he was chosen to succeed the present Postmaster General, Hon. Arthur Sauve, as leader of the Provincial Conservative party. In 1930 he secured the largest majority ever given a mayor of Montreal, and secured control of the City Council through the election of 18 of his followers as city cuncillors.

Due to the large number of candidates who sought aldermanic honors, 88 candidates for 34 wards, a substantial sum of money was forfeit to the city by those who lost their deposits. It was estimated that 19 candidates failed to poll at least 50 per cent. of the winner's figure and surrendered their $500 deposit.

Commonwealth Expresses Deep Concern Over Attitude of Oath of Allegiance.

MUST STAND TOGETHER.

NEW YORK, April 5. (CP)—The New York Times to-day publishes the following special cable from Canberra; the Australian Government has issued the text of a note it has sent direct to the De Valera Govenment of Ieland urging it not to take any action which would weaken the Free State's ties with the British Empire.

The document has historic interest as the first important protest ever sent by one Dominion to another concerning its relationship with the Mother Country. A statement in similar terms was issued last week by Premier G. W. Forbes of New Zealand but it was sent to London.

The text of the Australian note follows:

The Commonwealth Government has observed with deep concern the situation which appears to be developing between the British government and the Irish Free State.

Australia, as a member of the British Commonwealth of nations, has co-operated with the Free State and with other sister dominions and the United Kingdom

HOOVER'S REORGANIZATION PROPOSAL IS SWAMPED

WASHINGTON, April 5 (A.P.) — President Hoover's proposal for a joint Congressional and executive commission on reorganizing the government and saving $200,000,000 to balance the 1933 U. S. budget, was buried to-day under an avalanche of Democratic opposition.

Unless Mr. Hoover submits to Congess specific recommendations for consolidating bureaus and eliminating activities, the Opposition party in Congress intends to write its own economy program. Spokesman after spokesman made this clear in the reception given Mr. Hoover's special message yesterday.

At the same time the Democratic Senate leadership has extended a hand across the aisle for co-operation with the Republicans in handling the billion dollar revenue bill just in from the House of Representatives, and the offer appears certain of welcome acceptance.

Nearly 13,000,00 pounds of woolen yarn were used in making carpets in Greece in 1931.

RHODES' BUDGET TO COME DOWN ON WEDNESDAY

Canadian National 1931 Report Shows $45,095,810 Drop in Revenues.

BILLS ADVANCED.

Government Weathers Heenan's Censure Motion by 61 to 26.

OTTAWA, April 5. (CP)—Every eye will be focused on Parliament Hill to-morrow when E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, presents the annual budget. With pocketbooks to be affected and increased taxes almost a certainty, the Dominion's financial statement will engage more than ordinary attention this year. It will be the first budget presented to the house by the present finance minister, who assumed the portfolio relinquished a few months ago by Premier R. B. Bennett. It also will be the first time in some years that a budget has been presented on a Wednesday.

The House of Commons had a diversified programme yesterday featured by the presentation of the annual report of the Canadian National Railways and two full-dress divisions in which the government had substantial majorities. In addition, estimates for one or two departments were considered, several minor bills were advanced a stage and royal assent was given in the Senate to the Unemployment Relief Act, passed through parliament last Friday.

Revenues Drop

Reflecting adverse business conditions the Canadian National report showed a reduction of operating revenues for 1931 of $45,095,810 from 1930. At the same time, resulting from drastic cutting and paring, operating expenses were reduced $26,085,904. Freight traffic, passenger services, express and telegraph departments, all recorded reduced revenues, which were offset in part by drastic slashes in operating costs. Salaries, rates of wages and hours have been reduced, the report noted, the staff of employees has been decreased; many agency stations have been closed; a severe

TREATY FAILURE LAID TO FRANCE

Reds Claim Tardieu Backed Rumania in Claim to Rule Over Bessarabia.

HINT POLAND INVOLVED.

MOSCOW, April 5. (AP) — The newspaper Isvestia charged to-day that responsibility for the failure of Russia and Rumania to agree on a non-aggressive pact was due to intervention by France.

Rumania's refusal to sign the pact unless the Soviet Government recognized Rumanian right to sovereignty over Bessarabia, the paper said, was inspired by Premier Andre Tardieu of France who has not abandoned the French intention to attack the Bolshevist state.

Knowing that Russia would not agree to relinquish its claim to Bessarabia, it said, France and Poland have made the conclusion of a Rumanian pact a condition for their agreeing to sign a pact with Russia, so as not to tie their hands on their intented anti-Soviet intervention.

300 Issues At Stake Between China, Japan

NANKING, April 5.— (A.P.) — There are more than 300 controversial issues between China and Japan, according to Chu Chia-Hua, Minister of Education in the Chinese National Government, and these are responsible for the strained relations between the two countries.

Acting as a spokesman for the government, Mr. Chu said the League of Nations Enquiry Commission discussed the most important of these issues with the government while it was here in an effort to gain some comprehension of the tangled affairs of the two nations.

He said the government was supplying the commission with an official statement which filled a whole volume.

MURDER, SUICIDE IN BOWLER CASE

Belleville Jury Render Verdict Without Leaving Seats.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES.

BELLEVILLE, April 5. — (CP) — Without leaving their seats in the court room, the jury empannelled on the inquest to enquire into the deaths of Samuel Bowler and his wife, Coral Bowler, which occurred in this city on March 29, rendered a verdict last night of murder and suicide, finding that Samuel Bowler shot his wife and later took his own life with the same weapon.

The hearing was before Dr. G. S. Cronk, coroner for the district and Margaret Bowler, 15 year old daughter of the deceased was the principal witness. She stated her mother was not home on the night previous to the shooting and that her father was in normal spirits prior to his rash act, in fact, he danced with his daughter, when a barn dance came over the radio. The witness admitted there had been a number of quarrels between the two but she had never heard her father threaten to take the life of her mother. She told of hearing and seeing the first shot fired by her father as he stood at the door of her mother's bedroom, while her mother was standing before the mirror preparing herself to leave the house for good. After that events came so swiftly she could not definitely state the sequence.

Mrs. Horace Bowler and her husband were called but could throw but little light on the tragedy as neither witnessed the shooting.

Reckless Drivers Are Social Outcasts

TORONTO, April 5. — That the Grand Jury could perform a valuable service by building up public sentiment against reckless driving was the statement made by Mr. Justice Kelly at the opening of the Spring Assizes yesterday. His Lordship, in his remarks to the Grand Jury, mentioned that there were four cases listed in which manslaughter was charged arising out of automobile accidents. He said that it was a too common thing to observe on the road a disregard on the part of automobile drivers for the rights of others. He mentioned especially the evil of cutting-in, whereby a driver's haste to gain a few seconds jeopardized the lives of many people. The reckless driver, he felt, should be put in the same class of social outcasts as the habitual drunkard.

SUDDEN HALT ON LOANS BE BAD FOR NEW ZEALAND

WELLINGTON, N.Z., April 5 (C.P. Cable).—Although New Zealand should aim at an early cessation of overseas borrowing, a sudden cessation following the contraction in national income and fall in prices would not be in the best interests of the country, to-day declared Downie Stewart, Finance Minister, discussing the new £5,000,000 loan being floated in London.

Four-fifths of the new loan will be applied to funding treasury bills maturing in June and the remaining 1,000,000 will be used to finance the drastically-reduced program of public relief works.

PUBLIC SCHOOL GUTTED BY FIRE

$25,000 DAMAGE.

TORONTO, April 5 (C.P.).—Toronto police, aided by Fire Chief Geo. Sinclair, are to-day conducting a thorough investigation into the blaze which completely gutted Hillcrest Public School last night and left more than 450 pupils without class-rooms until accommodation can be arranged.

The fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, was first discovered shortly after 10 o'clock by a passing motorist. Because of the lateness of the hour and the fact the fire started underneath the stairway in the basement, officials believed an incendiary was responsible.

Collapse of the front stairs of the building and a portion of the roof figured largely in the damage which amounted to $25,000.

JAPAN WOULD GUARANTEE PHILIPPINE NEUTRALITY

TOKYO, April 5 (C.P.). — Possession of domination of the Philippines would be as great a liability to Japan as it has been to the United States. A government spokesman said to-day, commenting on Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's suggestion that withdrawal of United States sovereignty would result in the domination of the islands by some foreign power, probably either China or Japan

The spokesman expressed the belief that the Japanese Government would willingly enter into a treaty with United States perpetually guaranteeing the neutrality and independence of the islands in the event they gain their freedom.

SIX JURYMEN ARE SELECTED

Aged Darrow Loses Clash Over Juror to Young Prosecuting Attorney.

HONOLULU LYNCHING.

HONOLULU, April 5 (C.P.). — An early legal skirmish in the trial of the Kahahawai murder case last to a youthful assistant prosecutor, the veteran Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, returned to-day to the task of selecting a jury from panels composed of a medley of races.

A dramatic clash between Darrow bent with age and slowly patient, and relentless young Barry S Ulrich ended in victory for the assistant prosecutor and the seating of a juror Darrow tried to show was biased.

Shortly befort that court fight, the 74-year-old Chicagoan lost a point to O. C. Kelley, newly appointed Public Prosecutor, when the court ruled that whether Joseph Kahahawai was innocent or guilty of an assault upon Mrs. Thalia Massie had no bearing on the case.

Mrs. Massie's mother and husband, with two sailors are on trial for the lynching of the young Hawaiian. The mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, sat during the first day of the trial on the same bench as Kahahawai's father, mother, and sister.

Massie Watches.

Nearby, Lieut. Thomas H Massie bit his lips as he watched Darrow carefully sift the minds of the jurors.

Darrow's persistence in questioning Veniremen aroused the ire of Ulrich early. The assistant prosecutor shouted angrily, "The defence counsel is putting words in the juror's mouth." when the grey-haired leader of the defence continued, despite objections, in his efforts to show Henry Beckley, Hawaiian, had already formed an opinion.

Circuit Judge Aries J. Davis permitted the veteran defender to continue his penetrating questioning. But Darrow's triumph lasted no longer than his examination of Beckley.

To-day Beckley was, as Ulrich wished, among the six tentative jurors — two Chinese, two United States citizens, a Japanese, and a Hawaiian.

Taking a personal hand in the hunt, which is enfolded in more mystery every day, he has appealed for freedom from each questioning about his movements.

GASOLINE TANK FOR BUS DEPOT

1931 AUDIT COMPLETED

Permission to set up a gasoline tank on their premises on King street was granted by the city council last night to the Border Transit Limited, operators of the local bus lines, on a motion of Alderman Turner, seconded by Alderman Phelan.

The council imposed no restrictions in this resolution, but the company's application stated that the gasoline tank was for the purpose of supplying the busses, and would be located at the door of the "hangar" for the motor fleet.

Sheriff Fred J. A. Hall reported to the council that he had completed the audit of all the city's accounts for 1931; and on Alderman Macdonald's motion, seconded by Ald. McNabb, one hundred copies will be printed.

An acknowledgment of the city's condolence was received from Sir Joseph Flavelle and the members of his family, who were recently bereaved by the death of Lady Flavelle.

Annie L. Wood, secretary of the Well Babies' Clinic, forwarded a letter of thanks to the council for the continuance of the city's support to this community work, and assured the council that the money would be used to the best advantage.

A reply from E. A. Peck, M.P., informed the council that he had referred to the Hon. Dr. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, the council's resolution urging the construction this year of the proposed new highway bridge at the Locks. In regard to J. H. Burnham's communications to the council emphasizing the need and opportunity of an air mail service for Peterborough, Mr. Peck again intimated that he would give his support to such a project providing there was some official assurance of governmental support.

The next letter on file was from Mr. Burnham, informing the council that he had written the Post Office Department, and was assured that Peterborough would be included on an air mail route at the "earliest possible opportunity."

Both letters were "received."

We Debate On "Simplicity Versus Fussiness" In Milady's Clothes

Anybody can put on a lot of cloths and jewelry. It is knowing when the stop that makes for smartness. For instance, a gown like this (1) shines like a jewel itself, and it would be sacrilege to add anything to its brilliance. Therefore the necklace and pins are dispensed with an the richness and chic of the costume is emphasized. Don't you like the little matching cap? (2) This picture tells the sad story of the girl who didn't know when to stop. The lines and color of her gown are really enough, but she didn't realize it until too late, and added a large soft flower to the shoulder and strand after strand of pearls. Gilding the lily. She doesn't look any too happy, though, so perhaps she has learned the lesson. But hurrah! She did. Here is the same girl in the same gown on another occasion and, oh, what a difference. She wears only a simple bracelet to carry out the color scheme of her frock, but what an air of sureness she now carries. Much better, isn't it? (3) Another gown which doesn't need fussing up. Its simple lines are brightened by strands of bugle bead trimming which act as jewelry, too. A diamond pin is worn inconspicuously in the centre of the bodice trimming, but no necklace, no bracelet, no rings. (4) A really elaborate costume is this sequin-studded evening gown of white crepe and short satin wrap, richly trimmed with fox. And the jewelry? Just a single earring worn to balance the one-sided line of the fox fur. Which ends the lesson, as far as these pictures are concerned, "simplicity and fussiness." Now you can practice on yourself and your own evening gowns and when in doubt remember, lean to simplicity and you will be all right.

THE LESSON OF FLORIDA.

Ross L. Dobbin, general manager of the local Utilities Commission, told an audience of Rotarians yesterday of conditions in Florida where the over-confidence of the boom years resulted in an extensive expansion that has left the State and its municipalities in a deplorable condition financially.

Communities supplies services adequate enough for ten times their population, millions were sunk in amusement places and hotels, subdivisions were opened everywhere, and there was an orgy of spending that subsequent developments proved to have been completely unjustified.

Florida is but an extreme example of the folly of which nations and individuals were guilty in the false prosperity that followed the post-war depression, and for which most of the world is now paying in distress and suffering.

Shutting its eyes to the fundamental fact that the world could not hope to indulge in the slaughter of the youth of a generation and the destruction of billions of dollars in property without eventually having to pay the price, humanity went on a spending debauch in which it created a temporary and altogether misleading sense of prosperity.

Such a condition could not endure; the spree is over, and we are now in the distressful hours of the morning after.

If our suffering causes us to sign the pledge, get down to fundamentals and build on a surer foundation, there is some hope of a better world; that is the lesson we can take from Florida and from our own experience.

WHAT WILL THE PUBLIC GET?

The intimation that the Federal Government has decided to dispense with the services of the part-time radio inspectors who have been employed in various centres to improve receptions.

The announcement should give the hundreds of thousands of Canadian set-owners some concern, particularly as there has been as yet no statement that the Government intends to substitute other interference service for the inspectors who are now being discharged.

Last year the Government collected in radio licenses something like two and one-half times as much as was expended in respect to radio facilities, and with the annual license fee now doubled, there is natural curiosity among radio enthusiasts as to what service is to be provided by Ottawa in return for the extra money that is being taken out of the pockets of the people.

The elimination of the inspection service now announced will under the circumstances cause some concern; surely it does not indicate that the Federal Government proposes to take $2 from every radio-owner in the Dominion and yet give them little or nothing in the way of service.

It may be, of course, that the department has other plans for dealing with the situation, but if that happens to be the cause the public, which is not taking very kindly to the increase in license fees, should be let into the secret.

If they were satisfied that the revenue so obtained would all go back into radio service most people would accept the increased license philosophically, but they object to paying for interference protection if none is to be provided.

THE BUDGET COMING.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Dominion Minister of Finance, informed Parliament yesterday that he will bring down his budget to-morrow so that in another twenty-four hours Canadians will know the worst that will confront them in the way of taxation burdens for the next year.

That Mr. Rhodes will propose tax increases can be taken for granted; it is regarded, for example, as certain that the sales tax, now 4 per cent., will be increased to 6 per cent., and it is also accepted as assured that the exemptions in the income tax will be decreased so as to bring many more people within the scope of this levy.

The prediction has been made in this connection that the exemption for married persons, now $3,000, will be reduced to $1,500, and in the case of single persons, from $1,500 to $750, and that the exemption for children will be lowered from $500 to perhaps $250.

At the same time it is stated that the rate will be increased, and within the last few days there have been rumors of a general 1 per cent. tax on all wages and incomes.

Just how accurate these surmises are will be known to-morrow, but at all events it is clear that Mr. Rhodes will introduce new taxation measures; nothing else could be expected in view of falling national revenues and increasing demands upon the public treasury.

It is not thought that there will be any drastic tariff changes; with the Imperial Economic Conference in the offing, Mr. Rhodes is not likely to propose any extensive alterations in the present schedule.

TOO MANY THERE NOW.

It has been suggested that as the result of Canada's increase in population, as revealed by last year's census, redistribution of the seats in the Federal Parliament will result in the opening out of ten new constituencies and bring the membership of the House of Commons to 255.

Such a development would not be very encouraging to the very many people who feel that Parliament is already too large, and that a smaller House would function more effectively and smoothly.

The need of a better method of arriving at the numerical size of the House of Commons is revealed in this probability of a 255-member Parliament after the next redistribution.

If the number of members is to be increased every time the population shows an upward jump it does not take much figuring to arrive at the conclusion that Canada's Parliament will eventually be too cumbersome for really effective service.

With nine provincial legislatures in commission as well, it is no wonder that there is a growing feeling that this country is decidedly over-governed, and that because of the overhead involved in maintaining such an army corps of legislators our tax burdens are heavier than they have any need of being.

The contributions to the debate made by some of the members of the present House suggest that both the public purse and the dignity of Parliament would be benefitted if politicians of that type could be left at home.

WHERE DOES MONEY GO?

(From the Sault Daily Star)

Where has all the money gone? Two or three years ago there were millionaires by the hundreds, any kind of stocks could be sold, and governments were disbursing with both hands. To-day money seems to have sunk into the ground.

A couple of years ago, for instance, International Nickel had a stock value of about one billion dollars, —a thousand million. To-day its value is stated to be only a fraction of that, $150,000,000.

Where did the $850,000,000 go?

The fact is it never existed except in the minds of speculators. The company is actually worth more to-day than at any time in its history. But people don't think so,—that's the difference. If the present stockholders got an idea that the company was only worth a million dollars its value would eventually sink to that amount.

There is no such thing as static wealth,—values are always changing. Even gold goes up and down in price.

The "capitalists" didn't absorb the $850,000,000 International Nickel lost in value. Nobody benefitted. Everybody lost.

So it has been with every thing that men could buy or sell, houses, cars, clothse, food, furniture, wages. All have shrunk in value. Nobody has gained what you lost in these.

As soon as people think a thing is too dear, it comes down in value. As soon as they get the idea it is worth more than the price asked for it, "demand" sends it up,—everybody wants it. Values today are as unreasonably low as they were too unreasonably high in 1929.

People who study these rises and falls of value and buy and sell them, "speculate." A shrewd speculator may get rich. It's a business just like shoemaking or carpentering.

If you are not a good shoemaker, you won't be a success at the trade. If you don't study values, and markets, and demands, and trends, and grasp the principles underlying them you will be a poor speculator. And if you are a good one and a greedy one, your greed will eventually get you. Greed always clouds judgment in the end.

THE WATCHMAN'S ANSWER.

J. L. Garvin, the editor of the (London) Observer, assumes to give answer from England's walls to the deepening question of every thoughtful lover of Britain: "Watchman, what of the night?" His heartening cry is that morning is here. The first streaks of dawn came in the transformation under the National Government beginning last autumn—a transformation not only real but magical. "If," he adds, "we could see ourselves as others see us—if we could realize vividly what they thought of us then (a few months ago) and think now—not a trace of the doubt would remain in the minds of sensible citizens."

They would cease once for all to listen to those doctrinaire pessimists or croakers for party reasons who are few enough in fact, but strive to make as much noise as the frogs of Aristophanes.

The light which began to glimmer at the great election has grown stronger, and while the day is not yet at noon it is "enough that it is morning." Mr. Silas Strawn, just back from Britain, reports that he discovered a striking change in sentiment, though business and trade conditions have improved but slightly.

Were the watchman to add a word of counsel to his bare announcement of the morning, he might use the injunction of Hecuba in "The Trojan Women" of Euripides:

Take the morning into thine heart.

But he has found as encouraging a word in plain prose.

In every way Britain this year has a better chance than any other country not only to advance with both hands the prosperity of her own affairs but to lead the world-revival.

And a new and spacious day for Britain is morning also for a land that lies to westward. We may be "called by Providence," as Cardinal Ceretti said, to play the chief part in contributing to the restoration of the "not-far-off" prosperity, but Britain is already showing us the way.—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Sit tight in your seats. The budget comes down to-morrow.

Mr. Ferguson is enthusiastic over the prospects of a successful Imperial Economic Conference. Let us hope that his usual ability to size up a situation will again be demonstrated.

With all the witnesses appearing before the radio committee of the House of Commons, there is still no cure offered for the treatment of crooners—except to tune them out.

The epidemic of fatal fires in Canada during recent weeks suggests that Fire Prevention Week should be held oftener than once a year. There is evident need of more education.

Germany's new election drive opened with three deaths. Evidently the German people take their politics seriously.

A Cleveland motorist demolished his car by crashing into a fire truck. We must speak to the department here about driving around without red rags tied to the ends of their ladders.—Detroit News.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 5.— The poor activity in butter on the local market continued over the week-end, and yesterday a complete coverage of the local brokerage elicited no selling information. Buyers were not in the market for any kind of supplies and brokers' prices were only nominal. About the only levels that could be called fair asking prices were 25c and 26c for regraded grass quality. The Montreal market showed weakness yesterday, prices in that city being 24½c to 25c for regraded receipts.

Cream

Some local cream buyers were holding their prices to shippers steady, at the opening of the week, while others concerned over the lower prices on butter were shading the previous levels 1c and better. A general range for the city was 23c to 24c for special, 22c to 23c for No. 1 and 19c to 20c for No. 2 f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

Lower prices on new cheese, quoted by brokers at the week-end resulted in reduced levels to the retail trade yesterday. Wholesalers offered new makes to the trade at ½c less, or 12½c for new large, 12¾c for twins, 13c for triplets and 15c for stiltons.

Eggs

Receipts of eggs were about normal, and with a fairly good demand prices held steady on this market. Brokers were securing slightly better levels than the low of last week-end, but the top price was on a par. Graded eggs in free cases were offered at 15½c to 16c for extras, 13½c to 14c for firsts and 13c for seconds, while retailers were quoted supplies at 20c for extras in carton, 18c for extras loose, 16c for firsts loose and 14c for seconds loose. Country shippers were offered 13c to 14c for extras, 11c to 12c for firsts and 9c to 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 5.—Impelled by unexpected big shrinkage of the United States visible supply total by distressing expansion of drought area, wheat prices shot upward anew yesterday.

A reduction of 5,836,000 bushels in the domestic visible stock of wheat during last week was shown to be the heaviest weekly reduction on record since 1890, except for the week ending May 10, 1930 and in the war period, 1916 to 1919. Urgent need of rain throughout the entire United States hard winter wheat belt was indicated, and there were also advices of serious deficiency of sub-soil moisture over a large part of the spring wheat region of this country and of Canada as well.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅝c to 1⅝c above Saturday's finish; corn, unchanged to ⅛c higher; oats, ¾c to ⅞c up, and provisions, unchanged to 5c off.

LIVERPOOL QUOTATIONS

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 5.—A slightly firmer tone was in evidence in the egg market here yesterday. Car lots or less of graded fresh eggs from either Ontario or the Prairies were quoted at 18c to 19c for extras, up 1c; 16c to 17c for firsts, and mostly 15c for seconds. Ungraded local receipts were 2c to 3c under these levels. Receipts were light, amounting to 835 cases.

Th butter market remained quiet, with prices tending a little easier, due to continued absence of demand. Regraded No. 1 butter ranged from 24c to 25c per pound, with the general market quoted at 24½c. Jobbing house asked 27c for solids and 28c for prints from retailers. Receipts were 476 boxes.

Cheese receipts remained light, only 34 boxes arriving. Prices were unchanged.

The potato market was quiet and unchanged.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 5. — Firm at the outset by strong Liverpool wheat quotations, the grain market later made fresh advances on the strength of bullish statistics and reports of damage in the southwest winter wheat belt. At the close, prices rested ½c to ⅝c higher for the day.

May and July each registered ½c gain at 63c and 64⅞c, respectively; October closed ⅝c to ½c higher at 67¼c to 67⅝c.

Export business in Canadian wheat was restricted. Advices from seaboard, however, reported a good foreign trade in United States hard winters. Pit offerings at no time were pressed and this exerted an influence in the firm tone of the market.

Demand Improving.

Substantial decreases were noted in the North American wheat visible supplies. The United States total dropped 5,750,000 bushels last week, confirming the improved demand for North American wheat.

World shipments of wheat and flour for the week ending Saturday amounted to 15,619 000 bushels, compared with 13,895,000 bushels for the previous week. Of this amount Canada and the United States furnished 6,114,000 bushels, the largest movement from this continent in many weeks.

Barley for export featured cash wheat trade, with spreads on all grains practically unchanged. Coarse grains moved in sympathy with wheat.

INSTALMENT 17.

Gilda had met out of town friends, Ellen's common sense argued, who'd gone to her house and found she wasn't home as yet; and who'd driven to the subway, to wait for her. And surprised her. That was why she had screamed, if she had screamed. The youngsters' testimony was probably not very reliable, that was all.

But in the morning she still remembered. The little gnawing at her brain was not to be quieted. She went to the Esposito shop at the noon hour, wondering what she would say. She'd say nothing. A friendly call—I happened to be in the neighborhood, something like that.

Esposito was not inside the shop, nor his wife. The helper jerked a thumb upstairs. Outside, as she entered, she saw Mike's taxi standing, waiting——

She went upstairs, thoughtfully. Mike didn't, as a rule, get home for dinner. Why should the sight of the taxi have filled her with such an unreasoning anxiety?

She knocked at the door. No answer. She knocked again. She could hear voices. She pressed herself against the panels. Now she could hear weeping. She knocked again. "It's Ellen Adams," he called, and then, the sesame that had opened so many closed doors ——"the visiting nurse."

The door opened. Mike looked out at her, stocky, short Mike with the heavy shoulders and the friendly smile. He wasn't smiling now. And his eyes were bloodshot.

He said, "Come in," and looked beyond her as if he expected to see something——he didn't know exactly what——or whom.

Mrs. Esposito was crying, there in the corner. She had a shawl dragged over her head and eyes. She was crying noisily, she was rocking to and fro. The air was blue with cigarette smoke. Esposito explained, coming forward, trying to smile. "You must excuse my wife, she is upset——"

Ellen asked, "Gilda?"

Mike came closer so suddenly, so almost tigerishly, that she drew back. Esposito touched her shoulder. He jerked his head at Mike. The door closed. Was locked. Ellen said, steadily, as the apron fell from Mrs. Esposito's hands and exposed her distorted, her entirely terrible face——"It is Gilda, isn't it? Did she come home last night?"

There was a dreadful silence. Esposito then said, "No," heavily. "No," he repeated after a minute. "She didn't come home."

"I saw her," said Ellen, "that's why I came. I——'

"Where——where!" They were crowding around her. Mrs. Esposito understanding, was clitching at her with frantic hands, "mia figlia, mia figlia——"

Ellen reconstructed, briefly, tersely, the entire swift scene as she had seen it.

To her astonishment, after Mike's rapid translation to his mother, there were no exclamations. Nothing. There was simply silence. Then Esposito said, "It is as we thought."

"What did you think?" Ellen asked. "You mean, you thought she had been—been kidnapped? But no, in this day and age, a grown girl——that's too absurd." She knew it wasn't absurd. One read of such things every day, one heard of them.

There was still no answer. Mrs. Esposito was crying again. Ellen heard a name repeated over and over. "Fontano—Fontano—"

There were other words—which Ellen heard and understood and tried to piece together—the word disgrazia—too soft in sound for its bitter meaning; the sombre word morte——

"Brutto!" raved Mrs. Esposito.

Mike turned on his mother. What he said must have shocked her into silence. She sat there rocking, the shawl over her face.

This was a mad household; mad in their curious, secretive way. Ellen spoke decisively. She addressed Esposito. She asked, "You think she has been kidnapped by some one? Why didn't you go to the police, last night?"

He said, "What good would that do, and shrugged. They wouldn't believe us. They'd say she was—that she went—of her own accord—I know."

"Then I'll go," Ellen cried at him, "as soon as I can. And take those boys with me, the boys who saw the car. One says he heard her scream. Oh, why didn't I come here, last night?" she said. "Think of the hours we have wasted."

Mike said, "What's the use? This is our job; we'll see it through." His dark strong hands were curled into fists. Esposito laid a hand on his arm.

"Wait—if—if she can do anything?"

Ellen cried, "Of course I can, Mike, be sensible. This isn't Italy, Sicily, this is America. You don't have to bother with vendettas and things while meantime—meantime—Gilda—Let me go to the police—and see what I can do. I'll go alone. And——"

Suddenly she put her arms about Mrs. Esposito, kneeling beside her, there on the floor, while the two men stood back, silent, unhappy——

"Mia figlia—mia figlia—"

"I know. We'll bring her back," said Ellen, "but first you must help, you must tell me what you know, and what you suspect."

There was no immediate reply. After a long time, during which she alternately pleaded and commanded, bringing her every natural resource of eloquence and tact and understanding to bear on the situation, Mike spoke, with the sullenness of shame.

"It was Fontana——" he said—— "if she wouldn't marry him——"

He left the sentence unfinished, and relapsed into his painful brooding silence. Ellen looked from one to the other. Esposito's dark face was rigid, his features carved from some swarthy metal in which only his eyes lived. His wife's face, by now almost unrecognizable.

"That," argued Ellen sharply, "is absurd——but——" she turned to Mike. "Have you tried to see Fontana, do you know where he lives?"

"I know. He ain't there," answered Mike heavily. "No one knows where he is."

He added, after a moment. "If they did, they wouldn't tell. He's up to his thick neck in some racket or other." He clamped his lips; and said no more.

"Gilda never like him." Esposito added. "I forbade him to come here. He is not for Gilda."

"Mia figlia," wailed Mrs. Esposito, monotonously—and then clutching at an English word, childish, tragic, she said—"spoiled"—and was silent, rocking.

A quiver passed over Esposito's iron face. Mike cursed, under his breath. Ellen rose.

"I'll report to my office," she said, "and get leave to go to the police station. After school, when I can round up those two boys."

Some one, possibly Esposito said heavily "Too late——"

She whirled on her heel at that, gray eyes enormous.

"No," she said, "you are not to think it. No matter what has happened."

She turned to Mike. "You come with me," she said, "or your father." And then, "No, meet me there," she looked at her watch "say at four o'clock. She frowned and bit her lip. So much precious time wasted. "Go on before that" she said, changing her mind. "I'll come as soon as I se the boys. Meantime, tell your story."

She made her way back to the office swiftly, spoke briefly to Miss Renwick. Miss Renwick nodded. The Espositos belonged, in a manner of speaking to her, to them all. Ellen must, and would, do what she thought best.

Ellen picked up a telephone and called the police station. She spoke to the lieutenant, at length, trying to explain. He knew her, he knew her organization. She hung up. "He'll put a detective right on the case," she reported, "Sarpia, an Italian."

She got her calls and went out, stopping for a malted milk at a drug store. When school let out she was waiting in the stationer's shop. She had explained to the bent, agile man who ran it. When the boy came in, unkempt, whistling, his father spoke to him sharply. "You go with the lady, see, and tell what you know. The other boy, that was Jake, wasn't it? Find him too."

Something of a triumph. "I don't want we should be mixed up in this," the stationer told Ellen. It's not good to be mixed up with the police."

"The boys have no responsibility," Ellen had assured him, "beyond telling what they saw. That's all they'll be needed for. She had argued half despairing, but finally he had given in.

With the two boys, important and excited, in tow, she went to the precinct station house. It was not the first time she had appeared there. The genial lieutenant at the desk greeted her. There were people milling about the room, people were waiting. It was close, it smelled of smoke. The Espositos were not there. She looked around. No they had not come, said the lieutenant Scarpia had been to the house. He hadn't come back. He listened, frowning, to her story.

Now Scarpia came in, a good looking Italian, a plan clothesman. He took Ellen and the boys into the rear office. Two desks, telephones, cuspidors, walls covered with handbills photographs of wanted men.

For the second time Ellen told her tale. The boys told their, disagreeing on one point. "She hollered" insisted the younger boy, Jake firmly. "I didn't hear no holler," said the stationer's boy, as firmly.

Scarpia leaned back in his chair. "There's nothing," he said, "to be gotten out of the family. I tried. It seems they have changed their minds. They weren't coming around, She'd come back, they said. I couldn't do a thing with them. These wops are all alike, he said, in easy scorn of his own, "scared to death to come to the police. They'd rather shoot it out, among themselves—stab it out."

Ellen said, distressed, "Something has to be done, don't you understand that? The girl must be brought back, the man found." She repeated what Mike had said to her. Scarpia shook his sleek black head. "We've nothing on him, this Fontana. He hasn't got a record."

GOLDS ARE INACTIVE.

TORONTO, April 5 (C.P.)—With followers awaiting the appearance of the Dominion budget tomorrow, the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market gave an unusually dull performance in the forenoon to-day. Developments across the border and possibility of similar tax levies here has engendered a feeling of uncertainty, and traders are withholding commitments.

Noranda, which has not exercised its option on the Matthews property in the Pascalis goal area, was off 25 to $16.75, and International Nickel fell 35 from last night's final to $7.80. In the oil section Chemical Research recovered 10 to $1.35 but Ajax Oil was off 4 to 90, and Petrol Oil 3 to 15.

Movements in the golds were insignificant, Alexandria showing the only change with a fractional loss to 3.

GALT LOPS HALF MILL OFF 1931 RATE OF 44

GALT, April 5.—While the City Council last night struck the mill rate for 1932 at 43½ mills, a reduction of half a mill, it was learned to-day that this was only made possible through the action of civic employees in donating a percentage of their salaries in the interest of reduced taxation.

The city hall staff, police, firemen and other officials are donating 5 per cent of their salaries over $1,000, public school teachers 2½ per cent of their salaries, and high school teachers 5 per cent, and even the aldermen themselves have agreed to take a 5 per cent. cut.

As a result of the city's percentage toward Old Age Pensions having been cut in half, the city is saving $6,300 on this item alone, which amounts to a half mill.

BROADCASTING HISTORY IS TOLD

dependent of political interefererence. The Board of Governors were appointed by leaders of the various parties in the House of Commons, and they were selected not for any particular abilities they possessed or their standing in the various professions or occupations, but for their broad cultural background and mature judgment.

The governors are paid annual salaries ranging from three thousand pounds for the chairman, one thousand for the vice-chairman, and seven hundred each for the others. The board meets weekly with the chief executive, Sir John Reith, in attendance. The chairman and chief executive work together between meetings.

Sub-committee and advisory boards specializing in various problems of broadcasting worked with the chief executive throughout Britain.

Powerful Stations

With the powerful stations that have now been established as against the old low power stations, the B.B.C. now can broadcast two national programs simultaneously, as well as several regional programs. Empire broadcasting is to be undertaken by the B.B.C. on a large scale, and a new short-wave station for this purpose will be in operation at the end of this year, Major Murray said.

The B. B. C. carries on an extensive programme of school education by radio under the guidance of a council of educationists. Over 6,000 schools are equipped with standard receiving apparatus. There is also a council directing adult radio education.

The policy of the B. B. C., as summed up by Major Murray, was to provide wholesome entertainment on the widest basis and in the greatest variety possible, with particular attention to music of all kinds, and without prejudicing in any way the priority of entertainment values, to make a continuous and cumulative contribution to good citizenship.

While in England the operation of small regional stations was restricted by the size of the district covered by the B.BC. Major Murray say no reason why the small stations should not be retained in a country the size of Canada.

Want Outside Programs

British listeners were interested in exchanging programs with America and did considerable of this with the United States. Under the arrangement the charge was borne by the country of orgin, each country taking its regular turn in providing the empire broadcast. British listeners appreciated most programs reflecting typical cultural life of the people, such as French Canadian folk songs, music and the work of the newer composers and creative artists of the country of origin.

Major Murray would express no view as to the time it would take to develop television but said his corporation considered it worth constant investigation.

DEPRECIATION RATE ON GAS IS GREATER IN U. S.

British American Oil Officials Appear Before Parliamentary Committee.

84% CANADIAN OWED.

Company is Not Controlled By Imperial Oil Declares President.

OTTAWA, April 5. (C.P.)—Officials of the British American Oil Co. Ltd., were present this morning at the resumption of the investigation by the banking and commerce committee of the House of Commons into the alleged high price of gasoline in Canada as compared with the prices prevalent in the United States.

A statement revealing the nature of the capital set up of the company was made by its president, A. L. Ellsworth, at the outset of the investigation.

A contention, not hitherto offered by officials of other companies before the committee, with regard to increased cost of operation in Canada, was made by Mr. Ellsworth. The depreciation rates allowed by the United States treasury are greater than those of the Dominion of Canada, asserted Mr. Ellsworth.

84% Canadian Owned

It was estimated that 84 percent of the capital of the company was owned in Canada. Of the 1,591,603 registered shares of the company, 1,301,857 were held in Canada, 23,037 in Britain, 265,701 in the United States and 1,008 elsewhere.

I want to deny most emphatically the opinion that the British American Oil Co. is controlled by the Imperial Oil Co. There is the keenest competition between us, said Mr. Ellsworth.

Who sets the prices of gasoline throughout the country, asked Dr. Thomas Donnelly, (Lib., Willow Bunch).

The Imperial Oil company sets them excepting in isolated cases, and I believe their prices are fair to the company, the distributor and the consumer, replied Mr. Ellsworth.

Financial Statement.

Statements as to cost of production were then given the committee by H. H. Brondson, comptroller of the British American Oil Company.

In 1931 the company's gross profit from all sources was $4,415,745; its depreciation allowance was $1,138,328; its Dominion income tax was $302,000; its interest payable on debentures was $244,485, leaving net earnings at $2,730,930.

In the same year it sold 89,270,365 gallons, of which 44,868,536 gallons were refined by the company. A great proportion of the remainder was bought from the Imperal Oil for use in the West. Including all products, the company sold 120,295,863 gallons in 1931.

The company had refineries in Toronto and in Montreal. Common labor was slightly cheaper in Montreal than in Toronto, but skilled labor in Montreal was a little higher than in Toronto. The wages in both the Canadian cities were considerably in excess of those paid by a refinery in Pennsylvania.

There has been no cut in wages in the major gasoline companies of Canada that I know of, declared Mr. Ellsworth. He admitted that comparing the general standard of the two countries the wages were about the same.

POLAR EXPLORER GOES ON TRIAL

Seaman Charges Captain Bernier Perjured Himself on Ship's Loss.

EQUIPMENT REMOVED.

QUEBEC, April 5 (C.P.)—Three witnesses were heard yesterday as the prosecution rested its case in the preliminary trial of Captain J. E. Bernier, famed Canadian Polar explorer, charged with perjury in connection with statements made during an investigation of the loss of the steamer Guide in the Godbout River, in 1926. The charge, which was laid by Raoul Harvey, seaman, alleges that Captain Bernier perjured himself during the enquiry by swearing that the steamer Guide was completely equipped at the time of the transference of her ownership from Capt. Bernier to the St. Lawrence Company.

Edmond Picard, Montreal sailor, testified that in 1914-15, acting under orders from Capt. Bernier, he cut and removed some of the lead pipes from aboard the Guide, which the explorer used for several northern expeditions, previous to her sale. Picard stated these pipes had been taken to the captain's private rooms.

Saw Disconnected Pipes

Capt. Ambroise Landry, harbor master at Quebec, who also accompanied Capt. Bernier on an Arctic voyage, stated under oath, he had seen the disconnected pipes and had also seen a number of lengths in the attic of Capt. Bernier's home and others in the hatch of the Guide. In his opinion, an emergency pump at the rear of the boat had been removed as well as the service pipes connected with it.

The Dominion Wreck Commissioner, Capt. L. A. Demers, was asked by the court to produce the evidence which he heard during the Guide enquiry. Capt. Demers stated he would furnish the court with the documents as soon as they could be secured from Ottawa.

EASTER OFFERING OF ALPHA CIRCLE

St. Andrew's United Church Society Holds Meeting on Monday.

The Easter Thankoffering meeting of the Alpha Mission Circle of St. Andrew's United Church was held last evening, presided over by the president, Mrs. F. G. McNeely. Supper arrangements were in charge of Miss Alice Cocks and Mrs. C. H. Phillips.

After business matters had been disposed of, the Easter Lesson was read by Miss Margaret Cameron. The girls then took part in Chain Prayer, which was followed by a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross", very feelingly sung by Mrs. Sherritt. An enlightening talk on Ancestor Worship was given by Mrs. Edward Thomson, after which the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Retail Merchants Planning Meeting

Annual meeting of the Retail Merchants' Section of the Chamber of Commerce is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce Council Room on the evening of April 11, for the election of officers and such other business as may come before the meeting.

The chairman, W. H. Freel, wishes to point out that in the interests of the retail merchants themselves a large turnout is desirable. Reports covering the past year's activity will be received and the policy for the ensuing year will be determined.

Among other things that are to come under discussion will be a general advertising scheme for putting over "The Give a Man a Job" campaign and the "Paint and Clean Up" campaign.

is removing constitutional difficulties which have arisen upon the development of the altered status of the sister nations within the Commonwealth and had hoped that as a result of the Imperial Conference of 1926 and 1930 and the adoption of the Statute of Westminister by the governments of the United Kingdom and the Dominions a position would have been reached where the full co-operation of self-governing peoples under a common crown would have been achieved.

Deplorable Actions

That any difference of opinion should arise which would tend to weaken the unity of the British commonwealth of nations would be profoundly deplored by the people of Australia. In addition to the many ties which bind Australia to the United Kingdom and her sister dominions, Australia is proud to number among her citizens a large proportion of people of Irish birth who might be vitally affected by any constitutional change involving their rights and privileges as citizens of a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

In view of these considerations and of the fact that the British commonwealth of nations—composed of self-governing peoples with sovereign rights—has been built up by the united efforts and willing co-operation of this great group sister nations, the Commonwealth Government earnestly hopes no action will be taken that could endanger the existing unity of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the relationship of the Irish Free State to the sister dominions and the United Kingdom.

France has a campaign urging citizens to be patriotic and buy French autoombiles.

RENNELL ROBB QUITS DUTIES

Distinguished Diplomat Feels Destinies of Britain in Safe Hands.

CONSERVATIVE M.P.

LONDON, April 5 (C.P. Cable).—Sir Rennell Robb, who has had a distinguished diplomatic career and has been Conservative Member of the House of Commons for St. Marylebone, London, since April, 1928, to-day announced his retirement. He stated he had contemplated this step for more than a year but had agreed then to continue temporarily.

"We have turned the most difficult corner," he wrote, "and I feel the country is safe and its destinies are in most capable hands."

Sir Rennell brought into the House a kind of experience and knowledge possessed by few other members, for an ambassador of long service was previously an unfamiliar figure in the Commons. His contributions to important debates were invariably marked by an urbanity and frankness which was in strong contrast to the imposing and aloof air which might have been expected from one to whom the chancelleries of Europe were familiar.

In the last general elections Sir Rennell was re-elected with a majority of 33,829 in a straight fight with Dr. E. A. Whitfield, Labor.

COUNCIL GRANT REDUCED $25.00 TO SOCIETY IS Annual Grant to Seymour Agricutural Society Meets With Opposition.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Harry Redden Granted Use of Stone Crusher and Machinery.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 4.—Opposition to the $325 grant that the town of Campbelford makes annually to the Seymour Agricultural Society was met last evening at the regular session of the town council when Councillor E. C. McKeel opposed the grant on the grounds that the chief liquid asset of the town was the tax roll and he thought that the money for this grant should not be taken out of the pockets of the people. Although his opposition did not meet with succes the grant was reduced from $325 to $300

The question was opened when a delegation from the Agricultural Society addressed the council asking for the annual assistance. This was composed of G. A. Kingston, W. J. Abernethy and T. J. Horkins.

Mr. Kingston explained the nature of the request stating that the annual exhibition was the one big community affair of the year and had always been supported by the two municipalities. Membership was drawn from the town as well as the township and it needed the co-operation of both areas to make it a success. T. J. Horkins thought it a matter of good business to invest the money in the society as he stated it all went back to the town in labor and business. The society was behind this year due mostly to hard times and the fact that every prize last year was taken, yet the society met every obligation and paid the prize money in full.

Councillors McKeel opposed the grant, stating that he believed in spending money when the council was getting dollar for dollar. The town was in a critical financial condition at the present time with a large amount of tax arrears and as the taxes were the only liquid assets the town had he did not believe in increasing the burden of the tax payer.

Evolving out of the discussion that followed a motion to reduce the grant to $300 was carried. This was by Deputy Reeve N. A. MacColl and Councillor A. D. Bennett.

The absence of the late Reeve J. N. Stone was felt by the council as a whole in their deliberations and opening the session, Mayor J. M. Bygott brought the council to order and stood in silence as a tribute to the departed member, after a few words of praise in which he extolled the late reeve for his faithfulness in his public duties.

A skirmish opened the business when with the reading of the minutes of a special meeting held Mar. 24, Councillor McKeel drew the attention of the mayor to the fact that he did not know that there had been a meeting of the council on that date. He pointed out that he had been elected by the people as their representative and should at least have been notified of the meeting, questioning the reason for this omission.

This was also the case with Councillor F. F. Long who declared he had known nothing of the meeting until he had been questioned on the street reagrding it. Councillor N. Thompson also was not notified but he happened to be ill at the time.

Answering Councillor McKeel, Mayor Bygott stated that the meeting had been called in a hurry for the purpose of passing a resolution authorizing the application for the extention of the direct relief grant. All that was necessary was a quorum to do this piece of business. he said that it was the chairman of the Relief Committee who drew his attention to the need of a meeting in quick time. He was sorry however that it had happened and to straighten out the matter a motion was passed sponsored by Deputy Reeve MacColl and Councillor Thompson, that the action taken at the special meeting of the council be ratified.

Municipal insurance was again taken out with the Globe Indemnity Company, this year's premium being increased from $176.33 to $211.60. This increase was explained by Mr. Baines of the company who stated that the loss ratio in Campbellford had been very high during the past two years.

In 1930 a total of $542.42 had been paid and in 1931 $299.50, making for the two years a loss ratio of over 100%.

After Stone Contract

It may be on the boards that some work will be had in Campbellford this year, if Harry Redden obtains a government contract for the supply of crushed stone to be used on the Brighton-Campbellford highway. Appearing before the council he sought permission to hire the town crusher to fulfil this contract if he obtains it. The request that he gets the use of the crushed, motor and elevator was granted on motion of Councillors O'Sullivan and McKeel, the rental being set at $3 a day when in use, all repairs to be done by Mr. Redden.

A matter affecting the police department was broached by D. J. Lynch, town solicitor, who sought the advice of the council regarding a prosecution on a liquor charge, the case being based on a government analysis report. Deputy Reeve MacColl brought a discussion to a head when he stated that he thought there was not the co-operation between the police and the solicitor that there should be.

He thought that the services of the solicitor should be obtained at all times by the police and advise sought in the matter of prosecutions and moved that the solicitor be instructed to act at all times with the chief of police in any affair relative to the L.C.A., the Highway Traffic Act and the Municipal Act. This was sponsored by Councillor Long and carried.

Two by-laws were passed at this meeting, one ratifying the renting by the town of the old town hall to the Water and Light Commission Board on a five year lease and the other ratifying the new agreement between Chief G. C. Bromley and the town.

Salary Cut Defeated

Salary cuts again came under discussion when Councillor O'Sullivan stated that he thought the bandmaster, W. Pearson, was getting too much money and advocated a 20% cut. The salary is $600 a year. He realized the need for a band in the town he said, but thought that there were many other employees of the town not getting half this amount. Councillor Bennett seconded this motion for a reduction, which however was lost.

The Council called on Commissioner J. O. Benor, who was present and is a member of the band, to speak on this subject. He declared that if it were not for Mr. Pearson there would be no band in Campbellford. He was training new men free of charge all the time, and many of the instruments used in the band were his personal property. Very few of the towns instruments were any good, many of the bandsmen possessing their own.

Councillor McKeel was authorized to take action in regard to a prospective milling concern that might be persuaded to locate in Campbellford.

The auditor's report was presented by Deputy-Reeve MacColl and accepted by the Council, no copies being ordered printed this year, being ordered printed this year, however, this being a measure of economy. The clerk was also instructed to advertise for the position of tax collector for the ensuing year.

A letter signed by H. Aylesworth on behalf of the family of the late Reeve Stone acknowledging the kindness of the Council was received and filed.

On the request of the Campbellford Public Library the annual grant to that body was reduced from $1,650 to $1,550. This came as an appreciated surprise to the Council and showed the spirit of co-operation that is being practised by all civic bodies during this period of depressed business. The grant was approved.

It is possible that Campbellford may have another billiard room in town as well as a bowling alley, if the request for a license for the operation of these two amusements, made by Gordon McLean of Belleville, is granted. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee, who were given power to act in the matter.

Deputy-Reeve MacColl brought up the matter of the necessity of a public toilet in town for the convenience of out-of-town visitors. This was felt to be a great need, and although no plans were discussed, the matter was turned over to the Property Committee for consideration and consultation with the Seymour Township Council.

ROTARY CLUB NOMINATIONS

Roy Smith is Speaker at Rotary Luncheon Telling of Banking System.

ELECTION IN MAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Nominations for the 1932-1933 slate of officers of the Campbellford Rotary Club were featured at the regular luncheon held yesterday, and at which Roy Smith, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal gave a classification address.

The nomination resulted in the names of the following members being elected to stand for election for the offices of president, secretary-treasurer, and two directors E. C. Dolman, Elie Brunelle C. B. Williams, A. D. Bennett, S. H. Neale, and G. A. Kingston. The scrutineers were A. J. Armour and T. J. Craighead. The election will take place some time in May.

Mr. Smith, who spoke on practical banking, kept away from the subject of economies, declaring that many people to-day were getting a little tired of the subject and relative themes. Canadian banks, he said, obtain their charter to do business direct from the Dominion Government, the only contact with the Provincial Government being the provincial tax which is levied on all branches. In some provinces these taxes are high, such as in Manitoba where the smaller bank branches are levied $500 annually.

The functions of the banking business are controlled by the Bank Act, which itself is revised periodically, and is very efficient in its workings. All business is fixed in nature, which is sometimes not understood by the public who think in some cases, such as public holidays, that the banks please themselves in their actions These holidays are fixed by the Bank Act, however, and must be obeyed.

The function of a bank are varied, the speaker said perhaps the most important being the safeguarding of deposits entrusted to their care.

The banker, Mr. Smith said was concerned more with the liquid assets of a business, assets that can be realized on. Speaking on the question of the failure of companies he stated that the causes for this can be roughly divided in two—incompetence and bad management. There were other minor causes, however, such as the using of out-of-date equipment, dishonesty, unsuitable business locations, lack of working capital, and the failures of others. Many business failures were due to the adoption of wrong policies.

Speaking of the head office of the bank as distinct from the main office, he said that it was composed of the executive offices of the bank in question and consisted of supervising departments.

A two-minute talk on "Facts About Canada" was given by T. J. Craighead, in which he compared the Dominion with other nations, and enlarged on the status of this country, declaring that the one great thing necessary to-day was faith in Canada and her people.

The report, signed by Sir Henry Thornton, the president, struck at motor and bus competition. Unrestricted and unregulated use of these (public) highways for commercial purposes, will, if continued, have serious repercussions, it said.

R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, also tabled the annual report of the government merchant marine. The year's operation resulted in a deficit of $44,285, compared with $834,210 in 1930. In the same manner as the government-owned railway, the marine subsidiary pared operating expenses to the bone but revenues dropped $1,375,674 from the previous year. The fleet now consists of 29 vessels.

Confidence in Bennett.

In the course of the day, the House voted confidence in the Bennett government 61 to 26 when it turned down a Liberal motion censuring the minister for its unemployment relief efforts. Peter Heenan, former Minister of Labor, introduced the motion more than a month ago but debate was sidetracked due to the long discussion over the unemployment relief act. The entire ginger group left the Chamber when division bells resounded, refusing to vote for or against the government.

In the other division of the day, the Government had a majority of 47. E. R. E. Chevrier, Lib., Ottawa, introduced an amendment which would have the effect of killing the government bill slashing by ten per cent civil servant salaries and indemnities of members and senators. After its defeat, second reading was given the bill.

SECRECY CLOAKS

Henry Breckenridge, climbed over a back fence at Newark airport and sped away in a borrowed plane capable of 180 miles an hour.

Late in the afternoon a plane identfied by its number as the craft carrying Lindbergh was seen cruising over Martha's Vineyard Island. It was in this vicinity also that Col. Lindbergh was reported seen flying Sunday, with three other men. Residents of the island said the four had enquired for a small yacht, "Sallie."

When Lindbergh and Breckinridge started their flight yesterday, they carried a suitcase and a blanket. Many conjectures arose as to the reason for this, but none was verified.

Dr. John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University, who called at the Lindbergh home, with his wife, said an air of optimism prevailed. Mrs. Hibben said Mrs. Lindbergh was bearing up well.

Curtis Disappears

John Hughes Curtis, one of three Norfolk, Va., intermediaries, who believe they have established contact with the kidnappers, was away from his home on another mysterious journey that has lasted since Saturday. There were reports, unconfirmed, that he also had headed for Martha's Vineyard.

Developments in the police hunt in this country were absent, so far as the public was informed. In Great Britain, Major Charles H. Schoeffel of the New Jersey police, conferred with Scotland Yard, then started for Glasgow. In that city lives the mother of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse. Inasmuch as police have repeatedly declared they were satisfied with Miss Gow's response to questioning, this move was another of the many mysteries in the case.

2,000 PANES OF GLASS IN BIG LONDON CRASH

Old Conservatory at Botanic Gardens Wrecked in One Pull

London.—A mighty crash of falling glass startled the seagulls in Regent's Park the other day. The noise awoke the men who were dozing on the seats and nursemaids rushed to the scene, and stood spellbound by the sight of men pulling down the great conservatory at the Royal Botanic Gardens.

Over 2,000 panes of glass were shattered and there is now hardly anything to be seen of the great conservatory which housed so many rare flowers and plants, and was one of the great show places of London.

The safest and easiest way of demolishing the conservatory was to drag it down with ropes attached to a 10-ton winch. First the roof and walls were cut away by acetylene burning, and then the loosened parts fell or were dragged down.

Most of the glass in the smaller conservatories will be removed without being smashed.

The Royal Botanic Society's lease of the inner circle was not renewed by the government, and the gardens are being laid out by the office of works, and will be opened to the public in the spring.

Mrs. Harper was a well known and higly respected lady, of sterling worth and fine Christian character, a member of the United church, and in former years was identified with choir work in connection with Bethany (Macklin's) church. CAMPBELLFORD, April 5.—The remains of the late Walter James Latta were laid to rest today (Tuesday) in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford, after a service conducted by the Rev. Mr. Brunt of Springbrook United Church circuit in the family residence at Healey Falls.

The deceased died on Sunday at his Healey Falls home, aged 58 years and six months. Born at Latta Mills, Hastings County, he has been a resident of Seymour township for many years, being the cheesemaker at Woodland's factory and other plants for a long time. Ill health some four years ago forced him to partially retire, the family moving to Healey Falls where a small farm was operated.

Surviving are the widow, one son Cyril of London, Ont., and one daughter, Mrs. H. McConnell of Hastings.

ALEXANDER WILSON.

MILLBROOK, April 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of Alexander Wilson, who passed away on Thursday, March 31, in his sixty-fourth year, after an illness of several weeks, was held on Saturday at 2 p.m., from his late residence, King Street West, the Rev. William Simpson, B.A., rector of the parish of Cavan, having charge of the services at the home and graveside. Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., who was to have assisted with the service, was prevented on account of illness.

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, the family homestead having been on the boundary between Cavan and Manvers Townships, and was one of a family of six sons and two daughters (twins), only three of whom, Robert of Bridgenorth, Joseph of Marden, Manitoba, and Thomas of Manvers Station, now survive.

Thirty-seven years ago next July Mr. Wilson was united in marriage to Minnie McBrian their first home being between Manvers Station and Bethany, but more than thirty years since removal was made to Millbrook, where they have continued to reside ever since. Deceased was a Conservative in politics and in business a carpenter exceptionally clever in the use of tools, several households in the communities where he has resided possessing articles of furniture that are fine examples of his ability in design and execution.

PARLIAMENT BITTERLY SCORED FOR ITS CAPACITY FOR FOLLY AMOUNTS TO NATIONAL SCANDAL

"The Holy Show of Parliament," Subject of Journal's Editorial.

LEADERS ARE BLAMED

In Two Months Practically Nothing Done at Ottawa But Talk.

The Ottawa Journal in its leading editorial on Saturday severely criticizes the politicians at Ottawa for the way affairs have been conducted in the House of Commons since the opening of the present session. The editorial is entitled 'THE HOLY SHOW OF PARLIAMENT,' and is as follows:

"Parliament's capacity for folly and futility amounts to a national scandal. In two months it has done little but make a holy show of itself, has exhibited such a pathetic sterility of common sense as to make the average Canadian or any believer in representative government blush in humiliation.

"All over Canada business interests look for leadership or action. In every town and city clear across the country thousands of men are unemployed. Everywhere municipalities and social agencies are striving to house and feed and employ hungry, workless men and women. And often they don't succeed. Yet while this is going on, while thousands of the distressed plead for aid, we have the spectacle of Parliament in a pitiable sort of buffoonery, so impotent and so helpless, that people have come to regard it as little but a grim joke. In two months it has done practically nothing but talk."

Unemployment Relief

"Take its record on unemployment relief. For more than three weeks the country has been treated to a sham battle, a miserable spectacle of parliamentary leaders apparently more concerned with their own petty notions and vanities and silly imaginings than with the job in hand. We have had Mr. King, strutting about and possibly fancying himself as a Pym or a Hampden, posing as the champion of Parliament's rights, insisting that no moneys be voted for relief unless Parliament stipulates the amount. Mr. King is so much more concerned with this counterfeit constitutionalism than with the business of the country he stands willing to "accept any figure," provided he is conceded his silly point. What matters the treasury?

"Almost equally stubborn in silliness is the Government. Mr. Bennett must have his "blank cheque." Tweedledum and Tweedledee, since the same amount of money will be spent in either case. But Mr. Bennett thinks he has to fight the gang leaders across the way or lose caste.

"All this would be laughable if it weren't so pathetic. So pitably degrading of Parliament.

"The Journal says this to Mr. King and Mr. Bennett: That is they half realized or suspected what the ordinary man in the street thinks of their cheap theatricalism, of all this whole stupid sham fight, they wouldn't take themselves so seriously. For the man in the street doesn't give a tinker's curse whether relief money is provided by a vote of Parliament or by a "blank cheque." And neither does the country. The day of hero-worshippers in Canada is not now."

Forget Jealousies

"What the country expected, what it had a right to expect, was that the Prime Minister and the Leader of the Opposition would forget their own petty jealousies, get together on some basis of common sense and compromise, and consequently get some action. They have been doing precisely the opposite. Day after day and sometimes into the middle of the night we have debate that is nothing but tripe; little but miserable hair-splitting over things ridiculous; until the country has become sick and disgusted and says "a plague on both your houses!"

"There may be those in Parliament who think that the people are watching this spectacle as "Grits" and "Tories." Well, they are not. There are some hopeless partisans left, and a few journalistic sycophants, but the majority of the people, we think, are "fed up" on this play-acting, disillusioned and disgusted at the spectacle of a lot of grown men behaving like a group of children, lacking a sense of direction or much of any other sense. It is a libel on parliamentary government.

"And it is not merely in the matter of unemployment relief that the House has been purposeless and puerile. In every other matter, in all that it has done, tried to do or left undone, there has been nothing but failure and futility. That and no sense of proportion. We have had a House sitting down in the solemn farce of investigating the blatherskite language of a flannel mouthed lawyer, putting this in the forefront of its program, spending public money to do so. And it's going to do it all over again. We have had a whole day taken up (while the question of relief waited) discussing academically the visionary question of state medicine. And we see a parade of committees sticking their noses into a half score of questions about which obviously they are abysmally ignorant, and out of which no good will come.

"Take, as an example, that Civil Service inquiry. Here, day after day, we have a committee gravely listening to veteran civil servants—one of whom was brave enough to say that a long list of important recommendations made by the Civil Service Commission over ten years had been ignored—and being startled by evidence and elementary facts all of which have been printed over and over again in a hundred blue-books. We have another committee professing to be looking into election matters, but knowing and showing it that the inquiry is a joke, that all the things being inquired into, including campaign funds, have always existed and have always been utilized or winked at, and that they will go on and be winked at again. We have a committee dealing with radio, listening to theories ad nauseam and apparently hopelessly confused about what it should do. And we have still another committee securing a lot of elementary information from experts about gasoline prices and wishing that the gentleman who launched the inquiry had had a less loose tongue."

Sham Battle Over Rights

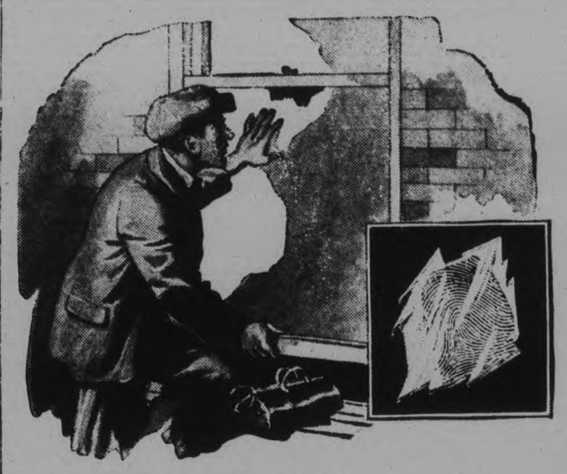
"This, and nothing else, has been Parliament's work thus far. A sham battle over alleged parliamentary rights, a lack of the common sense which would have punctured that sham, a parade of conceit and theatricalism on the part of the whole crowd, adoption of closure—a policy that should be resorted to only in extreme cases—a lot of impotent committees—these are all that Parliament has to show for two months of a costly session. Not one real, genuine, helpful measure has been passed into law.

"Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Our politicians, shackled in bunches, meet a national emergency with the old meaningless mumblings that have done duty for fifty years, without either the courage or the capacity to face up to the facts. While Mr. King worries about the constitution and Mr. Bennett worries about supreme power, Canadian business languishes, industry is unsettled, the country waits for the budget, and nobody knows what is to be done about unemployment relief. The railway question, the financial question, the budget, the taxation problem—all of these are delayed or ignored while politicians ply their platitudes and parade their incapacity.

"At a time when Parliament should be speeding up so that proper preparations may be made for the most important Empire Conference here in July, its members are loading up Hansard with bunk. There must be men in the House who think as The Journal thinks. Oh, for an R. B. Bennett of the old days to get up boldly and denounce the foolishness of such hide-bound partyism.

"No one but should regret the decline of Parliament; the loss of its authority and prestige. Yet in the light of this spectacle of the past two months, what else is there to expect? Parliament is degrading Parliament. It is making itself a national joke, a laughing stock, a subject for sneers and contempt. It is doing these things—doing violence to democracy—because it lacks a sense of proportion and a sense of values; because it has revealed itself as hopeless in the way of help, leadership or direction. This is not something over which to chortle or feel proud; but it is true. The Journal only states the facts now because it feels they should be stated. Silence before such a sham would be as bad as the sham itself."

"I Robbed Your Dresser Drawer"



"This My Signature"

A certain city had an epidemic of house robberies in daytime. The robbers would ring doorbells and if anyone answered, they would make some excuse and depart. But, if no one answered, they would break in through a window or a skylight. One such robber left his finger print on a broken piece of glass. The police had that print on file. They knew the robber, his gang and their records. The crooks were all picked up and convicted.

Germs in Every Print

This is told to remind you that we all leave finger prints on everything we touch. Most of these prints are germ-laden. We pick them up from others—by handshakes—by touching things they have touched. Then we convey them to the mouth, where they breed and so get into the system.

Life Extension Institute lists 27 diseases which may be conveyed in this way. The most common is a cold. A hand used to check a sneeze or a cough may convey germs to others.

We cannot escape these germs. Every handshake, every touch conveys them. The best we can do is to remove the germs or render them harmless before they reach our food.

Port Hope Minister Heard In Millbrook

MILLBROOK, April 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. J. F. Mears of Port Hope conducted the service on Sunday morning at St. Andrew's United Church, the other services of the day being withdrawn owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev W. W. Jones, B.D., who has been confined to bed with an attack of 'flu since the middle of last week.

The visiting minister, who is always well received when supplying local pulpits, spoke especially to young men on Sunday, taking as his theme, "Joseph, the Model Young Man," warning that the word "model" did not infer the far-off, cold, or milk-and-water type, "but of veritable flesh and blood like ourselves; good, showing himself a real man, and something more, a man of God."

Besides the anthem by the choir, a trio, "The Pilgrim's Song," was sung by Mrs. G. W., Miss Marjorie, and Mr. Walter Sayles.

Messrs. R. A. Elliott and W. M. Regan spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. F. Paquet and sons, Lawrence and Dan, and Mr. A. V. Yates motored to Toronto on Saturday.

The First Deloro Wolf Cub pack went on a hike on Friday afternoon, spending thereby five interesting hours. Thirteen boys attended under Cubmaster W. Kerr Junior and Assistant Cubmaster D. Haacke. Dinner was cooked in the woods by the boys themselves after which a trail laid by the Cubmaster was followed by the pack. Several games were played including "Shere Khan and the Jackals." During the hike, the boys laid a bridge across a stream. This was the pack's fourth hike.

The First Deloro Company of Girl Guides had an enjoyable hike on Thursday afternoon. Tracking and fire tests were passed by Grace Hemphill, Audrey Mantle, Hilda Mumby, Marion Mumby, Jean O'Neill, Georgina Stewart, Barbara Wright and Iris Smith. The company left Deloro at 1 p.m. and returned about 4.30 p.m. Hot dogs were served for refreshments. Commissioner Haacke and Lieut. Haacke were present, and the whole company with the exception of Capt. Regan, Commissioner Mrs. Haacke passed tracking and fire-building, these being second class tests. Most of the girls followed suit.

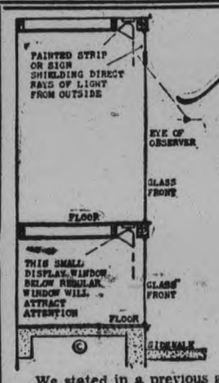
CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

Advertising for the Merchant of To-Day



Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough District with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

We stated in a previous article that the second duty of a store front was to display merchandise. So much can be written about this that we can only take up a few of the points in our little chat this week.

The records of sales made through the effective use of display windows are astonishing, and they are a too valuable part of any store to be overlooked. A properly kept window in a small town can be just as much a sales producer as its big brother in the larger city.

Many merchants' windows are still only performing their ancient duty of admitting light to the front of the store (and even that inefficiently) or are being used to store piles of boxes or packages. Thus a valuable advertising medium is being allowed to slip through their fingers.

The first item to consider is construction. Are your windows properly built? Some details, of course, depend on the size of the store and on the type of business. If the articles to be displayed are of average size, the floor of the window should be about two feet below eye level. This floor should be level and the effect of built-up displays obtained by the use of various accessories which will be dealt with in a future article.

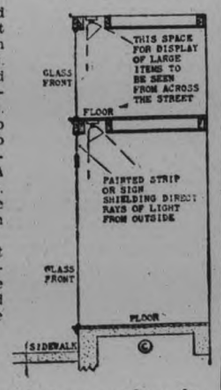
Below this floor level you may have a basement window, which can be used with profit for additional display. If there is no window there now you could easily make one by cutting into the panel below the main window. A small display window can be built here, as shown in the sketch above, and with the proper illumination it will attract a lot of attention.

Or perhaps your windows are very high. Here is an opportunity for a further advertising effort. People walking along the opposite side of the street cannot see into your display windows if there is a car parked in front of your store. But if you build a double-decked window, as shown in the sketch at the bottom of this article, you can use the top section to display items which can be seen from across the street.

A well illuminated window attracts people. A well lighted window is a prominent feature of any street at night. Particular care must be taken in the selection and location of the proper lights. Lighting experts tell us that the proper method of lighting windows is to conceal the lamps in reflectors at the top of the windows. Well mirrored reflectors should be used to get the greatest reflection possible. Conceal reflectors from view outside the line of vision. In building a new window reflectors can be set in the ceiling so that the bottom of the reflector is flush with the ceiling. Or a valance across the top of the glass will conceal the lighting source from the customer standing outside the window. This valance may be a painted strip across the glass and this space can be used to good advantage for a sign lettered on the glass.

The lighting unit is generally placed just inside the glass about seven feet from the base. A light suspended in the window is very unsatisfactory. Lighting units should not be allowed to become dingy, but should be cleaned with soap and water every month. It is unwise to pay for light you do not get. Neither is it economical to use lamps that have lost their effectiveness. They should be replaced. A dirty, smoked, bluish looking lamp, while it may still burn, uses more current and gives less light than an efficient one.

Proper lighting is one of the most important factors in making our modern store attractive—the kind of store that people will like to buy in—and the kind of store that will make money for the owner.



Next Week—More about Window Display.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Castles In Spain

WHEN Robert was nine years old his father gave him a nice set of carpenter's tools. Then he built him a work bench in the corner of the store room under a fine big window.

Of course Robert was delighted with his tools and, for several days, it seemed he would surely chop up and nail down everything on the place that was made of wood. Sitting by his bench he would saw and hammer and plane and sandpaper sides and bottoms of cigar boxes into boats and various things, some of which, it must be confessed, needed very close attention to detect the similarity between what they really were and what Robert pretended they were.

But Somehow It Would Not Look Like Anything But A Cigar Box

One afternoon he was working at his bench trying to make a house out of an old cigar box. He had been working hard to make it resemble a real one; but somehow it just wouldn't look like anything but a cigar box. Then—all of a sudden—things began to happen.

The lowly cigar-box began to sprout! Up, up, up went its sides, higher and higher; and they changed from plain cigar-box wood into walls of huge, rough-hewn rocks. Casements and towers and minarets appeared upon them, here and there, in most wondrous, beautiful fashion.

Larger and larger grew the walls, until presently the small store room and the carpenter's work bench had vanished completely and Robert had to actually pinch himself to make sure he was still there. A blue sky of surpassing beauty spread itself above the lowly cigar-box—no, above the castle, for that is what it had now become. And around it on all sides were rolling fields, fresh and verdant and sweet-smelling in the warm sunshine.

Up the long roadway that wound around to the entrance to the castle came a troop of laughing boys and girls, all of them dressed in the gayest of colors and bearing garlands of flowers. And they were singing a lilting, rollicking song, the refrain of which seemed to be —"Castles in Spain. Castles in Spain! Oh, the beautiful castles in Spain!"

At the head of the procession tripped the daintest little maid Robert had ever seen. Light as a fairy, she danced along shaking her beautiful curls and snapping her little fingers, like castanets, with every step. Suddenly she espied Robert standing open-mouthed by the great doorway to the castle.

"Oh, oh!" she cried, stopping her dancing., "Look at that nice little boy! Come, little boy and play with us. Come dance with me and then we will play tea-party deep in the wood—we have milk and honey and—and—I like you, nice little boy,—."

Pouff! Pouff!

A huge cloud of smoke had suddenly shot up and enveloped the castle and the dainty little girl and everything! And, too, just as Robert was stretching out his hand to the pretty little maid!

Then, an instant later, the cloud of smoke vanished and Robert found himself back again beside his carpenter's bench in the store room with his head pillowed on his arm. He had fallen asleep at his work! And there, beside him, was the unfinished, ugly house he had tried to fashion out of a cigar-box. And he heard his Papa's voice; and Papa was laughing at him.

"Goodness, Robert," he was saying, "what's all this about castles in Spain? Where did you ever hear about them?"

"Please Papa," answered Robert, covering his eyes. "I've just had one and—"

And papa laughed again, "I suppose so, Robert," he said. "All of us have our castles in Spain, and I dare say they are about as real, with most of us as the one you just visited—in your sleep. You have been dreaming lad!"

Suddenly Robert sat up straight on his stool and clapped his hands. "Oh, Papa," he cried, "now I know what grown-ups mean when they talk about castles in Spain! It's just—just castles that they dream about or imagine, isn't it?"

"Yes, son," said papa, with a smile, "only it doesn't have to be castles, you know. It may be anything you have thought about and wished, wished oh so hard, that you had. Generally they all go up in smoke and—"

"Oh, Papa," interrupted Robert, "that's just the way mine did! Went right up in a cloud of black smoke—pouff! Just like that!"

And then Robert told his father about the wonderful castle that had sprung from the cigar box and about the dainty little maid dancing along in the roadway. And papa smiled and patted him on the head.

"Come to dinner, Robert," he said, "there's a nice juicy drum stick of a chicken for you and—and ice cream for dessert—and neither of them are 'Castles in Spain' you may be sure."

A BAQUET FOR TEDDY

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color)

YELLOW-haired Susie May is giving a nice bouquet of spring flowers to BROWN-haired Teddy. Teddy is sick with a sprained foot and has to go about for a while in a wheel chair.

"Oh, I see you have a lovely RED basket of fruit, too!" cries Susie May. "I picked these RED tulips and YELLOW daffodils myself. Do you like them with all these GREEN leaves? I think the leaves show up the colors of the blooms. Don't you?"

"Thank you!" says Teddy, holding out his hand for the flowers. "It is so good of you to come and see me!"

"I see you have been reading 'Treasure Island.' Isn't it exciting!" says Susie May. "I have a copy just like yours with a RED binding."

"That little GREEN hat of yours with its RED feather is very becoming, Susie May. The GREEN just matches your coat. What kind of fur is that GRAY (use BLACK lightly) on the collar and cuffs?"

"Oh, this is squirrel! You didn't see my new RED boots either, did you!" says Susie May. "They match my belt exactly.

Teddy has a light BLUE shawl about his shoulders and his blouse is White with a BLUE tie. The bananas are YELLOW and the apples are RED and the grapes are PURPLE. The basket sits on a BROWN table. Teddy's wheel chair has YELLOW frame work and RED wire spokes on its GRAY rubber wheels. He has a RED and GREEN pillow back of his head and the robe on his lap is a light BLUE. The door is YELLOW and the floor is BROWN, so is the chair-board but the carpet is dark GREEN.

"How BLUE the sky looks out of the windows, Susie May, it must be a very fine day!" says Teddy. "Your cheeks are as PINK (use RED lightly) as coral and your lips are RED as the tulips!"

"Oh, it isn't such a fine day under foot! Your cheeks are a wee bit PINK, too, Teddy and you have two RED lips!" replies Susie May.

April Showers

I KNOW why we have showers now
When April days are here
And flowers grow, and birds come back
To fill the world with cheer.

It's Spring time now, the gladest time
Of all, and that is why,
When all the earth is glad and gay
The happy angels cry.

They cry for joy that spring has come
Upon the earth again;
Their tear drops fall from out the sky
And we think they are rain.

And mother says, "Wear overshoes,
Beware of April showers."
But I know it's the angels' tears
That wake the sweet May flowers.

The Dirigible's Night Landing

THE wind dashed against the bow of the big airship like huge waves against a ship at sea and the dark clouds into which the sun was sinking were wild and stormy. Captain Stuart shook his head and turned to where the Admiral was standing.

"We're in for a bad night, sir," he reported. "The airport is still two hundred miles away, and we can't reach there before nightfall at the best. If the storm breaks, we'll have to go above the clouds and ride it out."

The Admiral nodded.

"I'm afraid so," he replied, directing an anxious look ahead. "We'll hold this course for the present, however, for there is still a chance that we may make it."

Suddenly his attention was caught by a cry from the lookout stationed at the corner of the pilot house gondola.

"The mooring mast!"

"It can't be," broke in the Captain, taking up a pair of binoculars and training them in the direction pointed out by his son, who was on this trial cruise with him. "Yet it's something which looks like one, sure enough."

"I know what it is," put in the Admiral. "It's the water tower at Brooks Field. It's every bit as strong as a mooring mast and it's equipped with blocks and tackle for the use of small blimps which come there for the air circus every month."

Packy Stuart examined this water tower with interest and marked it on the rough map which he was drawing as the dirigible passed over the country below. Then he gasped suddenly as the great airship first fell into an air pocket and a second later lurched under the impact of a blast of wind. The clouds had spread across the sky by this time, blotting the sun from view and turning the earth a sullen gray, rapidly changing to black. The storm whistled through the rigging and ripped along the ship as though it would tear it apart.

Captain Stuart talked in low tones with the Admiral, then went toward the controls as if to give a command. He was interrupted by the buzz of a telephone from the after gondolas.

"We're having trouble with our engines, sir," came the excited report. "Are we near the airport?"

The Captain answered this question by one of his own.

"How long can you keep going?" he demanded, in alarm.

"Thirty minutes at the most."

Packy's father turned to the Admiral.

"We're breaking down, sir," was his report. "I suggest making altitude and letting her ride before the wind."

"We can't do anything else," was the reply. "Give orders to up ship."

"But father!" cried Packy. "Why can't we tie up at the water tower?"

Captain Stuart looked at his son in amazement, then turned to the Admiral inquiringly.

"We could, if—" The Admiral hesitated for a moment and then went on excitedly, as if he suddenly approved of the idea. "If there was anybody down there who knew how to help us, I'd make the try!"

Packy looked over the side of the swaying pilot house at the earth below. Darkness had set in by now and the only lights visible were from the house on Brooks Field and from automobiles which sped along the highway. In spite of all this he made up his mind quickly.

"Let me go over in a parachute, Dad," he begged. "I can get help from the Field House and direct the landing."

Captain Stuart shook his head.

"Too dangerous."

"But I've made parachute leaps before!" protested Packy.

"It's not that I'm thinking of," was the reply. "You'd reach the ground safely, I'm sure, but I'm afraid to try a night landing with this new ship."

He was cut short by an insistent ringing of the telephone.

"Engine No. 6 stopped, sir. Overheated."

"Very well," replied the Captain. "Let your son try it," said the Admiral, after hearing this report.

Packy Climbed Out On The Struts For A Clear Drop And Jumped

"It's our only chance."

There was no time to lose.

Hastily strapping a parachute about his body, Packy climbed out upon the struts to a position from which there would be a clear drop away from the long silver body of the dirigible. Then he waved his hand in farewell and jumped from the airship.

The parachute opened behind him and was caught in the high wind like a tiny white cloud being forced to the ground. Packy was whipped through the air like a weight on the tail of a kite, but he kept his head and pulled first on one side and then on the other of the shrouds, spilling the wind out of the umbrella so as to steer his fall toward the field. He did it so well that his lines almost tangled with the water tower and when he landed he was within fifty feet of the house.

Men came running to help him out of the harness.

"The dirigible wants to tie up at the tower!" he cried. "Quick. One of you go to the highway and turn all automobiles into the field. Get some wood and build a fire near the tower."

At first there was great excitement and confusion, for men called out in a storm to do work to which they are strange are often at a loss to know what to do first. Packy told them what he wanted and soon there was a bright fire burning near the tower.

"Is this a beacon light?" asked the foreman of Brooks Field.

Packy shook his head.

"Pile on some wet wood," he directed. "Smother the fire."

Dense clouds of smoke rose from the blazing logs as this order was carried out. The wind caught the heavy vapor and blew it in a long line across the field.

"It's to let them know which way the wind is blowing," explained Packy. "Now line the cars up in the same direction in a double row, facing each other at a distance of about one hundred yards. Turn on all headlights so as to flood the field with light. Tell all those who have searchlights to train them on the tower."

Soon, in response to these instruction, Brooks Field had all the appearance of an up-to-date airport. The tower was the target for a powerful battery of searchlights, while the field itself seemed to have every blade of grass deluged with light.

Not a moment too soon, for the dirigible had already settled toward the ground with her nose into the wind and had dropped her ground lines from each side. More than a hundred men, drivers of the cars now parked along the field, sprang to catch them and to pull on them until the dirigible was in position. Then the nose line was dropped and carried to the top of the tower by Packy and one other man, who said he used to be a sailor and knew enough about blocks and tackles to be of help.

It was not an easy job to reeve the line through the block nor to take in the slack as the men on the ground below tugged on the lines and moved the dirigible forward foot by foot. Soon, however, in spite of the wind which was now howling across the countryside and the rain which had just begun to fall, the dirigible was moored tightly against the tower and safe for the night.

"That was excellent work," commended the Admiral, later, when they were all together in the warm living-room of the Field House. "The Navy owes a good deal to your son, Captain Stuart."

He picked up a book lying on the table near Packy's elbow.

"May I look?" he inqured.

It was Packy's book of air history. In it he had notes telling about each great event that had occurred since the first airplane was taken into the air. Lindbergh's flight to France was in there and also Byrd's journey across the South Pole, giving the dates of each and a few remarks concerning the achievement.

"Umm," mused the Admiral. "Sort of a log book of great events, eh?"

He took a pen out of his pocket.

"Do you mind?" he asked, and when Packy said that he didn't, the Admiral wrote a few sentences in the book and then handed it back with a smile. The entry read:

"March 10, 1932: First time in history of Naval Air Service that forced night landing of dirigible was made at civilian water tower. Credit belongs to Packy Stuart for both bravery and brains."

Kept The Tears Back

LITTLE Bobby had been given numerous and sundry talkings-to about cowardice of any boy who would cry—before he knew whether or not he was really hurt—just because he happened to stub his toe or whack himself over the head with a protruding door-jam or a sharp corner of the wall.

"Real men—brave, strong men—don't cry, Bobbie," Mamma had said.

"Not ever?" asked the youngster.

"Well," replied Mamma, wishing to be exact, "at least not until they know they are really hurt."

And, by way of further encouragement, she had taken the little boy's stocking down when he had barked his shin and showed him how he couldn't possibly be really hurt since the skin wasn't broken and there wasn't even a bump.

Only the other evening, while Papa and Mamma were sitting around the living-room table reading, they heard a most tremendous clatter and racket out in the hall.

"Mercy sakes! What is that?" exclaimed Mamma.

"Gee whiz!" gasped Papa, jumping up and running out into the hall.

And there, at the bottom of the stairs, he found Bobbie, holding on to his head and his knee and—and wishing he had a dozen more hands with which to hold on to the other places that had been bumped in his fall down the long flight of stairs. But he wasn't crying, though his cheeks were all puffed up with his effort to hold back his breath and the tears.

"Are you hurt, Bobbie boy? Are you hurt?" cried Papa, taking in the situation at a glance.

"I—I—I don't know, Papa," replied Bobbie sturdily. "I guess you'd better take me into the light and—and see for yourself!"

Teacher: Willie Jones, give me that chewing gum at once!

Willie: I'll let you have half of it.

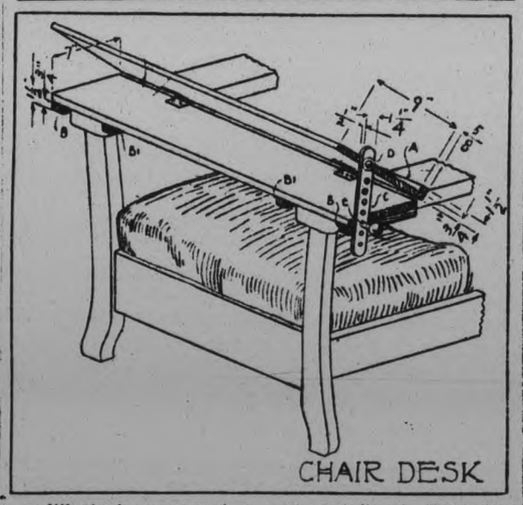
The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING,
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.



ONE who has never used an adjustable chair desk and book rest seldom appreciates its convenience. This one is reduced to its lowest terms and may be made of any easily worked wood by any one who can use the simplest tools.

Exact length dimensions cannot be given as each desk must be made to fit a special chair; the lower board should be ¾" x 7" and the desk ¾" x 9" with a lip A ¾" x 1½" glued and nailed or screwed to the bottom edge. The length of the bottom board should be about 2½" greater than the overall of the arms to allow cleats B, ¾" x 1" x 7" to be fastened with screws as indicated. While cleats B1 will add to the firmness of the desk they may be omitted if desired, but if used the distance between B and B1 should allow the lower board to be slipped on and off easily.

Two 2½" x 2½" hinges may be placed as shown and the adjusting brace C ½" x 1¼" with ¾" holes bored as suggested may be fastened to the top desk at D with a 2" No. 12 round head screw and washer. A ¾" peg passing through the holes in C and into the end of the lower board as at E will allow the desk to be raised or lowered to any desired angle. Stain and shellac, or shellac only, as desired.

Tea was served from a tale made charming by a yellow and white colour scheme. Long streamers of these colours were in harmony with the basket and bud vases of yellow tulips. A miniature wedding cake centred the table and was cut by the bride-elect. Tea was poured by Mrs. Hubel, with the Misses Jessie Martin, Mina and Ruth Waldie and Miss Beatrice O'Grady, as tea-room assistants. A treasure-hunt brought to light many beautiful gifts from her girl friends, which were graciously acknowledged by Miss Waldie. During the evening five tables of bridge were played by the guests after which all joined in happy felicitations to the prospective bride, bringing to a conclusion an enjoyable affair.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In the modern menu the place and importance of the entree has changed decidedly from a generation or so ago. A separate entree course was essential to a dinner even though it had little pretense of formality.

* * * * * * *

To-day in the strictly formal dinner, it seldom, if ever, is omitted as a course, but such formality pertains rather to banquets than to dinners of customary formality in the home.

* * * * * * *

This does not mean that entrees as dishes are not served, but merely not as separate courses. In this aspect they become more entremets than entrees proper and assume a more delicate quality or perhaps I should say a less hearty character.

* * * * * * *

There are dishes which it would be difficult to classify other than as entrees and these may be hearty enough for a main dish. The custom of serving them as such has grown in favor.

* * * * * * *

Not only is this true in the home, but hotels and restaurants expect their customers to order entrees thus as will be noted on their luncheon menus particularly.

* * * * * * *

A glance at some of the familiar entrees will show their importance on home as well as hotel menus. For example, croquettes and patties are entrees, so are stuffed peppers, oyster pies, broiled and fried tomatoes, tenderloin cutlets, minced meats in various styles, chicken salad, etc.

* * * * * * *

There are endless vegetable and fruit entrees such as corn fritters, banana fritters, indeed all fritters, cauliflower timbales, artichokes with sauce, etc.

* * * * * * *

In determining what are entrees, consider them as side dishes, or those with some especial preparations, if hearty. You will note that this special treatment has been indicated in the entrees mentioned. Also remember that a sauce is customary with entrees. Some of the sauces are easy to make while others are among the arts of the chef.

* * * * * * *

The homemaker can make her meals more delicious if she serves the accompaniment entrees with main courses and if she serves some of the hearty entrees as main dishes for luncheons and suppers.

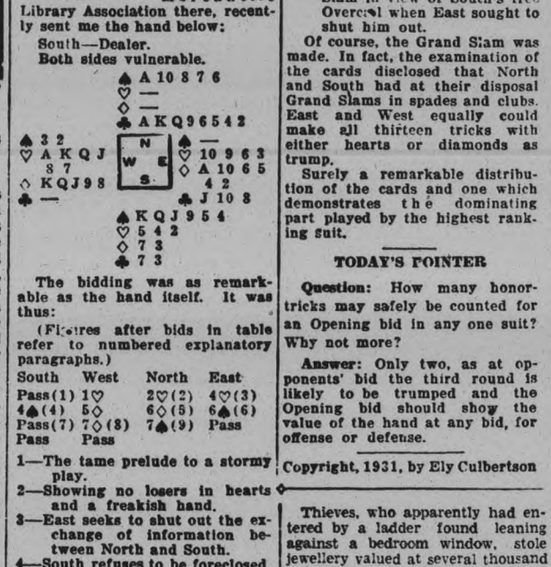
FOUR SLAMS IN ONE HAND

Up in Boston, the hub of sturdy New England civilization, they must do something to the cards that less cultured people are unable to do, for they certainly can secure some remarkable distributions of hands, which naturally lend themselves to remarkable bidding. Mr. Chester A. Brigbe of the Mercantile Library Association there, recently sent me the hand below:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding was as remarkable as the hand itself. It was thus:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass(1)	1♡	2♡(2)	4♡(3)
4♠(4)	5◇	6◇(5)	6♠(6)
Pass(7)	7◇(8)	7♠(9)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The tame prelude to a stormy play.
2—Showing no losers in hearts and a freakish hand.
3—East seeks to shut out the exchange of information between North and South.
4—South refuses to be foreclosed.
5—Again showing no losers in the suit adversely bid.
6—East now catches the fever. His bid is scarcely sound, however, in view of the three possible losers in clubs.
7—A splendid pass. North is best fitted to determine the correct course for the partnership.
8—East's six spade bid has fit West's hand perfectly. He knows there are no losers in clubs and his partner's information regarding the spade suit justifies the Grand Slam.
9—Apparently, a certain Grand Slam in view of South's free Overcall when East sought to shut him out.

Of course, the Grand Slam was made. In fact, the examination of the cards disclosed that North and South had at their disposal Grand Slams in spades and clubs. East and West equally could make all thirteen tricks with either hearts or diamonds as trump.

Surely a remarkable distribution of the cards and one which demonstrates the dominating part played by the highest ranking suit.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: How many honor-tricks may safely be counted for an Opening bid in any one suit? Why not more?

Answer: Only two, as at opponents' bid the third round is likely to be trumped and the Opening bid should show the value of the hand at any bid, for offense or defense.

MYALGIA—MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM.

An ailment that is just as common as ever is muscular rheumatism, yet you scarcely hear that name any more, as it is now called myalgia, which means an affection of the muscle.

Myalgia or muscular rheumatism is an affection of the muscles causing pain and stiffness which usually disappear after some days.

The principal system is pain, which may come on suddenly without apparent cause, or may be due to a movement of the part. This pain may remain in the one spot, as for instance in the muscles of the chest where it is often mistaken for pleurisy, or may shift from one set of muscles to another.

Where the pain is in the muscles of the chest, really outside the ribs, the breathing is painful just as in true pleurisy. When the pain is over the heart, the patient may naturally imagine that he has heart disease. Should the pain be in the abdomen there is the feeling that some acute abdominal condition is present such as appendicitis.

However, the difference between muscular rheumatism—myalgia—and these other conditions, is that there is no rise or increase in temperature in myalgia, whereas these other conditions will show temperature or fever.

Similarly with myalgia in other regions as in the neck, small of the back, hips, and so forth, the patient may suspect meningitis or perhaps injury to joints.

Although the acute form of myalgia passes away in a few days, the chronic form may last for weeks or months.

The cause is thought to be due to cold, dampness or exposure, but there must be some underlying condition which asserts itself when the body is old, wet or tired.

The most important point in the treatment is rest, which must be secured if at all possible. About the only internal treatment is salicylic acid, a light diet such as milk, eggs, light meats, buttermilk and water.

Myalgia in most cases is relieved by heat and massage. Heat is useful in every form—hot baths, hot packs, hot water applications, hot air baths, hot poultices and so forth.

Where massage is painful, rubbing or massaging the adjoining parts of the skin is helpful.

The intestine must be kept active.

Settling Of Indians Proves New Problem

CAPE TOWN, S.A., April 5.—(C. P. Cable.)—The possibilities of settling Indians from both India and South Africa, where there is a large Indian population, in other countries will be considered jointly by representative of the Indian and South African Governments.

This step will be taken, it was learned to-day, as a result of study of the recent round-table conference in Cape Town which reviewed the working of the agreement between India and South Africa reached in 1927, on the treatment of Indians lawfully domiciled in the Union of South Africa.

CASTLE CONTENTS UP FOR AUCTION

Famous "Red Boy" Picture Included Among Many Treasures of Earl of Durham.

(By Thomas T. Champion—C.P. Staff Writer).

LONDON, April 5.—Great interest has been aroused here by the announcement that the Earl of Durham will sell the entire contents of Lambton Castle, County Durham, including the famous 'Red Boy' picture, a painting by Sir Thomas Lawrence, R.A., of Master Charles William Lambton, at a four-day auction opening on April 18.

The castle is described as a treasure house of pictures, prints, books, furniture and everything that went to adorn one of the great houses of a by-gone era. The building, which will be demolished after the auction, was erected by Bonami in the reign of George IV., in succession to a former pile known as Lambton Hall.

The "Red Boy" was painted for the first Earl of Durham in 1827, and is said to have been offered for sale previously at a price something over £200,000. Another famous picture which will be offered at the auction is the Hoppner group of Lady Anna Barbara Lambton, mother of the first Earl, and four of her children.

Latvia has placed quotas on all imports.

SUDBURY JUNIORS CAPTURE HOCKEY TITLE

WOLVES ARE CHAMPIONS BY ONLY GOAL OF BATTLE

First Time Northern Ontario Representatives Have Won Ontario Cup.

SMITH SCORES COUNTER.

WINNIPEG, April 5.—Sudbury Wolves, a stinging pepper-pot of a challenger with a light but blinding attack, tonight beat the bulky Monarchs of Winnipeg, as big a brigade as ever went after the Memorial Cup, one to nothing, and delivered Northern Ontario its first Canadian hockey championship in eight years.

The gallant contingent from the North's nickel belt, unbeatable after they dropped the first game of the final series, gave the Manitoba champions a lesson at the style of game the giant Westerners are supposed to like—defensive. They scored the only goal they required tonight less than two minutes after the start of play in the first period.

Then they showed Monarchs just how to defend it. Through the first period it was easy. It became a harder assignment in the second, as the Winnipeg band, seeking to defend the title won last year by Elmwood Millionaires, pounded away with a more frantic air. In the third it was as gruelling a duel between two weary teams as fans have seen here this season.

Slim Nakina Smith, black-haired pivot of the Wolves' front line, counted the winning goal at one minute and 50 seconds of the first stanza. It was a perfect goal—just like most of the others scored by the Eastern champions in this series.

The crafty centre star was on the end of a play led by Adelard Lafrance. Lafrance shifted the puck to him at the Monarch defense; Smith stepped neatly around Pinkie Davie, long Winnipeg defenseman, and sent a low shot into the corner.

The triumph, on the heels of a 2-0 victory Saturday night, brought Sudbury its first Dominion title — the North its first championship since Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds captured the Allan Cup in 1924. The new junior kings of hockey in Canada were presented with the trophy immediately following the game.

Sudbury's lightweight defense of "Red" Porter and Bob McInnis stood out as doughty aces of the win. McInnis was playing in his second game of the series. He was injured in the first contest, won by Monarchs, and missed the triumphant second.

They gave stocky Anthony ("Ant") Healy, smooth Wolf goaltender, splendid protection, but even so, the netman had to make several sensational saves as Monarch attackers burst in on him, particularly in the last two periods.

Stars On Offensive

Smith, Max Bennett and Adelard Lafrance turned in most of the offensive work for the Wolves, while the second string, led by "Toe" Blake, one of the series' outstanding stars, concentrated on back-checking. Blake's helpers were Larry Lafrance and Ivan Fraser.

Tall Norm Yellowlees, was Monarchs' most effective puck-carrier, but giant "Cam" Shewan was right with him, rushing brilliantly in an effort to get back a second-minute deficit that could not be recovered.

Sudbury—Goal, Healey; defense, Porter and R. McInnis; centre, Smith; wings, Bennett and A. Lafrance; subs., J. McInnis, L. Lafrance, Blake and Fraser.

Monarchs—Goal, Rice-Jones; defense, Shewan and Davie; centre, Yellowlees; wings, Brown and Templeton; subs., Makersky, Creighton, Peeler and McBride.

Officials—Percy Moore, Montreal, and Alex. Irvin, Winnipeg.

NEW TROPHY GIVEN TO HOCKEY MOGULS

Loving Cup Donated in Memory of George Taylor Richardson.

MONTREAL, April 5. —In memory of George T. Richardson, one of the finest hockey players of Kingston, Ont., who was killed in the Great War, a silver double-handled loving cup—the George Taylor Richardson Memorial Trophy—was presented to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association by his brother, James A. Richardson of Winnipeg, Chancellor of Queens' University, Kingston, here yesterday. The trophy is for the junior hockey championship of Eastern Canada, won this year by Sudbury Wolves, and arrived unexpectedly at yesterday's session of the annual meeting of the association, now being held here. The offer of Mr. Richardson to donate the trophy was just about to be brought up at the meeting when a large package, which later proved to contain the cup, arrived.

Tribute was paid to George T. Richardson by Captain James T. Sutherland of Kingston, W. A. Hewitt of Toronto, W. W. Davidson of Toronto and F. H. Marples of Winnipeg. Captain Sutherland, Mr. Hewitt and Mr. Marples were named trustees of the cup.

Nationals Whip Herd in Overtime 7-4

FRANKIE COLLINS SCORES TWO COUNTERS AS O.H.A. CHAMPIONS OVERCOME LEAD OF WESTERNERS

Toronto Squad Tallies Three Goals in Second Overtime Period.

FOR HISTORIC ALLAN CUP.

Superior Stick-handling and More Accurate Marksmanship Accounts for Win.

MONTREAL, April 5. — Stout-hearted, the Sea Fleas of the National Yacht Club of Toronto fought foot, tooth, and nail for two overtime periods, to wrest a 7-4 victory from Fort William's Thundering Herd, Western Canada champions, in the first match of the Allan Cup finals here last night.

The Eastern champions and the Western champions struggled through the regular periods in a see-saw of fortune. The tide of battle swung one way and then the other. The Western Ontario team, conquerors of the Calgary Bronks and Winnipegs, the Olympic champions, jumped into a two-goal lead saw it melt away, and then had to fight several times to pull even with the clever Nationals.

After four play-off battles in which they were not scored upon, it was bitter broth for the speedy Great Lakes squad to see the red light flashing behind Gordie Hacquoil seven times last night. It was a ding-dong battle. The Forts had the edge on sheer speed and weight, but the Nationals, who advanced to the final round over Montreal A.A.A., Quebec and Maritimes champions, were superior stick-handlers and more accurate marksmen from close range.

It was anybody's game till the Nationals went on a rampage in the second overtime period. McMullen, Paul, and Lough whizzed the puck past Hacquoil, and he was beaten twice more on plays that were called back. A penalty for "Porky" McLeod made it easier for the Nationals.

Nationals Increase Lead

A little over a minute from the start of the second extra ten minutes McMullen flicked a high shot at Hacquoil from the right boards. The puck dropped deceptively and slipped from the Western goaler's shoulder into the cage. Knowles got the rubber on his own blue line rushed down centre and crashed through the Red Shirts' defense, only to be outguessed by "Stuffy" Mueller. Lough and McMullen caught the Forts' defense all up the ice and had only the goaler to beat. Gordie Hacquoil was too good for them. Johnny Salonen out-speeded the Toronto wings and got around the defense, but Kane hook-checked him from the rear as he was setting himself for the shot. The Nationals took a three-goal lead after they changed ends. Ross Paul netted McMillen's pass after a fast rush. "Porky" McLeod was chased to the penalty box and the Nationals came in three abreast. Lough jabbed the puck past Hacquoil on Kane's pass. Kane and then Lough each jabbed the puck past Hacquoil, only to have the plays called back for offsides.

MAT GAME IS JUST GLORIFIED ROUGH AND TUMBLE OF OLD DAYS

Likens Modern Sport to Old London Prize Ring Stuff.

ONLY MORE SO

TORONTO, April 5.—(Special to The Examiner).—Is the wrestling game degenerating with prospects of hitting the same level as the London prize ring rules of the early days?

The mat game has been under a cloud for many years owing to the fakes, etc., pulled off in connection with it, but during the past few years it had a big revival swing to the "color" the up-to-date mat boys or we might say acrobats, put into the game.

Under London prize ring rules the combatants were permitted to punch each other, wrestle, bat each other about in most any old way, in fact make a general rough house out of it.

Well, that is just about what the mat boys are doing these days, getting back to the old London prize ring rules and no mistake.

In a match between Gus Sonnenberg, the college man of one group and a clever performer, and Nick Lutze, also an up-to-date wrestler, at Milwaukee auditorium, they forgot all about wrestling rules and went back to the good old days of the London prize ring. They used prize ring tactics and even threw the referee out of the ring, just to add color to the occasion, and prepare the fans for a rematch.

Uppercuts and Swings.

One of the papers in reporting the match said: "Sonnenberg was constantly outpunched and tossed around by his slender opponent. Nick's right uppercuts to the head and body was considerably more effective than Gus' hooks with his elbow.

"There was little doing in the third chapter until both felt the urge to do some more punching. Referee Hofland tried to remind them that they were gentlemen until proved otherwise and next thing he knew he went sailing through the ropes out of the ring. While the referee was resting on the floor Lutze got a grip on Sonnenberg and had him down, but the referee could not see it and did not count him out, but he did count Lutze down when Gus knocked Nick to the mat and then jumped on him."

And they call that wrestling!

It is nothing more than the good old rough and tumble scraps the lumber jacks used to have in the pine woods or the tough youngsters had in their gang fights.

Even the London prize rules would not stand for some of the things pulled in the mat game today.

The grunters deserve credit for one thing—they give the fans plenty of color in their work, no matter whether everything is arranged before hand or not, and that is what the people seem to want these days of high pressure.

Taboo in Boxing.

But let the boxers try and give the fans some of the color the wrestlers hand out and they would immediately be ordered out of the ring and suspended by the commission under which they would be working, for states are under commission rule now. Not only that, but if the boxers were found guilty of a fake it would mean life suspension.

Ontario, California and Illinois are under commission rule for the wrestlers, and it is about time that other places followed suit and placed a tax on all wrestlers, the same as boxers, also on the promoters, and adopt rules under which they must work whereby they will be obliged to attend more to their knitting and not so much to tossing referees out of the ring and practising facial contortions.

It might be worth while mentioning at this time, too that Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker, wants to match the "Toy Bulldog," as Kearns calls Mickey, against Jim London, the wrestling champion, in a mixed match, just to prove, as Kearns says, that the boxer will beat the wrestler no matter how big he is. It would be a very interesting affair at any rate and no doubt the betting would be on Mr. Walker.

McCREADY IN DRAW WITH DICK SHIKAT

Canadian Heavyweight Wrestler Makes Fine Showing Against German.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Earl McCready, an outstanding challenger for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, who formerly lived in Amulet, Sask., drew with Dick Shikat, Philadelphia, former world's championship claimant.

The bout went 1 hour 6 minutes and 10 seconds. It was terminated at 11 p.m. because of a law requiring all wrestling matches to end at that time.

McCready had Shikat in trouble early in the match. He secured a leg scissors on the German, and Shikat had a difficult time breaking it.

Shikat started roughening matters a bit, and his use of a strangle-hold brought several warnings from the referee.

There was plenty of action throughout the bout. Both men frequently tossed each other outside the ropes. Shikat began applying pressure late in the bout, but McCready was able to squirm out of the Philadelphian's best holds. The two seemed evenly matched as far as strength was concerned.

A crowd of about 6,500 gathered in Madison Square Garden for the match. McCready weighed 229, and Shikat 218.

TORONTO LEAFS HOLD MARGIN OVER RANGERS IN VICTORIES

Kid Forward Line of Smythemen and Heller to Play Big Part in To-night's Game.

LAST TILT IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, April 5.—(By the Canadian Press.)—New York's farewell to the fast-closing hockey season will be sounded to-night when the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs open their series for the Stanley Cup.

To the winner of the first three games in a five-game series will also go recognition as world's champions. All games in this final series will be fought to a finish, with sudden death overtime in order if the two teams are deadlocked at the end of regulation play.

Rangers and the Leafs, two formidable hockey aggregations that have fought their way to this historic cup play, will carry their battle to Boston for the second game Trursday night. The series will come to a conclusion in Toronto. With Madison Square Garden unavailable for hockey play after to-night, Rangers elected to play hosts in the Boston Garden for the second home game.

Rangers swept through to the Stanley Cup series by a decisive victory over Montreal Canadiens, three games to one, and took from the Flying Frenchmen the National League title. They have not been in a game since a week ago to-night.

The Leafs, on the other hand, fought through the torid series with Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Maroons before earning the right to meet the New Yorkers.

Lay-offs May Tell.

Just how far the long lay-offs of the Rangers and the Leafs' abundance of hockey will figure in the opening battle should be settled to-night.

There was little choice locally in naming the winner of to-night's game, although the Leafs held the margin over the Rangers in the regular season play. They captured four out of six games from the New Yorkers. Furthermore, in their full season's schedule, the Leafs outscored the Rangers, 155 goals to 134, but the Rangers allowed the opposition only 112 goals compared with 127 scored against the Leafs. In their six scheduled games the Toronto team again holds the edge with a goal count of 24 to 18.

The famed "Kid" line—Toronto Charlie Conacher, Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau—will claim much attention tonight. These sharpshooting speedsters are expected to bring down of Morris to the Rangers, while veteran forwards [illegible] and Frank Boucher [illegible] to employ all their wiles and crafty play to halt the dashing Leafs.

Will Play Big Part

Ott Heller, young Ranger defenseman who rose to stardom and popular acclaim in the series against Canadiens, is slated for plenty of action. New York's adherents are hoping the youngster can keep up his sensational pinch-hitting.

A sell-out was in sight to-day for New York's last chance to see hockey this season. The Boston Garden reported a heavy demand for tickets for the second game.

The probable line-ups:

Rangers.	Position.	Toronto.
Roach.....	goal	Chabot
Seibert.....	defense	Horner
Johnson.....	defense	Clancy
Boucher.....	centre	Primeau
Bill Cook.....	wing	Conacher
Bun Cook.....	wing	Jackson

Ranger Spares.—Murdoch, Dillon, Somers, Heller, Gainor, Desjardins, Brennan, Keeling, Milks.

Toronto Spares.—Bailey, Blair, Cotton, Day, Levinsky, Finnigan, Gracie, Miller, Darragh, Robertson.

Officials.—Odie Cleghorn and George Mallinson.

NATIONAL LOOP CLUBS GAINING American Average Has Shrunk From .650 to .581 in Two Weeks.

PRE-SEASON GOSSIP.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 5. — Just stretch this Spring training season for a few more weeks and the National League might pull up on even terms with the American in their inter-league series.

From an impressive .650 two weeks ago, the American League's winning average against the National had shrunk to a modest .581 to-day, based on 25 victories and 18 defeats in 43 games.

As a matter of fact, had the world champion St. Louis Cardinals upheld their end, the National League might be in the lead. Of six contests with American League rivals, the Cards won only the first.

Of the American League's 25 victories, the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics have contributed nine apiece. Detroit has won four games and Boston, Washington and Cleveland one each.

The New York Giants, with three wins and one defeat, and the Phillies with a record of four victories in six starts are the only National League clubs boasting an average of better than .500 against the junior circuit.

Against all major league opposition, whether or not or inter or intra-league character, the Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators each have perfect records. That's not as impressive as it might sound, however, for each has played only one game against a major league team. The real leaders are the New York Giants with ten victories and four defeats.

In games of all descriptions, major and minor league competition combined, Washington leads with 14 victories and one defeat. The Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians have won 12 and lost 1 each and the Boston Red Sox nine and one. The Giants lead the National League in this respect, with 20 victories and eight defeats.

Bisons Meet Tecs In To-Night's Game

TORONTO, April 5 (C.P.)—With five more games to play in the International Hockey League's round-robin play-off series there is a strong possibility the championship round will be tightened after to-night scheduled fixtures.

The pair of matches down for decision bring together the smooth-working Buffalo Bisons and London Tecumsehs in the Canadian city, and the sharp-shooting Windsor Bulldogs who play hosts to Detroit Olympics.

Frank Nighbor has his Bisons heading the play-off series at present with a single victory and two ties, while close on their heels, one point behind, are Windsor Bulldogs, last year's titleholders.

Detroit and London can both move into the hunt to-night with victories over the leading clubs. Tecs have the best chance, however, as after tying Bisons in Buffalo they will play to their home patrons. Olympics, on the other hand, face a problem in the selection of a net-minder, as both their custodians are on the injured list.

Columbus Bowler Cops Special Prize

DETROIT, April 5.—(CP)— Detroit's heavy guns will be brought into action tonight in the thirty-second annual American Bowling Congress tournament in an effort to place Michigan more prominently in the list of "Big Ten" leaders. Although the going admittedly will be difficult one or two of the local five-men squads are conceded a chance of getting into the higher brackets.

In yesterday's competition, the work of young John L. Winko, Columbus, O., boilermaker in rolling eleven straight strikes brought the gallerylites to their toes. Only an obdurate number six pin which refused to fall on the final effort prevented Winko's making a perfect score of 300. A silver medal and a special prize of $299 rewarded his effort. Winko was paired with S. Green in the doubles when the 299 game was scored. The couple aggregated 1221, a total which places them on the regular prize list.

Jack Burke and Sam Murray of Chicago, scored 1278 to tie for eighth place in the doubles. Burke's 633 brought his all-events total to 1940, placing him third in that division. In a day replete with 600 scores in the singles class, Harry C. Thompson, of Delaware, O., stood out with a high score of 665.

British Walker Cup Team Named

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, April 5. (A.P.)—The royal and ancient club of St. Andrews to-day announced the makeup of the Walker cup golf team which will invade the United States this year to play Francis Ouimet's United States squad.

The team is headed by T. A. Torrance, who is expected to be named Captain, J. T. Bookless, John Burke, the Irish champion, Leonard Crawley, Lister Hartley, Rex Hartley, Eric McRuvie, and J. A. Stout.

One of the surprises was the omission of Roger Wethered, former amateur champion, who had been mentioned as a probable captain of the team. E. Martin Smith, present amateur title holder also was not named.

The Walker Cup series was inaugurated in 1922 at the National links, Long Island. It has been contested six times.

No place or date has been set for the matches this year.

It is estimated that about 8,000,000 sugar maple trees in Eastern Canada are tapped annually for their sap.

In Group 2, the teams finished this way last week, Knights four points, "Y" none and Duffus none; after the "Y" getting two points and the others one each the week before. In Group 3, Duffus leads with four points while both "Y" and Knights drew a horse-collar a week ago.

The main sport left around here these days is boxing, and a show of the simon pures which should draw well is the Foster Club card at the Legion Hall at 8.30 tomorrow night. We've got a hunch that those Belleville scrappers are going to be even tougher to take this time as they are in better condition than on their last trip here. Eight good boxing bouts and a lively ten-minute wrestling exhibition should satisfy the fans, both men and girls.

Art Hunter draws a tough assignment in Art Angell in the main heat and the George Semark-Jimmie Dugan affair should be hot. Semark is the boy who lost to Ned Minicola last time, and Dugan is a classy newcomer at Foster's. Bill Hope's middleweight opponent has not been named yet, but his name will be mud if he lets Bill park that right mitt on his whiskers in their scrap. Jack Gardner and Scotty Kline ought to put on a great old tussle, both being fast, game and colorful. The local fights sound good, too, and the whole card should go over okay.

PATRICK O'CONNELL IS EXCISE OFFICER

Named to Canadian Mounted Police to Enforce the Excise Act.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, April 5. — Patrick O'Connell, who has been Preventive Officer in this district for the past several months, has been selected as a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and will represent this force in the counties of Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough and Ontario, with headquarters at Lindsay. The Preventive Service of the Customs and Excise department passed out of existence on March 31, and the work was taken over by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Muskrat trappers in this district are in "the blues" because of winter conditions, which have seriously retarded trapping operations. Traps have been set in the waters since the opening of the trapping season, but the weather conditions are such that the rats will not frequent the cold water. The trapping season closes on April 21, and unless milder weather sets in at an early date, the season's catch promises to be a poor one.

Some twenty transients with no fixed places of abode were given shelter by the police over the week-end. The men were first fed at the armories soup kitchen.

The Picadilly Circus, under Kiwanis auspices which was staged during the week in the armouries, was hard hit by unfavorable weather conditions. The event closed on Saturday night, and was not the success the promoters anticipated.

ENTRY DATE EXTENDED.

The substitution question was the prominent item of business before the Peterborough and District Football Association, last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, with President Vincent Stewart in the chair, along with a full quota of executive members being present.

Eventually the motion "That each club be allowed three substitutes" was carried. These names be given to the referee before the games. Substitution be allowed only when the ball is out of play. Once a player is substituted he cannot resume playing. No substition is permitted during the last fifteen minutes of the game.

O.F.A. Interpretation

In the Ontario Cup competition a new law be inserted to allow three substitutes to be used during the cup game, subject to the following provisions:

(a) That all substituttion must be dressed in the regulation club uniforms and their names given to the referee at the same time as the usual eleven.

(b) No player substitution shall be allowed to take any further part in the game, and no substitution shall be permitted except during a stop regularly called by the referee, while the game is in progress.

(c) No player ordered off the field for misconduct can be replaced under any circumstances.

Date Extended

No definite information was received from Deloro nor the Canadian Packing in regard to their entry for the season. The date of entry was extended to May 1st so as to permit the forenamed teams to enter.

QUINTE SCRAPPERS HERE WEDNESDAY

Eight Boxing Bouts and One Wrestling Match in Foster Club Show.

Eight boxing bouts and a ten-minute wrestling exhibition make up the Foster Club fight card at the Legion Hall tomorrow night, starting at 8.30. Four Belleville scrappers will feature the last four bouts on the program with Art Hunter, Bill Hope, Jimmie Dugan and Jack Gardner. Four all-local scraps and the grappling go round out a promising-looking evening's entertainment.

The headliner finds two hard-hitting, clever featherweights, Art Hunter and Art Angell, of Belleville, meeting for the first time. Both boys have fought the best in Toronto and both are hoping to get into the Ontario championships. Hunter will concede about three pounds to his opponent but is looking for a quick kayo, as he is in the best shape of his ring career right now, and is boxing six and seven fast rounds nightly in the gym.

Bill Hope, local middleweight with the dynamic right hand, meets a good 150-pounder from Belleville, whose name has not been announced yet. This should make a fine semi-final. George Semark, tough and trick Quinte City lightweight, will have his hands full with the lanky local whirlwind, Jimmie Dugan, who makes his first public ring appearance tomorrow evening. The colorful and versatile Jack Gardner goes on against Scotty Kline of Belleville, and Jack will have to step lively to get in on Kline, who proved himself a regular phantom on his last appearance here. Both boys are great showmen and fans are sure to get a kick out of this battle.

Maurice Caccavella, slam-bang middleweight, takes on a tough opponent in Hank Smith, a newcomer, who can take and give wicked wallops without slowing up. A boxer-fighter type of bout will be the one between Jack Peel and Sid Bennett, feathers; while the two classy flyweights, Chink Wahl and Earl Harrington are bound to put on a good tussle. "Irish" Jordan III and Joe DeNoble stage another exciting curtain-raiser. Two well-known amateurs go on in a ten-minute, one-fall wrestling exhibition in a manner reminiscent of the pros, to give fans a real exciting show.

SELECT GROUP OF ATHLETES COMING FROM BALTIC STATES

Sule, Great Estonian Javelin Thrower, Will Compete at Olympics.

PLENTY OF CLASS

By MAXWELL STILES

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—(Special to The Examiner).—Not the least able among the athletes who will compete in the tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles will be a small but select group of competitors from the Baltic States, Estonia and Latvia. Whether Lithuania will be represented no one in Los Angeles seems to know.

"Estonia plans to send five or six men, depending on finances," said Charles E. Kodil, vice-president of the Estonian Olympic society in Southern California, who is serving as Olympic attache for his country. "I can say definitely that one of these will be Sule, our great javelin thrower. The others, I cannot name, although it is the hope of the Estonian society in New York, of whom Col. Victor Mutt is the head inasmuch as he is counsel general for Estonia, that Estonia may be represented in track and field for men, fencing for men, gymnastics, rowing, shooting, swimming for men and both forms of wrestling."

H. P. Rising, Olympic attache for Latvia in Los Angeles, said that Latvia will have a team but he has not been advised of any plans at the present moment. He was unable to say which sports Latvia will compete in, although he was willing to assume that the expedition will include some of Latvia's star athletes in track and field.

Latvia's Ace Sprinter.

These two nations just to the south of Finland are almost equally divided as to strength in track and field. Latvia has more men who may place in the Olympics, but none who stands quite as fine a chance of winning his event as Sule, the Estonia spearsman who tossed the javelin 228.14 feet last year. Estonia defeated Latvia in an international dual meet last summer, 81 to 79.

In addition to Sule, Estonia has the following athletes of real promise:

Feldman, who threw the discus 151 feet 7 inches in 1930.

Viding, who put the shot 48 feet 11 inches in 1931.

Kuttim whose best 1931 performance in the hop, step and jump was 48 feet 9 inches, better than any American mark.

Schmidt, who leaped 6 feet 1 inch in the high jump.

Latvia's outstanding athletes is a man named Dimse, whose marks in a number of events are good enough to suggest that he may be a strong candidate for the decathlon championship. Last year Dimse put the shot 49 feet 10½ inches, cleared 6 feet 1½ inches in the hop, step and jump, broad jumped 23 feet 3¾ inches and pole vaulted 10 feet 5 inches. He may figure in the Olympic shot put.

Latvia's ace sprinter, Kiwitz, tied the Olympic record of 10.6 seconds for 100 metres, ran 200 metres in 21.9 seconds and 400 metres in 50.8 seconds.

Where Hungary has 136 competitors at Amsterdam in 1928, the maximum for the Los Angeles games is placed at fifty by Mr. Francis Proiszi, Olympic attache for Hungary in this city.

It is definitely known that Hungary's world famous water polo team and her leading track and field athletes and swimmers will come to Los Angeles. Hungary's water polo team recently defeated Germany for the world championship, and it was this team that eliminated the United States, 5 to 0, in the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam. Hungary lost in the final round to Germany.

Potential Champions

Proiszi said that if sufficient funds are forthcoming, Hungary plans to compete not only in water polo, swimming for both men and women and men's track and field, but also in boxing, fencing for both men and women, rowing, shooting and both types of wrestling.

Hungary, in addition to its water polo team, has several potential Olympic champions. Turning the spotlight on the best of these:

1. Hungary will enter probably the best team of discus throwers of any nation. Last year Emecz threw the discus 160.20 feet, Madarasj 159 feet 6 inches, Marvalitz 157 feet 7 inches, Donogan 157 feet 6 inches and Kulitzy 150 feet 10½ inches. The Olympic record is 155 feet 2 15-16 inches, which proves the strength of the Hungarian contingent.

2. Hungary's ace swimmer, Barany, placed second to Weissmuller in the 1928 Olympic 100 metres free style. Barany's 1931 time, 58.4 seconds, was the best recorded. He should win his event.

3. Miss Magda Lenkey, with 1.09.8 had the third best 1931 time for 100 metres among the women.

4. B. Szepes, second in the Olympic javelin throw of 1928, has a mark of 218 feet 10 inches and last year reached 201 feet 8 inches.

5. Daranyi not only put the shot 50 feet 8 inches on one occasion but defeated Douds of Czechoslovakia in the championships of Great Britain.

6. Laszlo Barsi has won the Hungarian national championships in both 400 and 800 metres for the last seven years, has marks of 48.4 seconds and 1.543.4 respectively for 1931 and is one of the leading Olympic candidates in each event.

Howard Nicholsom Wins Skating Title

LONDON, April 5.—(C. P. Cable) — Howard Nicholson, professional attached to the Granite club of Toronto, won the open professional figure skating championship of Great Britain at Oxford last evening with a fine display of speed and skill which delighted the large attendance.

Nicholson was the favorite and won by a large margin of points, his free skating being outstanding. There were strong competitors from continental centers.

The result was as follows:

Howard Nicholson, Toronto, first; W. Arian of Austria, attached to Westminster icedrome, second; E. Hartung of Berlin, attached to Liverpool ice rink, third.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

SCOLDED AND LAUGHED AT.

Who makes mistakes will in some way
A price of some kind have to pay
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

If ever there was an astonished boy in all the Great World that boy was Farmer Brown's Boy when instead of Shadow the Weasel it was Chatterer the Red Squirrel who darted out of the box trap when he opened it. All the way from the sugar house among the maple trees to the rocky ledges deep in the Green Forest he had carried that trap that Shadow might be given his liberty where he would do no harm to Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and his family living in the sugar house. He had thought himself very smart to think of that way of getting rid of Shadow without hurting him. Now he felt very foolish.

He recalled how Farmer Brown had asked him if he was sure that he had Shadow and how positive he had been that he did have him. Now he must go back and confess that he had been mistaken. He grinned ruefully at the thought. And he grinned, too, as he listened to Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Chatterer was what is called hopping mad. That is, he was so angry that he couldn't sit still. He hopped up and down as his tongue flew, for Chatterer was scolding as only Chatterer can. My, my, my, how his tongue flew! He was calling Farmer Brown's Boy every bad name known to the Squirrel language and I suspect he invented some besides. He had forgotten how Farmer Brown's Boy had rescued him from the pail of sap into which he had fallen and where he had almost drowned. He could think of nothing but the indignity he had suffered by being trapped and carried far from his home. So he fairly screamed at Farmer Brown's Boy as he told him what he thought of him. Farmer Brown's Boy couldn't understand a word, but he didn't need to. Chatterer didn't need words to make his meaning clear.

Farmer Brown's Boy looked up at Chatterer, who was in a tree above him. "I don't blame you a bit, Chatterer," said he. "No, sir, I don't blame you a bit. Still, after all, it is in part your own fault. You had no business to have gone into this trap. So it is only partly my fault that you are so far from home. If you will come back in the trap I'll take you back there. That is fair enough, isn't it?"

Of course Chatterer didn't understand the invitation and he wouldn't have accepted it had he understood. He simply continued to scold as Farmer Brown's Boy picked up the trap and started back. For a little way Chatterer followed him through the treetops. After he stopped trying to keep up, his scolding voice followed Farmer Brown's Boy. As he approached the sugar house Farmer Brown stepped out.

"Well, Son," said he without a trace of a smile. "I have saved those Mice for you again while you have been gone, but you mustn't forget to keep this door closed or you will have to keep Shadow for a pet instead of Whitefoot and Mrs. Whitefoot."

"What do you mean?" demanded Farmer Brown's Boy.

Instead of answering the question Farmer Brown asked another. "Who was it you carried off in that trap?"

The face of Farmer Brown's Boy got rather red. "Chatterer the Red Squirrel," he confessed.

Farmer Brown began to laugh. "I suspected it," said he. "You were no more than out of hearing when I turned my head just in time to see Shadow the Weasel duck out of sight in the woodpile. Anyway, if it wasn't the one you thought you had in the trap; it was another just like him. I yelled to you, but I guess you didn't hear me. Well, there is no loss without some gain and you got some good exercise if you didn't get rid of Shadow. Ha, ha, ha, ha! You walked all that distance to carry Chatterer the Red Squirrel. What did he say to you?"

"Plenty," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "I guess he is still saying it. The joke is on me. But I'll get that Weasel yet, and when I do get him I'll know that I have him before I start off with him."

BREAKS SAME LEG IN SAME WAY, SAME SPOT

And Goes to Same Hospital After Glider Crash

Brighton, Eng.—When flying a glider a gusty wind at Ditchling Beacon, near Brighton, Mr. Leeroy Brown of Brunswick St., Hove, was seriously injured.

Mr. Brown, who is chairman of the South Downs Sky Sailing Club, crashed within a few yards of the spot where he was injured last spring, and he again broke the leg which was broken in the previous accident.

He was taken to the Royal Sussex county hospital, Brighton, where he spent several weeks after his former accident.

Mr. Brown, during the war, was an Air Force pilot, but never had an injury. He was shot down over the enemy lines, but was uninjured when taken prisoner."

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 5th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5:10 p.m., and from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., and from 7:40 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The Stars will not be in a helpful mood on April 6, and their influence will be of an adverse nature, killing initiative, dampening spirits, hiding opportunities, and fostering pessimism. The young Miss in her 'teens will suffer through her love affairs and will be a temporary "man hater."

Children born on this April 5th will delight in physical sports, games and outdoor life. They will hate restrictions and confinement and set duties. Their general disposition will be good-natured and they will be full of laughter. They will have a few careless habits, many of which will be outgrown.

Born on April 5th, you will experience those satisfactions in life which come from sharing and serving. You are not always looking for the longest straws in the lottery of life, although you are destined by birth to get your share of innings. You are careful without being cautious; liberal without being extreme. You have a keen sense of economic values and do not throw your money away. Your dreams and ambitions are strengthened by your most resolute determination. You have faith in yourself, and you believe in continued effort. You feel yourself master of your own Fate, that the doctrine of cause and effect is immutable and that most of your real misfortunes can be traced to your own door.

You are broad-minded, direct and outspoken, and rather severely just. You have a high class intelligence which can be put to work in most any direction. You take your duties very much to heart, and are mostly interested in the serious things of life. You cultivate the cornfields of your mind, but are inclined to neglect the pleasure grounds.

You often long for silence or surroundings, and love if possible to steal away where you only hear the hums of nature. You are not afraid of solitude and are not bored with your own thoughts or own devices of amusement.

GLASGOW GOAL OF U.S. ENVOY

Hint Major Shoeffel on Way to See Mother of Betty Gow.

VISITED SCOTLAND YARD.

GLASGOW, April 5 (A.P.).—It was officially reported here yesterday that Major Charles H. Schoeffel of the New Jersey State police will arrive tonight from London. It was understood that he was coming to interview a Mrs. Taylor, the mother of the Lindbergh nurse, Betty Gow.

There was a feeling among police authorities here that "something of considerable importance" may be the outgrowth of Major Schoeffel's visit.

The city is excited about it and question is even being asked on the street "Is the Lindbergh baby in Glasgow?" The police have even gone so far as to institute a search for the child.

Mrs. Taylor maintains reticence, however. When informed that the New Jersey officer would arrive tonight she merely smiled and said:

"I have nothing to say at the moment."

It was stated officially, however, that Major Schoeffel had bound Mrs. Taylor to secrecy, indicating that his visit had been planned in advance.

NAZI PREPARED FOR CIVIL WAR

Have Most Extensive Espionage System Ever Seen by Minister of Interior.

PAPERS REVEAL PLANS.

BERLIN, April 5.—(A.P.) —Karl Severing, Minister of the Interior, who ordered the dramatic raids last month on meeting places of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist Party, announced to-day that documents seized in those raids indicated that the Nazis had one of the most extensive espionage systems that he ever saw.

It was a political bombshell in the heated pre-election atmosphere, for it intimated that if Hitler had won the first presidential election on March 13 the country would now be in the midst of a civil war.

One Nazi party order issued by the intelligence service in February, he said, directed that the espionage branch must extend to every activity of friendly or sympathizing organizations; to the activities of the State and all its organs, especially the police and the army.

Confidential Papers.

The material confiscated, said the Minister, included many confidential government documents which could not have fallen into the hands of the Nazis except by violation of the oath of office on the part of those to whom the documents originally were entrusted.

Dr. Severing said the police also found lists of the Nazis who are able to handle machine guns and army pistols and to drive tanks. He said an order found at Magdeburg directed all local Nazi branches to have their field kitchens in order by March 7, ready to proceed wherever they might be sent.

In the event of mobilization of the storm troops, this order was said to have specified, the members would appear in civilian clothing but equipped with the forbidden uniform faultlessly packed, two days' rations and knapsack with blankets and toilet articles.

EVANGELIST OPENS REVIVAL MEETINGS

Church Must Awaken and Lead People Back to God.

The opening services of the revival meetings at Bethany Tabernacle met with a good response on the part of Peterborough people.

The evangelist, the Rev. W. H. Dynes, a Bapist minister of St. Thomas, Ont., addressed the church in the morning service on the subject, "The need for revival" and in the evening on the subject "The Call to Revival," taking for his text Hosea 10:12; the speaker said in part: "It may seem like a contradiction in terms to say that an empty vine brings forth fruit but on closer examination and comparison with other parts of scripture there is to be discovered in this statement a most profound truth, very concisely put.

"God likens his own people to a vine and He expects that that vine should bring forth fruit unto God being planted and cultivated for that high purpose. When that vine becomes self-centered and brings forth fruit unto itself, then from God's viewpoint that vine is barren and ready to be torn up and cast away. How many of God's people in the professing Church of Jesus Christ have the same sort of lives as God describes here for this vine. And herein we have shown to us the reason why a revival is need in the church of to-day.

"The Hon. R. B. Bennett said not long ago that God is the only One able to solve the problems of this old world to-day, and I say that unless the Church of Jesus Christ rises to the situation and leads the way back to God, then God help society.

"It is the business of those who have professed the name of Jesus Christ to live lives that will show forth Christ-likeness to the world, and there is only one way in which that is possible, and that is by an experimental knowledge of the indwelling Christ in one's own heart and life; and to the Christian I would say that Christ must be enthroned in your heart before you can bring forth fruit unto righteousness in the way that can please God. Until Christians are willing to take this place before God, a revival of old-time religion is impossible. So that the first thing we must face is ourselves, our relationship to God and to other men."

Rev. Mr. Dynes is a powerful gospel singer and rendered two solos at the evening service, holding his audience in rapt attention.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

As the primitive smoke bombs filled the throne room of the Tower of the Emperors with their suffocating fumes, the Gomangani clustered about Tarzan, begging him to save them. They, too, had seen the massed Bolgani before every entrance and the great body of them that waited in the gardens and upon the terraces without. "Wait," said the Apeman, "until the smoke is thicker. It will hide our movements. Then we will rush the windows nearest the east gates."

"I have a better plan," said the old man. "When the smoke conceals us, follow me. There is one exit unguarded, probably because they do not dream we would ever use it. For it leads into the cellars of the Tower of Diamonds." Now the smoke was so dense they were finding great difficulty in breathing. "Courage," said Tarzan to La, who was choked and half-blinded from the acrid fumes. "Try and hold out just a moment longer."

Copyright, 1932, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

At last Tarzan gave the signal. The stumbled after the old man, up the dais and through a small opening behind the thrones, hidden by tapestries. Tarzan was the last to go. He led Jab-bal-ja, who had about reached the limit of his patience. The golden lion voiced his anger in deep growls which kept the Gomangani from crowding too closely upon the three whites ahead of them. The aperture opened into a dark corridor leading down a flight of stairs.

Straight through utter darkness they followed the old man for a considerable distance. None minded the darkness, however, so great was their relief in escaping the horrors of the throne room. Before a heavy door the old man halted them. They heard him moving about in a large, rectangular chamber. Presently a dim light flared. "Come," he said to Tarzan, "before we leave this chamber I want to show you a sight such as no other human eyes have ever rested upon!"

SECOND DEMONSTRATION

Fire Chief Gimblett is planning to stage another demonstration with the new oil-fighting equipment recently purchased by the City Council, at James Stevenson Park commencing at seven o'clock Wednesday evening.

While the demonstration given yesterday afternoon was entirely successful, the further demonstration promises to provide a thrilling spectacle against the dark background of the gathering twilight. Hunter street bridge provides an excellent vantage point from which the fire may be viewed.

CHOP MILL DAMAGED.

Owen Johnson, who operates a small chop mill, suffered an appreciable loss through an outbreak of fire of undetermined origin which occurred last evening in the premises occupied by him at the rear of the Brewery Warehouse on George Street. The building, the property of The Peter Hamilton Company, was severely scorched, while the chopping outfit, including a tractor, were also damaged. Loss was not covered by insurance.

SERVICES DISPENSED WITH.

W. H. Lytle, who for the past year has served as part-time radio inspector in this city, has received official notice from the Department of Marine that the services of all part-time inspectors are to be dispensed with after April 15. These officials have been engaged in the work of locating and eliminating interference wherever possible, and so far there has been no announcement as to how this service is to be provided for in the future.

According to custom, as many men and as many women as there are years in the King's age—67 this year—received 67 pence in maundy money and an allowance of 50 shillings in lieu of food and clothing.

DR. BUCHANAN GIVES ADDRESS

Otonabee Lodge Members Hear Interesting Address on Holy Land.

LARGE GATHERING.

A large gathering of Odd Fellows assembled last evening at their lodge rooms on the occasion of the visit of Dr. Buchanan as the guest speaker of Otonabee Lodge No. 13 I.O.O.F. This was one of the many after-lodge features which have been planned by the enterprising committee in charge, to take place from time to time on off nights. It was very pleasing to notice the large sprinkling of Odd Fellows's sons who had taken advantage of this opportunity to be present with their fathers as honored guests of Otonabee Lodge. These boys, nearly all of student age, were undoubtedly rewarded with a couple of hours' brim full of historical and geographical topics.

In introducing Dr. Buchanan to the assembly the Noble Grand Brother Bull mentioned that they had looked forward with ardent joy to this visit of the doctor, because travel was no doubt one thing that broadened one's mind very extensively, but when the great majority of us were unable to take such trips as were to be depicted this evening, we had to be dependent upon the kindness of those more fortunate, to bring the scenes to us by photographic means.

The Noble Grand here reminded the audience of the significance of the presiding officer's gavel which had been kindly presented to Otonabee Lodge by Mrs. Gaskins, the widow of their late member, Brother Alfred Gaskins of Auburn, N.Y. This gavel was made from part of an olive tree growing in Bethlehem and made at Jerusalem, being stamped with the names of those two cities and engraved with the well known emblem of the order, the three links. It was presented to the lodge about three years ago to perpetuate the memory of Bro. Gaskins. The gavel was handed round and examined with much interest. The chairman then called upon Dr. Buchanan, who was received with much applause. With the aid of three large maps he commenced to take his audience over the extensive trip which he himself had undertaken about a year ago through the Holy Land.

The speaker's descriptions of the places his party visited throughout Palestine and Egypt were very vivid and were listened to most attentively, after which Dr. Buchanan showed several reels of motion pictures which he himself had taken at the time. The pictures which were intensely clear depicted some of the temples of Jerusalem, the Samaritan inn on the way to Jericho, the Wailing Wall, the Jordan river, the Dead Sea, Pyramids and Sphinxes of ancient Biblical times and some of the splendid buildings and hotels of recent times. At the end of this interesting lecture, Brother Alderman Tuggey moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Buchanan for his kindness in giving Otonabee Lodge such a wonderfully instructive evening. The Noble Grand on behalf of the lodge tendered the vote of thanks with a few remarks of appreciation and with much enthusiastic applause the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

The Mark Street Young People held their regular meeting Monday evening. The meeting was opened by the president, C. English, and was then taken over by C. Robb, leader of the Christian Fellowship program. Edythe Elmhirst led in prayer, after which Clarence Logan led in responsive reading. Master Leslie Sage, of the St. John's Boys' Choir, sang, "Oh, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee." The scripture was read by Miss Eleanor Peters. Miss E. Smith of St. James' Church gave two lovely solos. The speaker of the evening, F. Kerr, Principal of King George School, chose as his topic "The Orientals in Canada." He outlined how the Orientals came to Canada, and the work carried on by them now. He stressed how very clever they are, and how they can adapt themselves to any situation. Mr. Robb thanked Mr. Kerr for his talk, which was enjoyed by all. The program closed with the Mizpah Benediction, after which games were played.

Test New Type "Rolling" Custom

SKIMS OVER SURFACE OF WATER

M. Eckerlein, FRONT, is testing the new "Rolling" boat which he has invented at Paris, France. The boat has a 9 h.p. motor working a propeller that churns the air and allows the boat, which is raised on these three barrels on the sides, to skim over the water at a 140 kilometers an hour clip. Water resistance is minimized by the new arrangement.

Obituary

MRS. C. J. TABER.

The funeral of the late Mrs. C. J. Taber of Orillia, formerly of Peterborough, was held yesterday morning from the residence of her sister, Mrs. W. J. Grisdale, Aylmer street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peters Cemetery for interment.

Requiem High Mass was sung by a nephew of the deceased, the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, while the Rev. P. Costello, rector of the Cathedral, addressed the congregation, basing his discourse on the text, "It is appointed for us once to die, and we know not when, nor where, nor how."

The reverend speaker stressed the thought of the long life granted the deceased, wherein to prepare herself for an eternal reward.

Pallbearers were Benjamin Fraser, Edward J. McDonnell, Percival Young of Toronto, and Messrs. James, John and Wilfre Grisdale.

HAROLD VINCENT ELCOMBE

The funeral of Harold Vincent Elcombe, one of the best known of Peterborough's younger citizens, who died on Friday after a brief illness at the age of 35 years, was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Comstock's Funeral Home to Little Lake cemetery.

Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, of George Street United Church, of which the deceased was an active member, officiated at the service, and briefly reviewed the exemplary life of the young man as a citizen and a soldier.

The funeral was under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, of which the late Mr. Elcombe was a member. A large number of his former comrades in the Canadian Expeditionary Force paraded in the cortege, being marshalled by Captain James Abraham. At the graveside Lieutenant William Perver sounded Last Post and the Reveille, while the war comrades dropped poppies into the grave.

Pall bearers were his former associates in the Quaker Oats, where he had been employed for 20 years: A. T. Butcher, W. J. Brooks, W. A. Donnelly, E. V. Morphet, E. W. Jones and L. H. Ingram. Every member of the Quaker Oats office staff was present at the funeral and also many representatives of the factory staff and citizens, testifying silently to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

MRS. RUTH DAWSON TROTTER

The death occurred on Monday evening of Mrs. Ruth Dawson Trotter, widow of the late S. J. Trotter of Vancouver, B.C., and daughter of the late Thomas and Mary Elizabeth Dawson. She was 47 years of age.

Mrs. Trotter had been in poor health for several years. All her life she had been an active worker and member of All Saints' Church and was closely associated with the Sunday School and choir, until illness made it impossible for her to carry on. She was President of the Ladies' Guild and never lost her interest in its work.

Besides her son James, she is survived by three brothers, Thomas and Richard of Peterborough; John D. Detroit and three sisters, Mrs. J. E. Johnston and Birdie of Peterborough and Mrs. R. L. Hamilton of Toronto.

The funeral is to be held from the family residence, 350 Bonaccord street on Wednesday at 3 p.m. with the Rev. J. D. Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

MISS ALICE KENNY

Miss Alice Kenney passed peacefully away at her residence in Toronto on Sunday last. She had been in failing health for some time, but had only been seriously ill for the past week.

She leaves five sisters, Rev. Sr. M. Pius and Rev. Sr. M. Bibiana both of Toronto; Mrs. E. Smith, Chicago, Mrs. John Anderson, Warkworth; Mrs. Joseph J. Doyle of this city and one brother, James Kenney also of this city.

The funeral was held to-day following the arrival of the remains on the noon C.N.R. train, and interment was made at St. Peter's cemetery. The Rev. Fr. Maher of Huntsville officiated at the graveside.

MRS. JOHN R. GOODFELLOW

The late Mrs. John R. Goodfellow, whose funeral took place on Saturday, April 2, from the family residence, 583 Park street, N., was formerly Mary Elizabeth Scollie, second daughter of the late George and Ann Scollie.

Born at Cobourg, February 27, 1867, she came in early childhood with her parents into Peterborough district where she resided until her death. Married February 18, 1891 she is survived by her husband, four sons, Harold and Donald of Fort William, George and Robert of this city and one daughter, Mrs. Harry Barrett of this city. Two sisters, Mrs. G. L. Allen of Victoria, B.C., and Mrs. F. L. Scollie of Fort William, Ont., also survive. Another sister, Mrs. Catherine Ida Young, for many years a resident of Peterborough, passed away at Fort William on May 17, 1931.

For some thirty-five years the late Mrs. Goodfellow was an example in this neighborhood. She gave wise counsel and bore in patient silence what must be borne. For nineteen years an invalid and a shut-in- she was also the sunshine and guilding star of the home. Whether on her pillow or occupying her invalid-chair she greeted all with smiles and words of encouragment. She passed through "deep waters" but the waves of her influence touched both shores. Her life was lived for others, and by it, "she being dead yet speaketh."

On Wednesday morning, March 30th, she rejoiced to her by radio, her former pastor, Rev. William Allen, read and speak from John 14. Then the singing of the hymn, "O Love that will not let me go." She slept away about 6 p.m. March 31st and looking upon the face we remembered "My peace I give unto you."

The largely attended funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Barr of St. Paul's Church, assisted by the Rev. William McDonald of Knox Church. The latter read several passages of scripture, including John 14:1-3 and Psalm 23. Dr. Barr having read 1 Thess. 4:13-15, based his remarks upon the three words, "Asleep in Jesus." Resurrection, not death, was the theme. By request he read the favorite hymn, of the deceased, "O Paradise! O Paradise!"

A letter to the bereaved from the Rev. William Allan was read in part as follows: "She is not here—she is risen. For her to live was Christ and to die was gain. Remember, "It is only 'till He come".

The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Dr. Barr officiated at the grave in Little Lake Cemetery. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." "For so He giveth His beloved sleep."

IN MEMORIAM.

LOUCKS. — In loving memory of Mrs. John Loucks, who passed away April 5, 1929.

Only a memory of bygone days,
And a sigh for a face unseen,
But a constant feeling that God alone
Knows just what should have been.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
All earthly trials and troubles are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

—Sadly missed by her Son and Family.

IN MEMORIAM

HUTCHINSON—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. W. J. Hutchinson who departed this life, April 5, 1931.

Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright,
If sick or suffering one she knew,
Some gentle act of love she'd do,
No thought of self, but of "the other";
I know He said "Well done, dear Mother."

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels. . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes. . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

Premier Squires Cannot be Found Following Riot

Status of Government Uncertain as Prime Minister Has Not Handed Resignation in Despite Different Announcements Cabinet Would Quit.

POLICE BESIEGED WITH MINISTERS WHILE CROWD WRECKS CABINET ROOMS AND DESTROYS RECORDS

Riot Begins When Citizens Led to Believe Cabinet Intended to Defer Action on Resolution Urging Probe of Charges Against Squires.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. April 6.—(CP)—The exact status of government in Newfoundland was uncertain today, confused by the succession of events when a riotous mob stormed the House of Assembly late yesterday afternoon.

A former member and a present member of the Squires executive council had made public utterance to the effect that the government would resign. But Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires who escaped with difficulty when the crowd surrounded Colonial Building last night, had not presented an official resignation to Governor Sir John Middleton.

Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires, who was rescued from the besieged Colonial Building last night and eluded rioters who threatened his life, could not be located this morning.

Governor Sir John Middleton had not heard from him, and the expected resignation of the administration had not been received at noon.

Sir William Coaker, minister without portfolio, tendered his resignation this morning but it was not accepted pending receipt of word from the Prime Minister.

The Riot

The disturbance occurred when delay greeted his efforts of a publicly-appointed deputation to present a resolution in the assembly, seeking a "proper investigation" of charges laid by former Minister of Finance Peter Cashin that Sir Richard had falsified minutes of council to divert public funds to political account. It was after the delegation had been admitted and had left the building, that the crowd, believing the government intended to defer consideration of the resolution, smashed every window in the basement, destroyed government records, and threw office furnishings into the street.

They were unable to gain entrance to the structure's upper floors.

Two Friends

By a curious stroke of irony, it was Rev. W. A. Godfrey, who had sponsored the resolution in public meeting the night before, and L. E. Emerson, Opposition Member of the Assembly who had recently instituted a private suit for $10,000 against Sir Richard, who facilitated his escape to a private dwelling house.

Police attempting to stem the crowd's onslaught were driven back into the building. Two were removed to hospital with injuries not regarded as serious, and a bystander suffered a broken leg.

PERCY HOLLAND GETS TWO YEARS

Peterborough Man is Given Term in Michigan Penitentiary.

HAS LONG RECORD.

DETROIT, Mich., April 6 (Special to The Examiner).—Percy Vincent ("Dodds") Holland of Peterborough, found guilty of entering the United States illegally for the second time, to-day starts a two-year sentence in Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary.

Holland received a suspended sentence last May for illegal entry and promised Judge Edward J. Moinet he would not return to this country if deported without serving time. Officials say, he re-entered again several months ago. He was arrested, and Tuesday Judge Moinet made his sentence operative. At the conclusion of his term Holland will again be deported to Canada.

Prisoner has an unenviable record with the Peterborough police which extends back to 1908. While yet a youth he was sentenced on successive charges of vagrancy, injuring property, drinking, disorderly conduct, theft from persons, petty larceny and violation of parole.

In 1926, he was first convicted for the use of drugs, being sentenced to State Prison at Jackson, Michigan. After he was deported to Canada

RUSSIAN YOUTHS DOOMED TO DIE

WOMAN PLAYED PART.

MOSCOW, April 6 (A.P.)—Death before a firing squad faced Judas Stern and Sergei Vassiliev to-day, two Russian youth convicted of attempting to assassinate Dr. Fritz Twardowski, counsellor of the German Embassy.

The death penalty was imposed by the Soviet Supreme Court after a two-day trial, during which the two young men confessed they shot the German Embassy official. The penalty was demanded by Nikolai Krilenko, Soviet Russia's relentless prosecutor.

During the trial Krilenko sought to link Stern and Vassiliev with an anti-Communist organization in Poland which, he said, once marked for death Michael Kalinin, President of the Soviet Union.

The prosecutor drew an admission from Vassiliev that the latter had been influenced by a woman, Mme. Olga Shekova, who was executed in 1929 for shooting a Red Army officer.

Vassiliev refused the prosecutor's demand that he make known the names of the members of the organization for which he said he acted in influencing Stern to make the assassination attempt.

"I am morally bound not to involve others," he said.

Flandin, Grandi, Von Buelow Lunch With MacDonald.

NO DECISION ON LOAN.

LONDON, April 6—(AP)—French, German and Italian delegates to the conference considering economic problems of the Danubian valley had luncheon today with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and then crossed the street to the Foreign Office to begin the informal discussions by which they hope to evolve a plan to put Middle Europe back on its feet.

Premier Tardieu of France, who talked with the Prime Minister over the week-end, had gone back home to begin his campaign in the French elections. His place was taken by Pierre Flandin, his Finance Minister. Dino Grandi spoke for Italy and Dr. Von Buelow, the German Secretary of State, represented his country.

This is to be an entirely informal meeting for an exchange of views. When a plan is evolved it will be submitted to another conference, sometime in the near future, at which the Danubian states directly concerned will be represented.

The British and French financial experts are still studying the fiduciary aspects of the problem, but they announced that no decision had been reached regarding a proposed Danubian loan.

AUDITORS FIND KREUGER BOOKS TO BE FALSIFIED

Changes Made Under Direction of Deceased Swedish Match King.

LONDON FIRM CHECKS.

Balances Owing Parent Company, Liabilities to Subsidiaries Eliminated.

STOCKHOLM, April 6 (A.P.) — Falsifications of the books of the Kreuger and Toll Company, made under the direction of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, who committed suicide at Paris recently, have been discovered by accountants checking the firm's accounts, according to an auditors' report just issued.

The report said entries were made in the books which eliminated substantial balances owing to the parent company by Krueger and subsidiary companies, while liabilities to other subsidiaries also were eliminated.

In some instances, the auditors said, the book assets were entirely fictitious, duplications of assets appearing on the books of associated companies or figures greatly exceeding the items they were supposed to represent.

The report said the manipulation seemed also to extend to the profit and loss accounts of the different companies concerned and that the profits for 1930 were fictitiously increased. ... ...

A firm of London accountants made the check. They had no doubt, they said, that the Kreuger and Tall balance sheet, and a consolidated balance sheet accompanying it, were grossly wrong, although these agreed with the balance appearing on the firm's books.

URGE HANDS OFF RADIO STATIONS PRIVATELY HELD

League Suggests Six Stations at Least 5,000 Watts for Ontario.

COMMERCIAL BASIS.

System Outlined Would Give Dominion 15-18 Hours Daily of Entertainment.

OTTAWA, April 6. (C.P.) — A delegation of three women and one man presented to-day to the House of Commons committee on radio, the arguments of the Ontario Radio League against any interference with the present system of private ownership of broadcasting. They were followed by W. D. Grant, director of station CFCN in Calgary, Alta., and pioneer in the broadcasting field, who advocated a certain measure of government control but leaving the industry on a purely commercial basis.

G. G. Plaxton, spokesman for the Ontario Radio League, led the delegation representing that body. He spoke for the listeners-in of Ontario, he said, and objected to a scheme that would raise the cost of Ontario listeners without improving their entertainment, in order to improve the radio fare carried to Canadians in far distant points.

Abolition of low power radio stations of Ontario, and the establishment of not more than six stations of no less than 5,000 watts located —one at Ottawa, two at Toronto, one at North Bay, one at Windsor, and one at Fort William—these the witness thought, would completely cover Ontario.

Control Remains Unchanged.

Federal control should remain as at present or be augmented by an advisory board appointed by the Government, the brief submitted, but the stations should be controlled by responsible private enterprise.

The brief suggested higher license fees for broadcasting stations, limitation of profits to 10 per cent. on capital invested, use of surplus license fees for arranging frequent coast-to-coast broadcasts, that steps be taken to secure exclusive use of the six frequencies on the radio band allotted to Canada, restriction of educational broadcasts to daylight hours, and installation of receiving sets in schools and hospitals.

Mr. Grant outlined a system of partial government control of the existing stations to bring about a systematic coverage of the dominion with fifteen to eighteen hours a day of good entertainment. His scheme, he said, would cost the government no more than $600,000 per year, but it would involve a controlled handling of advertising and sponsored programs.

The committee adjourned until to-morrow morning when Humphrey Mitchell, (Lab. east Hamilton) will speak for the Hamilton Trades and Labor Congress.

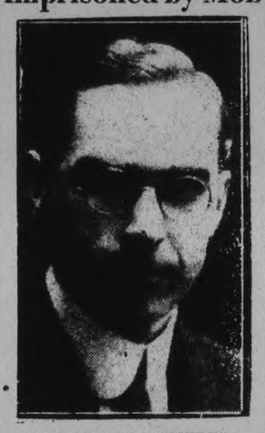
Canada's National Debt Is Increased $119,500,000 Hon. Rhodes Announces

Imprisoned by Mob



SIR RICHARD SQUIRES,

Prime Minister of Newfoundland, who was imprisoned by a mob of angry citizens in the Legislative Building yesterday.

Of the Deficit for Past Year Only $51,024,000 Arises From the Excess of Ordinary Expenditure Over Ordinary Revenue Minister Tells Commons.

CANADA MUST FACE HER PROBLEMS AND FULLY MEET OBLIGATIONS TO PRESERVE HER NATIONAL CREDIT

Note of Vigorous Optimism is Struck by Finance Minister When He Declares Dawn of Brighter Days Are Not Far Away For the Canadian People.

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Canada's increase in debt for the fiscal year just ended is $119,505,000. Of this total only $51,024,000 arises from the excess of ordinary expenditure over ordinary revenue. Special expenditures, including $49,282,000 for unemployment relief and wheat bonus totalled $55,138,000. These statements were outstanding features of the budget speech of E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons today.

The net result of the accounts for the year were summarized by the minister in the following brief paragraph.

"With ordinary revenues of $327,719,000 and ordinary expenditures amounting to $378,743,000," Mr. Rhodes declared, "the resulting deficit on ordinary account is $51,024,000, which has occurred as a consequence of the decreased yield from taxation and notwithstanding the reductions made in expenditures. Special expenditures, including $49,282,000 for unemployment relief and wheat bonus as previously detailed, total $55,138,000. As an offset to this amount, $7,022,000 was received in special revenues, leaving a balance now provided from income of $48,116,000. In addition, there are the capital expenditures of $16,975,000 and loans and advances non-active of $3,390,000. The amount, therefore, of the increase in debt for the year is $119,505,000."

First Budget Of Minister

It was the first budget speech of the minister of finance. It was likewise the third budget brought down by the Bennett administration. Crowded galleries marked the occasion. On the floor of the chamber every seat was occupied as the former premier of Nova Scotia, with the mantle of minister of finance on his shoulders, filled the role which had been held by other maritime sons—Tupper, Tilley, Fielding and his own chieftain, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. Long before the hour scheduled for the opening of the house groups of people began to gather for admission.

And before he had proceeded far, the Minister gave notice that it was the intention of Canada to "face our problems with determination, and at whatever sacrifice, fully meet our obligations, balance our Budget and preserve our national credit in the eyes of an observant financial world."

Striking a note of vigorous optimism, Mr. Rhodes exclaimed at one stage, as the plaudits of the members rang forth: "May I say I do not propose to indulge in prophecy. But I do desire to record my firm conviction that we are not far removed from events which will herald the dawn of better days; that these qualities of courage, resourcefulness, and thrift which characterized our forbears are not lost to the present generation; that our struggles and difficulties of to-day will serve as a challenge to greater effort on the part of governments and people to the end that Canada will be found in the vanguard of those nations who successfully emerge from the greatest testing time in modern history."

Imperial Conference.

Of the coming Imperial Conference, the Minister spoke in terms of the highest hope and confidence. "While the world is close knit today in matters of trade and finance as never before in its history" he asserted, "and we cannot expect normal or prosperous conditions apart from the general world trend —nevertheless some one nation, or group of nations, must assume the leadership and point the way."

The minister paused and then continued: "To that end an opportunity unique in history is afforded to the British nations, whose representatives will assemble in Ottawa at the Imperial Economic Conference in July next. If the members who assemble here meet in an atmosphere charged with determination to approach their deliberations from the viewpoint of mutual advantage, there will result measures which will give a marked stimulus to Empire trade. And while these measures are primarily designed to stimulate trade within the Empire, they will release forces and establish current which may well flow beyond our borders to the eventual benefit of the world at large."

Tribute to Mr. Bennett

To his predecessor in office—the prime minister—Mr. Rhodes paid tribute. "The time for the 1931 conversion loan was admirably chosen" he declared. "Its execution was attended with outstanding success, and its effect upon our financial position has been marked. That this is so is due entirely to the vision of the prime minister whose conception it was and under whose guidance it was conducted. The total expenses in connection with the conversion loan was slightly over one-half of one per cent."

The earnest hope of the government, the finance minister observed, on the expiry of the French treaty on June 16, was that in the near future the present agreement would be replaced by a commercial convention "which may be of mutural advantage."

No mention was made of a new trade agreement under negotiation with New Zealand, although a recently published report stated that the "terms" of the agreement would be contained in the budget.

The review of the year's financial operations would be made under five headings, Mr. Rhodes informed the house. These were as follows:

(1) A brief reference to events which have so profoundly disturbed international finance and the consequent reactions on our own situation;

(2) The financial operations and accounts of the Dominion for the fiscal year ended March 31st, and in this regard it will be understood that the figures are not final but represent the closest estimates that can be made;

(3) Canada's trade and commerce;

(4) The estimated revenue and expenditure for the fiscal year 1932-33 and

(5) Ways and means for securing the revenues required to meet the estimated expenditures.

Review of Year

He proceeded to a brief review of the past year. It had, the minister said, been replete with financial difficulties and problems, many without precedent. Canada, in common with other nations, was in the midst of a period of declining prices and diminishing revenues.

The proposals of President Hoover for a moratorium were touched on. The steady withdrawal of gold from countries whose reserves had already been reduced led to the cessation of the use of gold as a medium of exchange and its hoarding. Finally, said Mr. Rhodes, the world was startled by the announcement on September 21 last that Great Britain had been forced off the gold standard.

These events, and others following upon them, had been reflected in the position of Canada. It goes without saying, declared the minister, that these events had a peculiar significance for Canada, a debtor country, having at the moment an unfavourable trade balance. Our exchange could be maintained only so long as financial operations, based upon normal conditions and confidence, were resulting in a net inflow of money. Between October 1st, 1931, and March 31st, 1932, the dominion, provinces, municipalities and semi-public bodies, had, it was estimated, $72,000,000 of debt maturing in New York or London, and in addition $80,000,000 of external interest charges had to be provided. Added to these, there were the debts of corporations and individuals. With these obligations to be met, the dislocation of external money markets presented no in-

How the Budget will be Balanced

OTTAWA, April 6 (C.P.)—To balance the budget by increasing the revenue $55,000,000, E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in his budget speech in the House of Commons this afternoon, announced the following tax changes:

Sales tax increased 4 per cent to 6 per cent; limited number of articles, not primary products, now exempt, are made subject to the Sales Tax. The Sales Tax changes are effective April 7.

Excise Tax on all goods imported into Canada increased by 2 per cent. New rate, 3 per cent.

Income Taxes.

The personal exemption in income taxes is reduced for those with dependents from $3,000 to $2,400, and those without dependents, from 1,500 to $1,200.

The 20 per cent reduction now allowed from tax payable under established schedule of rates is discontinued.

In addition, 5 per cent surcharge on the amount of tax payable is to be imposed on all taxpayers, personal and corporate, with net incomes in excess of $5,000. The corporation rate is increased to 11 per cent. Provisions relating to family corporations will be repealed.

Income tax changes will apply to taxes on the 1931 income.

Insurance Taxes.

The tax of one per cent. on premiums received by insurance companies except life, marine and certain forms of mutual fire companies, is re-imposed. British and foreign companies, maintaining with the Dominion, will also pay this tax. Tax of 15 per cent. is imposed on gross premiums paid to other insurers.

Cheque Taxes.

On cheques, money orders over $5.00, and on promissory notes, bills of exchange, etc., the rate is increased from two cents to three cents on amounts up to $100, and six cents over $100.

A five cent tax is placed on telegrams, cables and radio messages, and long distance telephone calls.

On railway sleeping car berths, the tax will be ten per cent with a minimum of 25 cents, and ten cents on chair car tickets.

These special taxes on cheques, tickets and messages will become effective May 2.

In view of the near approach of the Imperial Conference, the Minister stated, no change is made in customs tariff, except on one item relating to extension to March 31, 1933, of special rates on repair parts for farm implements.

OTTAWA, April 6 (C.P.).—Increases in the rates of tax payable on personal incomes and a reduction in exemptions were announced in the House of Commons this afternoon by E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance. The changes will apply to incomes of 1931. Penalty provisions for improper returns are being strengthened.

Taxation incomes of corporations and joint stock companies is raised to eleven per cent. This change likewise will effect 1931 returns.

Include 1931

It is proposed, the Minister announced, to raise the rate of taxation on incomes of corporations and joint stock companies to 11 p.c. to take effect in the 1931 taxation period. Under the act at present, a corporation whose financial year is not coincident with the calendar year is allowed until April 30 of the following year to pay the tax. It is proposed to amend the act to provide in such cases for the return of income and payment of the tax within four months from the close of the fiscal period. This will have the effect of accelerating the collection of the tax from those corporations whose fiscal periods do not end with the calendar year. A further amendment to the Income War Tax Act will repeal the provisions relating to family corporations.

Personal Incomes.

In respect of the tax on personal incomes, it is proposed to repeal the deduction of 20 per cent. now allowed from the tax payable under the established schedule of rates. In addition, all taxpayers, including corporations, in receipt of net income in excess of $5,000 will be required to pay a surcharge of 5 per cent. of the amount of tax otherwise payable.

The personal exemption, where heretofore $3,000, will be reduced to $2,400, and where heretofore $1,500, will be reduced to $1,200. No change is to be made in the exemption for dependent children. Hereafter the exemption granted in respect of income from annuity contracts will be $1,200 instead of $5,000. This will bring the exemption into conformity with the Annuities Act as amended in 1931.

The Penalty.

The penalty provisions in the Income War Tax Act will be amended so as to provide that in cases where investigation reveals that a taxpayer has deliberately understated his income, the amount of income not disclosed will be added in double the amount and the tax assessed thereon. The decrease of the taxpayer will not avoid the tax penalty.

This date was recently suggested to the provinces; and advices have now been received from practically all the provinces that the date is acceptable and they will have representatives on hand for the parley.

BABY REPORTED WELL

NORFOLK, Va., April 6.—John Hughes Curtis, negotiator in the Lindbergh case announced to-day that he had made contact with the kidnappers and was informed that the child was well.

CLAIM NEW TAX BILL WILL RETARD BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, April 6.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the United States Treasury assailed several sections of the billion dollar tax bill before the Senate Finance Committee to-day as proposals which would retard business.

He submitted again the Treasury program which was given the House of Representatives Ways and Means committee at the beginning of its revenue deliberations.

The great merit of the house bill, he said, was that it would raise $1,030,000,000 in new revenue, but he added it might be improved in a number of important respects. He said the corporation income tax was too high and there was no justification for compelling corporations to pay for the privilege of filing income tax returns in accordance with their usual method of doing business and keeping their books.

MORE WAGE CUTS.

WONDER HORSE PHAR LAP DIES IN FIT OF COLIC

World of Turf and Thoroughbreds Mourns at Passing of Australian Racer.

HEIGHT OF CAREER.

Won 37 of 51 Starts, Bringing Owners $332,750—Almost Record.

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND

MENLO PARK, Cal., April 6.—(C.P.)—Phar Lap is dead.

All the world of turf and thoroughbreds mourned to-day the passing of Australia's wonder horse—whose silks have been lowered in the final chapter of a career as glamorous as any in the history of racing.

Word of his death from colic came late yesterday as suddenly as the lightning, from which he drew his name in Senegalese, sears the sky.

Those who find their pleasure, or their pay, on the track were too stunned at first to believe such reports. Phar Lap dead! It seemed impossible.

Only a little more than two weeks ago this great red gelding had signalized his North American invasion by winning the rich Agua Caliente Mex., handicap, a matter of $50,050.

Awaiting Special Race

His return trip by motor van up the coast was uneventful. He was quartered contentedly in private stables here, awaiting a special race at Tanforan track. It was to be a prelude to an attack on one of the strongholds of racing in this country, Chicago. There some of this country's finest bits of horseflesh, such as Twenty Grand and Mate, were waiting to match strides with the red terror from down under.

But Phar Lap was dead. An autopsy showed the great thoroughbred died from the effects of green feed nibbled from a California field after he had withstood the rigors of a 10,000-mile sea voyage across the Pacific.

Guarded by attendants who watched his every move by day and slept near him at night, the big horse is believed to have picked up a mouthful of green food while exercising in a field adjacent to his quarters.

Veterinarians think a bit of foxtail or alfalfa or barley, sodden with dew induced the colic. The horse was valued at $500,000 by D. J. Davis of San Francisco, joint owner with Harry Telford of Australia of the mount.

Rumors of poison were circulated, but these were discounted by attendants, including Dr. William Nielsen, veterinarian, who journeyed from Australia with the horse.

Dr. Nielsen, with Dr. Caesar Maseuro of San Francisco, performed the autopsy. The examination revealed a highly inflamed stomach somewhat perforated. It was thought the irritation must have begun two days before. Phar Lap was ailing at six o'clock yesterday morning.

Owner Davis, on business in Los Angeles, arrived last night by aeroplane. He was too broken-up to make a statement. Arrangements as to the disposal of the carcass may be made today.

Phar Lap, a huge animal 16 hands and 3¾ inches high and of dark red color, caught the imagination of western racing enthusiasts from the day he arrived in San Francisco, Jan. 15.

Cost $800 As Yearling

He cost $800 as a yearling, a gangling awkward animal that looked "more like a kangarro" to quote Davis. He lived to win $332,750 and bring his earnings second only to Sun Beau, United States thoroughbred and world's biggest moneymaker. Sun Beau's record is $376,744.

Phar Lap started fifty-one times and won thirty-seven races. Fourteen of these victories were consecutive. He was the son of Night Raid, imported English horse, out of Entreaty, a New Zealand mare.

He won over all courses from six furlongs to two miles. He won the Craven Stakes last September and at the same time set a new Australian record of 2:03½ for the mile and a quarter.

Davis revealed he had recently turned down an offer of $300,000 for his horse and at the same time disclosed that no insurance was carried. With him the sporting phase was everything.

Baby Pyramid Uncovered at Gizeh Tomb of Ancient Queen of Egypt

CAIRO—As yet there is little to be seen of the newly uncovered pyramid at Gizeh, which was mentioned by Herodotus, Strabo and other early writers, but has since been buried under the sand. The pyramid is about 50 feet in height.

A visit to the sit reveals an animated scene. Upper Egyptian workmen are busy clearing away sand and moving huge boulders, to the rhythm of an ancient chant. Any moment there may be most interesting discoveries. The work is proceeding at the north side of the pyramid, at the end of which Selim Hassan believes he will make the most important finds.

On this north side there have been already discovered 11 Rochcut tombs, one of which belongs to Queen Bunefer, "The Beautiful Thing."

Work has been suspended within the pyramid, since the cavelike entrance is considered unsafe. An official report adds little to details already revealed. It stresses that this was the first occasion when a queen had been named "King of Upper and Lower Egypt," and the first time a pyramid had been built for a queen away from her consort, showing that she must have reigned alone.

One inscription reads "Daughter of the god of whom all good things which he has done are told," or "all good things she orders are made for her." It is regretted that the pyramid is so dilapidated. It is believed to have been used as a quarry for other buildings during Roman or Ptolemaic times.

HAVELOCK COUNCIL DECIDE TO WORK WITH RELIEF GROUP

Returning of Tax Roll is Extended for Another Month.

DISCUSS CURFEW LAW.

HAVELOCK, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular April meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, with all members present and Reeve Leeson in the chair.

A copy of the letter the Council had sent to the C.P.R., in connection with the carrying of transients, was read and approved. In brief it stated the Council would like to have them stop giving free rides or at least have their constable see that they are not allowed to get off the trains at this point. It has cost the village an enormous sum to keep up the soup kitchen and this was an effort to have it made unnecessary.

T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., was present, and when asked some advice in connection with the sale of lands for taxes he advised writing Hon. W. A. Finlayson, chairman of the Municipal Board, to have necessary amendments added to the section of the Act dealing with the village's power to sell property for taxes.

A letter from the Park Board asked that the Council set the park rate at one mill to take care of the expenses for the current year. This was afterwards granted on motion by Spencer and Howe. A letter from Mrs. (Rev.) Hugh Brown enclosed a bill for two months' rent for indigent family. On motion by Spencer and Gordon, no action will be taken in this matter. A bill from the Hydro Commission for $1.95 the cost of light for the same family was handled in the same way.

The Border Cities Star enclosed a very extensive advertising plan whereby for the sum of $4.20 per inch the village could buy some

LACK OF QUORUM MEETING FAILS

Board of Education Could Only Rally Six Members at Meeting.

ADJOURNED FOR WEEK.

Lack of a quorum caused the postponement of the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education last evening. It is the second time in the last ten years that the Board has been unable to transact its business because of the fewness of members present. The same situation arose previously in September, 1929.

A quorum for the Board consists of seven members. There were but six present last night. Those present were: Dr. A. Moir, Dr. Raymore Scott, James Dutton, I. P. McNabb, Ernest Reid and W. J. Hancock.

After vainly waiting for fifteen minutes after the time scheduled for the start of the meeting in the hope that the single member required to complete the quorum might turn up, the meeting was adjourned by the secretary G. H. Thompson. A special meeting was fixed for Monday evening next to transact the delayed business.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, chairman of the Board, is out of the city and her absence was expected. It was stated also that the bad condition of the country roads had kept the three county members away from the meeting. However, the non-attendance of the other members was not explained.

Britain Receives Free State Reply

LONDON, April 6 (C.P.).—The reply of the Irish Free State Government to the recent British note regarding abolition of the oath of allegiance and the land annuities was received here this morning.

It was considered improbable, however, that any intimation of its contents would be given until it is considered by the Cabinet, after which J. H. Thomas Secretary for the Dominions, probably will make a statement in the House of Commons.

LAWYER HELD FOR STABBING

Fracas Over Bottle of Liquor Occurs in Hamilton Apartment.

VICTIM MAY LIVE.

HAMILTON, April 6 (C.P.) — Joseph Sullivan, promising young Hamilton lawyer, is under arrest today on a chage of aggravated assault while Harold Walker, 54, lies in a local hospital in a serious condition following an alleged brawl in the barrister's apartment last night.

The stabbing is alleged to have occurred following an argument over a bottle of liquor which Sullivan is said to have accused Walker of stealing. According to other persons present, Sullivan rushed out to the kitchen of the apartment, grabbed a butcher knife and returned to the living room, knocking Walker down with a blow of his fist. He is further alleged to have straddled Walker's body and then stabbed him.

Following the braw Walker was rushed to the hospital where it was first believed his condition was serious. Following an operation, however, physicians stated they believed he would recover as no vital organs were believed to have been pierced by the long knife, which inflicted an eight-inch gash in Walker's side.

POWER LACKING MARTIN QUINN TELLS KNIGHTS

Director of Company "May" Direct Portion of Taxes to Separate Schools.

OUTLINES HIS OWN CASE.

Had $92,000 in Stock in Company But Directors Refused.

Martin J. Quinn of Toronto, addressing an open meeting in the Knights of Columbus auditorium last night, related his experience as a stockholder in the George Weston Company of Toronto to whose directors he applied for the allocation to the Catholic school system of part of the company's taxes proportional to the amount of the stock he held.

Mr. Quinn said his investment in the George Weston Company was $92,000. In February 1931 he first wrote to the directors requesting them to transfer to the Separate School Board in Toronto a proportional part of their taxes. Other correspondence followed in May, and when the directors declined to accede to his request, Mr. Quinn publicly stated his case in an open letter to the company entitled "Injustice to Separate Schools."

Mr. Quinn said that two journals, one of them a Toronto newspaper, and both opposed to the Catholic claim had contended that a Catholic stockholder had simply to make application to the directors and his claim for tax transfer would be granted.

"If I had invested th $92,000 in real estate," Mr. Quinn continued, "it would have been assessed at approximately $85,000 and would have yielded $910 in school taxes. The argument is presented that when private money goes into shares of stock it is no longer private. Surely the shares are still my property. No one else can sell them. I am the owner of them, and their possession is entirely under my control."

By an amendment passed in 1886 which was inspired by this condition it was provided that "directors of a joint stock company may pay to a Separate School Board" taxes in direct relation to the amount of stock held by Catholics. Mr. Quinn emphasized the word "may" in that enactment, pointing out that it was permissive or optional in its effect, lacking the compulsion of "shall."

Mr. Quinn quoted from a letter he received from the President of the company in reply to his application: "Many of the points you bring up I frankly admit we did not know. We feel there is a great deal of fairness in your contention, and as President of our Company I assure you that I will do everything within my power to carry this matter through in the manner you suggest at our first Board meeting."

"Then the directors flatly refused to transfer the money as I had asked," Mr. Quinn said, "yet it was 'The Sentinel', the organ of the Orange Order, that had written to the effect that all I would have to do was to ask for the transfer of

COUNCIL MAKES APPOINTMENTS

Pound Keepers and Fence Viewers Named at Campbellford Meeting.

TOWNSHIP INSURANCE.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Bringing up to date the appointment of pound keepers and fence viewers in the township of Seymour, the township council at its regular session held yesterday passed a by-law making a new list of appointments. The previous by-law was dated 1924 and although in force up to the time of the present by-law being passed was depleted by reason of deaths and removals. The new appontees are: Fence viewers: Thomas O'Rourke, Marshall West, John Rannie, Lindsay Watson, John Locke, Ernest Craighead, W. W. Little, John Simpson, Harold Wood, Charles Macoum, D. Petherick Jnr., Walter Scott, George H. Smith, D. T. Petherick, Harold Rutherford, Herbert Watson, John Thompson and William Allan.

A letter addressed to Reeve R. Innes was read, this being an application for information regarding the operation of a dancing pavilion at Trent River. It came from H. E. Burgess of Toronto, who stated that he operated a dance hall at this place two years ago. After discussion Clerk Wesley Stephens was instructed to write Mr. Burgess, informing him of the content of the by-law covering the issuing of a license for this amusement.

A rebate of two dollars was granted Thomas Morrey, this being an overcharge on his dog tax.

On representation of Mr. Bains of Toronto, representing the Globe Indemnity Insurance Compay, the council decided to again take out a municipal insurance with this company. The premium is set at $212.50 this being the lowest rate for township insurance, which are judged according to road mileage.

The school report was presented by the school officer, George Anderson, and received and filed. A full council was registered; Reeve R. Innes occupying the chair.

Service Is Theme Of League Program

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 6.—The regular meeting of the Young People's League of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, held on Monday was featured by a program under the auspices of the Christian Endeavour committee convened by Miss Ruth Palliser. The president Earl Fairman, occupied the chair.

The topic for the evening was given by Miss Hazel Wright and was on the theme "Service." This item of the program was very interesting and heartily applauded by the large audience.

Two musical numbers were given, a piano solo by Grant Meiklejohn and a religious vocal solo by Miss Emma Meiklejohn, both of which were very much enjoyed. Scripture reading was given by Helen Coxwell and the Rev. R. C. Tait lead in prayer.

The evening was brought to a conclusion by a song service lead by Miss Meiklejohn. On Thursday of this week the League will sponsor a play, "Fickle Fortune" being presented in the church hall by the Roseneath Dramatic Society.

space in a folder that is to be distributed to American tourists as they cross the line in the summer. A representative from the firm will call some time soon and it is thought the Council will consider the plan. Mr. Ellis, the secretary of the Provincial Relief Committee, replied to the letter sent by the clerk, asking how long they would be able to get the grant of two-thirds on every dollar spent for direct relief. The time has been extended until the end of April, but no longer. A cheque was received from the same Government official for $1.482 as their share of relief for 1930. This has been deposited in the bank.

Harold Yeo was present and asked the Council for the rent of the road allowance on the western extremity of King Street for a garden. This is an unopened road running east and west from Quebec to Union Streets. Mr. Yeo was allowed to rent the lot at the cost of $2.00 for the season, subject to consent of John Brown, who owns a lot on the north side of the street and who could demand that the road be left open for access to his property.

Councillor Seeney drew the attention of the Council to the lumber wagon owned by the Council This has not been used for a number of years and is not included in the assets. It was decided to have it advertised in the local paper and the clerk, Mr. Fennell, will have charge of selling it.

Transients' Bill.

Mrs. John Kinnaird addressed the Council in connection with the feeding and lodging of transients. Since the soup kitchen opened they had fed 654 and supplied beds for 311. This caused a great deal of comment, and after much discussion, Reeve Leeson left the chair in favor of Mr. Spencer.

Mr. Leeson said: "We have no police protection and some of them have been heard to say that they will get something to eat". Everyone is paying for the meals now in place of just the few who used to hand out meals."

Councillor Seeney then said that he had not been finding fault with the relief committee but there are some getting relief who have radios and other luxuries in the village. Mr. Lancaster then suggested that they say "No relief as long as you own radios, liquor permits, cars, etc." It seemed to be one too many for the council, the problem of relief. At a meeting of the council in January a motion by Seeney and Howe read "That this council give no relief to transients."

It was at this juncture that Mr. Leeson with Spencer in the chair moved that all the members of the council be included on the relief committee and this instituted in the motion at the December meeting appointing the reeve and clerk together with representatives from the various organizations, to have charge of relief. Councillor Howe seconded the motion and it carried. Mr. Leeson then resumed the chair. The members were all agreed that Mrs. Anderson was doing admirable work on the relief committee and was deserving of the highest praise.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the central relief committee on Monday evening, April 11th.

Another problem for the council to ponder over was the case of an indigent who is quarantined on account of being a carrier of diphtheria. Since the indigent officer and Medical Officer of Health are apparently not inclined to work together it makes it all the more difficult. On motion of Seeney and Spencer the reeve was left to find out if it was advisable to have an operation performed to clear up the condition of the indigent.

G. W. Chiles, tax collector reported that about $150 had been taken in since the last meeting. He had many promises and some were all right. On motion of Seeney and Spencer the time for returning the roll was extended another month but no longer. Reeve Leeson reported that he had not yet arranged for a meat peddlers' by-law. Mr. Leeson then asked the council what they thought of ringing the curfew bell. They decided to think it over and may decide at the next meeting. The only trouble exists in having the law enforced. Some are of the opinion that if a by-law was passed that it would be just another one to laugh at. They were all of the opinion that it would be a good idea if they could obtain someone to enforce it.

The following accounts were ordered paid on motion of Gordon and Howe: Chas. Dewey, caretaking fire-hall, etc., $15; Harrison Wing, and Rae Williams, each $20 for auditing the town books; Bert Wannamaker, snow - ploughing, $13.90; Roy Longmuir, snow shovelling, $1.50; light bill, $6.84; Dr. A. S. Thompson, re indigent, $6.75; Mrs. Hogan, re Foley estate, grant $10; F. J. Squire & Son, two cords of wood for Whitney and Hogan, $15; R. J. McCutcheon, fire engines to Bannon fire, $5; George Davidson, snow ploughing $17.20; Silas Green, sawing wood at hall, $1.50.

FACTORY SHOWS SIGNS OF WORK

Norwood Cheese Box Plant Ready for Busy Season.

TIMBER COMING IN.

NORWOOD, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Several men are busy these days at the local cheese box factory in preparation for the coming season's operations, which are expected to start in the very near future. Two large cement tanks for boiling the logs and the big 11-ton veneer lathe has been installed on a cement base, and another new machine for clipping the veneer has been set up.

The building has also been thoroughly repaired with heavy sills to carry the extra weight. The engine and boiler rooms are all in order and the citizens are once more delighted to hear the sound of the old familiar "whistle," which of course means "work." Timber is already coming into the yards—maple, elm and birch, of which cheese boxes will be made by the most up-to-date machinery.

Mr. Elmhirst, the owner, also expects to add another line later on which will enable the factory to give employment in winter months also.

Pleasing Program At Zion Meeting

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 6.—(Examiner Correspondence). — With a good attendance of forty-six league members, Thursday evening's service, in charge of the junior department, was most successful. As Miss Cora Petherick, junior convenor, is convalescing after a serious operation, the organization of the program was capably handled by her sister, Miss Gladys Petherick, with Elsie Forde as leader. The following program was given:

Scripture lesson, L. Anderson; devotional address on "Recreation" by Mrs. MacTavish (this was one of the best of many fine talks given by the pastor during the league year); a vocal duet, by Misses Irene and Laura Miller; a reading, by Dave Walker; duet, Aylmer Petherick and Frank Osborne, and reading, William Forde, completed a very interesting session of the Zion society.

While this is the time of year when one naturally expects spring and bush-owners look for a good run of sap, the fields are blanketed with snow and with a mass of mud underneath, weather conditions are all against the maple syrup industry and very few runs are reported.

the taxes because I was entitled to it. This is a matter of simple justice that will be acknowledged by every fair-minded man and woman. We claim that such a question should not be left to the will of a Board of Directors. Let the Government pass an amendment which will give us what we ask just plain justice. Let the law direct that Catholic taxes shall go to Catholic schools. It is a question that should not be left in the hands of any director whose sense of justice is secondary to his blind prejudice and bigotry. I am absolutely convinced that if the great mass of the Protestant people in Ontario were really aware of the facts that we would have little need to argue the matter further.

In his reply to the directors of the George Weston Company Mr. Quinn informed them that: "nearly 120 Toronto firms which look upon this 'permissive' legislation, not in the sense that it permits them to evade a reasonable, fair and just act, but in the sense that it 'permits' them to pay to the Separate School Board the amounts which the original framers of the Act intended should be paid."

Mr. Quinn remarked that it was unfortunate the word Separate had been permitted to become attached to the Catholic schools. They were an integral part of the public school system of Ontario, teaching the same subjects, receiving grants from the same treasury and existing under the same Departmental supervision.

"The Catholic people of Canada are not responsible for Separate Schools", he declared. "Back in 1841 the governments of Upper and Lower Canada were petitioned by forty-one bodies of people representing religious denominations asking for the right to establish separate schools, and of those 41 petitions 39 were presented by Protestants."

In 1863 twenty petitions were presented for the same right, and eighteen of them were by Protestants. The Catholic petitions followed the others and simply asked that the rights of Catholics be protected, and that they be permitted to enjoy the same rights as their Protestant fellow citizens. In those days there was obviously a very general Protestant conviction in the benefits of teaching in the schools the fundamentals of the Christian religion as a means of developing good citizens. If that was necessary in those days, how much more is it necessary today! If the Catholic people believed in that teaching then, surely they are not to be blamed for retaining it right up to our own day.

Many of our own people are not aware of the beginnings of our school system. Certainly a great majority of Protestants do not know it. Without the promise and agreement that the rights of religious minorities in both Quebec and Ontario would be protected the Confederation of Canada could not have come into existence. These minorities were guaranteed the right to establish separate schools wherever they saw fit."

Mr. Quinn traced the industrial development of Canada, dwelling upon the unforseen eclipse of real property and individual effort in commerce, industry and trade, and the growth of the great corporations in which people so generally invest theeir money today.

"Naturally when a man bought stock in a company he didn't expect that he was going to have to give up any right in his property, for the stock shares are actually his property as much as his house or farm."

Mr. Quinn concluded his address with a hypothetical condition supposing all the Catholic schools be closed and the pupils brought into present Public School system. To begin with, he said, there would be a very large increase in the total salaries that would have to be paid, and lots of the public school buildings would be found inadequate. "That would mean an additional cost of $50 or $60 a pupil for about 130,000 children. That cost would have to be financed in the proportion of about four-fifths by the Protestant people and one-fifth by the Catholics." He referred to the method of distributing school grants in Quebec, compared it with the Ontario plan, and said that if Catholics in this province were given a sufficient share of the school taxes from public corporations it would be in the interest of the general economy of all citizens, and would remove the disability which weighed upon Catholics in Ontario.

Dr. E. M. Crough, Grand Knight of the local Council of the Knights of Columbus, presided, and among those present at the meeting were Rev. Paul Costello, chaplain, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. John O'Leary of Sudbury, Rev. J. V. McAuley of Ennismore, Rev. Gerald Maher of Huntsville and Rev. Victor McFadden. D. A. Costello of Toronto, district deputy, accompanied Mr. Quinn.

GENERAL MOTORS announces PRICE REDUCTIONS on PONTIAC and CHEVROLET

PONTIAC PRICES reduced as much as $50

CHEVROLET PRICES reduced as much as $45

TODAY General Motors makes a definite contribution to business recovery by announcing sharply-lowered prices on Pontiac and Chevrolet passenger cars. The price reductions apply only to these two General Motors low-priced volume lines. The reductions are not justified by existing conditions, but are made possible only because General Motors is turning over to the public in advance the savings that should result from anticipated increased volume.

Naturally, no change has been made in Pontiac or Chevrolet quality. This quality has been proved by the experience of hundreds of thousands of satisfied owners. Actually, the 1932 cars are even better today than when first announced a few months ago. With the new low prices each is more than ever a value leader in its price class.

The reductions range up to $50 in the case of Pontiac and $45 in the case of Chevrolet. They take effect immediately. In fact, retail purchasers since Monday morning, April 4th, will enjoy these price reductions.

Your Pontiac or Chevrolet dealer can give you the new price of any model in which you are interested. He is listed under General Motors Products in the classified section of your telephone directory. Phone him today for full information. And be sure to ask him for delivered prices, including license. For that is what you are interested in—the price that you actually have to pay to have the model you want delivered to your door. Or better still, instead of phoning, visit your dealer and arrange to drive away—today, if you wish it—one of these fine new Pontiacs or Chevrolets at its new low price. Any model may be purchased on the economical GMAC time payment plan.

A FITTING REBUKE.

The rebuke administered by the Progressive and Labor members in walking out of the House when a Liberal lack-of-confidence motion was to be voted upon will not go unnoticed throughout the country, nor will the speech of Mr. Heaps, the Winnipeg Labor member, fail to strike a responsive chord.

The Heenan motion, which recited many of the election pledges of the Government and then condemned the administration for not carrying them out was purely and simply a political gesture, and the Independent members declined to associate themselves with such tactics in the midst of the conditions the country is facing to-day.

When Mr. Heaps declared that the motion indicated that desire for place was stronger than anxiety to give men work, and that the Independent members were utterly opposed to such strategy, he was expressing the feelings of the man on the street, who is "fed up" with the political manoeuvring that has made the present session of Parliament largely futile.

There will be plenty of opportunity when the next election comes round to recall the Bennett promises and to contrast them with the Bennett performance, and there is nothing to be gained by harping on these things ad infinitum now when the duty of the hour should be to help bring Canada out of the doldrums.

The Liberal batteries are laying down their barrage at the wrong time, and if they persist in the bombardment their shells will turn out to be chiefly "duds" and premature bursts that will do more harm to the Opposition gun crews than to the target at which they imagine they are aiming.

MANY ABSENTEES.

When the House of Commons, which has a membership of 245, finally disposed of the Government's farm and unemployment relief legislation last Friday, the division was 86 for and 28 against.

That is, only 96 members voted and the other 149 elected representatives of the people were presumably absent from the House—surely a remarkable condition in view of the long fight that was waged before the measure was at last passed.

One of two conclusions is inevitable: either there are a good many members who are not very conscientious over their attendance in the House or else the controversy that has been waged for over a month was a mere sham fight, not regarded seriously by the bulk of the membership.

As the Ottawa Journal puts it, "for more than three weeks Parliament has been staging an alleged fight over the unemployment relief legislation with the Opposition professing to be battling for parliamentary rights. This so-called fight, which was mostly a farce, has paralysed the whole parliamentary machine, delayed vital business. Yet when the end comes and the final vote is taken less than one-half of the members thought it worth while to vote. Where were the others?"

The size of the vote offers its own commentary upon the manner in which Parliament is functioning.

And they are talking of increasing the numerical strength of the House!

THE RIVALS.

It is seldom that Peterborough playgoers have an opportunity to see such a classic of the British stage as "The Rivals," the brilliant comedy by Richard Sheridan, which the Kinsmen Club is to present in the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday of this week.

For a century "The Rivals" has been regarded as one of the outstanding theatrical vehicles written in the English tongue, and some of the greatest artists in stage history have been proud to have had their names associated with Sheridan's masterpiece.

It is a bit of stage writing that has successfully stood the test of time, and it is safe to say that Friday night's audience will be vastly entertained by the sparkle of Sheridan's dialogue and the humor of the situations, interpreted by a cast of Peterborough amateurs who have given ample proof of their ability to stage an entirely satisfactory and pleasing performance.

Regardless altogether of the fact that the proceeds are to be devoted to relief work, Peterborough playgoers owe it to themselves to see one of the great plays of all time.

When, however, the opportunity to give themselves such a treat is accompanied by a chance to make a concrete contribution toward the health and happiness of many Peterborough children, the attraction of such a performance should be irresistible.

The Kinsmen propose to devote the proceeds of this effort to their social service activities, most particularly to the milk fund which, through the instrumentality of the Central Charity Board, has been wisely used to supply much needed nourishment to children who are suffering from mal-nutrition, surely a most laudable enterprise.

NEW YORK'S CRIMES AND ACCIDENTS.

The annual report of the New York police department makes interesting reading even to Canadians, who should find food for thought in the figures given by Commissioner Mulrooney.

It is not surprising to find homicides on the increase in the American metropolis.

The report shows 489 cases of murder and manslaughter in 1931, as compared with 421 the previous year, and while it is a fact that something like 90 of these cases grew out of one set of gangsters taking revenge on another or out of quarrels between gamblers, bootleggers and various species of racketeers, this as the New York Times points out, does not diminish the disgrace to the city that such a large number of atrocious crimes can be committed within its borders.

Cases of assault and robbery increased during the year by 268, and while burglaries fell off about 5 per cent., the improvement is apparently explained by the commissioner's terse comment that "the criminal of to-day is confining his operations to the more lucrative field of robbery."

New York's accident record is also worthy of note, inasmuch as it shows that 1,221 people were killed during the year in motor accidents, a decrease of 39 compared with 1930.

The perils that await a New York policeman are revealed by the report which states that in 1931 no fewer than 19 officers were killed in the line of duty, while 39 suffered gunshot wounds while running down the perpetrators of crime.

Another disturbing fact shown by the commissioner is the immaturity of the great majority of the modern criminals.

They used to be middle-aged and hardened in crime. To-day the line-up, according to the report, "presents a parade of youths ranging from 17 to 21, who are versatile in crime and calmly recite the most intimate details of the planning and execution of ruthless crime."

TOO MANY TAXES.

Dr. J. H. Putnam, chief inspector of the Ottawa public schools and retiring president of the Ontario Educational Association, put forward some unusually interesting thoughts in his address at the final session of the O.E.A. in Toronto this week.

* * * *

Dr. Putnam was discussing educational costs. The ability to bear taxation on real property had passed the breaking point, he believed the taxpayers felt. Consequently he advocated a lowering of the levy on property and the imposition of a new tax of 1 per cent. on all earnings of more than $10 a week and not already municipally taxed, with a view to lightening the burden of school support now paid by the property owners.

Dr. Putnam proposed that this tax be collected by the employers. It could be levied, he suggested, on the payrolls of all employees except day laborers and domestic servants, where $10 a week or more was received and whose incomes were not already taxed by the municipal authorities. He planned to exempt those engaged in agriculture. All the money thus collected, the Ottawa educator said, would be used wholly for education and distributed to school boards entitled thereto, on the basis of actual attendance and with the Provincial Treasurer handling the money.

Dr. Putnam's argument is that persons whose salaries might be affected in this way have enjoyed the advantages of the Ontario school system and should be willing to contribute more to its maintenance.

* * * *

In these columns yesterday we quoted a remark made by Commissioner Frank J. Mitchell. It was to the effect that members of Governments apparently sit up nights, trying to figure out new methods of taxation. Do they give any thought, Mr. Mitchell asked, to methods of saving? The criticism is justified. Certainly as long as Mr. Henry tolerates 112 members of the Ontario Legislature and argues for the retention of the quite unnecessary Lieutenant-Governor system and the maintenance of a useless and extravagant Government House, he can hardly claim that he is reducing Government expenses in the way they should be reduced.

The public, these days, looks to its Government heads — federal, provincial and municipal — to use drastic economy methods. And drastic methods are not in use as long as needless and unnecessary frills are maintained. How can we justify paring the salaries of low paid workers when savings really worth while, higher up, are passed by? How can we justify, for instance, the retention of a board of three highly-paid Liquor Control Act commissioners when the whole department could be transferred to, say, the Provincial Secretary, and the commission abolished? Nothing would suffer; much money would be saved.

* * * *

Getting back, however, to the subject of educational costs, we can see little chance of Dr. Putnam's idea being carried out. It would be a terrible nuisance for the employers—who would again be designated as tax collectors—and an annoyance all around. It must be kept in mind, also, that everybody who has an income of any kind is paying taxes, at least indirectly.

It is quite true that educational costs are overburdening, but we think that the proper policy is to cut them down rather than to seek new methods of taxation in order to keep them up. This Province is spending far too much for education. We have gone to the extreme in providing opportunities for education, some of which, we fear, can hardly be justified. We heard a prominent man say not long ago that he believed the State had done its duty when it provided a public school education for every boy and girl and that secondary training should not be a charge on the taxpayers as a whole, but should be assumed by those who desire it. While many of us might not wish to go as far as this, there is something to be said for this man's point of view. Educational costs, instead of going up, will have to come down. The taxpayer cannot continue to bear the present load indefinitely.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With the budget down and Mr. Ferguson being heard before the Senate committee, Ottawa must have felt this afternoon that she was indeed the capital city of the Dominion.

The Sudbury Wolves are Canada's junior hockey champions, and the general verdict is that the title has never been any more worthily won.

Radio licenses cost double this year, but radio inspectors are being dismissed. An explanation from Ottawa would seem to be in order.

One thing is certain about Mr. Rhodes' budget. It will not give any reason for supposing that the Government intends to go to the people next year.

A tame deer at Sault Ste. Marie has learned to chew tobacco. Such a development would just have to take place in Algoma.

"Grunter" and "Squealer" are two of the latest additions to the House of Commons' vocabulary. No wonder the Speaker has been constrained to condemn such language as "impolite and an exhibition of ignorance."

What's In a Word?

The elections which have just taken place in the Irish Free State recall an amusing incident which occurred when the first elections, after the signing of the treaty, were in progress. A voter, wishing to have her day free, went to the polling booth early to record her vote, and was passing into a booth when a soldier on guard hastily stopped her. "Don't go in there, miss," he said, "they're all inebriates in there."

"Inebriates!" she said in a shocked voice. "Yes, ma'am," he answered, "not one of 'em can read or write."

It is better to smile
Than to scowl any time;
It makes life pleasant
And keeps it in rhyme.
The scowler is always
A man you pass by;
It is very much better
To smile than to sigh
It is better to smile
Than to scowl if you lose;
To laugh, not resent,
If someone abuse,
To scowl and to grumble
Will make you feel worse;
It is better to smile
Than your worries rehearse.

It is better to smile
When things seem wrong;
To drown old depression
In a flood of song.
No matter what happens
You can make it worth while,
If you turn from vexation
And wear a bright smile.

INDIAN VISITED FRIEND WITH POLICE ON TRAIL

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 5.—Joe Bomberry, Indian, arrested on the reserve yesterday on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of his alleged common law wife, Lilu John, with a shotgun Saturday night, was at no time more than four miles away from the barracks of the R. C. M. P. at Ohsweken, on the Six Nations Reserve, police stated this morning. Bomberry, provincial police learned prior to his arrest, had spent Saturday night at the home of an Indian named Burnham, only a short distance down the road from where the shooting occurred. The alleged slayer left the Burnham home Sunday and proceeded to the home of his father, Levi Bomberry, where the arrest took place.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 6—Lower prices for regraded creamery solids and fresh-made Western butter on the local market yesterday did not bring any buyers and trading activities were unchanged. Prices on choice offerings were 3c to 4c below the recent high mark, but there were no indications of any large lots being moved in the very near future. Local brokers were offering finest receipts at 24c to 25c for No. 1 and 23c to 24c for No. 2. Western butter was being quoted, but met the same conditions as offerings of regraded stocks.

Cream

Cream prices were unchanged at 23c to 24c for special, 22c to 23c for No. 1 and 19c to 20c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

New cheese was more plentiful, but prices were about steady at 11¼c to 11½c for new large, 11½c to 11¾c for twins and 11¾c to 12c for triplets. Prices to retailers on new makes were unchanged at 12½c for large, 12¾c for twins, 13c for triplets and 15c for stiltons.

Eggs

Receipts of eggs were light, but a good demand held prices steady. Western eggs rolling eastward were generally bound for the Montreal market. Local brokers offered eggs at 16c for extras, 14c for firsts and 13c for seconds, graded and in free cases. Country shippers were quoted the steady prices of 13c to 14c for extras, 11c to 12c for firsts and 9c to 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were quoted extras in cartons at 20c, extras loose at 18c, firsts loose at 16c and seconds loose at 14c per dozen.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 6.— Egg and butter prices were generally lower, while cheese and potato quotations held unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

Fresh graded Ontario eggs, in cartons or less, declined slightly, extras at 18c and firsts at 16c both losing a cent, while seconds were steady at 15c a dozen. Offerings of Western fresh eggs were light, with extras being quoted at 19c, firsts at 17c and seconds at 15c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 2,877 cases.

No. 1 regraded butter, in car lots or broken lots, lost ½c at 24c a pound. Fresh butter was quoted at 23c a pound. Receipts were 709 boxes.

Current cheese was unchanged at 10½c to 11c, as was summer make at 12c to 12½c a pound. Receipts were 13 boxes.

The potato market ruled steady, quotations of broken lots, per 80-lb. bag, being 30c to 40c for Quebec white, and 45c to 50c for Quebec and New Brunswick Green Mountains. Car-lot prices were 10c a bag cheaper than the broken lot levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 6.— Raincloud in the drought region, together with notable weakness of the stock market, led to a downward slide of grain values yesterday.

Setbacks in wheat prices were in the face of Kansas and Nebraska reports forecasting much greater abandonment of acreage than normal; Nebraska the largest since 1917, when only 16 per cent. was left standing. Traders also virtually ignored a decrease of 8,856,000 bushels in the world's wheat available supply, the largest reduction in many weeks, leaving the total only 9,000,000 bushels more than a year ago.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅞c to 1⅝c under Monday's finish; corn, ⅜c to ⅝c down; oats, ¼c off to ¼c up; and provisions unchanged to 12c lower.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 6. — Guided by weakness of Liverpool wheat quotations and a spotty export demand, grain prices underwent moderate downturns in the wheat pit here yesterday. Predicted showers over United States winter wheat fields also acted as a bearish influence. Prices closed ⅞c to 1c lower than Monday's final figures.

May and July each dropped ⅞c to 62⅛c and 64c respectively, while October finished ⅞c to 1c lower at 66⅝c.

Damage Reports.

Damage reports from the United States winter wheat belt and bullish reports concerning wheat prospects in Russia gave early session strength to the market, but the advance was short-lived, and values dropped gradually to reach the low point near the close.

Broomhall reported a better feeling in European countries, and indicated that France would be in the market for supplies of foreign wheat on a fairly good scale, while Italy already was buying moderate quantities. He reported also that Germany was in need of grain imports.

Apart from small export trade in oats, cash wheat trade was draggy at unchanged spreads. Coarse grains closed easier.

DISTRICT NURSE

by Faith Baldwin

Another plain clothesman, at the other desk, an older man, looked across to bark suddenly, "Suppose you got this wrong, Sister? Suppose the girl went of her own accord-Most of 'em do."

"Not Gilda," denied Ellen angrily. "She loathed the man. She—she had a good job, she's happy in it. This man had been bothering her, I believe, for months." She spoke of the little scene in the restaurant, which she had witnessed. Sarpia pricked up his ears. "It doesn't look as if she hated him," he said shrewdly, "going out with him, that way."

Ellen said, sharply, "What does that prove? Perhaps he threatened her. I tell you she's been taken away by force."

"Hundreds of girls," said the older detective, "disappear, every day. Vanish. Napoo. Thin air. They come back sometimes, married. The family meantime races around, comes to us. We put our men to work. What do we find? An elopement—or a voluntary runaway. These girls weren't born yesterday——"

"Have you any daughters?" Ellen asked, furiously.

"Sure, two." He was Irish, he had the Irishman's slow, amused grin. "Why?"

"It's incredible," said Ellen, "that you can take that attitude about another man's daughter."

He reddened a little, and busied himself with the papers on his untidy desk.

INSTALMENT 18.

"We'll do all we can, see, Sarpia said, soothingly. But if the family won't talk——I tell you, I yelled my head off at them."

That was hardly the way to go about it, Ellen reminded him tartly.

Sharpia shrugged. "I know these people," he said. "All for their 'honor.' But they don't want any one else crashing in, see? The old lady, she doesn't even speak English——"

"Yes, a little. She understands."

"I asked her, Capisce Inglese? She shook her head. As far as that went, she didn't speak Italian either. Not a word? Wouldn't talk. The father—a different kettle of fish, yet he and the boy wouldn't talk much either; just said it was a mistake that we were sent for; they'd handle it. If the family won't lodge a complaint, let alone give us any information, our hands are tied, see?"

Ellen rose. "I'll try to make them see reason," she said.

"Good. Find out where the girl is, we'll do the rest," said Sarpia. "Meantime I'll have 'em all looked up. But, you understand, our hands are tied?"

"I understand," said Ellen, not too pleasantly. The other detective grinned at her again, his rancour forgotten, "You're barkin' up the wrong tree, sister, the Irishman murmured. "She'll come home. With a wedding ring. Or—after al, she ain't a minor, you know."

Ellen went back to the Espositos. They were not at home. The helper, alone in the store, shrugged. He didn't konw, he said. "The boss, he go out. Come back, bimeby."

She went on home, discouraged. Delay, and obstinacy on every side and meantime—Gilda?

Very early next morning her telephone rang. She went to it, her heart beating quickly. Mike's voice reached her, low, guarded.

"Some one 'phoned," Mike said, without preliminary. "She's all right——if the folks say she can marry him, he'll bring her back."

"Did you notify the detective—?"

"Nope. It ain't his business, now," said Mike. Nor yours, said his tone. His tone definitely dismissed her; lay off, it told her, in effect. He hung up. She dressed rapidly, after putting on the coffee. Soon she was at the Espositos. This time they opened to her knock and she went in and sat down, marshalling her arguments.

"What else is there to do?" said Esposito after they had talked a long time. "She will marry him, of course. Some one will 'phone again today. That's all there is to it," the father said.

"But she hates him," said Ellen wildly. "Why on earth should she marry him? Marriage, by force—it isn't legal, it isn't—"

But she only lifted hands and shoulders, fatalistically. Mrs. Esposito sobbed. Mike turned from the window, his hands sunk in his pockets. "He'll marry her, all right," said Mike, sombrely.

"When she comes back," begged Ellen, fighting the tears of futility and despair, realizing that she was up against a blank wall of absolute incomprehension, "you must let me talk to her."

She added, "But if—oh, if only you would see it my way! If you feel the police are out of place here, I know a lawyer. I will get private detectives, I can do something—"

A look passed between Esposito and his son, a look almost of hope. Ellen realized that it was the police they feared, the publicity. Esposito nodded. "Perhaps," he said slowly, "perhaps that would be good."

She would, she thought, get in touch with Frank; he could help her.

Later she called his office. He was in court. There was no way to reach him all day long.

She located him finally, at his apartment. He would, he promised, come around at once. Arriving he took her out in the car. Ellen told him all she knew. It was, he agreed, damnable. But, was she sure? He asked the question the detective had asked. Was she sure the girl hadn't gone of her own accord? Men were all alike, she told him angrily. Wasn't there the telephone call to prove that she hadn't gone of her own accord?

He tried to quiet her. He said, "You know I'll help. I know a private investigator. He's under some obligation to me; I'll try to reach him. I'll find him surely, tomorrow, or next day. But meantime, I wish you'd keep out of this Ellen; it's dangerous business."

"It's my job," she said wretchedly. "Can't you understand that?"

He couldn't. There was something of a coolness between them when they parted. He was, she saw plainly, more interested in her and her possible situation than in Gilda.

The next day the 'phone rang early. It was Mike. "She has gone home," he said cautiously. "She will marry him. There isn't any use you getting the detective."

Impasse.

She 'phoned Frank, and explained briefly. "Good," he said heartily over the 'phone. "So, that's all over."

It wasn't.

Ellen went, as soon as she had a free moment, to the rooms over the fruit store, Gilda was there. She looked amazing, her face almost green white, her eyes shadowed, and her mouth twitching. She was sitting in a corner of the sofa, her hands folded in her lap. Fontana was not there. Nor Mike.

Gilda cried when she saw Ellen, slow tears running unheeded down her cheks. Had they, Ellen wondered, been unkind to her? It did not seem so.

Esposito walked restlessly about the room. Ellen asked "Where is he?" and Esposito shrugged. "He'a gone out," he said, "to buy himself a suit. Mike went along." He was silent. He did not tell her he had locked the future bridegroom in, all last night after their arrival, locked him in an unused storage room.

"Please let me talk to Gilda alone," Ellen demanded.

Esposito went out, heavily, downstairs to the store. Mrs. Esposito, curiously recovered and plainly resigned, went into the kitchen. Ellen took Gilda's cold hands in her own.

Ellen said, "You needn't. And you needn't marry him, Gilda. See, this is today, not yesterday. Nothing that happened was your fault. You need not marry him. No one need ever know. I'll see that he doesn't annoy you any more."

Gilda shrugged. In that moment she looked like her mother. She hadn't a feature of her mother's save her eyes. Yet she looked like her, patient, resigned.

"Gilda, wait, please, give it a day's thought two days, a week, before you take this step'" Ellen urged her.

Gilda rose. She made no reply. "I must help mother'" she dismissed Ellen, "in the kitchen." She moved toward the door with Ellen, the elasticity gone frmo her step. At the door she caught Ellen's hands in hers, a tight, frantic grip—"I—I'm grateful," she whispered, "but you can't do anything—"

Ellen was alone, on the other side of the closed door.

That was final. Gilda would marry him. She must't. She must be brought to see reason.

On an impulse she turned her steps toward Jim O'Connor's office. His face lighted when he saw her. He drew her into the back room, closed the door.

"It's an honor," he assured her.

She tried to smile at him. "Not a social call, not a friendly one even. I need your help."

"Shoot," he said.

She could tell Jim. He would understand. Better than Frank. He knew these people, their hates, their tragedies; their blood ran in his veins. She told him briefly. At the back of her brain there was a little sore spot. The restaurant, that night, the man who had looked like Jim, at Gilda's table. But it hadn't been Jim.

He listened gravely, fingering a pencil. He said, "It's a damned shame. Of course, I agree with you entirely. She shouldn't marry him. But—you know these people, Ellen, there is nothing you can do."

She said, anxiously, "You know every one in the neighborhood. You know people, perhaps, who know this Fontana. If the police can do nothing, perhaps you can. Find out about him. Get something on him, get him out of town."

"I'll do my best, Ellen," he said. "But perhaps you are making a mistake. Shouldn't you let them run it? It's their show after all."

It was, she realized dully, as she left. It wasn't hers. Her job was looking after the sick bodies of people. And yet—her job? Wasn't it sick minds as well, sick hearts and souls?

When she got home, there was a letter, with a scrawled address which read simply, "Nurse"—and the number and street. It had of course reached her. The postman had been much amused. "That's fame for you," he said to Coral.

REPAIRS AND ASSESSMENTS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

The concluding paragraph in Monday's editorial, "Give A Man A Job" is contrary to experience. It reads, "necessary repairs are not taken into consideration by the assessor." I have had two experiences of painting jobs bringing on $100 increase in assessment. When appeal is made to Court of Revision, Mr. Johnson says, "We can assess to full value of property." True that is according to law—but not to custom in other cities.

If the City Council would endorse your closing paragraph, homeowners would feel like giving out a little work. Now is the time, as the assessors are on their rounds.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal. April 6 (A.P.)—Three phonograph records, sent by Buster Keaton, film comedian, to his wife, the former Natalie Talmadge, brought apparent harmony to the Keaton household to-day.

Mrs. Keaton is reported to be living again with her husband following a period of disturbed domestic relations which, the film comedian said, resulted from his desire to "show who wears the trousers around the house."

MID-DAY RALLY AT TORONTO STARTS STOCKS ON UP MOVE

Several of Leaders Show Advances Above Tuesday Night's Finals.

BELL ADVANCES TO PAR.

TORONTO, April 6 (CP).—Opening weak, Toronto stock exchange market rallied in the second hour and at midday several of the leaders were above last night's finals while others had reduced early losses.

Bell Telephone, which sold as low as 98½, recovered to par where it showed a net gain of 2 points. C.P.R. recovered ½ point loss. Nickel at 7½ was slightly above its extreme low, which was also a new record low for the stock, and Smelters recovered a point loss. Ford of Canada and Dominion Stores, among the pivotal shares, failed to move up from their lows, Ford at 10½ and Dominion Stores at 17. Steels were soft again. Page-Hersey Tubes down a point and Steel of Canada nearly a point.

There was not much change in the position of Walkers. Oils were weak at the opening with pressure brought against Imperial Oil, B. A. Oil especially. This decline was halted before midday but there was no marked recovery.

HOPES BRIGHTEN IN BABY HUNT

Villagers Draw Deductions From Cheery Mien of Colonel Lindbergh.

POLICE PESSIMISTIC.

HOPWELL, N.J., April 6.—Optimism—unexplained but insistent—coursed through this hill village to-day as reports flew that the Lindbergh baby would be home soon.

Neither police nor any one else in authority would sponsor the expectant feeling. Villagers drew deductions from the cheery mien of Col Charles A. Lindbergh as he turned out yesterday cedar branch in hand, to help battle a brush fire that menaced his home on Sourland Hill.

Lights gleamed in the home last night. The state police force quartered at the estate was being diminished, despite an announcement by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, its leader, that no one had requested withdrawal.

Mysterious Flights.

The air of hope rested ultimately, however, on two mysterious aeroplane flights Col. Lindbergh made over Martha's Vineyard and adjacent waters off the Massachusetts coast, in a reported attempt to establish contact with a small yacht.

But police said they were unaware of any reason to think prospects had brightened.

Mystery still marked the visit to Great Britain of Major Charles H. Schoeffel of the state police. Instead of going to Glasgow, as he was reported intending to do, he stayed in London yesterday. In Glasgow lives the mother of Betty Gow, the baby's nursemaid.

Col. Schwarzkopf disclosed that investigations abroad showed that none of the Lindbergh servants had any criminal record before coming to this country.

Claims Hydro Rates Too High In Ontario

ST. THOMAS, April 6—Reporting to the City Council last night, R. W. Johnson, City Auditor, declared that, while he found the departments' financing system very satisfactory, Hydro rates all over Ontario were too high.

Local departments, he said, are making really too much money, the rates having been set at such figures by the Provincial Commission to ensure all expenditures and reserves, including depreciation allowance to be amply taken care of. "I really think that Hydro rates should be brought down all over the country," he said.

"If they were brought down, Hydro would be more popular than ever."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, April 6 (C.P.)—Despite a slightly stronger tone in the afternoon Standard Stock and Mining Exchange, listings closed the day with losses again in the majority.

International Nickel showed some resistance and rallied to finish unchanged, but Sudbury Basin dropped another 5 and Noranda was off 10. Eldorado was firm throughout.

Among the golds, Dome slipped below $10 for a 15-cent loss, and Teck-Hughes eased 5. Pioneer of B.C. was somewhat stronger at $3.80. In the cheaper stocks, Moss, Kirkland Lake Gold and Alexandria recorded small recessions, and Buffalo, Premier, Sylvanite and Clericy minor gains.

TORONTO, April 6 (C.P.)—Toronto Stock Exchange market steadied away this afternoon after an erratic morning. The close was above the low for the day, and a few individual stocks showed gains over last night, but the bulk of issues failed to recover fully, showing fractional recessions.

Bell Telephone came out around its low level, rallied sharply 1½ points and then eased slightly towards the close, though retaining a net gain of over a point. C.P.R. was up from its low but at 14⅝, just under last night. Nickel was steadier at the close, though slightly lower. Noranda was within a few cents of last night's close of 16½. Smelters, down to 40, recovered and closed unchanged at 41.

Ford of Canada was soft to weak throughout the day, and closed lower. Oils were also soft, showing fractional recessions in rather heavy trading.

ADDRESS GIVEN ON PALESTINE

Mrs. A. Lockley Addresses Members of St. Paul's Church Ladies' Aid.

INTERESTING TALK.

"Silhouettes of Palestine" formed the subject of a racy and interesting address given under the auspices of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Ladies' Aid Society last night in the Guild Room. The guest speaker was Mrs. A. Lockley, of Hamilton, who with her husband and son spent a year visiting many points of historic and Biblical interest in the Holy Land.

Mrs. Lockley, with fluent and able delivery, held her audience the while she commenced the tour from Alexandria and Cairo. The motor car became the principal means of transportation; and in the time at her disposal, covered much ground and data — though, as she said, "many hours could be taken in dealing more exhaustively with this enchanting trip."

Through the Holy Land.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockley took up residence in a large house at the Damascus Gates, Jerusalem. Mrs. Lockley dealt at the outset with her home surroundings there, enumerating the many flowers in her garden, familiar to Canadians on this side, which grew in great profusion and beauty—the black calla lily, holyhock, geranium, rose, carnations, anemones, etc. A word about the Arab men and women depicted their mode of living, selling goods to travellers, the women without veils; caring for the sheep, and carrying lambs by the four legs. The ship of the desert, the camel, was also mentioned, carrying heavy burdens across the hot, arid sands. A car was stalled one day on the street—the chauffeur and others failed to start it, until the driver discovered there was no blue bead on the radiator, and putting one thereon, after fruitless efforts around the engine, the car started at once. Such is the superstition. The chief religions are Christian, Moslem, and Jewish—and church edifices are wonderful with interior mosaic embellishments, dating from the Herodian dynasties.

Christ's Boyhood Home.

In turn, Mrs. Lockley took her audience to sacrificial rocks and altars, horses, the Wailing Wall. On the road to Bethlehem, she visited the well, the tomb of Rachael, the Shepherd Fields, and the pretentious city itself, with the Church of the Nativity, with the Grotto beneath the church where, it is thought, Christ was born. There is much unrest in this section of Palestine at all times. Proceeding to Jericho (Arabs are fast drivers in this part of the land) a visit was paid to the place where stood the Inn of the Good Samaritan, now in ruins from Turkish shells; the Church of St. George; the climate is ideal in Jericho, with fertile country, suitable for the growing of olive trees; Mount of Temptation; these and several other hallowed spots were visited. Continuing the journey brought the party to the Dead Sea, where the waters, bitter but buoyant and soft, allow one to lie on the surface and float — you cannot sink, said Mrs. Lockley—and where six million gallons of water enter daily, and with no outlet, evaporation takes place. The Jordan and its sacred history was visited on the tour, as were also the Sea of Galilee, Mount Hermon, Valley of Escallon, the mosques and villages on the hillsides, Samaria, Jacob's Well, Nazareth, Fount of the Virgin, the Church of the Annunciation, with the grotto and workshop of the Carpenter, Tiberius, passing Cana of Galilee, known in connection with the miracle of the wedding feast there; overlooking the Sea of Galilee, with hostels for tourists and touches of western ideas, along the shores to Capernaum, and Mount Carmel.

Easter Celebration.

Passion Week was graphically described by Mrs. Lockley, with special services and reverent religious atmosphere. Bethany was reached, passing en route the home of Mary and Martha; and thence to Jerusalem, along the road of the Master's last triumphal march. The Garden of Gethsemane, the Church of Mary, the tombs of Mary and Lazarus, as far as is known, were viewed, as were the Chapel of Mary Magdalene, the Via Dolorosa (Road of Pain), Calvary, the tomb of Christ, Mount Olivet, with the Church of the Ascension; the Memorial Cemetery and Chapel, where are buried 3,000 soldiers, crusaders in the Great War, who fell in Palestine.

Has Many Curios.

Concluding her travelogue, Mrs. Lockley referred to the splendid roads and walks to be traversed, when so much Biblical knowledge can be gained by this trip to the Holy Land.

Mrs. Coleman Blewett presided, while Mrs. A. T. Barr introduced the guest speaker. Mrs. E. F. Mason voiced the Ladies' Aid's appreciation to Mrs. Lockley; and thanks were extended to Miss Jessie Pattison and Miss Olive Cullen for solos, and to Mr. M. B. Chenhall and Mrs. E. Barrie for piano accompaniments.

Several mementoes of the trip were shown by Mrs. Lockley, including mosaics, pressed flowers, a Bible of rare make, and a small crown of thorns like unto the one used at the crucifixion of Christ.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION NEWS

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL.

Members of Confederation Home and School Association met in the school Monday evening for their regular meeting. Mrs. T. Monk, president, presided over a very fair attendance of members. This was the first meeting since the election of officers which took place last month.

The officers for the year are as follows: President, Mrs. T. Monk; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. Milby and Mrs. Jackson; secretary, Mrs. J. Harrington; treasurer, Mrs. R. King. Convenors of social committee: Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. A. Thomas. Convenor of relief committee: Mrs. F. McBride. Convenor of visiting committee: Mrs. Doleman.

The ladies arranged to have an open night on the evening of Friday, April 15th, when Mrs. Wand will give a report of the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations held in Toronto last month. Mrs. Wand was one of the delegates representing several of the city schools, and her report is looked forward to with much interest. Musical and other items will be given, and the evening promises to be both pleasant and profitable.

The attendance banner was again put into use, Miss Garbutt's room being the winners for the month.

The ladies are arranging to have a campaign in the near future to increase the membership of the Association. It was felt that many more parents of the scholars might be induced to take an active part in this very valuable work of bringing home and school in closer touch with each other.

Several other matters of business were discussed before the meeting was closed by the president.

PEERS' WAR MEMORIAL UNVEILED BY PRINCE

Is Figure of Youth in Bronze Offering Sword to His Country

London.—The Prince of Wales, at a simple, moving ceremony, unveiled in the royal gallery of the House of Lords, the war memorial to British peers and their sons who fell in the great war.

In a gilded, arched recess was disclosed, as he gently pulled the cord and the draperies fell, two bronze figures. One showed Youth, proud of his right to serve, offering his sword, battered in battle, to a female figure representing his country.

On each side are five oak panels, on which are carved the names of 243 peers and officers of the House of Lords and their sons, whom the memorial commemorates. Of these 20 were members of the House of Lords.

The royal gallery is one of gorgeous beauty. Here hang some of the most striking royal portraits.

Statues of England's kings stand in noble position. The recess, where now the memorial stands, is guarded by Richard Coeur de Lion and Edward III.

The boys of the Chapel Royal, in their scarlet and gold coats, broke into the hymn, "O God our help in ages past," and the archbishop offered a collect.

Then the Lord Great Chamberlain requested the Prince to unveil the memorial. The royal speech was brief; it was a tribute to the noble dead and the spirit in which they went forth to war.

LAKEFIELD A.Y.P.A. HEARS FINE REPORT

J. Cuffe, Head of Peterborough District, Describes Conference Held in Regina.

LAKEFIELD, April 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Monday evening the A.Y.P.A. were favored with a visit from Mr. Jack Cuffe, the President of the Peterborough district. Mr. Cuffe gave a very interesting and inspiring report of his visit to the 29th annual Dominion Conference of the Anglican Young People's Association, held in October last in Regina. Owing to the distance and the expense involved, Mr. Cuffe represented the Peterborough district.

This was the first truly Dominion-wide conference held, with sixteen dioceses represented and a wonderful spirit manifested by the young people who discussed earnestly the problems of the church, especially those which deal with youth and the keeping of young people in the church, especially those of adolescent age.

The services were held in St. Paul's Church, the mother church of Regina, and the meetings in the Parish Hall.

The chairman at the first session was Mr. Hal Seward, the Dominion Vice-President; at the other sessions, Mr. Reg. Towne of Merriton, the Dominion President, was in charge and reported a growth in branches and a strong spiritual gain; the value of the Young People's work was apparent as never before.

The General Secretary, Mr. Harry E. Mole, reported 68 new charters issued during the past year, and four new local councils formed, viz., Hamilton, Moosejaw, Kent deanery and Barnia.

The Treasurer, Mr. Gundy of Montreal, reported fair progress, although the Dominion Council has not yet become self-supporting, and is dependent on the geenrosity of the G.B.R.E.

The Bishops of Qu'Appelle and British Columbia were present, and the former was the celebrant, and the latter assisted at the Corporate Communion held in St. Paul's.

Better Representation

The young people should be better represented in vestries of the church. The older organizations had in too many cases, lost touch with the A.Y.P.A. and we must line up and get into touch and keep in touch with them, for only in co-operation and in Christian charity with one another can the work of the organizations succeed. There should be closer touch between the branches and the local councils and between the Dominion council and the local councils.

The A.Y.P.A. can be of great assistance in the Sunday school and in the choir, and can be of great assistance to the Rector in securing and holding the young peope.

We need leadership which will hold the adolescent youth to the church and develop the individual ability of the members.

A Provincial conference will be held each year, probably with a Dominion-wide conference either as a bi-ennial or triennial event. This matter was, however, left to the Dominion executive. The annual banquet was held in the Hotel Saskatchewan and was addressed by Premier Anderson of Saskatchewan, a splendid layman of the church. Previous to the banquet, the delegates were given a sight-seeing trip of the city, seeing the Parliament Buildings, beautiful Wascana Park, the headquarters of the Royal Mounted Police, and the various industrial plants.

Mr. Cuffe's report was much enjoyed, and a hearty vote of thanks was given him for his kindness in driving up and giving the excellent report.

Following the report of Mr. Cuffe, refreshments were served and a short business meeting held. It was decided to hold a card party on Thursday evening next.

Jury Trial Ordered In Anderson Case

HAMILTON, Ont., April 5. —C. W. Bell, K.C., M.P., has been retained to act with Norman Kay in defense of George Anderson, choir .nger, charged with a serious offense against Harry Brightwell. Brightwell is alleged to have shot Anderson on Jan. 17 on Green's road, and will stand trial at the Assizes here next week.

Announcement was made to-day by G. W. Ballard, Crown Attorney, that Anderson had been denied a retrial by a Judge as he had elected. W. H. Price, Attorney General, had ordered a jury trial in the case. Mr. Balard staed.

Although such action on the part of the Attorney General is not frequent, there have been several precedents in Ontario, it was pointed out.

PRICES REDUCED ON CHEVROLETS AND PONTIACS

General Motors Announces Reduction of $50 in Price of Two Lines.

EFFECTIVE LAST MONDAY.

In a definite effort to stimulate business generally, General Motors of Canada, Limited, announced today that prices on Pontiac and Chevrolet cars would be reduced as much as $50.00 each on the former and as high a reduction of $45.00 on the latter.

The new prices will affect all cars purchased since Monday, April 4th.

The new lower prices have been made possible by the co-operation of the factory employees, who have worked together with the management to make the reductions as large as possible. The men hope to gain in the long run by the increased volume of business that is confidently expected from the new low prices.

As motor car purchasers are interested in the delivered price including license, all General Motors dealers concerned with the above price reduction will be prepared to supply that information immediately.

No change has been made in Pontiac or Chevrolet quality which has been proved by hundreds of thousands of satisfied owners. Actually the 1932 models are even better today than when first announced a few months ago. With these new low prices, each is more than ever a value leader in its price class.

All Pontiac and Chevrolet dealers will be prepared to make immediate delivery on any of the models included in the price reduction.

HAVELOCK WOMEN'S INSTITUTE PLANS TO HOLD SEWING COURSE

Relief Work Thoroughly Discussed at Regular Meeting of Branch.

PLAN EUCHRE PARTY

HAVELOCK, April 6.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of Havelock Women's Institute was held in the Council Chamber on Mondy afternoon, with a large attendance of the members. The vice-president, Mrs. Lancaster, occupied the chair in the absence of the president.

The matter of the demonstration lecture course, once again was up for discussion. It was decided to ask for a short course in dressmaking, and three members were appointed to ascertain how many in the village are anxious to take the course. Mrs. Bedford was appointed for the west end, Mrs. Gould for centre and Miss Morrison for the east end. Any one wishing to get in on the course should advise one of these ladies as soon as possible. Only twenty will be admitted, and when that number of names are in no more can be taken care of.

A letter was read from Mi. Edith Hopkins, outlining plans fo. the girls' coaching class to be held here in May and June. It was suggested that an entry be made in the table-setting competition to be held at the district Fall Fair, and that some of those interested do a little coaching on the proper way to set a table for a farm home dinner in preparation for the forthcoming coaching classes. It was decided to wait and see what action the junior branch intends to take in the matter, with the understanding that the senior branch will stand behind them in any undertaking.

A letter from the Belmont Institute secretary was read in reply to the letter forwarded after last meeting, inviting them to join Havelock branch in a short course. The secretary stated that th members of the country branch found it impossible to attend a course in the spring and summer months, on account of the heavy work at home and stated that they would prefer a lecturer. They would be willing to join Havelock in procuring one for the two branches. A letter will be sent advising them that Havelock has decided to have the dressmaking course.

Relief Work.

Mrs. Anderson, who is in charge of relief work in the village, was asked to give a report of the work being done. She stated that there was a great deal of fault finding and misunderstanding about the work being done. There had been some talk about those on village relief getting luxuries which were not necessary. No canned goods had been allowed in these orders, except in the case of a family with an infant, for whom the doctor had ordered tomato juice and condensed milk. This is all the canned goods that has been allowed on relief orders. The plainest foods and barest necessities only are allowed. One family is receiving meat twice a week and one quart of milk per day only. The milk and meat were said by the doctor to be necessary in this case. Mrs. Anderson has gone over each list submitted, and after crossing out unnecessary foods, has signed the order and herself handed it to the merchant who was to deliver the goods. She asked the members to whom she explained the situation to tell those who were talking about the relief work in their presence just what was being done.

Mrs. Kinnaird, who has been in charge of the work in connection with transients, also told of the work that has been done to date. She said that Mrs. Anderson had the heavy part of the work, as she had a lot of running around to do. Mrs. Kinnaird just has to attend to those who come to her door asking for food and shelter. To date 446 meals have been given and 254 beds provided. On Saturday last seven applied for a meal and bed and on Sunday twelve. The committee who looked after the card parties reported $6.35 net proceeds. The funds in the treasury are getting rather low, and it was decided to hold an afternoon tea on Tuesday next and a euchre in the evening to help replenish it. Mesdames Gould and Wilson and Miss Wright will see about the tea and Mesdames Davies, Hoffman and Craig will attend to the arrangements for the card party.

The business of the meeting being concluded, the program convenor, Mrs. Wesley Johnstone, took charge. The roll call was "My favorite Wild Flower," and was well responded to. The hepatica, trillium, violet and daisy were most popular.

An interesting paper, entitled "Birds of Eastern Canada," prepared by ... Hazel Johnston, who was ill and unable to attend the meeting, was read by Mrs. Bonney, and was much appreciated.

Mrs. Lancaster gave a brief talk on "The Clinical Thermometer." She also spoke of the efforts of Mr. Lancaster, our representative in the Provincial Government, to have a horticultural society formed here. She explained in a few words the benefit to be derived by the members by the formation of a society here, and asked those interested to meet at her home on Saturday evening next and discuss plans for the same.

A bird contest, "Hidden Birds," was much enjoyed by all present, and Mrs. Hubel and ... Lancaster were tied for first prize with ten out of sixteen correct. They each received a small butter patt in fanciful design. Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Barltrop were tied for boobey with only one correct answer. They tossed a coin to see who would receive the prize and the latter won. She was presented with a tiny pig with a real curled tail. It was really quite cute, made out of a lemon, with little ... eyes made out of pins, and shiny paper ears standing up.

The librarian announced that two books were missing from the library shelves, and asked anyone knowing of their whereabouts to ask that they be returned. They are "Green Timber" and "Printer of Udell." After the closing ceremony a delightful lunch was served by Mesdames Smith, Allan, Anderson, Wilde, Easterbrooke and Buchanan.

President Of U.S.S.R. Near Death In 1928

MOSCOW, April 5.—(AP)—Michael Kalinin, president of the U. S. S. R. was almost the victim of an assassin's bullet in the winter of 1928, the prosecution disclosed today at the trial of Judas Stern and Sergei Vassilev, charged with the attempted assassination of Dr. Fritz Twardowski, the German embassy counselor, last month.

The disclosure came during an attempt by the prosecution to connect this recent attack and the plot against Kalinin through an anti-Communist organization with headquarters in Warsaw. The same organization, it was charged, was responsible for the assassination of the Soviet Ambassador to Warsaw in 1928.

Vassilev denied any connection with the organization although yesterday he and the co-defendant admitted that they had plotted the attack on the German diplomat under a "terrorist" order.

Investment in Canadian manufacturing industries increased by $120,302,006 during 1930 to a new record total for all industries of $5,203,316,760.

MEAN PREMIUM.

Variety Matures Early, Being Especially Popular in Northern Sections.

OTTAWA, April 6 (C.P.)—If garnet wheat were graded separately, thus allowing millers to make their own blends, it would have a better chance of commanding a premium in the market than it has at present. This variety is at the moment graded as No. 2 northern. Such was the opinion of E. B. Ramsay, chief of the board of grain commissioners, expressed yesterday to the House of Commons committee on agriculture.

Last October the western grain standards board passed a resolution recommending that separate grades be erected for garnet. Parliament, however, requested that this action be deferred for the present year, so that the grades will not be disturbed for another 12-months at least.

It is an early maturing wheat, with an excellent yield. The fact that it ripened from ten to fifteen days ahead of other varieties had made it a valuable wheat for farmers in the northern sections of the prairie provinces.

Millers Main Objectors

The chief antagonism against garnet came from the Canadian millers, Mr. Ramsay told the committee. Their prejudice was due to the yellowish tinge of the flour and not to any inferiority in qualities. Foreign millers had found it satisfactory. Also, Canadian millers did not wish to buy a No. 2 northern, in which grade garnet had been put. Asked by W. R. Motherwell (Lib., Melville) if the real reason for this antagonism might not be that the Canadian millers did not want to incur the expense that might be entailed in adjusting their machinery to grind garnet, Mr. Ramsay believed this to be a factor.

Of 276,000,000 bushels of wheat produced last year garnet totalled 45,000,000, thus indicating the popularity of this variety in the west.

Mr. Ramsay thought that if foreign importers wanted garnet, they should know they were getting that variety. In that way they could blend it with whatever wheat they wanted.

Fairview Society Will Hold Supper

BRIDGENORTH, April 6.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The young people's midweek meeting of Fairview Church was not so well attended on Friday evening, owing to so much sickness and bad roads, but the meeting proved to be one of the best held this winter.

Miss Olive Bell, in her usual gracious manner, occupied the chair and Miss Marjorie Mahood read the scriptural lesson. During the business period it was decided to close the winter activities on Friday evening, April 15, with an oyster supper and banquet.

A most interesting paper, "Should We Learn from the Experience of Others? Why? How?" was given by Miss Olive Bell.

Guest Speaker.

On Sunday in the churches on this circuit, Miss M. L. Rork, B.A., of Japan, was the guest speaker. Good congregations were present to hear her at Fariview and Bridgenorth churches.

At Fairview, she took as her theme, "Dr. Kagawa and the Kingdom of God Movement in Japan."

The service in Bridgenorth church was under the direction of the W. M. S. members who had charge of the service, with a women's choir, women reading the lesson, taking the offering and giving the address. The platform was attractively decorated with flowers and the service was interesting and helpful. Miss Rorke took as her theme, "The Kindergarten as an Evangelistic Agency in Japan."

The choir contributed two beautiful anthems and the service was one of the most interesting of the year.

W.M.S. Day Observed In Warsaw Church

WARSAW, Apr. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—In spite of the condition of the roads Warsaw United Church was well filled on Sunday evening, the W.M.S. special service when they gave the pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross."

The processional hymn "Stand up, Stand up for Jesus" was sung by the choir and the girls in the pageant, the women and girls in flowing white robes, except a few whose parts demanded colors. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson opened the service with the hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy," prayer, scripture, Psalm xxi., and hymn "Take time to be Holy," also an anthem, "In the Cross of Christ's Glory."

Mrs. John Brethour, as Evangel had the heavy part, and she did it well. Her part was to invite, as a messenger of the Heavenly King, all to come, to answer the call of Jesus, with the sure reward in this world, and in that to come. Many of Jesus' words were repeated in the invitation to come and take of the water of life freely.

Rita Robinson, Freena Robinson, Merle Bell, Maisie Robinson, Cora Crowe, Emily Payne, Lorna McIlverna also took part in the pageant.

Mrs. G. G. Taylor and Mrs. Wilkinson had trained the girls, and at the presentation Mrs. Wilkinson was organist and Mrs. Taylor conductor.

The collection from the W.M.S. members and the loose collection went to the W.M.S. auxiliary.

The special Easter service of the United Church W.M.S. and Women's Association was held in the basement of the United Church on Thursday afternoon.

Plans were made to supply plants or flowers for the church during April. Roll call was answered by a verse bearing on Easter. At the next meeting the word "seek" will be used in roll call. Mrs. Uriah Payne read the Easter lesson. Mrs. Allan U. Payne read "Tom's Easter Story. Mrs. David Miller read a poem "The Message of Easter." Mrs. John Brethour read "The Cord that was Broken" and Mrs. George Taylor, "The Story of the Easter Egg." Owing to the condition of the roads the attendance was small.

Children's COLDS

Mothers testify that BABY'S OWN TABLETS are invaluable for children's head colds and feverish colds.

"At the first sign of a cold," writes Mrs. Isaac Kellar, 4 Shaftesbury Place, Toronto, "or if the children have been out in damp weather, I give Baby's Own Tablets, and they are all right again the next day."

Mrs. Albert E. Knowles, R. R. 3, Granton, Ont., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets relieve colds so easily—I wouldn't be without them if they cost twice as much."

Mrs. James O'Connor, Godfrey, Ont., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are wonderful for children's colds and fever."

Mrs. Frank A. Tallen, Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "It was next to marvellous, after giving Baby's Own Tablets, how quickly the fever disappeared."

When you see your child with a cold coming on, don't lose any time in giving Baby's Own Tablets. They are effective, also, for teething troubles, colic, constipation, vomiting, sleeplessness, and whenever a child is restless and fretful. FIND SHERBROOKE MAN MURDERED IN BEDROOM

SHERBROOKE, Que., April 5. — (C.P.).—With the head crushed by blows, the body of Alderic Outure, 41, was found in his bedroom today at Milby, a village eight miles from here. A large blood-stained wrench was found nearby. The body was tied up in the bedclothes.

Discovery of the crime was made to-day when Couture was missed. Identity of the murderer and the motive of the crime were not apparent. Assistance of Provincial police has been asked for and local officers at once began an investigation.

An early examination of the body indicated the crime was committed sometime during the night. The bedroom gave signs of a desperate struggle.

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

April is the month of rapid-fire action. Lay your plans to make every day count.

When you uncover roses look carefully for scale. Prune them, leaving three eyes of last year's wood on hybrids but taking out only weak wood and reducing the rest one-third on the Teas.

Prune shrubs that flower on this season's growth now; prune all other early flowering shrubs after they have bloomed.

To grow a hedge in a shady position two things are necessary: heavy fertilization and very severe pruning. Prune hedges early and often to keep the bottom dense. Trim hedges with slightly sloping sides A-shaped, that is to give the base sunlight and air so necessary to dense leaf growth.

Consider your apples and pears, and spray them at the right time. First, when the cluster buds show pink and are separate; later when three-fourths of the petals have fallen and calyx end of the apple closes.

Most annuals may be started out of doors shortly. Have the soil prepared far enough ahead so that it will pulverize when being worked.

Just before the flowering season begins in the garden it is good practice to top-dress the beds with bone meal and rake it in.

Leaf-eating insects will also soon be working in the garden. For them a poison spray on the foliage is the thing to use.

Keep the tall flowers supported with individual stakes, the grass clipped and remove old stalks from the bed.

Formal evergreens and hedges should now be clipped. Hedge shears are the best tool to prevent any voids in the trees.

Fruit for Beauty

There is a growing tendency to use fruits, especially fruit trees, for ornament as much as utility. It is not difficult to appreciate this for their flowers are certainly a whole show in themselves and the fruits often make striking effects in contrast with the foliage. Flowering shrubs and trees, especially those bearing colorful fruit, are always in demand. There is surely no reason to disregard domestic fruits.

In localities where commercial orchards exist, people come from great distances to see the trees in bloom. The early cloudlike masses of white bloom on the cherries, plums and pears, and the exquisite pink glory of apples in full bloom are sights to be remembered. And withal they fill the air with fragrance borne far by the breezes. As the season advances and branches bow with clustered fruit a great appeal is made to the eye as well as the palate.

Make fruit trees a part of your flower scheme. Often a large mass of color such as a full-blooming fruit tree offers, is just the thing to make a picture that will stand out in your memory in contrast with the pictures presented by the landscape planting at other periods of the season.

Pointers for Shrub and Tree Planters

Never allow the roots of shrubs or trees which are being transplanted to be exposed to the sun, to drying winds or to frost. Keep them wrapped in damp moss or heel them in the ground.

Whenever you cut or prune wood, make a sharp clean cut; leave no ragged or jagged ends on roots or top.

Be sure that holes dug to receive plants are large enough to receive all roots without cramping.

Spread out the roots in a natural position and work fine loam among them. Be sure that no air holes remain, but that all roots are in contact with the earth which is firmed and compacted.

Never allow any undecayed manure to come in contact with the roots; nor undecayed leaves or wood in any quantity.

Be careful not to plant too deeply but always set the plant about an inch lower than it grew in the nursery row. The mark of the surface will usually be plainly seen.

Remove all broken branches in the top, and cut back at least one-half of the previous year's growth of wood.

In cutting back dormant stock, as in pruning, be careful to cut just above a bud and close to it, and let this be an outside bud, that is one which will send the new wood which grows from it away from the centre of the plant. This keeps the centre open, to let in air and light, and lessens the likelihood of crossed stems.

Shrubs and trees should be allowed to grow naturally, unless they are to be shaped to conform to a set pattern; and it is important to place them in their new location, in the same position relative to the sunlight to which they have been accustomed. They will usually incline a trifle towards the sun. Set them so this inclination need not be changed, as it will take energy to change it. In the open plants will incline slightly towards the south, but in sheltered and partly shaded places they will bend in the direction from which the sun shines upon them.

BEFORE PLANTING

AFTER PLANTING

Planting Improves House Design

Notice the contrast in the above pictures. They are identically the same, except in one an improved appearance has been created by the use of planting. Almost any desired effect can be secured with planting. If the house seems too tall, it can be made to look lower with planting. If the house seems harsh in appearance, the house picture can be softened with the proper use of shrubs, trees and flowers. If the home picture lacks color it can be secured through blooming trees, shrubs and flowers.

Whether you realize it or not, your opinion of the man you met to-day for the first time is largely influenced by his personal appearance. Clothes do not make the man but they are a great factor in the impression which he creates in those who come in contact with him.

The same principle applies to the home even more than to the individual, and the mental picture which the casual visitor carries with him of your home is largely of the outside appearance of the house and grounds, and his impression of your home and family is influenced to a considerable extent before he ever sets foot inside the house.

In planning your improvements always bear in mind the fact that, aside from the house itself, the most important feature of the grounds is the lawn and any shrubbery plantings and trees which are used should be placed in such a way as to bring out the beauty of the house and lawn and make a setting for them.

Shrubbery and trees are absolutely essential on any grounds, but it is highly important that they be so arranged as to produce the best effect possible on the place as a whole. To obtain satisfactory results it is necessary that you have a definite idea of the ultimate growth and appearance of the shrubs and trees you are using and be sure that the varieties you select are hardy in this climate.

In planting the shrub, the important thing is to get the soil worked in among the roots. This is done by using loose soil, by shaking the plants gently up and down as the soil is thrown in, and by working the soil down among the roots with a stick about the size of a broom handle. Before the hole is competely filled the soil should be packed firmly by pressing it with the feet. If the shrubs are to be watered filling should cease before all the soil is thrown in, so a good portion of water can collect there and soak in. Watering is done in the case of late spring planting when there is apt not to be much rain and the weather has started to become quite warm. After the water has soaked in the soil should again be made firm, the plant straightened and the hole filled with loose soil, left loose, to act as a mulch.

FLAX VARIETIES FOR SEED USE

Novelty, Ottawa 53 and Crown Frequently Outyield Popular Primost.

(Experimental Farms Note)

Canada is producing on the average over three million bushels of flax seed annually, two and a half million bushels of which are required at home for the linseed oil industry. The major consideration in the improvement of the flax seed crop is yield, that is the capacity to produce seed. This in turn requires the consideration of such characters as early maturity and disease resistance. The question of quality in the seed that is the ability to produce a high percentage of oil of good qaulity for the purpose intended must also be considered. The varieties used for seed production differ from those in which fibre is the chief consideration in that they are usually shorter in the straw and more branched than the fibre varieties.

Primost Most Popular

Among the older varieties of seed flax in Canada, Primost, a variety distributed by the Minnesota Experiment Station, has probably been most widely grown. Novelty, Ottawa 53 and Crown two varieties developed in Canada are a little later in maturity and frequently outyield Primost. The Experimental Farm at Ottawa has produced an earlier maturing variety called Diadem which appears promising for the northern parts of the Prairie Provinces. Unfortunately, these varieties are susceptible to and frequently damaged by flax wilt so could only be recommended for soils where disease is not a factor. Flax wilt is a soil borne disease and being carried on the seed may become a problem at any time if flax is grown for many years on the same land.

Other Varieties

The Experimen. Station at Farco, North Dakota, has made notable contributions to the problem of breeding wilt resistant varieties. N.D.R. 52 one of their earlier introductions having been grown successfully throughout Western Canada. Linota, a more recent introduction and one which seems quite resistant to wilt has not proven a better yielder. Later selections have given us two varieties, a small seeded variety called Buda and one with much larger seed called Bison Their performance in a wilt infected area at the Experimental Farm at Ottawa has been very good and they appear among the most promising varieties under test for seed production.

Dairy Production Is Growing Fast

The current issue of the Dairy News Letter, issued by the Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, provides an interesting indication of the trend in dairy production. It shows, for instance, that during the ten-year period under review five new products have made their appearance, namely, condensed buttermilk, evaporated skim-milk, cream powder, buttermilker powder, and malted milk powder. There has been a decrease of 26.5 per cent in the volume of cheese manufactured, 40.1 per cent in the production of condensed milk and 38.1 per cent in the production of condensed coffee. In contrast with this, and indicating the changing trend of production, there has been an increase of 1,016.8 per cent in the production of casein, of 599 per cent in the production of condensed skim-milk, of 222.1 per cent in the manufacture of ice cream, of 148.9 per cent in the manufacture of skim-milk powder, and of 108.2 per cent in the amount of cream sold as butter-fat.

Have Seed Graded For Best Results

The Seed Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture calls attention to the facilities which are available throughout Canada for the inspection and grading of seeds, more particularly alfalfa, clover and grass seeds.

In every district where these seeds are grown there is a Seed Branch inspector who inspects seed offered for sale for seeding purposes and furnishes information relating to cleaning and grading of seed, and, under some circumstances, performs grading himself.

Seed of course must be properly cleaned to remove the weed seeds and dirt before submitting it to the inspector for grading. In a large number of localities this could be done best perhaps at the local power cleaning plant designed for small seeds and which operates at a reasonable cost for the service performed. Where such is not available, however, the hand mill on the farm, when equipped with suitable screens, should do reasonably well, provided the seed does not contain certain seeds that require special equipment for their removal.

Seed of the latter type should not be sold locally, but to a seedman who has the special equipment for cleaning to marketable quality, or for export.

The Gardener —His Corner

Shrubbery and Roses

Early spring is the proper time to set out most new shrubbery, roses, ornamental and fruit trees, climbing vines and other things purchased to make the grounds about the house attractive. These should be bought from the nearest reputable source of supply so that they may be planted as soon as possible. In planning this part of the garden it is important to secure plants that are suitable to Canadian conditions and if satisfactory results are to be secured it is essential that good stock is bought. One will find a wide range of prices quoted, just as in any other line, but here again as always, good plants, well grown, hardy and true to name cannot be sold at the lowest figure. Unless the plant is in prime condition, with plenty of green bark, moist pliable roots and large live buds, it will have little chance and if it lives at all, a whole year will be lost in getting it started.

Cost Minor Detail

After all the actual cost of the nursery material is a mere bagatelle compared with the satisfaction which may be achieved. On arrival of the new plants, they should be planted immediately in moist soil, but if this is not possible, dig a shallow trench and 'heel in' by covering roots firmly with soil.

All shrubs, rose bushes, trees, and vines should have tops pruned back and they should be set in permanent quarters a trifle deeper than they were planted in the nursery bed. Give the roots plenty of room, spreading them loosely about the hole, then cover with good garden soil, throw in a pail of water, fill in the remainder of the hole and press soil down firmly. In the case of trees and such single stem plants as lilacs, provide some support against wind in the form of a stout stake and tie with soft twine or raffia. If the soil is poor it is a good thing to add some garden loam and also an occasional application of commercial fertilizer dissolved in water.

When Soil it Fit to Work

When this old earth really begins to warm up in the spring the normal person who traces his ancestry back to a farmer before the ape feels an impulse to get out and dig and while the modernist frowns on repression of any kind the experienced gardener advises extreme caution at this time. If the earth is too wet there is grave danger of a nasty cold not to mention dire consequences to the soil itself. Too early working will cause the latter to pack down hard and it may require a whole summer of constant digging and raking to get it back into its old crumbly self again. There is a simple test. If the soil crumbles after a little is squeezed in the hand or if it does not muddy the boots, it is safe to go ahead, but if it compacts into a ball, it is best to satisfy the spring craving with a good walk or a game of golf.

Grafting and Training

Grafting is not a difficult operation. The main thing is to get a portion of the inner bark of the scion, or twig being grafted onto the tree exactly opposite and tight up against the inner bark of the limb of the tree, so that the two may grow together. When working on a big limb it is best to take two or three twigs and insert them around the edge of the sawed off portion with the two inner barks in close contact. Later on when growth has well started remove all but one twig. After putting together, tie tightly with raffia or some soft twine and cover all around the joint with grafting wax. It is advisable to get some good Government bulletin on this subject before attempting the work. By grafting one can repair a tree which rabbits or mice have girdled and which would die without this treatment and can put a complete new top on a broken down tree or one of a non-desirable variety.

Grafting and training opens up interesting possibilities to the gardener. One apple can be made to fill the place of three ordinary trees if an early variety like the Yellow Transparent, or Astrachan, a good early cooker like the Duchess and a fine winter apple such as the McIntosh are all grown on the same trunk. By careful pruning and training shrubs and trees may be made to assume weird shapes or almost as ornamental as the hardwoods usually planted for this purpose. One may make bushy trees of climbing roses by only allowing a single stem trained to a stake and then encouraging this to branch by cutting it off when it reaches a certain height. In Japan by judicious pruning and withholding of fertilizer and water pines and oaks of very dwarfed proportions are grown in pails and tubs.

Canada's grain shipping facilities include 5,872 elevators with a total capacity of 414,660,260 bushels; of these 5,734 are country elevators with a capacity of 192,328,000 bushels.

CHECK PRODUCTION

(Experimental Farms Note)

Many poultrymen and farmers have been disappointed from both a production and a disease point of view on account of having exercised a lack of caution in introducing new male birds into the flock. It is important to know if the flock from which males are purchased is free from disease. A sure remedy against the introduction of disease is to raise your own males from eggs purchased from a pullorum tested flock.

Also indiscriminate introduction of new blood may be disastrous to the future production of a flock, either in egg size or egg numbers. The remedy for this is the progeny test. Thus new blood should be introduced in a small way the first year—one or two males, according to the size of the flock. By the next breeding season it will be possible to judge, from the fall and winter production of the daughters, whether further breeding from their sires and brothers would be desirable.

A reliable estimate of the pullets' production (egg size and number) can be obtained by trapping and weighing all eggs one week in every four. Or, if there are no trapnests, the new male's daughters should be placed in a separate pen. A gathering of eggs can be weighed periodically and the average weight per egg calculated. By March 1, the eggs should be of standard weight (24 ounces per dozen) or almost standard weight.

RATES OF SEEDING THINNING MANGELS

Nine Pounds Per Acre in Tests Show Most Economical Results.

(Experimental Farms Note)

In a time of economic depression like the present, when prices of agricultural products are so low as to leave little or no margin over the cost of production, every effort should be made to reduce costs and increase yields as much as possible. In the production of mangels, a crop requiring a large amount of manual labor, the Field Husbandry Division of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa has been conducting experiments for the last eight years to determine the influence on yield of various rates of seeding and distances of thinning.

Mangels were seeded at the following rates: 6, 9, 12, and 18 pounds per acre. The average yields over the eight year period were 21.42, 22.38, 22.05, and 23.20 tons per acre for the respective rates of seeding. According to these results, the rate of seeding of 9 pounds per acre has given the most economical results, valuing mangels for feed at $1.65 per ton.

Comparisons were made among four distances of thinning mangels: 6, 9, 12, and 18 inches apart. The 9-inch thinning gave an average yield of 25.63 tons per acre over the 8 year period, which was an increase of 2.25 tons over the 6-inch thinning, the next highest yield. As hoeing and thinning represent nearly one-half the manual labor involved in growing a crop of mangels, it would seem very desirable to obtain the highest yield from this labor by thinning the plants to the proper distance.

Weekly Report on Crops

Algoma—Fall wheat and clover fields are still protected by snow.

Brant—Demand for dairy products about the same. Butter shows a sharp advance in price, some retailers asking 35c lb. Unfavorable weather of past week has rather tied up operations in the county. Further supplies of ice being stored. Seed purchases not brisk but fairly steady. It would appear that farmers do not intend buying until seeding time.

Bruce—Considerable sweet clover and red clover locally but alfalfa, red clover and timothy will be required to fill needs of farmers. Stock on most farms is in very good condition, quite up to normal and number remains fairly constant, there being a reduction in the number of hogs kept but reduction has been made gradually. Demand for poultry has improved somewhat doubtless due to the holiday season but farmers still have quite a number of fat and partly fattened chickens on hand.

Dufferin—Heavy fall of snow of past week is welcomed by farmers both because of believed benefit to crops and opportunity for moving wood, etc. given by good sleighing.

Essex—Second spring seeding spasm went into effect in Essex County on March 17th, 18th and 19th. Heavy blanket of snow fell on Monday, March 21st, and seeding operations have been at a standstill all through past week. High light of live stock market this spring has been the keen interest in horses. A lot of farmers are looking for horses, the main consideration being that they are not too dear.

Frontenac—Fields still covered with snow. No indication of damage to apples or small fruits, except strawberries which show some winter killing. Number more cheese factories that have commenced making cheese. Higher price obtained for milk sold to city whole milk trade has induced more producers to start a milk route and as they undersell the regular dairies it has had a demoralizing effect on the whole milk business.

Glengarry—Milk production is about normal for the season. Whole milk prices vary from $1.30 to $1.70 depending on market. Churning cream is much higher in price in fact has nearly doubled in past two weeks.

Haldimand—The lamb crop is reported to be above average. Lambs are coming in large numbers and seem to be strong. Other livestock in average condition. Butter prices of last week have been maintained together with reaction in upward trend of cream prices. Quotations for cream during week are as follows: Special 25c, first 24c, second 21c. What was gained in price of cream was lost in price of eggs during week. On Hagersville market as low as 12-13c dozen being offered for this commodity. 18c lb. is being offered for live poultry.

Halton—Poultry breeding flocks are reporting a reasonably good market for both hatching eggs and young chicks, with prices for March and April hatched rocks at around $15 per hundred with Leghorns in line.

Huron—Heavy snow covering of past ten days has been an excellent protection for fall wheat and clovers and very little injury has been noticed so far. Not a great deal of activity at present time in marketing of fat cattle. Hogs bringing $4.50 cwt.; cattle 4 - 5c for best.

Lambton—No winter damage done to fall wheat and clover. From this season on until spring seeding is completed is when we have greatest amount of damage to fall wheat.

Lincoln—Seeding seems to be as far away as it was two or three weeks ago as far as frost in the ground is concerned. The vegetable growers are getting potatoes sprouted in green houses or specially constructed rooms and supplies of clover and alfalfa seed are being secured by the grain farmers.

Norfolk—Strawberry acreage of Norfolk is 25 per cent greater than 1931 and plants are wintering well.

Peel—Heavy snowstorm on Mar. 21, boon to fall wheat, seedlings and strawberries. Farmers busy hauling manure to fields and bringing wood from woodlot to house for splitting in spare time. Sideroads blocked, north and south roads open. Majority of dairymen have their 1932 supply of ice safely housed, ice varying from 7 to 12 inches in thickness. Three dairy barn meetings held during past three days, over 30 farmers per meeting. Judging demonstration, T.B., blood and cow testing were discussed. Marketing course held in fruit and vegetable district of Peel at Cooksville on March 22, brought out full representation of growers in spite of inclemency of weather. Practically all farmers filled crop registration forms for use of Ontario Growers' Markets Council with view of putting buyers in touch with growers of high quality produce.

Peterborough—Demand for baby chicks fairly good. Number of breeder hatcheries sold out until well on in May.

Prescott and Russell—It is hoped that heavy snow will prevent further damage by heaving.

Pr. Edward—Two carloads of springers sold to Vermont buyer this week. Many cattle thin. Due to low prices of dairy products all winter. Not profitable to feed grain. Butterfat doubled in price in past week. Local creameries offering 24c for churning cream now.

Sudbury—Many farmers will purchase oats and barley on account of poor quality of last year's crop.

Planning the Outdoor Living-Room

In place of an open rear yard, within the view of every one, one should have a private outdoor living room. Here one can enjoy the sunshine and work among shrubbery and gay flowers out of the sight of prying eyes. Let the turf provide a green carpet, plant beautiful trees, shrubs and evergreens to make the walls which set the room apart and screen it from the view.

Hardy flowers can be planted along the borders to provide fragrance and color. A few trees can provide comfortable shade and fruit. Altogether one will have a room as delightful as anyone could dream—a room which will give countless hours of enjoyment and satisfaction.

Plan an outdoor living room on to the living rooms.
the sunny side of the home if possible, and have it easily accessible

The Outdoor Living Room May be Either Formal or Informal.

The informal living room can be described as a little park where there would be no definite, regular shape or pattern followed. If one prefers this type, the centre is left open as shown in the accompanying illustration. Boundary planting can be arranged along graceful, curving lines. The planting may vary in height to gain that feeling of freedom and organized irregularity so charming in the informal treatment.

Informal Type.

Formal Type.

When the area available for an outdoor living room is small, a formal treatment is often desirable. Such an area might well be developed adjacent to the living room and sun porch making the boundaries an extension of the house lines.

Whether one lives in the city, in the suburbs or on the farm there is usually much which is unpleasant to look upon. All unattractive views can be painted out with plants. One can hank a picture of one's own making in front of unsightly objects. Pyramidal trees can be planted to shut out building close by. Tall vines can be planted to scramble over fences, up telephone poles and completely cover garages. Evergreens can be used effectively to curtain any unpleasant object 12 months out of the year. It is as sensible to screen unsightly views as to curtain the windows of the house.

Fruits for the City Plot

Very few people living in the city suburbs or in small towns have sufficient space to raise all of the fruit that an average family can use This is not true of the farmer. As space is at a premium with a city man, he may prefer to grow only a few varieties of favorites. The person living on the farm can set aside enough space to grow all of the different varieties of fruits, which are necessary to give a continuous supply sufficient in quantity for the average family.

A Hint for the City Man

The city man may have to tuck in his strawberry plants in front of and underneath the grapevine and thus gets two crops out of the same space.

Strawberries will be followed by the earliest cherries and by currants, raspberries and gooseberries. Fifty bushes of each of the two best sorts of currants, one hundred each of two varieties of raspberries and twenty-five bushes of some good gooseberry will, if well cultivated, furnish an abundant supply. One dozen cherry trees will be enough. One hundred bushes of the blackberry will supply two quarts a day for some weeks toward the close of summer.

Fruits for the Main Crop

Apricots, peaches, early apples and a few of the earliest plums will bring on the season of abundance which, with the later varieties of these fruits, will last nearly until winter. Winter apples and pears, if placed in a cool fruit room or cellar in the fall, will often last until the commencement of the new supply of strawberries.

To obtain this supply there should be five or six apricot trees, the same number of peach trees, ten or twenty of plum, ten or fifteen of summer and autumn pears and as many more of winter varieties, the same number of summer and autumn apples, and from twenty-five to fifty trees of winter apples. Forty or fifty well-managed grapevines will contribute materially to the variety and excellence of the supply of fruit. One hundred grapevines, in a well-cultivated vineyard, will be sufficient to furnish all the fresh grapes wanted by a large family through the autumn and winter months.

Space Required for Complete Fruit Garden

The extent of ground required will be about ten or twelve square rods for the different summer fruits, and an acre and a half or two acres for all the others except the winter apples. The early or summer apples might be placed in between the winter apples as fillers, as these are less permanent trees.

Sharp Pains In His Heart Nerves In Bad Condition

Mr. Fred J. Chase, Thomson Station, N.S., writes:—"I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills with wonderful results.

My heart would beat so fast I would have to sit down when at work chopping in the woods.

I had sharp pains in my heart when I would lie down at night.

My nerves were also in a very bad condition, but after using two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel just fine, and am fourteen pounds heavier than I have been for years."

CANADA'S NATIONAL DEBT IS INCREASED BY $119,500,000 HON. E. N. RHODES ANNOUNCES considerable threat to our credit abroad.

Dollar Depreciates

Mr. Rhodes continued: Following the decline in sterling, the Canadian dollar showed continual depreciation until the low was reached on Dec. 16 when the discount was 24¾ per cent. It was realized that, notwithstanding the high credit position of Canada, any effort to stabilize exchange at par with gold could not, under conditions then existing, be successful. Our policy was therefore directed to accomplishing two results: First, to ensure the prompt payment of all obligations due abroad according to contract and, second, to assist in maintaining normal currency and credit conditions within Canada.

On the 14th of September, the Government commenced buying the gold production of the larger Canadian mines, on a basis approximate to the value of New York funds. This gold has been used to meet obligations in New York, and has been sufficient to keep the Dominion out of the exchange market, and at times to provide external gold funds for the National Railways and Provinces. From the viewpoint of Canadian commerce, the policy was generally advantageous.

Internal Situation.

With respect to the internal situation, the needs of industry, of crop-marketing agencies, and of public bodies harassed by falling revenues, made it obligatory that credit facilities in Canada continue to operate smoothly and at reasonable cost to borrowers. Also it was imperative that there be no flight from the Canadian dollar through fear of inflation. This could be accomplished only by maintaining domestic confidence and by preserving a reservoir of credit which could be drawn upon to meet any external crisis. It was successfully accomplished under a policy authorized by the Order-in-Council of October 19th, which, while maintaining the redemption rights under the Dominion Notes Act, permitted the export of gold only under license issuable by the Minister of Finance to chartered banks. On the 19th of October, the note issue, including those issued under the Finance Act, was $144,468,571, and the gold holdings represented over 43 per cent. of the face value of the issue. On the 19th of March, 1932 the note issue, including those issued under the Finance Act, was $149,896,193; the gold holdings represented over 45 per cent.

The number of licenses issued to March 1st was 182, representing gold to the value of $28,969,563. Of this amount $19,839, 286 was on the dominion's account, being gold purchased from the mines; the balance was the property of miners, banks and individuals who deal in gold.

Canada Pays Promptly

Well may Canadians look back with satisfaction over what has been accomplished. All external debts have been met on the due dates. The $73,000,000 principal amount of external debts, payable by the public bodies of Canada and maturing before March 31st, was provided for partly by repayment and partly by renewal, but at this date only $33,000,000 of the original amount is represented by debt owing abroad, and this balance is so arranged that orderly redemption can be carried out without embarrassment. The holders of Canadian securities with obligations for external payment have received their 80 millions of interest as it became due.

This accomplishment, together with the strength of our banking system and stability of our financial institutions generally, has contributed greatly to the return of confidence, as exhibited in the improvement of the Canadian dollar in the exchange market, and in the higher quotations for Canadian public securities.

Financial Situations

The finance minister then turned directly to the financial situation. He dealt first with revenues for the fiscal year 1931-32, which ended on March 31 last. In common with all other countries, Canada had experienced a marked decline in taxation revenues. Of the major sources, the income tax alone had brought in approximately the sum estimated. Income tax had yielded approximately $61,000,000 even. Customs receipts had fallen to $102,800,000 as compared with $131,209,000 in the fiscal year 1930-31. Total receipts from taxes would be $273,300,000 as against $296,276,000 in 1930-31. A table read by the minister showed that revenue from excise duties for the past fiscal year would be $48,688,000 as against $57,747,000 in 1930-31; and that revenue from sales tax would show an increase from $29,784,000 in 1930-31 to $41,271,000 in the year just closed. Sales tax receipts consequently were almost doubled. The minister's table also indicated an increase of approximately $5,000,000 in the returns from stamps and transportation taxes, the total amount collected last year being $18,098,000.

Public Service Revenues

Public service revenues were then dealt with by the minister. Collections from the various public services, he said, it is estimated, will total $54,000,000. Post office, which is the major contributor under this head, will show an increase of $1,500,000 due to the raise in postage stamps may now be used for certain excise stamp taxes. The post office revenues are estimated at $31,748,000, as against expenditures estimated at $34,550,000. This does not include disbursements made by other departments on account of post office, nor does it, on the other hand, give any credit for handling the mail of the various branches of the public service free of charge.

Interest on investments, being payments from harbour commissions, boards, etc., financed by way of loans from the Dominion, and including the regular payments by Roumania on its loan, it is estimated will total $10,000,000. In this is included the interest paid by the chartered banks for advances under the finance act, which it is estimated will amount to $360,247, as compared with $539,984 last year.

Revenue Summary

The following brief summary of all revenues received in comparison with the four previous fiscal years was given by Mr Rhodes:

	1927-28	1928-29	1929-30	1930-31	Estimated 1931-32
Receipts from taxation	$361,706,000	$395,921,000	$378,551,000	$296,276,000	$273,348,000
Non-tax revenues	58,012,000	59,543,000	62,860,000	53,311,000	54,371,000
Consolidated Fund receipts	$422,718,000	$455,464,000	$441,411,000	$349,587,000	$327,719,000
Special receipts	7,129,000	5,476,000	4,771,003	5,622,000	7,022,000
	$429,847,000	$460,940,000	$446,182,000	$356,209,000	$334,741,000

Reviews Expenditures

The Minister then turned to a review of the ordinary expenditures of Canada for 1931-32. He said:

The ordinary expenditures for the year are placed at $378,700,000, which is approximately $19,000,000 less than was estimated. The expenditures on services for which provision is made annually by vote actually were $35,000,000 less than the amounts authorized by Parliament. On the other hand, certain statutory expenditures, such as subsidies to Provinces, Old Age Pensions and exchange, exceeded the estimate by $6,000,000.

Over $3,635,000 was in connection with exchange, mainly the premium on gold purchased from the mines. This expenditure was largely offset on the revenue side by credits totalling $2,248,000, resulting from the sale of New York exchange and the discount on sterling purchased to meet London requirements. A further credit of $506,000 was realized in the purchase below par of sterling securities for sinking funds, which made a net expense for the year on premium, discount and exchange of $881,000.

Capital Expenditures

The amount voted for capital expenditures for 1931-32, proceeded Mr. Rhodes, was $18,861,000. Of this sum it was estimated $16,975,000 had been spent during the year. This was appreciably smaller than in the preceding fiscal year when expenditures on capital account were: $28,200,000. The principal items of expenditure were::—

Hudson Bay Railway, $5,215,000; Welland Canal, $2,940,000; St. Lawrence River channel dredging, $4,200,000, and the Research building at Ottawa, $1,700,000.

The Government had been forced to make certain special expenditures and with respect to these, Mr. Rhodes made the following reference:

It is estimated that special expenditures will amount to $55,100,000, as compared with $16,789,000 on this account in the previous year. The chief items are wheat bonus and unemployment relief.

The wheat bonus will cost $11,000,000 as compared with the estimate made originally of $7,000,000, the increase being due to the fact that the crop proved to be greater than was anticipated.

Unemployment, Farm Relief.

Turning to expenditures under the Unemployment and Farm Relief Act, the Minister presented tables showing the expenditure by provinces and indicating the share of the Dominion, the provinces and the municipalities. The table dealing with the provinces was as follows:

Province.	Total Works.	Dominion Share.	Provincial, Municipal Share.
Prince Edward Island	$ 272,250	$ 125,000	$ 147,250
Nova Scotia	2,546,869	999,923	1,546,946
New Brunswick	1,911,870	749,692	1,162,178
Quebec	14,612,975	4,643,808	9,969,167
Ontario	27,889,177	8,790,833	19,078,344
Manitoba	6,565,495	2,931,897	3,633,598
Saskatchewan	5,519,843	2,759,922	2,759,921
Alberta	5,171,225	2,585,612	2,585,613
British Columbia	5,999,971	2,999,986	2,999,985
Total	$70,469,675	$26,586,763	$43,882,912

For direct relief, the Minister continued, the Federal contribution chargeable to the 1931-32 accounts is estimated at $8,957,000, the major part of which applies to the drought areas in Saskatchewan.

To sum up, these special expenditures for unemployment and farm relief in the fiscal year 1931-32 will be $13,250,000 under the legislation 1930, and [illegible] under the legislation of 1931, a total of $38,250,000, and the balance of commitments to be carried over into the next year will be $16,000,000. [illegible] provision for direct relief beyond the actual disbursements mentioned above. The latter requirements are difficult to estimate as they are governed by the exigencies of the situation in the different provinces and it requires a considerable period after the actual relief payments are made for the accounts for the Dominion's share to reach Ottawa.

Loans to Provinces.

Having dealt with expenditures for unemployment and farm relief, it may be appropriate, while on the subject, to refer to further assistance rendered to Provincial Governments by way of loans. It is a matter of common knowledge that for some months various provincial bodies have been unable to issue securities on the New York market, where they have had obligations falling due. In order to protect the credit of Canada as a whole, temporary assistance was given to certain of the provinces in meeting their obligations, but in no instance did the Government undertake the role of banker with respect to the redemption of maturing provincial debts in New York until it was satisfied that every other avenue had been diligently explored by the province without success. The sums advanced under this head total $11,673,190. In addition to this amount $10,794 000 was loaned for internal purposes, including provincial share of relief works. In these instances the Government's assistance was given as a part of its relief program on the urgent representations of the provinces that in existing circumstances their commitments could not be fulfilled without such aid from the Dominion. As security the Dominion holds one-year Treasury bills of the provinces and the rate of interest charged is that which the Dominion had to pay for the money.

Including loans and expenditure, Dominion disbursements on account of unemployment relief and assistance to the provinces would total $60 681 923, the Minister told the House.

Summary of Expenditures

The Minister presented the following comparative summary of all expenditures:—

	1927-28	1928-29	1929-30	1930-31	Estimated 1931-32
Ordinary Expenditure	$336 168.000	$350,953.000	$357,780,000	$389,558.000	$378,743.000
Capital	20.636,000	22,809.000	22,561.000	28,222,000	16.975.000
Special	3,556,000	2,187,000	9,839,000	16,789,000	55,138.000
Loans and Advances, non-active	18.494.000	13,646,000	8,262,000	5,488,000	3.390.000
	$378.864,000	$389.595,000	$398,442,000	$440,057,000	$454.246.000

Dominion Borrowings

The borrowings of the Dominion were then dealt with by Mr. Rhodes. He referred first to the 1931 Conversion Loan. Final figures of the loans eligible for conversion and the amount actually converted were given to the house. The total amount outstanding on May 1, 1931, was $1,084,823,350. The total amount converted was $686,602,300.

While the conversion had no immediate effect on the annual interest charges, the Government will benefit substantially within the next few years by reason of the lower interest rates obtained, said the Minister. This is indicated by the following statement:

Fiscal Year.	Saving in interest.
1932-3	$193,128
1933-34	568,360
1934-35	3,335,241
1935-36, and annually thereafter	6.192,984

The national service loan was referred to by Mr. Rhodes. The offering had been $150,000,000 and the amount was substantially over-subscribed. The accepted over-subscriptions, he said, totalled $71,198-200 bringing the total issue up to $221,198,200. Mr. Rhodes mentioned that the total number of subscriptions was 109,000, indicating that the loan was widely distributed.

While the banks made application for $30,000 000, commented the Minister, the Government took the view that it was in the national interest to give the preference to small investors; therefore, when subscriptions far exceeded the $150,000,000 offering the banks were asked to withdraw their applications.

Railway Statement Brief.

By reason of the railway situation being under review by a Royal Commission, the Minister confined his remarks on the Canadian National Railway to a brief statement. The total financial provision which the Government was required to make, either directly or indirectly, for the system in 1931 was $108 976,265. He then presented the following statement:

Railways, excluding Eastern lines	$52 255.676
Deficit, Eastern lines	8.712.762
Total deficit	$ 60 968,438
Capital expenditures, including new equipment	33 990.103
Debt retirement	9,791,691
Discount on securities issued	4 226 030
	$108 976,265

Of these requirements, the minister proceeded, $41,282,899 are being furnished by way of advances by the government out of the proceeds of the national service loan and temporary borrowings in New York. Deficits on the eastern lines amounting to $8,712,762 have, in accordance with the provisions of the Maritime freight rates act been paid as an expense of the government and are included in the statement of the expenditures. The balance of the requirements, namely $58,890,604, including discount, was provided from the proceeds of Canadian National Railway bonds guaranteed by the government.

Government Advances

Mr. Rhodes continued:

The advances made by the government stand as to $29,910,400.85 under authority of the Canadian National Railways financing and guarantee acts of 1931, and as to $11,372,498.86 under the supplementary legislation recently passed by parliament to provide for expenditures up to the end of 1931 in excess of amounts authorized for such purposes.

These advances have been made from the treasury under legislation which anticipates repayment through the sale of securities guaranteed by the government. It may, of ecurse, transpire that such repayment will not be practicable and that the company will find it is unable to assume carrying charges on this debt. It has not been considered advisable, however, to take these advances into our accounts as expenditures pending the determination of policy with reference to the future financing of the company after the report of the Royal Commission on Railways has been received and considered.

Harbor Commissions.

Turning to harbor commissions the Minister declared that these advances totalled $14,148,540 for the past fiscal year. The chief expenditure, he declared, amounting to approximately $5,600,000 was made in Saint John, N.B., where a reconstruction program was necessary on account of the disastrous fire which occurred there. In giving the House the following table of advances to harbor commissions, Mr. Rhodes observed that the balance of the expenditure consisted mainly of commitments in connection with the completion of development programs undertaken prior to 1930.

	Advances 1931-32	Advances To Date
Chicoutimi	$ 465,000	$ 2.626.000
Halifax	2.752.000	7.593,000
Montreal Harbor	1.412.000	57,389,000
Montreal Bridge (Deficit)	534,000	704,000
New Westminster	170.685	170 685
Quebec	1.495.000	25.924.995
St. John	5,763.855	9,170.855
Three Rivers	747.000	2.426.600
Vancouver	909,000	21,416.900
	$1,148,540	$127,422.035

The Quebec Commission, he went on, does not pay any interest, and consequently its loans are treated as non-active assets. This also applies to the advances made to enable the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal to meet the deficit on the harbor bridge. The other loans have paid interest and are carried as active assets, although it may be observed that some adjustments may prove necessary in this respect in the near future.

Farm Loan Board.

Directing attention to the Canadian Farm Loan Board, the Minister stated that these loaning operations were again financed from the Dominion Treasury by the purchase of $1,500,000 of the board's five per cent. bonds at par. In addition, $107,603 was paid for capital stock of the board in accordance with the Farm Loan Act. The total capital furnished by the Dominion Government, he proceeded, for the board's operations since its inception amounted to $7,216,465, as follows:

Initial capital	$5.050.000
Purchase of bonds	1 800.000
Purchase of capital stock	366.465
	$7.216.465

Marketing Guarantees.

Wheat marketing guarantees then engaged the attention of the Minister.

Under the authority of Section 3 of Chapter 58, statutes of 1931, Orders-in-Council concerning the marketing of the Western grain crops were made, he observed. The House will recall the problems which the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd., faced in financing its operations in connection with the 1930 crop. The Government, believing that it was in the national interest to protect the credit of the marketing agencies in such a way that the grain might be marketed to the general advantage of growers, had given an undertaking to the seven chartered banks concerned, which then made available the necessary credits. The undertaking was given status by Order-in-Council P.C. 2238, dated September 12, 1931. This undertaking has served its purpose, and without cost to the Treasury. Based upon present market prices, the expectation is that, when all accounts are settled, the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd., will be able to settle all advances without recourse being had to the Dominion's guarantee.

Perious Position

Mr. Rhodes went on:

With respect to the 1931 crop, the three semi-public marketing agencies in the Prairie Provinces found their position a perilous one at the commencement of the marketing season. The assets usually pledged against bank credits were already encumbered, thus restricting the credit available. Representations on their behalf were made to the Dominion Government by the Premiers of the three Provincial Governments conberned, and, as a result, an Order-in-Council was passed on the 12th of September, 1931, authorizing Dominion guarantee of credits under certain conditions to the Manitoba Pool Elevators Ltd.; Saskatchewan Pool Elevators, Ltd., and Alberta Pool Elevators, Ltd., calculated against their respective working capital at the commencement of the 1931 marketing season.

However, the certificates of the chartered accounts directed to establish the amount of working capital showed that the proposed basis would not be a satisfactory one, and, therefore, a subsequent Order-in-Council was issued establishing specific amounts which the Dominion would guarantee under certain conditions.

The amounts were: Manitoba Pool $1,250,000; Saskatchewan Pool, $12,000,000; Alberta Pool, $7,500,000.

GOT PICTURE, THEN GIRL.

When an American university band toured Holland during the summer of 1931 a young Hollander, A. L. van Assenderp (above), looked through the college's year book, which contained a picture of Miss Carol Johnson (above) of Louisiana, who had, in the spring, been selected as the most beautiful girl in the group by Gary Cooper, the film star. The young man promptly fell in love with the girl, and he fell so hard he journeyed to Ablene, Texas, to visit her. His affection transferred from picture to girl. She responded to his ardent love until now, on April 13, Miss Johnson will sail for Holland where they will be married.

A novelty dotted crepe silk in blue and white with the yoke of plain white crepe is youthfully smart as its inspirator.

You couldn't ask for anything more simple to fashion. The bodice is in two sections. The yoke forms dropped shoulders. The skirt is gored and slightly circular. It is attached to the bodice.

It's a model that adapts itself splendidly to summer fabrics, as the lacy cotton meshes, linen, pique and tub silks.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I think nearly every housewife in Peterborough has realized that not since the times of the Great War has there been more necessity for the homemaker to be thrifty.

* * * * * * *

It is true that prices of commodities have gone in a most satisfactory way for the majority of people, but even so, it is up to the housewife to see to it that every bit of value is obtained through her management.

* * * * * * *

Fortunately there are signs of relief and murmurs of this are in the air. But unless the homemaker keeps the thrift plan working, she will not get the full benefit of the better times which are in store.

* * * * * * *

Let waste be banished from the home as it is in business concerns.

* * * * * * *

It is amazing the profits which accrue to these concerns from what are termed by products, that is the things which are accessory products of some specific work.

* * * * * * *

In the same way women should consider the by-products of home processes and materials. A glance at some of these by-products will be illuminating.

* * * * * * *

They will not prove of great moment, as in manufacturing concerns, but they were made the most of with real profit by our ancestors especially in settler and pioneer days.

* * * * * * *

Quilts are a by-product when they are fashioned from garments so worn that they can no longer serve as apparel. The strong portions of the garments only should be made into quilts. It is wasting time to sew pieces of tender textiles together.

* * * * * * *

They will not be durable enough to reward the effort. The strong portions repay this usage in supplying attractive bed coverings, pillows, chair seats, etc., which are genuinely decorative.

* * * * * * *

Rugs prove a satisfying by-product. Into these can go the smallest bits of garments such as would serve no purpose in patchwork. But they do not need to be made of these odds and ends merely.

* * * * * * *

It is profitable to use all the cloth of discarded garments, and any old textiles in the making of floor coverings. The number of crafts that can serve in the making of rugs is surprising.

* * * * * * *

A handsome knit or crocheted rug can turn old things into new in the form of floor coverings which may be sorely needed to cover poor floors, or soften the tread or even to "dress up" the floors.

* * * * * * *

Soap is another by-product of the kitchen. It is easy to make and takes no great amount of time. It will change an accumulation of fat into soap for either kitchen scrubbing, dishes or the hands.

* * * * * * *

NANCE O'NEIL. Who would dream, looking at this photograph taken in 1930, that she is over 45! "Stage and screen stars cherish complexion beauty," she says. "It's youth that wins hearts!"

"I'm over 45!" SAYS NANCE O'NEIL

Famous stage and screen star tells the secret of keeping Youthful Charm

"I'M over 45—you see I admit so much," says Nance O'Neil. "Perhaps I should admit more, but it is said that a woman is as old as she looks, and a man as old as he feels.

"For my part, I don't think anyone, especially women, should tag themselves with dates, and I believe the world in general would be happier and better if birthdays were never recorded, for as time goes on it cannot but bring with it a sense of limitation from which I am sure we all want to be free.

"Constructive thought and care of the skin are certainly two things that always help one to escape the marks of time.

"Any woman who knows how to keep her complexion youthful can be charming at any age!

"Stage and screen stars know that a skin softly smooth and aglow always has appeal. Several years ago, I discovered that regular care with Lux Toilet Soap would do wonders for my skin, and now I am among the scores of stage and screen stars who use it regularly."

Of the 613 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 605 agree with this beautiful star! So regularly do they use this fragrant white soap to guard complexion beauty, it has been made official in all the great film studios.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

GETTING A GOOD COMPLEXION.

That a great many people like to have a clear skin is evident from the millions of dollars that are spent every year on all manner of skin preparations.

Now there is no question but that, like any other part of the body, the skin is worth spending money on, because having a good skin helps us inwardly and outwardly.

However, what is forgotten by many is that the skin is not just a covering that can be treated; enamelled or painted to keep its health; it is just as much a part of the body, the whole body, as is the heart or stomach.

Notwithstanding that the liver is the king of organs because of its many important uses in the body, and notwithstanding the fact that it contains one quarter of the blood, the skin is capable of holding two-thirds of the blood such is the tremendous number of blood vessels in it.

Therefore, in attaining or retaining a good skin these blood vessels must be taken into consideration, as they bring food to and remove waste from the skin, just as blood-vessels bring food and remove waste from all other parts of the body.

In other words, while the body of a motor-car may look beautiful, it may have a poor engine inside (in fact, may have no engine inside), the skin, the 'covering' or outside part of your body is connected with the engine and all the works inside the body. And it is these inside workings how the liver, intestine, stomach, heart, lungs, kidneys, glands, and so forth, do their work, that determine the health of your skin.

Should certain glands not do their work, pimples appear if the liver is sluggish a yellow tint can be noticed in the skin: certain foods make the skin rough; constipation often gives a 'gray' color to the skin.

The very simple things that keep the body as a whole healthy are exactly the same as keep the skin clear and healthy—common sense food and eating; the right amount of sleep, not too much or too little; sunlight and fresh air; enough outdoor exercise to burn up waste and give a good circulation of blood so that food can go to, and wastes be removed from the skin; proper bathing—warm water to loosen and cold to tighten the skin, thus preserving its elasticity.

All treatments by massage or other methods that help the circulation of the blood naturally are good for the skin.

THE BOOMERANG DOUBLE

The Takeout Double is an extremely effective means of slowing down the opposing bidding on close hands and often points the safe road to a game after opponents have opened the bidding. In view of the fact that it is made after the other side has shown strength by making an Opening bid, it must be buttressed with honor strength and should generally be reinforced with distribution, as otherwise the Takeout Doubler may be caught between two strong hands and forced to pay a tremendous ransom to secure his freedom. It is a wise course, before making any bid, to consider the possible outcome of it. Perhaps had West done so in this case, the story of today's hand would not have been written.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 9 8 5 ♡ 5 3 ◇ K J 10 8 ♣ A Q 8 5
♠ Q J 2 ♡ J 10 9 6 ◇ A Q 4 ♣ K J 2	N W E S	♠ 7 6 4 3 ♡ 8 7 4 2 ◇ 6 5 2 ♣ 7 6
	♠ A K 10 ♡ A K Q ◇ 9 7 3 ♣ 10 9 4 3

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1NT	Dbl. (1)	Rdbl. (2)	Pass (3)
Pass (4)	2NT (5)	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—West has the honor-trick strength for a sound Takeout Double, but his hand offers no escape if his partner holds the dreaded bust.

2—Closing in on the enemy. With 5-½ honor-tricks at least in the North and South hands, it appears better to North to play for penalties than for game which, of course, appears a certainty at the best declaration, which is probably notrump.

3—No rescue with this trash. Any bid by East would be misconstrued.

4—Perfectly satisfied to play for penalties, as his hand is best fitted to notrump.

5—West now realizes he is between the hammer and the anvil. He should bid two hearts, however.

In the play, West managed to make his Ace of diamonds, thus taking a penalty of 1800 points. The Takeout Double was strong enough in honor-tricks, but lacked any safe escape if his partner held a bust. It was poor consolation to West to demonstrate that North and South could make a Small Slam at notrump, as North and South had too few honor-tricks and too barren distribution ever to have reached that contract.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: Why is a value of 1 trick given to every trump over three held by Declarer, but only ½ trick given to the fourth card in a plain suit?

Answer: Because, in a declared trump, the partners hold the majority of the trumps and three rounds usually "exhaust" them, while in the plain suits the opponents will (on an average of half the time) also hold a fourth card.

THE MISTAKE OF A FAMOUS DOCTOR

Dr. Robert G. Jackson's paternal grandfather, father and eleven paternal uncles and aunts, and his own brother and sister, all died of heart disease. At 50 the great Sir Wm Osler gave the doctor himself only four months to live dying from heart disease and "general breakdown." He'd lived five years on the ground floor, unable to climb stairs. Four years after Osler gave him up he climbed the fifty storeys in Washington's Monument, up and down and was not even tired. All a result of changed living habits—chiefly a change from civilization's disease-causing acid foods to alkali-forming Roman Meal. His 438-page book, "HOW TO BE ALWAYS WELL" tells the entire story—shows how anyone may be always well, by natural means. Remit $3.00 by P.O. order for a copy, or write for descriptive literature to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 502 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont., or write for his free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL" and sample of Roman Meal and the new alkaline beverage "Kofy-sub".

Leafs Secure One Game Lead In Stanley Cup Series

HARVEY JACKSON COUNTS THREE GOALS AND ASSISTS IN FOURTH AS LEAFS DEFEAT RANGERS 6-4

Fierce New York Rally in Third Period is Held by Toronto Club.

DAY SCORES OPENER.

16,000 Fans See Rough, Rugged and Thrilling Contest in Madison Garden.

NEW YORK, April 6. — Toronto Maple Leafs, in a rugged, rough and sensational hockey battle tonight, wrested the first game of the Stanley Cup series for the world championship from New York Rangers in a free-scoring affair that wound up in a 6-4 count.

A dazzling attack, with plenty of speed and combination tossed in, sent the Leafs well to the front in the second period, and a relentless driving Ranger attack fell short in the third.

Nineteen penalties were crowded into the struggle that almost throughout kept a capacity crowd of 16,000 fans in Madison Square Garden in an uproar. Savage checking, terrific bumping, hooking and holding were all on the cards as two top-ranking teams fought it out.

Rangers' Rally Checked

The speed and sharpshooting of the Leafs as they swept to a three-goal lead in the second period were scarcely less rivalled for pure thrills and sensational plays as the Rangers fought back in the third. For almost the whole final period the pressure of the New York Rangers was terrific and the Leafs were bottled up. Their checking and the jumping and clearing exhibition of Lorne Chabot in goal turned back the torrid attack.

Harvey Jackson took over the sharpshooting role for the Leafs, the leading point-getter of the league accounting for three goals, all in the second period. 'Happy' Day and Bun Cook scored in the first and the teams moved along evenly until the Leafs' wild rampage cropped out in the second. Jackson opened it on a pass from Day, and followed it up on a pass from "Red" Horner. Completing what seemed to be a rout, Charlie Conacher smashed in a goal, but Cecil Dillon cut down the margin before the period ended.

HAPPY DAY

As unexpected as had come the sudden Leaf onslaught that swept the Rangers off their feet came the counter-attack in the third period. Four and five men attacks swept into the Leafs. There were scrambles galore, and a crazily rolling puck, picked up by swarming Rangers and rifled indiscriminately kept the Leafs floundering about. "Ching" Johnson" whistled in a goal from inside the blue line. In a desperate struggle in the goal-mouth, "Bun" Cook picked up the puck from Boucher and sent in another. From then on until the final few minutes Rangers went on a wild rampage. But the rugged checking of the Leafs, as they fought back, held off such a drive as even New York fans have seldom seen their Rangers unleash.

"Red" Horner took the steam out of the attack and settled the issue when he raced in close to take a short pass from Jackson for the final goal.

An All-Star Performance.

Every member of the Leafs played brilliant hockey. So, too, for that matter did each Ranger. Veterans and youngsters alike turned loose their best efforts in the mad struggle for first game advantage in the series for the battered old pewter cup which, intrinsically of little worth, is still the most prized award in professional hockey. Youthful Harvey Jackson led the marksmen of both teams, scoring three goals and assisting in a fourth to more than justify his position as the National Leagues' leading scorer.

Day Conspicuous.

And while he showed scintillating hockey the captain of his team, the apparently rejuvenated "Happy" Day, was conspicuous where the battling was thickest. Day lived up to the reports of his playing in Saturday's game against the Maroons at Toronto. He broke up some of Rangers' most dangerous rushes in his capacity as a defence player, and was almost as valuable offensively, breaking away for speedy sallies in which he alternately swerved aside from an opposing player or dashed headlong between a pair of stalwart Ranger defenders. His offensive efforts were rewarded early in the game when he opened the scoring and their value counted in breaking the 1-1 tie early in the second period as he passed to Jackson for Toronto's second goal.

Harold Cotton played one of the best games New York fans have seen him produce this season. The speedy wing man was in every possible play and his shooting was more dangerous than usual, Roach just saving several hard drives from the Toronto veteran's stick. Although he did not score himself, Cotton did not stay entirely off the tally sheet for he passed to Day for the opening goal.

The Cook brothers, "Bill" and "Bun," were as usual conspicuous in the Ranger play-making, while the durable "Ching" Johnson, one of the league's oldest defense players, was, like Day, effective both on defense and attack. He scored in the third minute of the last period to cut the Leaf's lead down to 5 to 3, and was unlucky on a number of other efforts. Young Ott Heller, hero of the Rangers-Canadiens series, did not produce any more of his sensational goals, but it was not for the want of trying. He played hockey that went to strengthen the opinion that the former Kitchener, Ontario, amateur, is the find of the 1931-32 season.

Olympics Down Bulldogs.

Thrilling Last Period Rally Gives Detroit Victory in Rough Game.

TORONTO, April 6. (CP)—Undefeated in their four starts, Clem Loughlin's well-balanced London Tecumsehs are to-day heading the International Hockey League's round-robin championship series. A timely 1-0 triumph over Buffalo's highly-touted Bisons last night coupled with Windsor's unexpected setback at hands of Detroit Olympics shifted Tecumsehs into the driver's seat a single point in the van of Detroit and Buffalo who are tied for second place. Windsor bring up the rear one point behind the American squads.

The stellar work of Goalie Herb Stuart, who performed sensationally in a pair of scoreless draws draws with Detroit last week, was again the feature of the London entry remaining undefeated. An alternate defenceman, Val Hoffinger, released by Detroit early in the season, shared the spoils with Stuart in Tecumsehs' win.

With less than five minutes remaining to play in the final period, and their third scoreless draw within six days in sight, Hoffinger sailed up the boards on an apparently little dangerous rush. Edged into the corner by the rugged Bison defence, the bulky rearguardsman back-handed a shot toward the Buffalo cage and the rubber barely dribbled over the line.

Score 4 Goals in Third

Fighting with their backs to the wall and possible elimination if they failed to win from Bulldogs, Detroit batted home four goals in a wild third period scoring splurge and trounced their border rivals, 4-2, in Windsor.

Grabbing a goal lead early in the initial period, Windsor appeared headed for their second victory of the series when they added a second counter early in the final period. Olympics, however, led by plucky Leroy Goldsworthy, proved they were far from beaten and rammed home four goals in the final 15 minutes to win handily.

Batstone Vacates Post At Queen's U.

KINGSTON, April 6. — Queen's University will this summer lose its great football general, Harry Lee Batstone of Toronto, who has been player and coach for the past nine years. Batstone is going to Toronto to accept a position in a hospital.

The Athletic Board of Control of Queen's is endeavoring to secure a coach who will fill the vacancy, and it may be some weeks before an announcement will be made. The new mentor of the Tricolor will have a difficult task on his hands, as ten members of the senior squad of last year will graduate this spring, and their places will be hard to fill. Those who will graduate are: Reist (flying wing), Gilmore (halfback), Caldwell (quarter), Simmons (snap), Walker (inside wing), Stuart (middle wing), Dediana (outside wing), Elliott (halfback), Hallett (outside wing). In addition the Tricolor will not be able to use "Spud" Murphy, who was a regular at inside wing last year.

REDS BLANK BOSTON CUBS

Providence Takes Commanding Lead in "Can-Am" Final Series.

FINAL COUNT 2-0.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 6. — A well-earned 2-0 victory over the Boston Bruin Cubs at the Auditorium here last night gave the Rhode Island Reds a commanding lead in the three-out-of-five game series for the Henri Fontaine Cup, emblematical of the Canadian-American League Hockey championship. The Reds won the first game at Boston Saturday. The teams play here again Thursday night, and the fourth game if necessary, will be played at Boston on Saturday.

The season's largest crowd, 5,900 fans packed the Auditorium to watch the game. The Reds scored both their goals in the third period, with Art Giroux, right winger, from Alberta, tallying one, and Gerald Carson, veteran defenseman, making the other.

The Reds' superior speed continued to be very much in evidence tonight, and it was this, coupled with their excellent defensive work, that slowed up the Cubs almost to a walk at times. The Boston outfit never did really get under way with the brilliant attack which earned it its second-place position in the league season battle.

Eddie Burke, the blond captain of the Cubs, was not in the best of shape and his sterling work was missing on the right flank of the first Boston line.

The Reds attacked brilliantly throughout the first period, giving Percy Jackson 14 stops, while Beveridge was handling but 6. During the second period, the Cubs had a slight advantage, as the Reds played extremely cautiously when they were short-handed twice. Beveridge made eight stops and Jackson seven.

MOVE STARTED FOR DOMINION WIDE INTERMEDIATE PLAY-OFF

Recommendation to Reduce Overtime Play-off Period Thrown Out at C.A.H.A. Meeting.

REFEREE RULING.

MONTREAL, April 6—Next season amateur teams throughout Canada will be permitted to pass the puck forward in every area of the ice surface except between the opposing team's blue line and goal line as a result of evolutionary steps in the Canadian amateur code being approved by delegates at yesterday's session of the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association here. The delegates gave their approval to a series of recommendations made by the rules committee, under the chairmanship of A. E. Gilroy of Portage la Prairie, Man., second vice-president of the C.A.H.A.

Forward passes across the attacking team's blue line will not be allowed, although a player will be permitted to follow a pass across his blue line and pick it up in the centre ice area.

It will be necessary for the puck-carrier to cross the defending team's blue line first, however, and no forward passing will be allowed in the defending team's defence area. For the assistance of referees, the meeting went on record as interpreting this rule to mean that it would not be possible to skate a player onside in the defending defence area.

Another Referee's Decision.

It will be the referee's duty to decide whether the puck-carrier, after passing the puck inside the defending team's blue line, is interfering with the play.

The potential receivers of a pass will be allowed to be body-checked in the defending team's defence area.

The rules were also amended to allow kicking the puck up to the defending team's blue line and across the attacking team's blue line. A move to eliminate ragging the puck was also incorporated in the code. It was decided that the puck must always be carried forward except if prevented from being done so by the opposing team. A team will only be permitted its own net once before carrying the puck into the centre ice area. The penalty for infraction of this rule will be a faceoff ten feet in front of the goal.

A rule was introduced to prevent shooting the puck up the ice, but it was not considered by the rules committee. A recommendation to establish a crease in front of the goal inside which shots could not be taken was also thrown out.

Overtime Stands.

The committee also threw out a recommendation to reduce the three ten-minutes' overtime periods now played in case of a tie to twenty minutes of overtime.

The meeting agreed that it would be permissible to use what is described as a counter-balance stick—one containing a lead weight in the handle to counter-balance the lightening of the blade.

The addition of players to the Canadian Olympic team and the formation of an intermediate playdown series for the four Western provinces were authorized at yesterday's session. The delegates reaffirmed the C.A.H.A. method of selecting the Canadian Olympic team, the Allan Cup winners of the year previous to the Olympic games, and gave the C.A.H.A., in conjunction with its branches, the authority to add players to the Allan Cup winners. It was felt, however, that an all-star team made up of players from all parts of Canada was not feasible.

With regard to the establishment of an intermediate playdown series for Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, the C.A.H.A. decided to lend financial assistance to the series which will be an experiment next year that may lead to a Dominion intermediate championship. With the formation of this series the intermediates of the West will forfeit the right to challenge the seniors and as a result the right to compete in Allan Cup playdowns. The amount that the C.A.H.A. will grant the series was referred to the finance committee, but it was suggested that it be $1,000. The four branches will share the expected deficit with the C.A.H.A. grant also going to help cover the deficit.

ART HUNTER IN HEADLINER

Popular Local Scrapper Meets Art Angell in Foster Club Show.

FIVE 2-MINUTE ROUNDS.

The main bout on to-night's Foster Club boxing card at the Legion Hall will be five two-minute rounds, instead of the usual three three-minute ones. Permission from the Amateur Union was received yesterday with the stipulation that a decision must be given at the end of the fifth round. Art Hunter will meet Art Angell, Belleville featherweight, in the headliner and with the length of the rounds shortened, the whole five should be packed with action.

Fred Beare, a shifty, hard-hitting middleweight from the Quinte City, has been obtained for Bill Hope in the semi-final. Jimmie Dugan is paired off with another good Belleville lightweight, George Semark; while Jack Gardner takes on the flashy welter phantom from Belleville, Scotty Kline. The ten-minute, one-fall, wrestling exhibition is between Jack Gardner and Mic McGee. Harry Hance will referee all bouts.

The curtain-raiser features two scrappy 85-pounders, "Irish" Jordan III and Joe DeNoble; followed by Chink Walh and Tommy Heffernan, free-swing flyweights. Jack Peel faces Sid Bennett, both feathers, and hopes to outbox the boring-in Sid. Another middleweight fight that should be exciting is that between Maurice Caccavella and Hank Smith. They scale around 150 pounds and hit hard and often, both being able to take it. In the last Foster Club show, Caccavella figured in the best bout of the evening, a slam-bang one that had the place in an uproar.

All the mittsers, both local and visiting, are in perfect condition and will likely show plenty of action. Two experienced judges will be selected to-day, and a fourth round ordered when the boxers are tied on points at the end of the third. Harry Robinson, Belleville instructor, sends word his boys are in much better shape than in their previous appearance here and hope to win their bouts. The Peterborough scrappers are equally confident. The show is scheduled to start at 8.30 o'clock.

The leather-pushers have their inning this evening at 8.30 up at the Legion Hall, with eight promising-looking bouts lined up as well as a ten-minute grappling exhibition between Mick McGee and Jack Gardner. With the Eastern Ontario boxing champions billed for Toronto next week, several of the boys, both local and Belleville, will work their heads off for a win as they may take a try at the big stuff. With Bill Hope being paired off against Fred Beare, Quinte City middleweight, the card is now complete and the program appears elsewhere in to-night's paper. We expect a big crowd of fight fans will take in the show, and they won't be all of the so-called stronger sex, either.

Good news for the lacrossers: Four good City League teams are to play box lacrosse here this summer, with a strong district O.A.L.A. team being selected from them to represent Peterborough against (probably) Campbellford, Belleville and the Norwood-Havelock Combines. The local players will be evenly divided between four teams to make a well-balanced City Loop, playing at the Brock. The arena is to be fixed up shortly, flooring, screens, etc.

• • • • • • •

Some of the men who are working toward putting box lacrosse over in Peterborough this year are Jim Skinner, Rolly Glover, Charlie Cummer, Roy Wainman and Jack Creighton. The first meeting will be this week in Duffus', and officers will be elected, entries considered, plans outlined, and other business handled. Everyone interested in the new game is urged to attend at this time.

Followers of the girl cagers have their last opportunity this season of seeing them in action, and it should be worth seeing to-night at the Y.W.C.A. when the Choate Juniors tangle with Blue Petes at seven bells in the final play-off game, both teams having won once. The junior gals check and double-check like nobody's business, and provide plenty of thrills.

Your Toronto Maple Leafs stepped out and grabbed themselves the first win of the Stanley Cup Series right in New York last night, and Yank fans who like plenty of scoring should be satisfied with the 6-4 count, though the wrong team won from their standpoint. Between the second and third periods, the radio announcer read out several telegrams from Canada wishing the Leafs success, one wire being from a Peterborough fan. Next game is in Boston tomorrow evening, and then Toronto Saturday.

• • • • • • •

We hope the Toronto sportswriters get together and check up on how the many goals were scored, and not get balled up as in that last Leaf-Maroon game. The winning goal off Gracie's stick had them all guessing. Lou Marsh in the Star said it went in off Walsh's pads, Mike Rodden, of the Globe, claimed Walsh never touched it as it went in off the goal-post, and Bun Morgan in the Telegram maintained the rubber went in off Walsh's hand. They all agreed that it went in, though.

• • • • • • •

This is what the Belleville paper has to say concerning Max Swanston's resignation as manager of the Petes: "We sincerely hope that Max may be influenced to change his mind and once again take over the reins of the Peterborough ball club. We know of no player or manager ever to grace the C.O.B.L. who was more highly thought of or respected than Max, and it is with this feeling that we hope he may change his mind and lead the Petes during the 1932 season."

• • • • • • •

We feel the same way, as does the executive, but Max seems to feel that he has been at the helm long enough and wants to take a rest. At the next local meeting, the resignation will be dealt with and doubtless strong arguments will be advanced to get him to pilot the seniors once more.

• • • • • • •

President Bob Colling has had the C.O.B.L. meeting in Kingston postponed from April 9th to April 30th, at which time officers will be elected, entrance fees collected, and the deck cleared generally with all business completed preparatory to starting playing. This extension of time should result in the four teams being all organized and ready to trot out on the field.

CARL VOSS WINS SCORING HONORS

Buffalo Forward is Leading Point Getter in International League.

TORONTO, April 6.—Carl Voss, shifty centre-ice star of Buffalo Bisons, carried off the point scoring honors in the International Hockey League during the regular 1931-32 season, final statistics released by President Charles King show.

The chunky Kingston star, who will play next season with New York Rangers in the National League, garnered a total of 41 points during the regular schedule with 18 goals and 23 assists.

Lloyd Gross, shifty wing-mate of Voss, and Earl Roche, finished Windsor forward, are tied for second place one point behind the successor of Earl Robinson, who led the league last season.

Gross, with 24 goals and 16 assists, was the leading goal-scorer of the league, having bulged the twine more than Roche.

To DesaonWaite, crafty Syracuse pivot, goes the honor of leading the entire league with assists. The rangy forward, who formerly starred with Springfield in the Canadian-American League, finished the season with 26 assists.

Harvey Rockburn, rugged defenseman of Detroit Olympics, was for the second year in succession, the "bad" man of the league. The bulky Ottawa star spent 149 minutes with the timekeeper during the regular schedule and finished well in front of Andy Bellemer, Windsor, who was second with 108 minutes.

Sixty-one-year old Alexander Travies has been sentenced in Glasgow, Scotland, to nine months' imprisonment for having committed bigamy the second time.

Detroit Gas Five Among The Leaders

DETROIT, April 6. (CP)—A new name appeared to-day in the big five standing of the team event in the American Bowling Congress tournament.

Scoring games of 974, 1008 and 985, the hi-speed gas five, one of Detroit's crack ten pin aggregations, moved into fourth place late last night when they hung up a 2,967 series.

One other change was recorded during the day in the minor events. Charley Walentz and Johnny Felder, Buffalo, N.Y., went into a tie for tenth place in the doubles with a total of 1,274 on games of 418, 383, and 473.

NEWCOMERS ON BEARS' ROSTER

Mamaux Has Strengthened Newark With Players From N. Y. Yankees.

WELL-BALANCED OUTFIT.

NEWARK, April 6.—The Newark Bears, edged out of the International League championship by a two-game margin last year, face the 1932 campaign with the backing of the New York Yankees. Bought by the Yankees during the winter, the Bears are now, for the first time, in a position to match strides with the Rochester Redwings. Al Mamaux has been retained as manager and Mamaux, backed by the confidence of Newark fandom and Yankee resources, has built a smart, fast, hard-hitting club.

There may be changes when Joe McCarthy decides what players the Yankees want on their squad, but the team that meets Toronto on April 13 in the International League opener will be a well-balanced outfit. Experienced campaigners and fast newcomers will appear in about equal numbers.

Mamaux heads the older group and probably will step to the mound now and then. He showed he is still able to pitch with the best of 'em when he won both games of a double-header as the Bears were fighting for first place last year. Then there are Charley Hargreaves, veteran catcher, rated the best in the league a year ago; Andy Cohen, the sparkling second baseman, who once saw service with the New York Giants, and Bill Zitzman, one of the loop's fastest base runners, in left field.

Younger, but inexperienced, are Bob Barrett, who, despite a batting average of .261 last year, has clinched the third-base job; Don Brennan, strike-out king of the league; Al Harvin, another dependable hurler, and Byron Speece, veteran relief pitcher, Johnny Neun, acquired from the Boston Braves, is a newcomer, but has the experience necessary to hold down first base. He also is a powerful hitter.

AMERICANS PICK DAVIS CUP FOUR

Vines, Shields, Van Ryan and Allison Will Oppose Canadians.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, announced yesterday that the following players had been named for the cup matches with Canada:

Francis X. Shields, singles player of 1931; John Van Ryn, member of last year's doubles pair; Wilmer Allison, who teamed with Van Ryn in 1930, and Ellsworth Vines, young national champion, the only player of the squad without previous Davis Cup experience.

It had been the intention to name George Martin Lott for a place on the team with Allison listed merely as a member of the squad. Lott, however, with a well developed flair for the unusual, announced yesterday that he had decided to "stay in this country and go to work," withdrawing from Davis Cup competition for a year at least.

Germany has officially extended its sales tax to cover imports.

PRESS OUSTED SENIOR LEAGUE

Riley and Hickey's to Meet Primeau's for Basketball Honors.

FORMER WINS 28-25.

Riley & Hickey's eliminated Examiner from the Senior City Basketball League race at the "Y" last night, nosing them out 28 to 25 in a free-scoring game. The win gives Riley & Hickey's the right to meet Primeau's in a sudden-death game next Tuesday at eight for second half honors. If Primeau's take this contest, the two teams will meet again in the finals for the city title, but if their opponents are victorious, the R. & H. squad are automatically declaredchampions having won the first half already.

Last night's playdown affair was fast and hard-fought with the teams battling on even terms all the way. They were tied at the half-way mark, 10-all, but the victors managed to outscore the printers, 18 to 15, in the final session. Fair combination and checking with good shooting on the part of both sides accounted for the high count.

Cliff Cadd, of the pressmen, was the big scorer, getting seventeen points. His teammate, Wolstenholme, got four, and Palmer and Chesler two apiece. For the clothiers, both Levine and Kitchen were the main snipers, with ten points each, while Stanger notched four and McLeod and Mott hooped the ball once each. With the players on both teams working hard and effectively, and scoring divided among most of them, no one was outstanding, though Cadd, Levine and Kitchen figured heavily in the collecting of points. The teams:

The Examiner — Wolstenholme, Smith, Cadd, Palmer and Chesler.

Riley & Hickey—Levine, Mott, Kitchen, Stanger, McLeod, Sagar and Schwartz.

Referee—Doug Loomis.

Safe On a Wild Throw

Pete Stack, backstop of Maple Leaf baseball club, who, in all probability, will start the season as the Leafs' first string catcher, is shown here trying to block Shortstop Goff of the Crackers at the plate in the second game of the series which Atlanta won 4 to 0. Goff slid under the sprightly maskman, but only because the throw home was high and wide. Stack is expected to develop into a star this year.

POSTPONE C.O.B.L. MEETING

BELLEVILLE, April 6.—Secretary Newton Thompson, of Belleville, announces that the annual baseball meeting of the C.O.B.L. will be postponed from Saturday, April 9 to April 30, in Kingston. Mr. Thompson states that after talking the situation over with President R. E. Colling they thought it would to the advantage of all clubs concerned to postpone the meeting. At the meeting all clubs will be asked to hand in their entrance fee and to finish all business pertaining to the league.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

SHADOW IS TOO BOLD.

Though lacking fear, still have a care.
Do nothing just because you dare.
—Shadow the Weasel.

When the egg had been thrown at him by Farmer Brown's Boy and had spattered with yellow his beautiful white coat, Shadow the Weasel had retired in a state of great indignation. It had taken some time to get that coat licked clean and Shadow was in a bad temper by the time he was through.

"Thinks he can keep me out of that house, does he?" he snarled. "I'll show him! I'm not afraid of him. There are Mice in there and I am going to have them. What business has he to interfere with me? He thinks that just because he is big I am afraid of him. If he had a terrible gun, I would be, but he hasn't and so I don't care a flip of my tail for him."

However, Shadow didn't venture to go back to the sugar house that day and at night when he went there he found the door closed. He waited a while and then went hunting elsewhere, for he was hungry. So it happened that he did not get back to the neighborhood of the sugar house until the following afternoon after Farmer Brown's Boy had gone off with Chatterer the Red Squirrel in the box trap he had set for Shadow. He didn't know he had Chatterer. He thought he had Shadow.

Again the door was closed and Shadow snarled angrily. Farmer Brown saw him and threw a stick at him to frighten him. It merely made Shadow more angry than ever. He retired to take a nap. When he awoke he heard voices and peeped out of his hiding place to watch Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy. The latter had just returned from deep in the Green Forest and he carried a box which finally he took into the house. A few minutes later he came out with it and set it on the ground at one side of the door.

At once Shadow was curious. He wondered what that box was for and what, if anything, was in it. The more he wondered the more his curiosity grew and the more impatient he became to investigate and find out. So no sooner was the way clear and no one in sight than he was over at that box. He went all around it without touching it. He found that it was open at one end and he didn't have to look in to know that there was a piece of fresh meat in there. His nose told him that before he could even peep in. When he did get where he could look in he at once saw that piece of meat on a stick at the back of the box.

Shadow's mouth watered as he smelled that meat. He was already hungry again despite a good meal a few hours before. It would be easy enough to take that meat off that stick and carry it away where he could eat it in peace. Now and then his nose picked up the faint human scent where Farmer Brown's Boy had handled the trap, but Shadow didn't mind this. He wasn't afraid of these two-legged creatures, so why trouble about the scent around this box.

However, he was a bit suspicious about that box with its door open so invitingly. He would try for those Mice first. If he could not get into that sugar house and catch those Mice he would come back here and take that meat. The door of the sugar house wasn't open even a crack. Shadow snarled his disappointment. Once more he went all around the sugar house looking for a hole through which he might enter. He found none. He was not disappointed, for he hadn't expected to find one. He had looked just by way of making sure that no hole had been opened since the last time he had looked.

Back at the trap he put his head well inside. He sniffed. He smelled the meat and he smelled something else. "Chatterer the Red Squirrel has been in here," he muttered. "If he was after that meat I wonder why he did not take it. Something must have frightened him away. Well, that was his hard luck and my good luck."

He boldly walked inside, reached out and set his teeth in that meat and then,—well, then that door fell behind him and he was a prisoner! The next day he was given his liberty at the rocky ledge deep in the Green Forest. He turned and spat at Farmer Brown's Boy. Then he vanished among the rocks, and that was the last that Farmer Brown's boy saw of him. He didn't reappear at the sugar house.

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to noon, from 5 p.m. to 6:15 p.m., and from 8:45 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:45 a.m. to 9 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m.

A light-hearted, irresponsible atmosphere will prevail on April 6th, and many unexpected and pleasant things are augured to happen, veritable "gifts of the gods." A fertile time in a spiritual and mental way. Attention will wander into unprofitable activities from a material standpoint.

Children born on this April 6th will have a mischievous, happy and an animated nature. Parents should try not to shape their lives according to pattern, but should give them freedom to develop their outstanding abilities. With or without parental consent they will eventually take the bit in their mouth and go their own way.

Born on April 6th, you have rather a negative and passive nature, and your personal initiative is very limited. You are always ready to let others do your thinking and to make your decisions for you. You ways believe that everybody knows better than you. It is easy for you to carry out orders, but you do not know how to give them

Bilious? Bilious, constipated? Take NR—NATURE'S REMEDY—tonight—the mild, safe, all-vegetable laxative. You'll feel fine in the morning. Promptly and pleasantly rids the system of the bowel poisons that cause headaches—25c. NR TO-NIGHT TO-MORROW ALRIGHT

The All-Vegetable Laxative

Unless you have a good pilot, you will do a lot of drifting through life. You are not by birthright an inferior being, and if you had a little more spunk and self-confidence, you could take your place with the best of them.

You do not worry much about the material things of life, and through your very indifference you attract an abundance of good things to you. You are a very generous giver, and to ask is to receive from you. Your house and all that is in it is at the disposal of your friends. You trust people too much, and will be duped many times by some one to whom you have been a helpful friend. These incidents will grieve you very much, but they will not protect you from the next one. You are truly democratic and you sympathize with the lower classes, no matter what your own status may be. You will wear your heart on your sleeve, and will love with all your heart and soul.

Another Caruso?

Another Enrico Caruso may some day sing upon the stage of the Metropolitan opera. Enrico Caruso, Jr., 28-year-old son of the famous tenor, is shown as he arrived in New York to study music. Young Caruso said the "discovery" of his voice was comparatively recent.

GORDON LAPP GUEST SPEAKER

CAVAN AND BAILIEBORO

CAVAN, Apr. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—A very interesting service was held in Cavan United Church on Sunday evening when Gordon Lapp, of the Ontario Boys' Work Board, Toronto gave an inspiring address on the different phases of the work of the church with boys.

The pastor, the Rev. J. E. Whitham, was in charge of the service.

The choir chairs were occupied by boys of Cavanville and Millbrook, with Mrs. A. B. Kennedy as organist.

Grant Henry, representative for East Durham in the Boys' Parliament read the scripture lesson and spoke a few words concerning the aims and object of "the boys' Parliament."

Mr. Walter Sayles sang, "My Task," to the enjoyment of the congregation.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 63

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Under the flickering light of the cresset, Tarzan of the Apes saw tier after tier of shelves upon which were stacked small sacks made of skins. Opening one, the old man spilled a portion of the contents into the palm of one hand. "Diamonds!" he said. "The Bolgani have been accumulating them for countless ages. In their legends is the prediction that some day the Atlantians will return and barter for them. A king's ransom reposes in each of these sacks!"

Giving one bag to La, another to Tarzan and keeping one for himself, the old man remarked: "Just for luck, in case we leave this valley alive!" From the diamond vault he led them up a primitive ladder to the floor above and quickly to the main entrance of the Tower. Two heavy bolted doors now lay between them and the terrace. Beyond that, only a short distance, was the east gate which Tarzan had left open. But this time the last of the Gomangani had ascended the ladder.

Carefully the ape-man explained to them they were to run for the gate as the bolted doors swung open. Then, turning to the old man he said: "NOW!" The bolt slipped back, the doors swung open and the entire party swarmed out. The Bolgani, unaware that their victims had eluded them, did not discover the fact until Tarzan, bringing up the rear with the golden lion, was passing through the gates. Then several hundred gorilla-men started on a mad run in pursuit.

"Now for it!" cried Tarzan to the others. "Run straight down the valley toward Opar." I shall not stir a step without you, Tarzan," said La. "As you wish," he said with a shrug, "here they come." Fifty of the Gomangani rallied to his call and with these the ape-man stood in the gateway toward which the Bolgani were now charging. As the first of the hairy monsters snarled within a few paces of them, La glanced down the jungle trail. "Look! Look!" she cried.

MIKE SKAKOON FOUND GUILTY

Sentenced to be Hanged at Timmins on May 21.

MURDERED WOMAN.

COCHRANE, Ont., April 6.—Mike Skakoon, Blezard Valley, was sentenced to be hanged on June 10 for the murder of Bernice Leake at Timmins on May 21, 1931. Skakoon was convicted of the murder last night and sentenced to death by Mr. Justice W. A. Logie.

The woman's death at the hands at Skckoon had been admitted by defense counsel, who claimed there was neither motive nor premeditation and that accused had no recollection of striking the fatal blow. In a statement to police, Skakoon admitted striking the woman three times with an electric iron, and had then driven a knife into her temple, penetrating the brain, after she had risen from the floor. He attempted suicide shortly afterwards.

Skakoon, according to evidence at the trial, had deserted his wife and two children.

Two alienists, Dr. B. T. McGhie and Dr. Joseph Stewart, declared Skakoon was sane at the time of the tragedy.

"I think you yourself know this crime is murder and not manslaughter," declared Mr. Justice Logie in sentencing Skakoon to death.

BARBEAU GETS TERM IN JAIL

Is Found Guilty of Selling Bottle of Gin to George Hoy.

GIVEN TWO MONTHS.

Complete denial by Archie Barbeau of the accusation that early Sunday morning, March 6, he sold a bottle of gin to George Hoy for six dollars failed this morning to keep Barbeau out of jail on a charge of selling liquor. Magistrate Langley, after hearing of lengthy evidence, convicted him on the charge and sentenced him to two months in the county gaol.

George Hoy swore that late on Saturday night, March 5, he became dry, and desiring to slake his thirst he hired a taxi and drove to Barbeau's home on Simcoe Street. There he purchased the bottle of gin, which was produced in court, for six dollars. Both witness and Barbeau had drinks from the bottle.

Lorne Hoy, son of George, said that he had accompanied his father in the taxi and waited in the car for his return. While he was waiting, Constable Jack Deannard appeared on the scene and arrested the father when he came out of Barbeau's. The constable told of finding the bottle of gin and four dollars (the change from the ten dollar bill after purchase of the liquor) in Hoy's pocket.

Denies Charge of Selling.

Barbeau said that Hoy had visited his house that night in search of a drink, but that he had refused to give him any. He denied ever having sold Hoy liquor, and stated that the bottle of gin standing on the Magistrate's bench had never been obtained from him.

Barbeau produced a similar gin bottle, wholly empty, which he said he had purchased from the local vendor's the same day, but had consumed with his son, Leo. His wife and son were also called as witnesses and testified concerning the consuming of the bottle of gin.

On the completion of the case, Magistrate Langley found Barbeau guilty and sentenced him to jail.

J. A. O'Brien defended Barbeau and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Australian Finance Plan Ruled Valid

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 6 (C.P. Cable).—The Australian High Court to-day decided by a majority judgment of four to two that the Commonwealth Government's new "financial agreement enforcement Act" is valid legislation.

This is the drastic measure which shunts the responsibility for overseas borrowings, whether on State or Federal account, to the Commonwealth Government, and in turn empowers the Commonwealth to seize the revenues of states which default debt payments. It is aimed directly at the State of New South Wales, which defaulted overseas debt payments on Feb. 1 and again on April 1.

The validity of the legislation, which has been passed by the Commonwealth Parliament, was contested by New South Wales, and the States of Victoria and Tasmania associated themselves with the action.

Plain Living Aids Cancer Prevention

BOSTON, Mass., April 6.—Plain living and the liberal use of soap suds whenever and wherever ... were among th... st efficient means of cancer prevention, Dr. James Ewing, director of the cancer research hospital in New York, told the cancer clinic here last night.

"We have made great progress," said the New oYrk specialist, "but cancer is a lethal disease, and treacherous. Fully seventy per cent of cases are fatal. Mortality from cancer is increasing, and is likely to continue to increase as mortality from other diseases diminishes."

ACCIDENTS

Almost daily we read about someone being injured or badly shaken up because of an accident. It is almost impossible to get a bad jar or twist without causing a strain to the spinal column. This may produce a slight derangement of spinal joints or tightness of spinal ligaments and muscles which will result in nerve constriction.

PAIN

stiffness, backache, stomach trouble or headache may develop. These discomforts are frequently the direct after-effect of an injury and it has been our experience that Chiropractic spinal treatments do afford genuine relief.

Revenue Bill Stirs Bitter Tariff Row

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—The billion dollar revenue bill is getting embroiled in one of the senate's most bitter tariff rows.

Half a dozen pending proposals to incorporate new import taxes in the revenue measure have stirred a round of activity such as seldom heralds the arrival of even such an important measure as this.

The finance committee left the door open for tariffs yesterday when it rejected a motion to ban new duties on imports from the tax raising measure.

TORONTO MAN RETURNS HOME LEGALLY DEAD

Family Thought Man Lost at Sea Nine Years Ago.

INSURANCE PAID.

Insurance Company Lawyer Believes Can Recover the Money.

TORONTO, April 8 (C.P.)—Declared legally dead when his family thought he was lost at sea nine years ago, John Kearns, 62, of East Toronto, returned to his home here last Friday night, knocked on the door and like Mark Twain, announced the report of his death had been greatly exaggerated.

On New Year's night, 1920, Kearns left for New York, from where he was to sail for Capetown to resume work in the diamond mines. He eventually arrived there, and after advising his wife, was taken ill. Communications ceased and in 1923 Mrs. Kearns received a telegram telling her to meet her husband at the Union Station here. He was not among the passengers who detrained from Quebec. Immigration officials there said a man resembling Kearns had arrived there.

Insurance Paid

However, from that time, all trace of Kearns had been lost. Mrs. Kearns applied to the courts to have him declared dead, and an endowment policy of $2,600 was paid to the widow by the insurance company.

"I remembr being in Quebec and going to Montreal," said Kearns. "In Capetown I had suffered from insomnia. In Montreal I lived in an institution and worked for the city. He could not remember, however, in what institution he had lived in Montreal, but declared it was in the central part of the city. He had remained in Montreal for nine years, he said. He could not remember where his real home was until last week, when as soon as his

LLOYD GEORGE PLANS TO RETIRE FROM COMMONS

Famous Welshman to Spend His Time at Writing and Farming.

40 YEARS IN POLITICS.

Only Events of Utmost Importance Will Bring Him Into House.

LONDON, April 7—(AP)—Friends of David Lloyd George, the famous little Welshman who rose from humble circumstances to become one of the most glamorous figures of British politics, said today he had decided virtually to retire from the House of Commons.

He will devote his time in the future, they said to writing and farming and only events of outstanding importance will bring him back into the house, scene of his dramatic rise over a period of more than 40 years, and his later decline in power.

Commentators recently have pointed out—although they conceded where the stocky little Welshman was concerned anything surprising might happen—that it was hard to see what his place could be in the present political scheme, with his Liberal Party split and merged, under new leaders, in the National Cabinet.

A suggestion that he cooperate with the Labor party opposition in the new parliament has met with little enthusiasm from either side, and his vigorous attacks upon the national government have left no place there for the war prime minister.

Rise to Fame

It was during the latter years of the war that Lloyd George rose to the heights of his power and dazzling glory. He drove the British side of the war forward, out of the slough of despond of 1915, and by his stubborn will, electric personality and brilliant oratory, swayed the benches of the House of Commons and led the British public as have few others in British history.

It was in 1915 that "the little Welsh solicitor", as his enemies called him, became a palladin of romance, a national St. George engaged in a fight to the death with Teutonism. The whole country took fire from his energy and enthusiasm.

A munitions shortage had provided a crisis in the British conduct of the war. It brought about the fall of the Liberal Asquith cabinet and the substitution of a coalition cabinet under Asquith and the Conservative Bonar Law. Lloyd George, who had been Chancellor of the Exchequer, was made minister of munitions.

Famous Appeal

He called the munitions makers together and with a dramatic ap-

McGibbon Dubs $1,952,189 for Meals, Hotels "Enormous"—Asks Explanation.

THORNTON DEFENDS.

Providing Figures Opposed—Fear Public Might Infer Money Squandered.

OTTAWA, April 7. (CP)—The recommendations of the sub-committee of the Canadian National Railways directorate, appointed to consider the whole question of salaries, allowances, disbursements, pensions and retirement provisions for executive officers and officials of the company receiving salaries of $5,000 and over in order that every reasonable and proper economy should be effected, were considered by the House of Commons committee on railways and shipping to-day. Immediately the committee ran into a controversy with regard to the expense accounts of officers of the railways.

Peter McGibbon (Cons. Muskoka) raised the matter of $1,952,189 which represented meals, hotels, berths and telegrams of officers travelling on company business.

Enormous Sum

This was an enormous sum, in Dr. McGibbon's opinion. He demanded an photostat copy of that account for examination by the committee. There was considerable doubt, he said, throughout the country whether that money was spent by officials of the company. He wanted to know how it was expended.

$500 AND COSTS TO JOS. STEWART

Mr. Justice Sedgewick Finds Allan Lewis Owned Car That Crashed.

GIRL WAS KILLED.

Judgment for $500 damages with costs on the county court scale was given by Mr. Justice Sedgewick at Osgoode Hall Wednesday in favor of Jos. Stewart, taxi car operator of Peterborough, in his suit against Allan Lewis for damages in respect of the death of the plaintiff's daughter, Irene Stewart in an automobile accident in which Allan Lewis was driving a car that smashed up in the ditch.

In his reasons for judgment, His Lordship finds that Allan Lewis was driving at an excessive rate of speed, and without exercising any sensible judgment in his operation of the car. "There is," he says, "no question that Allan Lewis is liable for such damages as the plaintiff has suffered by reason of his daughter's death. The next question is: Is James Lewis, the father of Allan liable as the owner of the car?" His Lordship finds that the car was the son's car, although a credit note had been signed by the father, his son being a minor. The deceased girl was 19 years of age, and employed as a hairdresser, receiving customers at her father's house, paying $7 per week for room and board. There was evidence that the father would expect the daughter to give him pecuniary assistance in the future, but his Lordship found there was no evidence that he was likely to be in need of such assistance, and awarded plaintiff $500 damages, with costs on the county court scale.

The action against James Lewis was dismissed without costs.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., was solicitor for the plaintiff; R. R. Hall, K.C., for the defendant, James Lewis, and W. F. Johnston for Allan Lewis.

This case was heard a short time ago in the non-jury sessions of the Supreme Court of Ontario in Peterborough.

CUSTOMS TARIFF IS NOT CHANGED BY THE BUDGET

No Changes Advisable in View of Imperial Economic Conference.

ONE SMALL EXCEPTION.

Preservation National Credit Necessary for Return of Prosperity.

OTTAWA, Apr. 7 (By the Canadian Press)—Major tariff adjustments this session are precluded as it is deemed undesirable to make any tariff changes touching the British preference in view of the Imperial Economic Conference in July. This declaration was made on the floor of the House of Commons yesterday by E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in introducing comparatively few tariff changes.

One Small Exception

With one exception, no tariff amendments are therefore proposed. The exception relates to repair parts for farm implements, for which the special rates granted to March 31, 1932, will be further extended to March 31, 1933.

In proposing these additional measures of taxation, consideration has been given, on the one hand, to the ability of our people to bear the extra burden, and, on the other, to the absolute necessity of placing our financial house in order.

Bearing fully in mind the fact that, in common with the whole world, we have suffered—while not in equal degree at least in substantial degree—as the result of a depression universal in scope and unparalleled magnitude, realizing also the anxieties and burdens of the people and the manifold difficulties resulting from the trying period through which we are passing, and appreciating how desirable it is that we should endeavor to the fullest

TOUCHES LIGHT TOT IS KILLED

Toronto Baby Found Dead By Father as He Wakens in Morning.

BARE SPOT IN CORD.

TORONTO, April 7 (C.P.).—Two-year-old Charlie McBride toddled into "Daddy's" bedroom as usual early to-day. The wee lad climbed up on a radiator, reached for a switch and attempted to turn on the bedlight so daddy would awaken. Half an hour later, his brother and sister awakened their father with cries of "Daddy, daddy, isn't that a funny place for Charlie to sleep." McBride awoke. Charlie's lifeless form was slumped across the radiator. Somehow, he had touched a bare spot on the light cord and received the full force of 110 volts through his body.

Charlie had been sleeping with his mother, while McBride and two other children slept in another room. Each morning, Charlie awakened early and went into his father's bedroom, turned on the light, and romped with daddy.

Thinks Cereal Tax Is Only On Specialties

That many of the Quaker Oats Company's products would be exempt under the new increased sales tax as they were exempt under the lower sales tax, was the view on the sales tax changes expressed by an official of the company last night. G. A. MacDonald, head of the company here, was out of the city and his views could not be learned, but an official of the company discussed the situation.

He expressed the belief that the sales tax would not be applied to anything but was referred to as "specialties" by the firm, that is such packaged cereals as puffed wheat, puffed rice crackers, etc., and that such staple products as rolled oats, quick quaker oats, etc. would still be exempt.

Hitherto all the cereal products manufactured by the Quaker Oats Company have been untaxed. However, the six percent sales tax, if applied to the company's output, would make a considerable price difference which it was thought would have to be absorbed by the consumer.

Governor States Royal Commission Will Probe Riots

Rumors Indicate Newfoundland's Prime Minister Intends to Ask For Dissolution of Parliament and Run Dominion Election.

SIR JOHN MIDDLETON THANKS WAR VETERANS FOR STEPPING INTO BREACH DURING DISORDERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 7.—(CP)—Defying unemployeddemonstrators who threatened to throw him in the harbour, and disregarding advice of several of his ministers, Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires has refused to resign.

At one o'clock today Sir Richard told newspaper correspondents he had absolutely no intention of tendering his resignation.

It is expected he will ask for dissolution of parliament and run a dominion election.

Governor Sir John Middleton this morning announced that a royal commission would be appointed as soon as possible to enquire into certain occurrences at the Colonial building on Tuesday. The commission will have full powers to enforce attendance of witnesses and compel them to give evidence in regard to riots that broke up Tuesday's session of the legislature and forced the prime minister to flee the city.

Thanks Veterans

In another published statement the governor thanked all war veterans and others for invaluable services in helping to maintain public peace following the disorders and expressed appreciation of the manner in which they have upheld the noble tradition of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment and the Royal Naval Reserve of Newfoundland.

KELLY IS GIVEN TWO MONTHS

Pleaded Guilty to Charge of Fraudulently Obtaining $300.

"SENTENCE LENIENT."

"The integrity of business must be maintained," stated Police Magistrate Langley to-day, in sentencing F. A. Kelly, aged 60, of Montreal, to two months in jail on a charge of fraudulently obtaining $300 from Oscar Cromie and Lawra Cromie, of Smith Township. Kelly pleaded guilty to the charge.

A. L. Elliott, counsel for Kelly, made a strong plea for suspended sentence, drawing attention to his client's age and the fact that he had no criminal record. Magistrate Langley said that his sentence was very lenitent considering the seriousness of the offence and the amount of money involved.

Two Women Are Hurt When Cars Collide

When two cars crashed at the corner of Stewart and Simcoe streets at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon one car was turned over and two women passengers were injured.

The injured were: Mrs. Harold Sowden, 506 George Street, south, shaken up, bruises and cuts; Mrs. D. Dooley, 504 George street, south.

A car driven by Harold Sowden, in which Mrs. Dooley, Mrs. Sowden and Miss Francis, 413 Sheridan street, were passengers, was proceeding north on Stewart street across the Simcoe street intersection when the rear of the car was struck by a car driven east on Simcoe street by Mrs. Fred Goodfellow, 457 Bolivar street. The Sowden car was turned over on its side by the impact and the flying glass cut two of the passengers. The Goodfellow car was but slightly damaged.

CHEQUE STAMPS WILL COST CITY $740 IN 1932

City Pays All Its Salaries and Wages by Cheque.

The tax on cheques will cost the city $740 this year, City Treasurer Adams estimated to-day. The city pays all its salaries and wages by cheque and under the old schedule of the stamp tax $370 was set aside in the estimates for the city needs. Mr. Adams said that under the increased tax the city stamp expenditure would be doubled.

HONOLULU JURY RACE MIXTURE

Darrow Admits He is as Nearly Stumped as He Ever Was in His Career.

7 RACES REPRESENTED.

(Copyright by the A.P., 1932.

HONOLULU, April 7.— A jury as cosmopolitan as Honolulu, melting pot of races, is in prospect for the murder trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three naval men charged with the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian.

Seven races were represented by the twelve men tentatively seated at the opening of the fourth day of the trial to-day and they have Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal attorney, admittedly as nearly stumped as he ever was in his life.

Commenting upon the prosecution's elimination of white veniremen in rapid fire order with peremptory challenges—which require no reason for removing a man from the box—the gray haired leader of the defence predicted there will be no more than three white men on the jury when the case goes to trial.

Tentative Jury.

The tentative jurors at the opening of to-day's session were three Americans, two Chinese, two Hawaiians, a Swede, a Scotchman, a German, a Portuguese and a Chinese-American. All, however, are United States' citizens.

Mrs. Fortescue's son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U.S.N., and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, enlisted men, are the others facing the second degree murder charges.

The defense indicated that it may place Mrs. Fortescue's daughter, Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, on the stand, presumably to testify regarding an assault upon her last September, for which Kahahawai and four other men of mixed races were tried. The jury in that case disagreed and a re-trial is pending.

TELEPHONE CALLS OVER 15 CENTS WILL BE TAXED

Calls to Many Points in District Will Remain Untaxed.

Effective on May 2nd, a new tax of five cents on all long-distance telephone calls over fifteen cents will be levied throughout the Dominion. Interviewed by The Examiner this afternoon H. H. P. Johnston, district manager of the Bell Telephone Company was not prepared to make any statement regarding the effect which the tax would have locally. He intimated that he expected official notification from headquarters within the next day or so.

Local calls will not of course be subject to tax, neither will calls from Peterborough to the exchanges listed, as follows: Bethany, Douro, Ennismore, Garden Hill, Hastings, Kawartha Park, Keene, Lakefield, Lakehurst, Millbrook, Norwood, Omemee, Roseneath, Bobcaygeon, Cambray, Cameron, Cannington and Dunsford.

RELIEF PROGRAM IS COMPLETED; $100,000 SPENT

Only Few Finishing Touches to Storm Drain to be Done.

NO MORE MONEY.

Board of Works Soon Commence Ordinary Street Repair Work.

The city's $100,000 relief program of work is completed. Only a few finishing touches to a storm drain on Lock Street remained today to wind up the last major project, the construction of a surface drainage system from the vicinity of Lock Street and Gladstone Avenue, crossing Lansdowne Street, and continuing south across Morrow Street, traversing the property of the Brinton Carpet Company, and emptying into the river.

One of the two crews that were engaged in this work laid up their tools last night, and the other crew will be through in a day or two. Ratepayers probably understand that the Governments paid half the cost of these operations; in other words the outlay by the city is approximately $50,000.

Work Is Done—Money Spent.

In the conclusion of their relief plans the City Council may be said to have made both ends meet. The original program of jobs was devised to carry through the winter to the opening of spring. To-day there was no doubt that spring was here, and as Alderman Hamilton, chairman of the Board of Works, remarked to The Examiner, "Our work is done and our money is spent."

Mayor Denne and Ald. Hamilton were apparently discussing the present situation. They pointed out that the purpose of the relief program had been accomplished. Employment had been given to a considerable number of men during the months when outdoor work is ordinarily suspended. These citizens have been kept fairly busy through the period of customary inactivity to the opening of the season when outdoor work is generally beginning.

"The City Council has now wound up two winters of work," Mayor Denne said, "and everybody knows that this was very unusual. In fact when winter came the outdoor workers were left to shift for themselves. We have no more money left, and I don't know whether we will be able to get further assistance from the Government. It must be understood that the city's share of the cost comes out of the taxes, and I think everybody will agree that the Council has done the very best it could in meeting the unusual conditions we have had to contend with during the last two years."

Mayor Denne said the Board of Works would start their ordinary repairs and other work as soon as weather conditions warranted it, but in the meantime it is hoped that other work will be launched to engage some of the men who are now idle.

SMUTS SCORES HERTZOG ACTION

Opposition Leader Takes Original Step of Submitting "Alternative Budget."

FAVORS OTTAWA MEET.

CAPE TOWN, S.A., April 7 (C.P.).—Declaring no greater opportunity than the Imperial Economic Conference to be held at Ottawa existed as an avenue of escape from South Africa's economic ills, General Jan Smuts, soldier and statesman, leader of the Opposition, strongly criticized the Hertzog Government's budget in the House of Assembly to-day and took the strikingly original step of submitting an "alternative budget."

General Smuts asked how the Government was preparing for the Ottawa Conference. He described it as a unique opportunity likely to affect the South African budget more than almost anything else. He then moved an amendment withholding vote for supply on the ground of the Government's "spendthrift policy" and the fact it had made "harsh cuts in salaries which were avoidable."

Portugal's extensive public-works program is expected to be started in July.

NEW TAXATION PROPOSALS GIVEN MIXED RECEPTION IN CANADA

Increase in Sales Tax Sure to Increase Price of Goods.

CORPORATION TAX.

TORONTO, April 7. (C.P.)—Proposals for new taxation in yesterday's budget speech of E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, today had been accorded a mixed reception.

Heads of British and foreign insurance companies licensed by Canadian provinces were said to be tations against the proposal to tax contemplating vigorous represen-their policyholders 15 percent of gross premiums, or compel the companies to keep on deposit with the government sums of money equal to their liabilities to policyholders.

Business men inclined to treat the budget as inevitable, and generally as a good one, although in many quarters, doubt was expressed regarding effectiveness to produce required revenue in face of depressed prices and incomes. Some commentators saw it as a blow to business, while others though its effect on trade wouldd be negligible.

Pacific coast business men saw in it no threat to business, while some on the prairies thought it would be a severe load for business to carry.

In the east it had a mixed reception. Increase in the sales tax from four to six percent was seen by W. A. Black, president of the Signs of the Vote

WASHINGTON, April 7 (C. P.). — It is a matter of complete indifference to Joseph Flowers, the best colored shoeshiner in the Capital, as to which party triumphs in November and elects the next President of the United States.

"Ah doan kyah, Ah doan kyah one way or the other," said Mr. Flowers when interviewed 6 by the Canadian Press to-day.

"Ah was down in ma home in No'th Ca'lina, and down there folks in the mills was tellin' me last 'lections they was lined up and the boss tells them if they doan vote the Republican ticket they ain't got no jobs. They all voted Republican and they ain't got no jobs anyway."

Whereupon Mr. Flowers threw back his head and laughed a long and silvery laugh.

REVENUES TO BE SEIZED.

MELBOURNE.— The Commonwealth Government is issuing immediately a proclamation authorizing the seizure on commonwealth account of certain of the channels of revenues of the State of New South Wales. This will be taken over in compensation for the amounts disbursed by the commonwealth on the State's account, as a result of the State's default of overseas debts payments on Feb. 1 and April 1.

EVIDENCE GIVEN BY G.H. FERGUSON WINDS UP PROBE

Denies Speaking to Sweezey at Any Time About Money.

NO CONTRACT BLOCKING.

Leaves Probing of Aird's Explanation Up to Ontario Government.

OTTAWA, April 6. (CP)—At no time did he ever have any conversation with Robert O. Sweezey, former President of Beauharnois, that could possibly be interpreted as blocking the consummation of a contract between the power company and the Ontario Hydro Electric commission, G. Howard Ferguson, high commissioner to the United Kingdom, told the Senate Beauharnois committee here yesterday. He had never spoken with Sweezey, or anyone connected with Beauharnois, about money; and he had no knowledge that the company, or any other corporation, had ever contributed to the campaign funds of the Ontario Conservative Party.

The High Commissioner's evidence was an emphatic ddenial of Senator Andrew Haydon's testimony retailing a conversation he had with Mr. Sweezey. Mr. Haydon attributed the statement to Mr. Sweezey that Beauharnois could not get a contract signed with the Ontario Hydro Commission "until Mr. Ferguson gets 200,000."

Aird's $125,000

Arising out of that, R. S. Robertson, counsel for Mr. Haydon, asked the high commissioner regarding the $125,000 given by Sweezey to John Aird Jr., of Toronto. In December 1929. Prior testimony was that Mr. Sweezey believed this money destined for the Ontario Conservative party. To the House of Commons committee last year Aird had testified that the money was payment to himself for services rendered in connection with the Hydro contract.

Was Mr. Ferguson content to let this matter rest there, asked Mr. Robertson. Was he satisfied with Aird's explanation, or did he desire it should be further investigated?

The High Commissioner recalled that he was not now in politics and that he had no authority to dictate the duty of the committee. What fuure course should be taken in the matter rested with the committee and the Ontario Government, he said. His own presence there was for the sake of vindicating his own integrity. He may have been guilty of many things; but no one could besmirch his character.

Met Twice

The High Commissioner recited the two occasions he had met Mr. Sweezey. The first time when Sweezey and Frank P. Jones of Montreal had approached him to find out if Ontario was in the market for power. He had referred them to C. A. Magrath, then chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission. The second time was in Montreal when Sweezey had been present at conferences between Mr. Ferguson and some of the Hydro officials, and Premier Taschereau with officials of the Quebec Government. This latter occasion was one on which the question of exporting power was discussed.

At no time had he spoken with Mr. Sweezey except in the presence of others, Mr. Ferguson testified.

The High Commissioner's evidence, with some minor additions by three other witnesses yesterday, concluded the sessions of the committee. Argument by counsel will be sumbitted in writing by April 9.

Ogilvie Flour Company, Ltd., as providing possibly a negligible increase in revenue, due to the depressed dollar value of sales.

R. R. Brown, chairman of the retail section of the Toronto Board of Trade, said increase in the sales tax was preferable to a "turnover" tax.

Corporation Tax

Arthur B. Purvis, president of Canadian Industries, Ltd., regretted the government had decided to make the one percent increase in the Corporation Tax retroactive to 1931 and said firms who had already made up their books and distributed revenue would find the added burden a grievance.

Heads of corporations, generally, were inclined to view the increase in the corporation tax as logical tapping of a legitimate source of revenue. Some, however, thought, with corporations reduced, the government would not gain much revenue from the increase.

O. L. Burton, president of the Robert Simpson Company, said the increase in the sales tax would doubtless increase the prices of commodities.

Boy Proves Girl; Gloria is Peeved

LONDON, April 7.—(A.P.)—Gloria Swanson and her husband, Michael Farmer, wanted a boy instead of a girl, Farmer revealed to-day and Gloria had planned to call the boy "Mike."

They were "just a little bit disappointed," he said, when a girl was born the night before last. Provisionally, he said, they have been calling the girl "Mike," but another name will have to be chosen later.

Gloria and the baby are both getting along wonderfully," he said.

PROBING DEATH OF GREAT RACER

Owner to Have Chemical Tests Taken of All Food Phar Lap Ate.

BODY TO BE MOUNTED.

MENLO PARK, Cal., April 7 (C. P.). — Chemistry is to be employed to throw additional light upon the unexpected death of Phar Lap the sensational Australian race horse here on Tuesday.

D. J. Davis, of San Francisco, part owner of the big red gelding said, however, he had accepted the first findings of veterinarians that death was due to colic

He and Dr. William Nielsen, veterinarian who accompanied the racer from Australia, announced plans for a chemical examination of the horse's stomach following rumors of poisoning.

Investigation also was started of the plant life which the horse may have eaten. F. N. Chisholm Director of Food and Drug Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture, took samples of grasses, alfalfa, shrubs and even leaves of trees.

Leaves Sprayed.

He said he was particularly interested in some leaves which appeared to have been sprayed with arsenate of lead. The chemical he said, is used by orchardists and truck gardeners as pest sprays.

Davis said the carcass of the famous thoroughbred will be mounted for return to Australia The work will require five months possible extent compatible with the public interest to call for as little further sacrifice as possible—at the same time we would be recreant to our duty if we failed to face our problems with determination and at whatever sacrifice, fully meet our financial obligations, balance our budget and preserve our national credit in the eyes of an observant financial world.

Messages of regret at the fate of Phar Lap, whose record included 37 victories out of 51 starts, continued to come to Davis to-day from many parts of the world.

This course may result in hardship. It may entail sacrifice. But in the long run it will result in less hardship, and will call for less sacrifice than that which would flow from a policy less courageous.

Preserve National Credit

Furthermore, the preservation of our national credit is an indispensable perequisite to the return of prosperity.

While the world is close knot today in matters of trade and finance as never before in its history—and we cannot expect normal or prosperious conditions apart from the general world trend—nevertheless some one nation, or group of nations, must assume the leadership and point the way. To that end an opportunity unique in history is afforded to the British nations, whose representatives will assemble in Ottawa at the Imperial Economic Conference in July next.

If the delegates who assemble here meet in an atmosphere charged with determination to approach their deliberations from the viewpoint of mutual advantage, there will result measures which will give a marked stimulus to empire trade.

And while those measures are primarily designed to stimulate trade within the Empire, they will release forces and establish currents which may well flow beyond our borders to the eventual benefit of the world at large.

Desert Traveller Turns Up In Mecca

JIDDAH, The Hedjaz, April 7.—(A.P.)— St. John Philby, British traveller and Arabian authority, has arrived at Mecca after four months spent crossing the trackless deserts of Arabia's Rub' Al Khali, or "Empty Quarter," from west to east.

With his party he left here in January and nothing was heard from him afterward until to-day.

Philby, who since his conversion to the faith of the Wahibis, has been known as "Shaikh Abdulla," because of the dangerous nature of his enterprise, kept most of his plans secret.

He expects to turn around and return to Jiddah by a different route.

BABY IS WELL LINDBERGH TOLD BY JOHN CURTIS

Norfolk Man Claims to Have Made Contact With Kidnappers.

NO MENTION OF RANSOM.

Police Abandon Hopes of Clues From Red Johnson, Nurse's Friend.

HOPEWELL, N.J., April 7.—The village of Hopewell, tingling for days with a vague feeling that Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., would be home long before this, had to salve its disappointment to-day with message out of the void: "The baby is well."

John H. Curtis, gone since Saturday from his Norfolk, Va., home to keep rendezvous with a person he looks upon as an agent for the kidnappers, relayed the words of cheer.

He made his announcement on his return yesterday, adding that during his four-day absence he met Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

This for the first time gave definite indications of a connection between the Norfolk boat builder's mysterious movements and two flights the Flying Colonel recently made to Martha's Vineyard and other islands off the Massachusetts coast.

Father Relieved

Curtis cryptically said he had made a "contact" and that information he gave the baby's father relieved the latter "greatly."

Rear-Admiral Guy H. Burrage, another of the three Norfolk intermediaries, declined to say whether ransom payments had been arranged or whether the infant would be back soon. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State police, declared there was no significance in the fact that lights have been burning in the nursery from which the baby was stolen on March 1.

Police finally abandoned any hope that Henry (Red) Johnson, suitor of Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, could give them any clue in the kidnapping. They announced they would turn him over to immigration officials on Monday to face an accusation of entering the country illegally.

From the Massachusetts shore came reports of a vain hunt for a man and woman. Fishermen said they came ashore from a small boat at Waquoi, trundling a baby carriage.

Coastguardsmen from New London, Conn., were searching for a "certain white yacht," they said—but they would say nothing more.

Col Lindbergh was reported to have been seeking a small vessel, called Nellie or Sallie, when he made his airplane trips.

Peterborough Cattle Set Record On the Montreal Livestock Market

The highest price paid on the Montreal cattle market in several weeks was secured recently for a car load of heavy steers from Peterborough. The car load brought $6.40 per hundred weight, which is hailed as something of a record by local cattle men considering the trend of the market.

The cattle were raised on the Toronto Savings and Loan Company's farm on the western extremity of the city, which is managed by Tom Brown, and Joe Hunter fed them.

When shipped from here the cattle were known to be of exceptional high quality, but it was not known that they would set such a record on the Montreal market.

THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1932

THE SCHOOL BANKS.

That the current depression is effecting to some degree the Penny Bank system, as might, of course, be expected, is indicated by the report for the first two months of the present year.

The figures for Peterborough's schools show that the amount on deposit at the end of February, 1932, was $16,677.02, which was $108.45 less than the total a year ago.

In other words, deposits made by local public school pupils for the twelve months were less than the amount of money withdrawn during the same period, family needs arising out of unemployment conditions necessitating the nest-egg in the school bank being used to meet the emergency.

It is encouraging, however, to note that large numbers of pupils are still making regular deposits, and that Peterborough's schools during January and February had 59 per cent. of their pupils who added systematically to their bank accounts, putting this city well up in the list.

King Edward School was well in the van with 89 per cent. of its pupils making regular deposits, and the others reported as follows: South Central, 73; Queen Alexandra, 71; King George, 70; Central, 46; Queen Mary, 46, and Prince of Wales, 38 per cent.

The report for the Province as a whole shows that during the first six months of the present school year pupils made nearly 6 per cent. more deposits than they did in the same period of the previous year, although the amount deposited was less by approximately 3 per cent. The number of withdrawals made during the period increased by 4 per cent., yet the amount withdrawn decreased 3 per cent.

The total amount on deposit at the end of February was $1,393,522.22, as compared with $1,362,819.42 one year ago.

NEW TAXATION.

As was inevitable, Hon. Mr. Rhodes' budget proposals involve new taxation, and probably the first feeling of the Canadian people will be that the blow has not been as severe as was predicted.

To bring about a balance between ordinary government expenditures and revenues, the Minister of Finance has estimated that he will need $55,000,000 new revenue this year. He proposes to get it in various ways.

In the first place, the sales tax is increased from 4 to 6 per cent., and thus is as high as it was in the early years of the King administration, although Mr. King's Government had whittled it down to 1 per cent. before they went out of office. In addition to the increase, certain products hitherto exempt from the sales tax will now be included, a provision that will affect one Peterborough industry particularly, the Quaker Oats Company, whose package-cereals have not up to the present been subject to sales tax.

Both the increased tax and the abolition of exemptions had been generally predicted.

There are material changes in the income tax, although these are not as drastic as were forecast.

It had been stated that the exemptions under the income levy would be lowered to include married persons with an income as low as $1,500 and single persons with an income of $750, and that the exemptions for children would be decreased from $500 to $300.

Mr. Rhodes, however, has not cut as deeply as was feared; the exemption for children has not been changed and the exemption for married persons will be $2,400 and for single persons, $1,200.

Persons in receipt of incomes of $5,000 or more are to contribute a surcharge amounting to 5 per cent. of the tax to be paid—and a substantial increase in revenue is anticipated from that source.

The corporation tax, as prophesied, has been increased to 11 per cent.; there is to be an insurance tax, collected under the Special War Revenue Act, and the tax on cheques and money orders, now two cents on amounts over $5.00, is to be increased to three cents on amounts up to $100 and to six cents above that figure.

A new tax—and one that will certainly add to the overhead of large business concerns in particular—is a five-cent levy on every telegram, wireless or radio message and long distance telephone call.

Those who use railway berths will find themselves called on to pay a tax of ten per cent., with a minimum charge of 25 cents, while every traveller who sits in a chair car will pay ten cents to the Government.

There are no changes in the Customs tariff, in view of the coming Imperial Economic Conference, with the exception of one item, which extends to March 31, 1933, the special rates on repair parts for farm implements.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes presented his first budget as Minister of Finance to Parliament yesterday, and is to be commended for a frankly informative picture of the country's financial position and of the very great problems with which the administration has had to deal during the past year.

It will be generally agreed that the new Finance Minister gave an admirable summing up of the situation, and the statement he presented was comprehensive enough to enable Canadians to get a clear idea of the country's financial committments and to realize the heavy task with which the Government is confronted.

A deficit for the fiscal year, which ended on March 21, of $119,500,000 was announced by Mr. Rhodes, made up of $51,024,000 arising from the excess of ordinary expenditures over ordinary revenues and $49,282,000 for unemployment relief and wheat bonus.

In explanation of the first item, the Minister of Finance declared that it was brought about notwithstanding reductions in expenditures by a decreased yield from taxation.

For the current year Mr. Rhodes predicts a balanced budget in so far as ordinary government expenditures and revenues are concerned, but special expenditures, such as unemployment relief and the financing of the Canadian National Railways, are not taken into consideration in that reckoning.

The balancing of the budget on the usual current governmental services, the Minister of Finance declares, is "in our judgment as substantial a step in the direction of providing currently for every responsibility of the Government as would be in the public interest to make effective in any one year under existing conditions."

In short, the Government has not seen fit to attempt the huge task of completely balancing its entire budget during the coming year and regards an evening up of the ordinary expenditures and revenues as a most commendable feat under the circumstances.

Mr. Rhodes estimates that for the present fiscal year the ordinary expenditures will amount to $359,700,000, a reduction of 20 per cent. from last year, while under existing taxation the revenue would be $319,000,000.

The new taxation now proposed, it is estimated, will raise $55,000,000, balance the account and leave a surplus of $4,300,000, although the position would be materially benefitted by an improvement in general business and thus an increase in the yields from taxation.

U. S. DOLLAR AND BRITISH POUND.

The world of exchange and money is witnessing extraordinary developments. Six months ago little in the world seemed stronger than the United States dollar, little more precarious than the British pound. To-day, and almost unbelievably, the position is being reversed. When, a few weeks ago, a British visitor to Canada predicted that time would see the pound worth six dollars, many people smiled. The prediction doesn't seem so fantastic now. With the United States apparently unable to balance its budget, and with Congress on a rampage over taxation, the dollar has begun to tremble on its base; and we have the curious spectacle of British newspapers worrying lest it decline and affect the position of the pound. Affect its existing usefulness, that is, in stimulating British export trade.

It is all an extraordinary illustration of the rapid change that can come about in the monetary fortunes of a nation. Financially, the United States seemed as strong as Gibraltar. Only a few years ago it was on the crest wave of prosperity. It had money to burn. Revenue was coming in so fast the treasury didn't know what to do with it; the stock market was pyramiding higher and higher; millions were being paid off the national debt; taxation was being decreased. So confident were our neighbors in their prosperity, Mr. Hoover talked of a coming era that would be unlike anything else throughout all the ages; and American experts and advisers were all over the world telling other peoples what to do.

Now everything has crashed like a house of cards.

The United States federal treasury finds itself short by $2,000,000,000—a staggering deficit—States are unable to balance their budgets; municipalities are bankrupt; and the wheels of industry have clogged to leave 8,000,000 unemployed. The mighty machine that seemed unbreakable has all but broken down.

Why? How comes it that a nation which is all but self-contained, which produces practically everything that man requires, and which in variety of climate and the number of its citizens is one of the greatest countries on the face of the globe, should find itself thus suddenly cast into financial difficulty? The answer isn't easy. Ex-President Coolidge lays the blame to extravagance, to a squandermania on the part of all governing bodies which, inevitably, was bound to bring disaster. But while Mr. Coolidge supports his argument by an imposing procession of figures in the matter of expenditure, it is impossible to believe that the blame is all with extravagance.

Much of it, in the opinion of many, has to do with Washingtons fiscal policy, with her policy as a creditor. The American policy of insisting upon war-debt and other debt payments while at the same time making it impossible for debtors to pay in goods, has undoubtedly had devastating effects. It has, for one thing, struck heavily at the United States exports; has bedevilled the whole fabric of international exchange. This, plus the stock exchange collapse, plus the fact that the United States was geared too high, plus a seeming inability on the part of captains of industry to control their gigantic machine, has unquestionably had much to do with what is being witnessed now.

Not that any one of us can be dogmatic over what is wrong with most of the world. The times seem to have got out of joint, and no one government or nation or leader appears to be able to set it right. The one hope is that we shall all learn something, that we will profit in some measure from some particular or national experience. — Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Politics in Newfoundland are at least not without their exciting features.

Anyway Canadians know just about what each of them will have to contribute toward carrying on the country's business.

Mr. Rhodes overlooked one source of revenue. He might have taxed members of Parliament according to the Hansard space they waste.

The Toronto Maple Leafs are certainly doing their best to see that the professional hockey championship remains in the land that was the cradle of the game.

The Board of Education failed to get a quorum the other night and no business was done. That is not a condition upon which the absentees are to be congratulated.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, April 7.—There was no movement of butter on the local market yesterday. Trading recently in creamery solids in this city could be called dead, and there was no improvement yesterday. There was considerable pressure from the West in the way of choice butter at the low figure of 23c, delivered, Toronto, which, of course, did not do this market any good. Buyers held to the usual attitude on a sliding market and continued to work on their supplies, waiting for more favorable prices. Fresh made, Ontario butter has been more plentiful, and with no buying has been piling up. Yesterday, brokers were asking 24c for regraded No. 1, and 23c for No. 2, and found only a small demand for the latter grade. Prices to retailers were also 1c easier.

Cream

Cream prices continued to hold firm at the levels in effect at the first of the week, but how long they will do so cannot be stated. Local buyers quoted 23c to 24c for specials, 22c to 23c for No. 1, and 19c to 20c, for No. 2, f.o.b., country points.

Cheese

The demand for new cheese was small and the market was quiet. Prices were down ¼c to ½c at 11c for new, large; 11¼c for twins, and 11½c for triplets. Retailers were quoted steady prices, with the recent decline at 12½c for new, large 12¾c for twins, 13c for triplets, and 15c for stiltons.

Eggs

Brokers' prices on eggs were stronger as the good demand and light receipts continued. They quoted ½c better on extras and firsts, at 16½c for extras, 14½c for firsts and steady prices on seconds at 13c graded and in free cases. Country shippers were offered steady prices at 13c to 14c for extras, 11c to 12c for firsts, and 9c to 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were also quoted steady prices for supplies, with the exception of seconds, at 20c for extras, in cartons; 18c for extras, loose; 16c for firsts, loose, and 15c for seconds, loose. Splits were quoted at 14c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 7. — With some scarcity developing in spot supplies, egg prices became a little firmer here yesterday. Graded Ontario eggs were generally ½c to 1c higher, becoming 18½c to 19c for extras and 16½c to 17c for firsts, with seconds unchanged at 15c. Prairie eggs held unchanged at 19c for extras, 17c for firsts and 15c for seconds. Local ungraded receipts were 2c to 3c under the graded levels. Prices to retailers were unchanged. Receipts totalled 2,449 cases.

The butter market continued to sink. Carlots or less of regraded No. 1 were quoted at 23c to 23½c per lb. Fresh butter was 1c lower than the regraded price. Lack of demand continued to feature the market. Receipts were 943 boxes. A sale of a carload of butter to a Toronto firm was reported.

The cheese market remained steady and quiet, with receipts at only 29 boxes. Prices were 10½c to 11c per pound for current receipts and 12c to 12½c for smaller make.

The potato market was quoted at $9 to $9.50 per barrel for new No. 1 Florida potatoes and $7 per barrel for No. 2. Old potatoes ruled steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Except for a final quick dip on Kansas reports of showers, grain markets showed a decided tendency to go up most of the time yesterday.

The general upward trend of wheat was largely a result of bullish advices in regard to cumulative effects of the March zero wave and of ensuing drought, together with two weeks of dust storms over big sections of domestic winter crop territory. Seeding delays which have made the United States spring wheat crop two weeks late were an additional strengthening factor, hoisting hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico yesterday to the highest price yet this season as compared with futures.

Wheat closed nervous, the same as Tuesday's finish to ¼c up, corn ⅛-¼c off to a shade advance, oats ⅛-⅜c down, and provisions varying from 17c setback to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 7. — Threat of rain over parched winter wheat fields of the South-western States made buyers cautious in the grain pit yesterday, and the market idled through an uneventful session to close ¼c higher to unchanged.

May and July wheat finished ¼c higher at 62⅜c and 64⅛c respectively, while October closed unchanged at 66⅜c.

Crop news from the United States South-west played a major part in price movement. Early reports of a forecast which held no promise of rain enabled the market to overcome a slight setback in the early stages, but later reports indicating a threat of rain had the effect of keeping buyers in check and the market closed steady.

Export trade was quite small at both coasts and outside interest generally was limited. Volume of trade in the pit was moderate and operations were largely of a local character.

Sales of cash wheat and coarse grains were light, with prices showing little change.

MAN INSTANTLY KILLED WHILE AT SAWING BEE

BARRIE, Apr. 7—William Edward Leck, aged 70, of Ivy, 10 miles south of here, was instantly killed yesterday, when, at a woodcutting bee on W. Tuck's farm, the governor belt flew off a buzz saw at which he was working. The fly wheel on the shaft flew into a number of pieces, the pieces striking the operator on the head. Death was instantaneous.

Dr. B. B. Horton, of Thornton, examined the remains. No inquest will be held.

DISTRICT NURSE by Faith Baldwin

The paper told nothing, nor the unformed hand, but the printed letters carried a definite threat—"keep out of this."

What was it? Coral asked, and Nancy was curious.

"Just one of my kids," Ellen told them, lightly, and crumpled it up in her hand.

Bartlett came again. Driving uptown, he urged her once more to clear her skirts. "Keep out of it. What good will it do you? You can't tell about these people, hot-blooded, impulsive, quick to quarrel, to kill even."

She admitted, under his literal cross-examination, that she had had a letter. "Where is it?" he demanded. "You must take it to the police; they must give you protection."

Nonsense, she said, she could take care of herself. She had, of course, destroyed the letter. She wouldn't give up. She'd go, once more, talk to Gilda.

"Ellen, you're crazy," he said, "you can't meddle like this." He said angrily, because he was afraid for her. "You women are all alike, trying to make the world over—"

She resented that, very much; and told him so in no uncertain terms. Suddenly they were quarreling bitterly; he, because he loved her, because she seemed no nearer to surrender than months before, and because he was in terror for her; she because of the emotional strain she had been under; and because where she had looked for sympathy and understanding she had received instead a scolding which might have been directed at a careless and stupid child.

"Oh, this doesn't get us anywhere," she said wearily, after a while. "Please, Frank, take me home."

They drove home almost in silence. There was no embrace in the car, in the hallway. She went into the apartment wearily, alone.

INSTALMENT 19.

The next day was Sunday. Ellen slept later than usual, worn out, and toward noon went once more, determined if not hopeful, to the Espositos. Gilda let her in. The parents were not in evidence.

"I've come," Ellen began, and then stopped. Fontana was there, respendant in a checked suit, happiness writ plain all over his face. It was the first good look she had had at him. Not a weak face, not a very noticeable one. Yet good-humored, even gay. She couldn't somehow reconcile him with—everything. She felt a little dizzy, wondering.

Gilda made the introduction with almost absurd punctiliousness. Fontana regarded Ellen closely. His small dark eyes were quite gentle, intent on her own. But she had a feeling that if she made a false move, a false step—

Under some strange compulsion she asked him, clearly, "You wrote me, did you not, Mr. Fontana?"

"Scusi?" asked Fontana, apologetically.

"Ask him," said Ellen to Gilda, "if he wrote me—a letter."

Gilda's eyes widened. She shot a look at Fontana, black, despising. She asked him, rapidly. He spread his hands with deprecation, and chattered for a moment. Gilda turned. "Yes," he had some one write it for him. He says he was afraid you would make me change my mind."

A ready admission. Ellen looked at the young man, the great strength of his physique, heavy in the shoulders and chest, narrow in waist and hips, a taller man than most of the Italians she knew. She thought—a dreadful man, unspeakable—nothing, he stopped at nothing—kidnapping—

But there was something child-like about him, something disarming. That was the key to him, he was a child, who took what he wanted; he knew now laws, he disregarded everything but his desires. She hardened her heart, she spoke to him directly, without anger in her tone, with a sort of curiosity, as one would question a visitor from Mars.

"Why did you do it?"

He understood that. He broke into torrential Italian. Ellen looked at Gilda. Slow color came into Gilda's face. She turned, shrugging her slim shoulders, unwilling to interpret. So Fontana himself tried, carefully, with his smattered English, his unaccustomed speech stripped to essentials—

"I lov' her so mooch. Si. Crazy for her. You know I see her, long time ago. I can't eat, I can't sleep. I say, that girl, by wife. She won' leesen. I gotta have her. I—gooda man for her."

He broke off, crimson under his swarthy skin tone. He went, quick and soundless as a cat into the kitchen. He came back with small brimming glasses, one, two. Gilda jumped up. "Stupido!" cried Gilda. She went out, came back with a tray. Ellen's throat constricted. That was tragic, somehow.

"You drink?" asked Fontana coaxingly, childlike, "to me—to Gilda—wine good for you. Like da medicina."

Gilda's lips were shaking. Ellen reached out and took a glass and touched her lips to it. Out of all reason that she should drink their health. She said, "Gilda?" once, appealing, and finally rose to go. Fontana took her hands in a tremendous grip.

"Gooda-bye—" said Fontana, beaming. He turned to Gilda, he said something—simpatica. Ellen heard that much. "Evert'ing okay?" asked Fontana, proud of his good English. He was sorry he had sent the letter, he told her brokenly. When he and Gilda were married she come see them, he added, in his own tongue. Gilda, stony-faced, translating.

She tried to draw Gilda out into the hall with her. Fontana, his big hand lightly on the girl's shoulder and watchful, smiling, and did not permit it. Gilda said, "Never mind me. It's all right. I'll make the best of it."

Ellen went back home. Gilda would make the best of it. Somehow that was heartening. And yet—

Wrong, terribly wrong. She shuddered, thinking. And yet, that young ignorant creature—I lov' her so mooch—"

There was nothing she could do now; she had probably done more harm than good. Frank, if he knew, would tell her so. He didn't, couldn't understand. There was, in certain respects, a gulf between them. Even Jim, who understood better, had regarded her with tolerant eyes and advised her not to "meddle."

She had meddled. Much good it had done her—or Gilda."

Astonishing of Gilda, Gilda whom she knew as vivacious, clever even, entirely Americanized, ambitious—Gilda had, as it were reverted. Could not, somehow, break the old tabus.

Could any one, safely?

Jim came that afternoon. He had been inquiring about Fontana. Fontana was well enough off. A small trucking business. Nothing on him. "Nothing to be done." His eyes were anxious, regarding Ellen. "You look tired, you've let this get on your nerves."

"Perhaps I have. It's all right, Jim, don't bother any more. Gilda has consented to marry him; they'll be married as soon as possible. I've nothing more to do with it. I've phoned the police to drop the case."

Jim was obviously relieved. "Let's he said, "go to the movies and forget it."

They went. A drama, an emotional drama unfolded itself on the screne. Life, thought Ellen, regarding the fleeting pictures, listening to the voices raised in anger, in terror, in pleading, is so much more inexplicable. There aren't any solutions to life, and happy endings don't—stay that way, if there are happy endings. The play doesn't stop, the screen doesn't harken, the audience doesn't file out. It goes on—

Gilda would go on, "making the best of it." She would marry Fontana, she would keep his house and bear his children, she would forget her ambitions, her Americanization. Perhaps, in a way, she would be content Would he ever revenge himself for her long refusal? Ellen thought not. He was avenged. He would be gentler with her perhaps, remembering that she had been impossible to win.

This marriage was wrong; more than wrong. Yet Gilda, relinquishing her bright dreams, would make the best of it." There was a ray of hope there. Perhaps, after all, she would not so much alter but would transfer her ambitions to her husband, and to the house she must keep. Perhaps what Ellen vaguely termed her "reversion" was something of the blood and spirit, something traditional and bone-bred and had nothing to do with those traits of character which were released in action and which, for all their surface importance, were in the last analysis non-essentials.

She tried to say something of this to Jim, endeavoring to put into clumsy mould of words something of her fluid thoughts. He listened, a little puzzled.

"Oh, sure, she'll be all right," he agreed. "Fontana's a good sort, even if her isn't quite up to the Esposito standards—the old man thinks he's somebody, you know. He comes, they say, from good stock back in the old country," he added carelessly.

She was, in her turn, puzzled.

"I thought you didn't know—" she began. Jim looked down on her, as they were nearing her home.

"Oh, I asked questions, around, after you told me," he explained.

He might, she reflected, have given her that information earlier. Even a general estimate of Fontana in the neighborhood would have quieted, a little, her anxiety; and the casual statement about the elder Esposito was, in a sense, the key to him.

THE MAIL AND MR. BENNETT.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

The Mail and Empire of April 4 comes out with its leading editorial "Placing National Interests Before Party." It declares that this policy is Mr. Bennett's and calls upon all Canadians to think in terms of Canada and not party.

The stand taken by the leading organ of the Conservative party must comment itself to every patriotic elector and marks a very distinct advance from the old party loyalty which placed party first.

HAWKS INJURED IN PLANE CRASH

Speed Flier Piles Up in Underbrush Leaving Soggy Field.

CONDITION CRITICAL.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 7 (C.P.). — Captain Frank M. Hawks, speed flier, was critically injured to-day when his plane crashed as he attempted to take off from the Worcester Airport.

A soft field forced Captain Hawks to attempt to take off from a dirt road cutting across the airport, but this proved unsatisfactory to the flyer, and he then took off across the field. Unable to gain the 70-mile-an-hour speed necessary to lift his ton-and-a-half ship from the field, his plane plowed through underbrush and then struck rocky ground, overturning completely while travelling at a 50-mile-an-hour clip.

Hawks, unconscious, was dragged from the wreckage of the plane in which he made many records, and rushed to Memorial Hospital. Injuries at first examination were said to consist of a probably fractured skull and serious crushing injuries to the face.

TORONTO MAN RETURNS HOME

memory returned he had left and returned to Toronto at once.

Memory Failed Him

"I was in Captown only about two days when my insomnia became so bad I was forced to go into hospital for a rest," Kearns said. "I was seriously ill there for many months, but remember getting mail from my wife and also writing to her. I was in the hospital nearly three years, all the time I was there."

He could not remember starting from South Africa for Toronto, he said. Nor could he remember having sent any telegram to his wife from Quebec, although he did remember having been there.

"I remember going from Quebec to Montreal and I lived in Montreal for nine years," he said.

The question now arises as to the status of Kearns. Legally, he is dead. He was registered as dead when the insurance policy was paid, and until the authorities are given formal notice of his existence, he is dead.

According to Nathan Phillips, local lawyer, however, Kearns is not legally dead. "It is only a 'presumption of law' that he is dead," declared Mr. Phillips. He just has to return, sit down in a chair and be himself—and there he is, just as much Mr. Kearns legally and physically as he ever was. The insurance company, the lawyer thought, could recover the money

Dog Saves Family Then Dies in Fire

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 7. (C.P.)—Andrew Dobbin, his wife and two young children escaped from their burning home to-day, but their faithful dog sacrificed his life in an apparent effort to rescue the baby of the household.

The dog awakened Dobbin at 2.30 this morning. The house was in flames. After the family had escaped, the collie dashed back into the house. Dobbin went into the house and brought the dog out. Again the canine returned, and again the man rescued it. The third time, the dog snapped at his master as he endeavored to enter the blazing structure. The dog was overcome by heat and smoke and perished before Dobbin could reach it.

TRADING LOWER AT TORONTO AS STOCKS SUFFER SETBACKS

Cockshutt Plow, Gypsum, Page Hersey and Steel of Canada Take Small Drops.

FOODS ALSO EASIER.

TORONTO, April 7 (CP)—Toronto stock ecxhange listings followed an irregularly lower course during forenoon trading to-day. Volume fell below that of the previous session, and most price changes were confined to fractions.

Utilities were easier, Bell Telephone and Brazilian selling off. The former stock lost all the gain made yesterday, selling to-day at 98, off more than a point. C.P.R. made slight improvement.

In the industrials, Canadian Dredge featured, dropping 1½ points. Smaller recessions were suffered by Cockshutt Plow, Gypsum, Page Hersey and Steel of Canada.

Foods were easier, along with mining shares.

Walkers old gained a small amount, but the preferred sold lower.

Oils were the bright spots, B.A. Oil, Imperial, and International Pete moving into higher ground.

C.P. BORROWING POWERS RAISED

Securities Issued Must Not Exceed Half Property Investment of Company.

BEATTY EXPLAINS.

OTTAWA, April 7.—(CP)—Under the terms of a bill approved today by the railway committee of the House of Commons, the borrowing powers of the Canadian Pacific Railway company are increased. The bill provides that the company may issue consolidated debenture stock to an amount which, together with the secured obligations of the company outstanding, shall not exceed one half of the company's property investment.

E. W. Beatty, president of the C. P. R. appeared for the purpose of explaining the legislation to the committee. Mr. Beatty made a brief statement in part, as follows:

The object of the bill is to increase the bonding power of the company.

Its present power is fixed by special acts relating to its railways and steamships. In the case of railways, it is limited to specified rates per miles of the various lines comprised in the system, and in the case of steamships, to an amount not exceeding cost.

The average for all lines operated by the company either as owner or as lessee is under $25,000 per mile.

The defect of the mileage basis is that it is commonly fixed by the special acts authorizing the various lines, before the actual cost is known and before developments can be foreseen.

The Proposal

By the bill it is proposed to increase the bonding power, but to relate it definitely to cost, by providing that the securities issued by the company shall at no time exceed one-half the property investment of the company in its various authorized undertakings, that is to say, in railways, steamships, telegraphs, hotels and their accessories.

At Dec. 31, 1931, the securities amounted to 37 per cent of the investment.

The company requires additional authority to finance capital expenditures that are constantly necessary for extensions and improvements of its fixed property and equipment.

The bid provides for the issue of consolidated debenture stock. This is the form of security issued by the company since 1889. It is a perpetual obligation bearing interest at 4 per cent per annum. The low rate of interest which it carries has been met at times by the issue of collateral bonds bearing higher rates and secured by pledge of consolidated debenture stock, but of course in such circumstances, the bonds do not represent an additional charge on the property.

GOLD TRADING QUIET TO-DAY

Stronger Tone in General List Features Standard Exchange Session.

NORANDA UP 85.

TORONTO, April 7 (C.P.). — Individual upswings and a stronger tone in the general list marked to-day's trading on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market. Volume remained low, however, and majority of sales were limited to odd lots.

Noranda showed strength from the opening, and when taken at midday was up 85 cents at $17.25. International Nickel was steady, but Hudson Bay slipped 5 to $1.85. Eldorado was in renewed demand and up 8 at $1.35 at noon. Ajax, a cent higher at 85, showed the only change in the oil section.

Golds were quiet and somewhat irregular, Pioneer of B.C. and Lake Shore losing a little ground, while Dome gained 15 to $10, and Teck-Hughes 5 to $4.40. Hollinger, ex-dividend, 5 cents, was unchanged. Among cheaper stocks, Siscoe and Ribago firmed but Premier lost a cent.

Raney to-day gave judgement against Hooper for $8,017 and also against Edwards, Morgan and Co., Ltd., auditors, in the same amount.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 7. (C.P.) — Late short covering checked a further decline in stocks to-day and brought net gains to a number of leaders. The closing was steady. U.S. Steel after touching a new low at 34½, finished moderately higher. American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Coca Cola and Auburn were up a point or two. American Can cut an extreme break of 2¾ and there was some reduction of 3 to 4 point losses in public service of New Jersey, Kresge and Safeway Stores. Transactions approximated 2,000,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, April 7 (C.P.). — Several new lows were recorded in to-day's continuance of the reaction on Toronto Stock Exchange. In the final hour prices were better, influenced by a rally in Wall Street. Losses were reduced and, in scattered instances, net gains recorded.

Stocks which hit new low marks included Bell Telephone, at 98, Nickel at 7, Consumers' Gas at 149, Steel of Canada at 17, while Ford of Canada equalled its former low of 10¼.

C.P.R. at 14 was down ½ from last night and Canadian Dredge of 1½ points at 12½. Brazilian at 10 was off the major portion of a point.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, April 7 (C.P.)—Some fairly wide swings occurred on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day, with losses still predominating among changes on end.

International Nickel slumped shortly after midday to a new low for the year of $7 and rallied a little to finish down 25 on the day. Noranda was strong in the forenoon and despite a late reaction closed up 35. Hudson Bay come out at $1.75, down 15. Eldorado moved to a high of $1.33, reacted but closed with a 4-cent advance.

In the gold section, Dome advanced above $10 for a 25-cent gain and Teck-Hughes was a few cents higher.

C.N.R. OFFICIALS' EXPENSE SHEETS

the C.N.R. took sharp issue with Dr. McGibbon. A considerable portion of that sum was returnable to the company. He outlined the system in checking the expense accounts of officials. The railway was not like a manufacturing plant. Officers had to be travelling all the time and their travel involved long distances. It was unreasonable to ask them to pay out of their own pockets expenses incurred on the company's business.

The accounts represented the expenditures of 3,500 officials.

Dr. McGibbon cited the item of $100,000 for club dues charged up to the railways and was told that in that amount were many non-recurring expenditures.

Euler Opposed.

The reproduction of a copy of the expense account was opposed by W. D. Euler (Lib., Waterloo North). It was not the function of the committee to delve into details of that character. They should be left to the directors appointed by the Government for that purpose. In that he was supported by Arthur L. Beaubien (Lib., Provencher), who did not think it in the public interest that such action should be taken.

The inference drawn from it would be that officials of the road were squandering the company's money, and it was wrong that such an impression should be given.

That it was not in the public interest was stressed by W. A. Boys, chairman of the sub-committee of the directors, that this should be broadcast through Canada.

We don't know a d—— thing about it, interjected Dr. McGibbon, until we get the details.

Sir Henry Thornton again took up the issue on behalf of his officers.

Commons Approves Railway Estimates

OTTAWA, April 7.—(CP)— The House of Commons committee on railways and shipping today approved the supplementary estimates of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamship Ltd., ($161,568) and the Canadian National Railways ($2,080,906). The latter amount represented an additional sum required in excess of $6,631,856, already appropriated, to take care of deficits occuring under the Maritime Freight Rates act.

KELLY JOINS DODGERS.

NEW YORK, April 7 (C.P.). — The Brooklyn Dodgers to-day announced the purchase of George Kelly, former first baseman of the Giants and Cincinnati, from Minneapolis of the American Association. Kelly will take the place of Del Bissonnette, injured Dodger first sacker, who will not be available for several weeks.

NEW FORD CAR IS ON DISPLAY IN PETERBORO'

Receives Big Reception From the Car Owning Public.

HIGHLY PRAISED.

The new Ford V-8 car was presented to the Peterborough public today.

Glistening in its newness, sleek and powerful, the last word in motor car manufacturing, the first new Ford to arrive in this city stood on the show room floor of Hood and Cummings' garage. It received a remarkable reception from the car-owning public.

No car has ever previously created such a furore here. Although no announcement had been made telling of the arrival of the car, hundreds hour after hour filed into the show rooms to inspect Ford's advent into a newer and large field. It was praised on all sides.

Orders came quickly. Ross J. Hood, manager of Hood and Cummings, Ltd., told The Examiner that up to noon today he had signed three orders. This without any real attempt being made to sell the car, but merely to display its advantages and the new developments it brings to the motoring public.

The new car is large, long, roomy, fast, powerful and alert. Its eight-cylinder V-type engine develops 65 horsepower. The car is capable of 75 miles an hour.

Mechanical Features

Some of the mechanical features are rubber mounting for engine; downdraft carburetor; automatic spark control; fuel pump; rear fuel tank; soft, flexible springs, large mechanical four-wheel brakes; small strong, electrically welded steel spoke wheels and large tires. The frame is cushioned from the running gear by rubber insulators in the spring shackles and shock absorber links.

It has lines, appearance, size and speed. It stresses the new streamline and its lower center of gravity adds to passenger safety and riding comfort.

Only the Tudor Sedan was on view here today, but it is expected that within a few days all the new models will be here for inspection. Delivery may start within the next two weeks.

The new Ford has been hailed as one of the greatest incentives to awakening the business and manufacturing worlds from the doldrums of depression. Fords sold in Canada are throughout a product of Canadian factories and Canadian workmen. Judging by its reception in Peterborough on its first day's appearance, the car will set new selling records.

WAITE ACKERMAN MINES, LTD. TO DISCONTINUE OPERATIONS

Inconclusive Results With Lower Ore Body Cause of Action.

METAL PRICES TOO LOW.

TORONTO, April 7 (C.P.). — Shareholders of the Waite Ackerman Mines, Ltd., whose properties are situated near Noranda, Que., were to-day at the annual meeting informed by the President, J. Y. Murdock, that the directors earlier in the day had decided to cease all operations at the property, owing to inconclusive results with the lower ore body, apparently bottoming just below the 1,000-foot level. Record lower prices for metals and a desire on the part of the directors to conserve the $170,700 securities held by the company, were other factors in the issue.

It was stated the directors had for several months considered closing the property.

It is impossible to make any forecast of how long the mine will have to remain closed, said Mr. Murdock. The metal market had been very much disturbed. Copper and zinc are selling at the lowest prices ever. It will depend on general conditions as to when prices will come up to permit of profitable re-opening of the mine.

Little Girl Slips Into Court Docket

A cherub sat in the prisoner's dock of Magistrate's Langley's court this morning. Blue-eyed with flaxen curls and a bright smile upon her face, the little girl, aged four, stole into the dock to sit there proudly beside her "daddy." She smiled fondly up into her father's face. He was charged with assaulting her mother and occasioning her actual bodily harm.

The little girl slipped into the dock while the constable, who usually guards its door, was absent.

"Your Worship will notice that there's another prisoner in the box," announced J. A. O'-Brien, counsel for the child's father.

"It's pathetic," said the Magistrate.

Another man, besides the child's father, was charged with assaulting his wife. In neither case did the magistrate give sentence, because there was no proof of injury. The cases were both adjourned until Saturday.

Pleasing Program At April Meeting

The Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. W. McMillan, Division street last evening. The correspondence, read by the secretary, Miss Helen Burns, referred chiefly to the allocation of the bale from the Presbyterial secretary. A reading on Korean poetry was given by Miss Taylor. A number of matters of business were discussed and it was decided to serve the supper to the Sunday School teachers and officers this month to raise money toward their allocation.

At the conclusion of the meeting a jolly social evening was enjoyed. Miss Grace Cunningham was the prize winner of a floral contest. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. MacMillan. Before departing a hearty vote of thanks to the hostess was expressed by Miss Evelyn Miller.

FERGUSON GIVES DEFINITE DENIAL TO COMMITTEE

Canadian High Commissioner Gives Evidence Before Beauharnois Committee.

SAW SWEEZEY TWICE.

Never Directly or Indirectly Had Any Approach About Money.

OTTAWA, April 7 (By The Canadian Press).—In spite of the fact that yesterday was budget day in the House of Commons, the committee room set aside for the hearings of the Senate Beauharnois Committee was crowded, not only with the general public but also with a large number of members of parliament. The outstanding feature of the session was the evidence of G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to London, whose presence was at his own request.

A definite denial that any conversation indicated in the evidence of Senator Haydon, that he would not let a contract be signed between the Ontario Hydro Commission and Beauharnois unless he got $200,000, had taken place was given by Mr. Ferguson.

Saw Sweezey Twice.

No such conversation ever took place between Sweezey and myself, said Mr. Ferguson. I saw Mr. Sweezey only twice in my life—the first time when he and Frank P. Jones came to my office. That was long before the question of power contracts arose. Their purpose was to ascertain if Ontario was in the market for more power.

Mr. Ferguson had told them that advices from the Hydro Electric Power Commission wer that consumption was increasing 100,000 horsepower a year. It was considered wise to make some arrangements, and he had suggested that Sweezey and Jones see the chairman of the commission. The government did not negotiate contracts.

The next time he saw Mr. Sweezey was in Montreal, when the commission reported that all details of the contract had been worked out satisfactorily between that body and Mr. Sweezey. The question as to export of power to the United States had arisen, about which there was a conflict of views between the Ontario and Quebec governments. This situation had finally been settled. These were the only two occasions he had seen Mr. Sweezey.

You say that no conversation you had with Sweezey could possibly be interpreted as it was in Senator Haydon's statement?

Oh no. I had never directly or indirectly any approach or discussion with Sweezey about money or Beauharnois or anyone connected with it, Mr. Ferguson declared.

Good Entertainment Campbellford Euchre

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — A very successful euchre and program was staged on Tuesday evening by the Catholic Woman's League of Campbellford, and at which there was a large attendance, seventeen tables being in play. The prize-winners were: Ladies, Mrs. Elie Brunelle and Miss Ada Kerr; gentlemen, James Black and C. Cochrane.

After cards a delightful program was given. This consisted of an orchestra composed of Paul and Joe O'Sullivan, and Angus and James Robertson with Frank O'Sullivan at the piano, rendering some plendid selections; a vocal solo by Miss Marie Crosson; a reading by Miss Rosina Clarke, and an instrumental duet by Mrs. Kerr and Miss Crosson. A delightful lunch was served by the ladies at the close of the evening.

LLOYD GEORGE PLANS TO RETIRE

peal for the lives of their sons in France overcome the most bitter opposition and succeeded in getting them to pool their trade secrets into unified production. Under his inspiration things began to march. Every sort of mechanical plant that had produced so much as a typewriter or a bicycle found itself turned into a munitions factory.

He even called the country estates of the wealthy "munitions" men and had them plowed up to grow food to win the war. He recruited 5,000,800 war workers in Britain and fused the shipbuilding industry into a unit that produced 4,000,000 tons of shipping which later became the principal means of transporting foreign soldiers to France

Lloyd George was born at Manchester in 1863, the son of a Welsh schoolmaster who soon afterward took the family back to Wales and then died. Young David was brought up by his uncle. Richard Lloyd, who gave him something of an educatnon from saving from his earnings at cobbler's bench.

Elected at Age of 27.

He was elected to Parliament at the age of 27 from Carnarvon Boroughs and for more than 40 years has represented the same constituency. Although he was ill before the last general election and was unable to campaign, his constituency returned him by a rousing majority.

After the election, however, his following in the Liberal party through which he had for so long wielded tremendous power, was reduced, by the new alignments to only 5 members, all but one of whom were members of his own family.

Weddings

CLARKSON—McCONKEY

BRIDGENORTH, April 7 (Examiner Corrspondence)—A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, April 6, at 2 p.m., at the Parsonage of the United Church when Alta Doreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey, of Smith, was united in marriage to Frederick Clarkson, of Lakehurst.

MACADAM ROADS TO BE REPAIRED

Soon as Weather Improves Board of Works Will Commence Repairing.

NO PAVING THIS YEAR.

As soon as winter has definitely packed up and moved out to some other domicile for a few months, the Board of Works will begin its annual repair of the seasonal damage to the city's macadam roads. Even last year's work of extensive resurfacing whch was equivalent almost to reconstruction in some stretches will need considerable grooming. It is all in the nature of "dirt" roads, in spite of their repeated treatments of crushed stone packed down by the big roller.

Automobile traffic with its numerous heavy trucks picks out the weakness of macadam, and the weather completes the wear and tear with long trails of pits and ruts that have to be ironed out all over again. Added to this cost of street maintenance is an average of $10,000 a year for oiling to lay the dust throughout the summer and fall. The entire bill represents a substantial annual item to be paid out of the city treasury.

The council's budget for this year could not afford the luxury of an appropriation for new pavements, hence any reference to Peterborough's mileage of pavement may be interpreted simply as a statement of fact and not as propaganda for more permanent surfacing. In this respect this city has followed the course of what is genrally regarded as economy, although the annual repair bill and road oil expenditure raises a doubt of the ultimate economy of the macadam roads.

The following tabulation shows the mileage of pavement and the population of a group of Ontario cities, most of them in Peterborough's category:

	Miles	Pop.
Belleville	9.74	13,443
Brantford	14.94	28,000
Chatham	32.00	16,500
Fort William	11.69	24,786
Galt	6.69	13,752
Guelph	32.20	19,230
Kingston	33.80	22,534
Kitchener	74.43	31,500
Niagara Falls	29.87	18,678
North Bay	15.00	17,000
Oshawa	45.00	25,550
Owen Sound	6.5	14.00
St. Catharines	47.10	25,647
St. Thomas	15.17	17,000
Sarnia	17.73	17,540
Sault Ste. Marie	16.35	22,844
Stratford	20.52	19,000
Sudbury	15.34	21,500
Welland	8.14	10,540
Woodstock	19.31	11,000
	471.51	390,000
Peterboorugh	15.58	22,809

Average number of miles of pavement per 1,000 of population in the above twenty cities—1,209.

Miles of pavement per 1,000 of population in Peterboorugh—.683.

It is understood that Lindsay with a population around 7,000 has 37 miles of paved streets.

School Medical Officer says

Children do better on VIROL

"I now take children off Cod Liver Oil and Malt to put them on Virol because very many of the more delicate and anaemic children suffering from wasting cannot take Cod Liver Oil and Malt, as it upsets the already weak digestion they have, and this is my experience from many thousands of children."

Give your own child Virol. Virol strengthens weak and ailing children and fortifies against infection.

Children love their Virol in porridge or milk, or on bread-and-butter, biscuits, etc.

MAY ABSORB ICE CREAM TAX

Sales Tax Has Been Previously Placed on Ice Cream Twice.

THEN TAKEN OFF.

Peterborough consumers of ice creame need not worry about the new six percent sales tax levied on that tasty food. G. A. Gillespie, manager of Silverwood's Dairy here, said that it was opinion that if the sales tax on ice cream stood then the local company would absorb it.

Twice previously a sales tax had been placed on ice cream but each time it had been taken off after the National Dairy Council had sent representations to the Government, stated Mr. Gillespie, who is hopeful that the tax on ice cream will be withdrawn again this time. He said that in all probability representations of the National Dairy Council will visit Ottawa to-day in an effort to have the tax removed from ice cream.

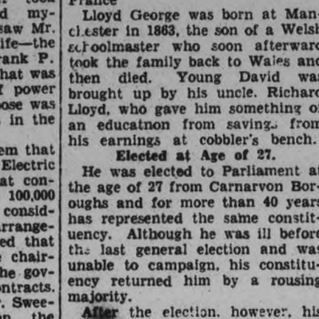
BUSY WOMAN Finds New Secret!

Says Weekly Wash No More Worry!



"Well," said Mrs. Richards proudly, "if you don't believe me, look at these clothes I've just ironed. Did you ever see a finer looking wash—look at the colour—white and clean like snow. And just smell them. Isn't that a fresh, clean smell. Now that's what I call washing! I'm proud of the look of these clothes. It gives you a heart for your work when it turns out like that.

"And Here's My Secret"

"First, I use a good soap. I'd advise you to use the brand I always buy — Pearl White Naptha. You'll find it a good practical laundry soap and a lot more economical than most. Soap your clothes and put them to soak overnight in cold water. You will find that, as the water temperature rises to the heat of the room, more dirt is loosened than would be if the water were cooling. In the morning, rinse your clothes thoroughly in warm water and you'll never have any more troubles with your wash."

"And, if I do say it myself, now that they are ironed they look as fresh as the day they came from the store. I didn't rub the skin off my hands to get them that way either.

Thousands of women have learned Mrs. Richards' secret and follow her example. Get the Pearl habit yourself—Pearl means efficient work in less time and at less cost. That's something to remember these days.

Housecleaning Week

At All A & P Stores

WE CAN'T help you bathe the baby, and we probably would'nt be much of a success at hearing Johnny's lessons—but, nevertheless, we know something of a mother's problems.

We know it's no easy job bringing up children, cleaning house and planning meals. We know that money's not always plentiful, and that Mother must be a business manager, buyer, treasurer and chairman of the board—all at the same time.

SO—WE made up our minds long ago that we would search the world for the best of foods, bring them to our stores with as little expense as possible, and sell them at such a small profit that mothers could afford a variety and abundance of good, healthful food for their families.

In that way we've succeeded in improving the business of being a mother, even though we admit we wouldn't be of much help around the house.

ANSTRUTHER RATEPAYERS FAVOR DIVISION OF SCHOOL SECTION

Petition Will Be Placed Before Council for Final Decision.

NEW ROOM NEEDED.

APSLEY, April 7.—A meeting of the ratepayers of S. S. No. 1 Anstruther was called by the Board to discuss and vote on the question of dividing the section or of having two schools in one section, for Tuesday evening in the Town Hall. The meeting was largely attended and was preceded over by Robt. Scott, one of the trustees. Mr. Copp, public school inspector was present and explained the nature of the education grants, and gave all other information with regard to the questions before the meeting most lucidly and in detail. He stigmatised the Apsley School as the lowest rated in the district in regard to lighting, air space, and heating and regretted that improvements he had recommended eighteen months ago had not been made.

Present conditions could not be allowed to continue, and he was strongly in favour of having two school rooms in the one section, rather than creating a new section, something that could be accomplished at practically no or very little extra expense to the ratepayers.

Mr. Scott suggested the question of having two schools under the one board be put to the meeting for a vote. Before voting on the question, Roy Brown asked Mr. Scott whether in the event of the motion being carried the electors could be assured that the Board would provide a room in the village for school purposes.

Mr. Scott would not give the assurance and when the question was put no one voted. He then called for a vote on dividing the section, and this carried with a large majority. The petition to create a new section comes before the council at their meeting on Friday next.

GRATEFUL MOTHER'S LETTER

"With my last baby," writes Mrs. William McLean of Elora, "and I have a family of eight children, I was only able to nurse him for about four months, and then naturally turned to Eagle Brand to bring him along. He was a normal infant all the way, but after starting him on Eagle Brand he gave me little or no trouble, sleeping regularly between feedings, and grew to be such a happy, contented little fellow. He cut his teeth without difficulty and has not had a sick day since. Wherever I go, people admire him and say 'What a lovely baby,' and ask me how I feed him. Eagle Brand is highly thought of in our home, and I recommend it to every mother seeking a satisfactory food for her infant."

HAWES' FLOOR WAX

"Cleans as well as Polishes"

You can't get good results with a poor wax—and you cannot get a good wax unless it contains good quality ingredients. That is why you, too, should use HAWES'. Ask for it by name.

Made by Edward Hawes & Co., Limited, Toronto 27

AS FAMOUS AS HAWES' LEMON OIL — PASTE OR LIQUID

STOP MOST ILLNESS AT THE SOURCE

Practically every illness begins with some minor ailment. Most of these ailments are the direct result of constipation; frequently unsuspected. Indifference to this condition is dangerous. Take ENO'S "Fruit Salt" daily . . . a dash of "Fruit Salt" in a glass of water morning or night . . . and you will ensure that inner cleanliness which means real health and vigor. And, unlike so many other correctives, ENO is non-habit-forming. For the sake of your health, insist on ENO'S "Fruit Salt."

PLANES LEAVE ARCTIC CAMPS

Fliers Report Great Activity in Great Bear Lake District.

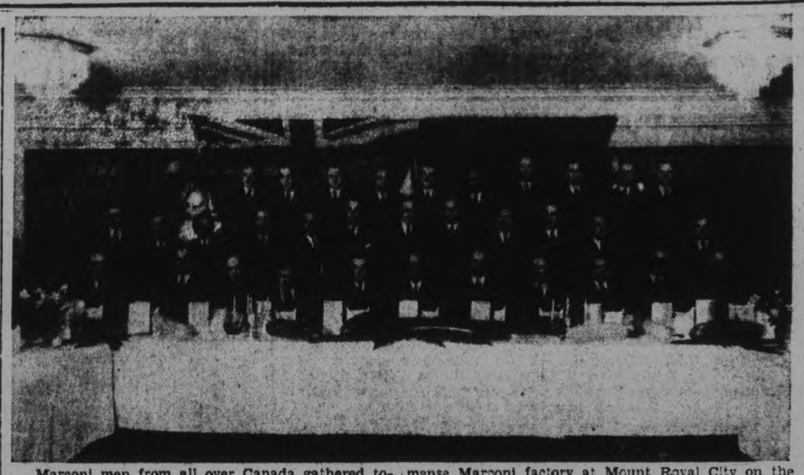
200 PROSPECTORS.

WINNIPEG, April 7.—Back from a month's trip to the Great Bear Lake district, Flight Lieut. C. R. Lemon, R.C.A.F. and Flying Officer H. R. Carefoot, landed their two Bellanca skiplanes at Stevenson Field yesterday just before the last snow vanished. The planes will be repaired and outfitted for summer work when the spring break-up occurs.

The fliers reported a successful trip despite the cold weather they faced to reach Lac La Ronge, Fort McMurary and Hunter Bay. At Hunter Bay and Echo Bay on Great Bear Lake, they found 200 men engaged in prospecting and surveying in connection with the radium ore found in that district.

Practically all the men who will work in the region are now "in" according to Lieutenant Lemon. Many of them are government men, mining recorders, geologists, and surveyors. Others are employed by the two big companies in development work. Still other men have gone into the country on their own, some by air and others by the rigorous dog train route across the lake from Mackenzie River or from Fort Rae on the north side.

On the chance that rich mineral deposits will be found on them, these men have staked claims in the snow, without being able to examine the ground underneath. Should rich mineral deposits be found on the claims, they plan to realize a profit by selling them to the big companies.



Marconi men from all over Canada gathered together recently in Montreal for a convention to study the latest technical phases of radio broadcasting and to see three outstanding receiving sets just announced for sale. While the convention was held in the Mount Royal Hotel considerable time was spent at the immense Marconi factory at Mount Royal City on the outskirts of Montreal where all Marconi products are manufactured ranging from trans-Atlantic beam wireless equipment through the whole field of radio communications equipment to the most delicate and intricate of radio parts

Fenella

A social evening, under the auspices of the Fenella United Sunday School, was held in the community hall on Monday evening. Progressive crokinole and other games were features of the evening's entertainment. Owing to road conditions, the attendance was not large. Six tables of crokinole were in play, the prizes going to Miss Vera Sherwin and Lyle Curtis. Consolation prizes went to Miss Ruth McFiggin and George Sherwin. Some one had learned that the pastor's (Rev. R. W. Paton) birthday anniversary fell on this date, and the superintendent, Fred. Falling, took the opportunity to speak words of congratulation in honor of the event and of appreciation of Mr. Paton's labors at this appointment. Mr. Paton responded in a brief speech. At the close of the entertainment lunch was served and the usual social hour enjoyed. Noticed from a distance were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brown and Mrs. Lily Turner, Roseneath, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Sherwin, Miss Vera Sherwin, Harry Sherwin, Miss Emma Sherwin, Archie Sherwin and Alvin Kelly, of Centenary.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sandercock entertained a number of friends to dinner on Wednesday evening last, the occasion being a birthday anniversary of Mrs. Sandercock. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank George and children, Reginald and Shirley. Mrs. George was also celebrating a birthday anniversary. Congratulations and dainty gifts were tendered both ladies in honor of this event.

With the arrival of April 1, two mail routes, running through and from Fenella, have changed hands. George Thomas, formerly of Peterborough, has secured the contract to drive the mail stage to Cobourg. This route has been served for the past twenty years by E. T. Brisbin and son, Delbert, of Roseneath. The rural mail route running out of Fenella, which has been served by Hugh Sherwin, Fenella, for the past eight years, is now being served by Arthur Murphy, Fenella, who has secured the contract for the next four years.

Clarence Smith and small son, of Toronto, were week-end guests of his mother, Mrs. Annie Smith. Mrs. N. Stewart, who has been caring for her mother, Mrs. Smith for several weeks, accompanied her brother home on Sunday.

Mrs. Ray Eagleson and small daughter, Laura, of Cold Springs, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Brisbin, for a few days during the past week, returning to her home on Saturday.

Miss Gertrude Knox has returned to Toronto University to resume her studies.

Master Neil and Miss Jean Shearer have returned home to Harwood after holidaying with their aunt, Mrs. Hugh Sherwin.

Miss Mildred Lean, who spent the Easter vacation with her sister, Mrs. J. H. Mouncey, returned to her duties on the staff of Westmount Public School, Oshawa on Monday.

Among those from a distance noticed at the funeral of the late Mrs. C. D. Harper, were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Nill, Cavan; Mr. Lawson Macklin, Mr. Stanley Macklin, Mr. and Mrs. Roert McCullough and Murray McCullough, Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Harper, Messrs. Howard and Ezra Harper, of Cold Spings; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Harper, Warkworth and Mr. Charles Wolfraim of Castleton.

Miss Irene Bray, Baltimore, was a guest during the past week of Mrs. W H. Sandercock.

COUNCIL URGES BUS TERMINAL

Lindsay Action Rouses Strong Protest from Company and Merchants.

MAYOR TO HOLIDAY.

LINDSAY April 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—The action of Lindsay town council in attempting to pass a by-law compelling bus companies to build a terminal and preventing them from using the main street has come in for vigorous opposition. A strong protest has been sent into the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Highways and before that body will pass upon the proposed by-law, it has asked the town to advance its reasons for such legislation. The bus company operating out of Lindsay has also sent to the Department a petition signed by fifty-one business men opposing the council's move.

Mrs. Matthew Wilson, Tuesday, celebrated her ninety-second birthday. She is one of the few remaining pioneers of Ops township, and has resided in Lindsay for thirty years.

Judgment was reserved by His Honor Judge Ruddy, of Whitby, in an interesting county court case tried locally on Monday; John Wylie, of Mariposa, brought suit against S. S. No. 9, Mariposa, for $200 damages as a result of injuries sustained by his son, who was a pupil of the school. It appears the boy with other pupils was playing in the school shed in April, 1931 when the accident occurred. The youth was up in the rafters when the bell rang. In letting himself down, he was suspended two feet from the floor. In dropping, he went through the floor, breaking his leg. It appears that the floor had been condemned as unsafe following an inspection by the Public School Inspector.

His Worship Mayor Alcorn has been granted two months' leave of absence by the council during May and June. He contemplates a trip to Ireland.

The town council has decided to engage the services of an outside auditor to audit the back taxes due the municipality. These taxes amount to a considerable sum, and the town has had considerable trouble in trying to make collections as well as in locating some of the delinquents.

Farmers in this district who are feeling the effect of the economic conditions, comment on the fact that they are only receiving ten cents a dozen for their eggs and thirty-five cents a bag for potatoes. In connection with this slump, it is interesting to note that in a great many cases a wage of $20 per month is being offered laborers for spring work on the farm.

Local C.N.R. officials, when interviewed to-day, concerning the threat of weevil damage to the thousands of bushels of grain at Midland and Port McNicoll, stated that the grain in the elevators at these points had not been affected A staff of men had been employed at these centres during the winter months fighting the menace with satisfactory results.

Considerable anxiety prevails among the remnant of C.N.R. employees at the local shops, etc., over the announcement to the effect that the directorate had announced a further reduction in man-power. It is claimed so many men have been laid off locally, that silence deep as death prevails around the local yard and shops compared with the bustle and activity of two years ago.

Pimples on Face. Caused Loss of Rest. Healed by Cuticura.

I tried about everything but could not get rid of them. I had the trouble about a year before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Within twenty-four hours they relieved the itching and burning, and after using them about three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Stanley Watling, 9212-109-A Ave., Edmonton, Alta.

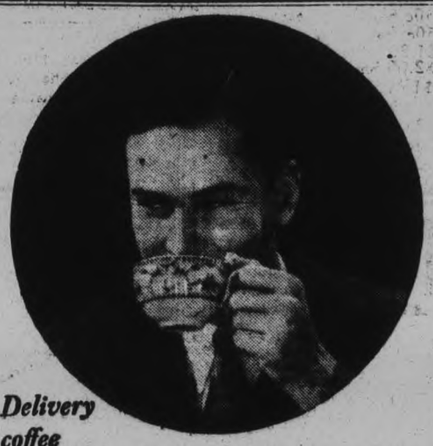
Superb in flavor... because it's Fresh from the roasting ovens



To make sure you get it always fresh, Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee is rushed straight from roasting ovens to grocers.

Swift.. Fresh-food Delivery guarantees this coffee against Staleness

JUST as milk must be delivered fresh . . . so must coffee, in order to be really good. For coffee is a fresh food, scientists now tell us, perishable, like milk or butter!

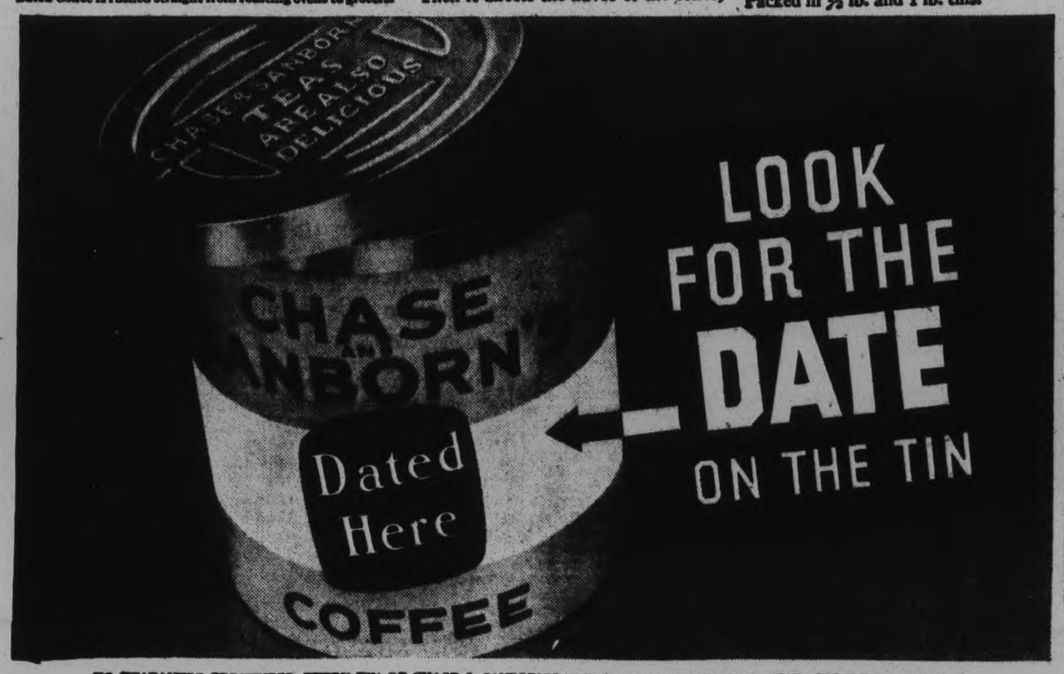
Perishable, because it contains a delicate oil, which, when fresh, carries the delicious flavor and aroma you love. But in a comparatively short time after roasting, this oil begins to turn rancid. Then it affects the flavor of the coffee, and often causes indigestion, headaches, sleeplessness.

To make sure you get absolutely fresh coffee, Chase & Sanborn's is rushed to your grocer straight from the roasting ovens, by the same Dominion-wide service that delivers Fleischmann's Yeast.

Every tin is stamped with the date of delivery . . . And no tin remains on any grocer's shelf more than ten days.

Buy a tin of this coffee, which has been Canada's favorite for over 50 years. Packed in ½ lb. and 1 lb. tins.



TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY TIN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS DATED THE DAY YOUR GROCER RECEIVES IT

MILLBROOK L.A.

St. Andrew's Group Discusses Holding Tea in Lieu of Garden Party.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, April 7.— Mrs. W. A. O'Brian entertained the Ladies' Association of St. Andrew's church for its April meeting, held at her home east of the village on Tuesday, at 3 p.m., the president, Mrs. Offa Williamson, being in the chair, and opening the gathering with a fitting call to worship, and prayer following the reading of Isaiah 53. There were approximately thirty present.

Renovations at the parsonage in recent weeks, for which the Association assumed financial responsibility, have included redecorating the dining-room, and rearrangement of electric light fixtures, accounts for same amounting to over forty dollars being presented, and on motion, order paid. The parsonage committee, with Mrs. G. Locke as convenor, had the improvements in charge.

New business included a discussion on holding a tea in the near future, the president mentioning outside sponsors willing to undertake the menu, the number of tickets necessary to be sold, the help in service to be given, and the amount that could readily be cleared. The idea was offered in lieu of the usual garden-party in June, and Mrs. Williamson was asked to secure definite information on the project.

A solo, "Christ Will Hold Me Fast", by Mrs. H. W. Johnston, with Miss E. Hetherington as accompanist, was much enjoyed, as was also the reading, "The New Church Organ", by Mrs. F. J. Smith.

Refreshments were served at the close, the hostess being assisted by Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. H. Dawson, and Mrs. Ross Edmunds in serving her guests, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Members were conveyed to the place of meeting through the courtesy of Mr. J. Albert Brown, who provided a team and sleigh for a load; also Mrs. O. Williamson, Miss M. E. Needham, G. E. Burnham and R. H. Edmunds who brought a number in their cars.

Mrs. O'Brian was warmly thanked for her hospitality before the gathering dispersed.

CHANGE MADE IN SALES TAX

Adjustment is Made in Exempt and Partially Exempt List.

INCREASED 2 PER CENT.

OTTAWA, Apr. 7 (By The Canadian Press)—An increase in sales tax from four to six per cent was announced in the budget speech of E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons yesterday.

A limited adjustment of the exempt and partially exempt list, in the case of a number of articles not primary products which it is believed should, under present conditions, carry a proportionate share of the burden takes place.

Chief items to be taken from the exempt list are bakers' cake and pies, lard compound and similar substances made from animal or vegetable searine or oil, ice cream, processed milk foods and cereal foods under customs items 45 and 46, and usual coverings for goods not subject to the sales tax. Biscuits are to be raised from the half to the full rate, Mr. Rhodes stated. Additional revenue would be obtained from this source, he added.

The two per cent increase in sales tax and the readjustment of the exemption list are in accordance with forecasts.

INSURANCE TAX IS ONE PER CENT

Levy Will Be Made Under the Special War Revenue Act.

NOT ON LIFE PREMIUMS.

OTTAWA, Apr. 7 (By The Canadian Press)—Imposition of a tax of one per cent of net premiums of insurance companies authorized to transact business in any province of Canada, other than life, marine and farm mutual was announced in the budget speech of E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in the House of Commons yesterday.

The tax upon insurance premiums passed at the last session was not put into effect by proclamation as provided by the statute, owing to difficulties over the jurisdiction of the dominion provinces in the matter of insurance, Mr. Rhodes remarked.

It is now proposed, under the special War Revenue Act, to impose a tax of 1 per cent of net premiums of insurance companies authorized to transact business in Canada or in any province of Canada, other than life, marine and farm mutual. This tax was in force from 1915 to 1929. British and foreign companies, not so authorized but maintaining deposits with the Dominion, will also be assessed 1 per cent of net premiums received in Canada. Canadian policy-holders who insure their property in Canada with companies other than those mentioned above, will be charged a tax of 10 per cent of the gross premiums payable on such insurance.

Simply, twice a day, apply to face and throat a generous lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Work well into the pores with your hands. TRENT RIVER, April 7. — Mr. H. H. Pollock, one of the early settlers in Trent River, has a number of old and interesting books in his possession, cover dated over one hundred and thirty years ago. One particularly interesting book is a geographical, historical and commercial grammar to which is added astronomical geography of the planets, the comets, the fixed stars and the different systems of the universe.

By William Guthrie, Esq. The astronomical part by James Ferguson, F.R.S., to which have been added the late discoveries of Dr. Herschel and other eminent astronomers; illustrated with a correct set of maps, printed in Pater-noster Row, London, England, in the year 1801.

Also an old Guthrie geography containing a modern universal table showing how moneys were reckoned by the respective nations.

A chronological table of remarkable events, discoveries and inventions, with dates, given from the Creation up to 1800. There are 105-6 pages in the geography.

Also an old dictionary of the English tongue, containing the alphabet in Roman, Italick, Old English.

HAVELOCK GUIDES VISIT MARMORA

Girls Spend Jolly Evening Staging Mixed Program, Songs, Games.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 7. — Another memorable evening was spent by the 1st Marmora Company of Girl Guides at the White Hall on Monday when 28 members of the 1st Havelock Company, under Capt. Mrs. G. Moore, and Lieut. Miss Ina Morrison, were welcomed as visitors.

Greetings from the Marmora girls to the Havelock girls were succeeded by a personal welcome from Captain Mrs. F. S. Pearce.

After Rev. A. B. Caldwell had addressed the assembly on Friendship, Captain Mrs. Moore suitably responded to the welcome. Then came the registering of the Havelock Guides and a song by the Marmora Company, "We are here each one to do our part," which was the prelude for the following pleasing program:

March, twenty Marmora girls; recitation, "Can't and Will," Ida Kowie; recitation, 'The Price,' Kathleen Rice; piano solo, Olive Airhart; "The Foolish Guide Song," Havelock Guides, encore, "Listen to the Song of the Frogs in Yonder Pond;" game "Zig-Zag," introduced by the Havelock Guides, Japanese drill, six Marmora Guides; pianoforte duet, Mary and Eileen Flynn; song, by Marmora Guides, song, by youngest Marmora Guide; Hike song, Havelock Guide; piano solo, Grace Prentice; recitation, "My Dolly," Theresa Burridge; dialogue, "Brother Gridden's Visit," six Marmora Guides; hymn, "Jesus Bids us Shine." 6 Marmora Guides.

Following the serving of delicious refreshments Captain Mrs. Moore gave a very impressive talk in which she touched upon the third Guide law, and extended thanks to the Marmora Association and company for all that had been done in honor of the Havelock Guides.

Lieut. Ina Morrison, Verna Johnston, Marie Bedford and Betty Mathieson (youngest of the visiting Guides) in delightful short speeches, supported their Captain's remarks.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell, at the invitation of Captain Mrs. Pearce, also spoke words of encouragement to the companies preceding the Guides' Evensong and Taps. As the meeting broke up each company carried away the thought that it had profited much from this real "get together," and the hope that friendships will be renewed at Havelock a few weeks hence.

Bad Cough Ended

Catarrh Driven Out

How Mrs. McDonald Got Well.

From St. John, N.B., comes the convincing testimony of Mrs. Harry E. McDonald of 345 City Road: "As a long sufferer from catarrh and asthma, I can testify to the remarkably beneficial action of Cattarhozone. When coughing spasms come on, Catarrhozone gives me immediate relief. A few breaths taken through the inhaler clear the nose, throat and enable me to breathe freely Catarrhozone has relieved me of chronic catarrh in the nose and throat. To prevent colds and keep the breathing organs in good condition, I know of nothing so efficient as Catarrhozone."

Catarrhozone is needed in every home. Large size lasts 2 months price $1.00; small size 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES

12,720 WORKERS STILL ON ROADS

Finlayson Announces $8,000,000 Been Spent in North Since September.

CAMPS BEING REDUCED.

TORONTO, April 6 (C.P.)—The Ontario Government has spent $8,000,000 since last September on unemployment relief in the north, Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests declared today. Some 12,720 men are still employed on relief projects, including the trans-Canada Highway camps. The Government is gradually reducing the number, he declared, and negotiations with the Federal Government to continue some branches of activity after May 1 are now being carried on.

Most of the men, the Minister said, had managed to save "nest eggs" through the department's policy of co-operation with the banks. Bank clerks had gone to the various camps, he said, and many workers had established bank accounts.

It was planned to complete the section in the Ottawa Valley east from North Bay, as well as to concentrate on the western section of the highway from Vermillion to Kenora, he declared.

JAPS ADVANCE IN MANCHURIA

Column Moves Cautiously From Korea to Troubled Districts.

EARLY BATTLE LIKELY.

(By Glenn Babb, A.P. Staff Correspondent.)

TOKYO, April 6 (C.P.). — The campaign of the Japanese in Manchuria to eradicate armed opposition to the new Federated State Government at Changchun continued active to-day on at least two fronts, according to despatches to the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency

The Japanese column marching in from Korea pushed cautiously northward into the Chientao district and occupied Paitsaokou, recently a trouble centre, where 700 anxious Japanese residents gave the troops an enthusiastic welcome

The rebel forces of General Wan Teh-Lin are still concentrated near Paitsaokou and an early battle was expected.

Air Base Set Up

A Japanese air base has been established at Chutzukai and aeroplanes already have begun scouting operations throughout the Chientao district, ready to support the infantry.

Another rebel force, largely composed of members of the "big swords" society, has occupied the village of Santsaokou, west of Paitsaokou, the despatches said, and the rebels destroyed the Japanese and Manchukuo flags set up by the new government, replacing them with Chinese Nationalist banners.

A despatch to the Rengo Agency from Harbin said General Jiro Tamon's command lost seven killed and 40 wounded in fighting preceding the occupation of Fangcheng yesterday and the Chinese were believed to have lost at least 500 killed and 1,500 wounded.

A very pleasant event took place last evening in All Saints Parish Hall, when a banquet was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George Land and sons, Fred and Harold, by the men's and women's section of the bowling club. Mr. and Mrs. Land and Fred are returning home to England after spending twenty-one years in Canada, and Harold can claim Peterborough as his birthplace. At 6.30 p.m. about fifty guests sat down to a sumptuous banquet, the tables being beautifully arranged in the dining room. Decorations were in yellow and pale green with yellow daffodils in silver baskets and bud vases, yellow candles in silver holders, green serviettes and fluted green runners. Guests of honor at the head table were the Rev. J. D. Paterson, Mrs. Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Spicer, Mr. and Mrs. Land, Mr. Fred Land, Mr. Harold Land, and Mr. C. H. Wiggins, president of the club, who presided as chairman. Community singing of old favorites was indulged in, with Mr. George Groombridge at the piano. Mr. Wiggins proposed the toast to the King, followed by singing the National Anthem, after which Rev. Mr. Paterson expressed the regret felt by All Saints' people in parting with Mr. Land and family, and the hopes and best wishes of all for their health, wealth and happiness in their home-land; in conclusion, whimsically expressing the hope that Mr. Land would miss his friends here and often think of the good times enjoyed on All Saints' bowling green, when he might be bowling on greens four hundred years old. He proposed a toast to Mrs. Land, on behalf of the ladies' singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Wiggins, on behalf of the Men's Club, presented Mr. Land with a handsome leather club bag and Mrs. J. D. Paterson presented Mr. Land, on behalf of the ladies' section, with a monogramed leather purse. Mr. Land, on behalf of himself and family thanked the club for the honor conferred upon them, the kind words of the speakers and the handsome tokens of remembrance presented to them. Mr. G. B. Richardson ,the first president of the club, made a few remarks, speaking of Mr. Land as one of the first members of the club, who had worked hard in its interests. Mr. G. A. Spicer moved a vote of thanks to the ladies who had provided the banquet, and Mrs. R. Page, president of the ladies' section, replied expressing the pleasure it afforded the ladies, and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Land best wishes and a safe journey. Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of the social committee, consisting of Miss M. Elliotson, Mrs. C. Curtis, and Mrs. W. H. Fisher. The evening's entertainment concluded with a carpet bowling tournament of mixed players, Mr. Lucas' rink being the winners of the prize.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

A novel way to keep young children entertained is to get them to make paper patchwork squares. These are formed of pieces of different colored paper, cut by the child to fit together until the entire square is covered by them.

• • • • • • •

The foundation should be stiff paper or cardboard, which is better still. Each bit of paper is pasted onto the foundation first marked off into one or more large squares measuring ten or twelve inches each side.

• • • • • • •

Fancy lining in envelopes is just the thing for this work. Colored paper of any kind can be used, although tissue paper is so thin that the paste may show through, and is not so good as heavier kinds.

• • • • • • •

Old magazine covers and any colored pictures can be cut regardless of the designs on them. The pictorial pages can be considered as cretonnes and chintzes which when used for textile patchwork are cut without regard to pattern.

• • • • • • •

Some black and sepia printed pages will supply dull colors to accent the bright ones.

• • • • • • •

Let the children carry out their own ideas. They may make attractive mosiac squares with no design attempted by them, but the good effect resulting from the blending of the colors.

• • • • • • •

Some children will attempt to duplicate genuine patchwork patterns, especially if they have watched their mother or grandmother making these quilts.

• • • • • • •

A mother does well to watch this work. A good way to do this without seeming in any way to interfere with the original ideas of the child is to offer a little prize which may well be called an incentive prize.

• • • • • • •

The mother should remember too in judging of patterns that many of the most effective patchwork quilts consist of squares that are extremely simple in design, but which assembled are as effective as intricate ones.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

UNBLOCKING A SUIT

Getting rid of blocking cards is frequently a troublesome question both for Declarer and for adversaries. With the Declarer the problem occurs when he has cards of equal rank in both hands, but is short of entries in one hand or the other. With opponents of the Declarer the issue becomes acute when they find they have an established suit, but either through the peculiarities of distribution or through carelessness, the player with the least number is unable to permit his partner to run the suit.

Today's hand is an example of unblocking by the Declarer to avoid a later disadvantageous lead at a Slam contract.

Neither side vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

Through somewhat ambitious bidding, barely justified by the honor-tricks held and the ascertained fit of the hands, South was playing a contract of six hearts. West had overcalled South's Opening bid of a club with one diamond, but there had been no further adverse bidding. As North had bid spades, West counted on the possibility of 2 tricks in diamonds to defeat the contract and therefore opened his Singleton club, not so much with the hope of securing a ruff as of gracefully surrendering the lead which he found an undesirable burden.

The first round of clubs was won in the Dummy and South then proceeded to lead trumps, but he found that the adverse hearts were divided 4-2. It was necessary to lead all his trumps in order to pick up East's four rags. South then realized that the remaining club honor in the Dummy was a menace. His clubs were of equal trick-taking power, but while the commanding club was in the Dummy, they could not be run. On the fourth round of hearts, therefore, South discarded Dummy's remaining club and then led four more rounds of clubs. West had been compelled to discard twice on the trumps. He now was forced to find four other discards. He selected for discards three diamonds and three spades, while South discarded all the diamonds in the Dummy, retaining the four spades intact. East had followed suit to the first nine rounds and on South's tenth round of play, he led the Queen of spades. West's play was entirely immaterial. As a matter of fact, he refused to play the King, hoping that South would be afraid to take the spade finesse. However, the success of the finesse was essential, so the Queen was permitted to ride and when the finesse held, South led his last spade, thus making every trick, as all of Dummy's spades were good.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: State Dummy's ruffing values.

Answer:

With 3 Trumps	With 4 or more Trumps
A void is worth 2 tricks	3 tricks
A singleton is worth 1 trick	2 tricks
A doubleton is worth ½ trick	1 trick

Note:—Having two short suits, count only the shorter as trumps may be led.

Chesterfield House Rings To Auctioneer

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 7. — Chesterfield House, until recently the London home of Mary, Princess Royal, and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, to-day entered on the most melancholy stage of its dissolution.

In the lofty rooms where Lord Chesterfield of the eighteenth century, famous for his elegance, used to converse with his friends, there was heard this morning the hard, snappy tones of an auctioneer, surrounded by the usual mixed crowd of dealers and persons drawn to the scene by curiosity.

The Princess Royal and the Earl have removed their principal belongings to a new home in Green Street. Nevertheless, a considerable quantity of articles has been left at Chesterfield House for auction.

The house itself appears likely to go the way of Dorchester House, Devonshire House, and a score of others which have completely disappeared during recent years.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

GIVING THE HOSPITAL A PERSONALITY.

How many patients or their families really want to see their loved one enter the hospital, although they know that the care there is of the very best? Very few.

"Why is it that the hospital, built on sentiment, and on a spirit of service to the physically and mentally unfortunate and sick and suffering, fails more often to achieve fully, its whole purpose, as compared with the hotel, and the store, and the movie, and the gasoline station."

This is a question asked in an address to the Children's Hospital Association by the president, Dr. Joseph Brennemann, Chicago.

One of the reasons, pointed out, is that a hospital, like any other machine, is as weak as its weakest part. Somewhere between the time the patient enters and leaves the hospital there is apt to occur a slip, an unfortunate experience, a misunderstanding about a bill, especially the laboratory fee, and the 'incidentals,' a seemingly unexplained delay of some kind; or, possibly an encounter with a nurse who seems to be more interested in the orderliness of her linen closet and her daily routine than she is in the comfort of the patient; or with the interne physician who seems to be always 'busy'; or with the hard and fast laws of hospital rules and routine.

In other words, the hospital trustees, the superintendent, the medical and surgical staff, the nurses, X-ray, massage, and other officials right down to the door man give the hospital a good or bad name with the public, irrespective of the failures and successes in treatment.

A recent editorial of the Journal of the American Medical Association states, "Many a hospital board has been disturbed by the apparent loss of goodwill on the part of the community that it serves without realizing that its employees at the door have apparently never heard of the idea of service. Many a patient and many a relative of patients have been antagonized by an insolent attendant at the desk, or a discourteous employee at the telephone."

Dr. Brenneman says he can sum up the remedy in one word—tradition. There are hospitals in which it is traditional that kindliness, attentiveness, thoughtfulness, and a spirit of service prevail throughout. There are others in which hard rules and chilliness are most evident.

"The staff—from highest to lowest—should have a keen sympathy and a genuine love for the work and for the human souls who occupy the sickbeds."

New Brunswick pulp and paper mills used 15 per cent more wood in 131 than in the previous year, a total of 483,458 cords of pulpwood entering into their manufacturing operations.

TEACHERS VISITED GENERAL MOTORS

Technical School Teachers Spend Their Holidays Working.

Motor mechanics teachers of the Technical Schools of the province were the guests of General Motors of Canada at Oshawa during the Easter vacation. Both last year and this year's vacation was spent by these men in bringing themselves up to date on the new developments of the subject they are teaching to the students of their schools.

Most subjects taught in the schools are of a more or less stabilized nature but every year brings new ideas to the motor car industry which must be incorporated into the courses of motor mechanics. Day and evening students of the technical schools are being placed in the industry and the teachers are showing a real interest in their work by taking advantage of the time and opportunity offered in obtaining first hand information on the latest developments of the industry.

The facilities of the Service School of General Motors was at the disposal of the Technical School teachers. Last year the features and developments of the Chevrolet and Buick Eight with recommended shop and service practices were covered. This year four makes of cars were covered and a course in body maintenance and finishing was offered. A large number of educational films was also crowded into a busy week and all those that took the work expressed their appreciation and benefit obtained.

On Wednesday night the round-table conference of the O.E.A. for this group of teachers was held in the Genosha Hotel following a banquet tendered to the officials and instructors of the General Motors Corporation. Several pertinent questions and resolutions were discussed and the feeling was expressed by all that more had been accomplished at this meeting than at any previous conference ever held by the group.

On Friday evening at a banquet given by General Motors to the visiting teachers, F. S. Rutherford, Director of Technical Education of the province of Ontario stated that it was a most unique occasion wherein the teachers were meeting with an industry and discussing ways and means of bringing the industry and vocational school students together and inculcating the idea of service which is the backbone of the industry.

A representation from 20 schools in 15 cities and towns in the province with a total of 29 teachers took advantage of the special courses offered during the week.

SAVED IMPORTED DRESS

"After a little wearing, a lovely green voile—an imported dress—lost color so completely that it was not wearable. A friend who had admired it asked me why I wasn't wearing it any more. On hearing the reason, she advised dyeing it and recommended Diamond Dyes. To make a long story short, it turned out beautifully. I have a lovely new dress that really cost just 15c—the price of one package of Diamond Dyes.

"I have since used Diamond Dyes for both tinting and dyeing. They do either equally well. I am not an expert dyer, but I never have a failure with Diamond Dyes. They seem to be made so they always go on smoothly and evenly. They never spot, streak or run; and friends never know the things I dye with Diamond Dyes are redyed at all!" Mrs. R. F., Quebec.

LEAGUE GROUP STUDYING REDS

Commission Watch General Ho's Steps in Hupeh Province.

ARMY OF 60,000.

HANKOW, China, April 7 (C.P.)—The question of Communism in Central China absorbed the interest of the League of Nations inquiry commission during its visit here more than anything else except possibly the flood relief work.

The closest contact they established with the Communists' activity was when they heard Chinese army airplanes roaring out to the Communist front 40 miles west of here where the planes bombed the Red forces, following reports that the latter contemplate attacking Hankow.

It is estimated there are at least 60,000 Communists in Hupeh Province. The most powerful group, Government leaders say, is under the command of General Ho Lung, who is feared throughout China.

General Ho's forces are established west of Hankow. The General, though long a member of the Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) is particularly bitter against General Chiang Kai-Shek.

Well Armed.

General Ho's troops have caused apprehension among Government troops for many months. They have plenty of arms and ammunition, but little artillery and no airplanes.

The Red general contends that his forces do not pillage the country as his enemies allege, and that he has ample means to support his followers.

Another Communist element about which the commission inquired is the "Soviet Government for the borders of Honan, Anhui, and Hupei" where the Communists have set up a provisional Government with Chilliping as its capital.

According to a Chinese citizen who was captured and who later escaped, a number of Russian advisers and officers are attached to the Red camps. This General Ho Lung denies.

NAVY BOAT TO BE CLEARED OF BLAME FOR COLLISION

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 7. — A navy court has completed an inquiry into a collision Sunday night by the navy patrol boat Eagle 34 and the British motorship Javanese Prince, in which two navy officers and several enlisted men were injured.

The court's findings were not made public, but it was indicated unofficially to-day that Lieut. Joseph T. Talbert, Commander of the submarine chaser, and other officers of the craft would be cleared of blame.

Capt. Benjamin Morrison of the Javanese Prince and his officers were invited to appear before the court, but the ship sailed for Yokohama early Tuesday.

Belleville Inventor Perfects Tiny Organ

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 7 (C.P.).—Morse Robb, local inventor, after seven years' experimenting, has perfected a small wave organ, said to have the power of the largest pipe organ, but occupying only about as much room as an ordinary writing desk.

Demonstrating his organ, Mr. Robb, son of W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, explains that his invention is one which produces musical tones from electrically - induced vibrations rather than from blowing air through pipes. It will play like an ordinary organ console with manuals, pedals and stops.

DRAWING LESSONS FOR OUR KIDDIES

It is just as easy to draw a picture of a top as it is to draw a heart, for they are both almost the same shape. So when you have made your drawing of the top it will be very easy to turn it into a goat. Now you had better get some paper and a pencil and make your little fingers get busy. Let your eyes see just what your fingers can do.

Benny's Sailboat Fleet

BENNY was a little boy, who lived by a river that ran into a great bay. He just loved to dabble in water, and was always begging for a boat.

One day he asked his father if he would not make him a boat. So his father got out his huge jack-knife and made him a small sailboat. He made Benny five more of these boats. These boats Benny called his fleet, and he sailed them in a little cove where the water was not too deep, nor too rough. Benny just loved to sail this fleet. He would sail them for an hour at a time. Benny gave each of the boats a name. Their names were "Pearl," "Phoebe," "Dolphin," "Star," "Racer" and "Mary." The last named was for his mother. The "Mary" was the fastest and best of all the sailboats.

Late one afternoon Benny came home from the river and found his father and mother very much excited.

His father had just received a letter from Benny's grandfather, who lived on a big ranch away out west. He had written to Benny's father asking him to come and help raise sheep and cattle. Benny's mother did not want to go, but she was finally persuaded, and in a few days Benny's father and mother commenced to pack up their things, and what they did not want to take they sold or gave away.

Next day, with the help of his mother, Benny carefully packed his ships in a big box.

In another few weeks the little family reached the far-off ranch, where Benny's grandfather gave them a rousing welcome. Grandaddy had a pony for Benny to ride, also a beautiful little puppy to follow him around. The pup was a collie, and Benny called him Jack. Benny's grandfather gave him two baby lambs for his very own.

Benny was so busy with seeing new things and playing with his new pets that he did not say anything about his ships. But wherever he went he looked to see if there was a pond or brook, even if it was ever so tiny, but he could not find one.

"Do you like it here, Benny?" asked his grandfather one day. Benny had been there for nearly four weeks, as they stood looking over the flat plain.

"Yes, grandfather, I do," said Benny, patting the puppy's head. "All I want now, though, is a brook."

"A brook?" questioned his grandfather. "What do you want a brook for?"

Then Benny answered. "You know, grandfather, of all my playthings I have always loved my tiny sailboats the best. I'm lonesome when I can not sail them. Their names are 'Pearl,' 'Phoebe,' 'Dolphin,' 'Star,' 'Racer' and 'Mary.' I have six beautiful boats. Oh, how I do wish I could play with them."

Grandfather whistled, and then he laughed.

"We must sail them," he exclaimed.

"But there is no water," said Benny, "except in a tub."

"Water is not the only element, nor the only fluid. Water does not swell the sails."

"No, the wind does that," admitted Benny.

Grandfather now went to work and made a frame with six arms, and on each arm he fastened a ship.

On the top of a tall pole in the yard he fixed a strong pivot, and on the pivot he put the frame like a wheel on its axle. Soon a breeze was filling the sails, and the ships were gently careening around. By and by the wind blew harder, and the ships increased their speed. Benny shouted for joy, and called everybody to see.

"They are going 60 knots an hour," said his father.

So now the ships had a place where they could sail east, west, north and south, and many a time they went so fast that even Benny could not tell which was "Pearl," or which was "Phoebe," or which was "Dolphin," or "Star," or "Racer" or "Mary."

MOTHER GOOSE DOT PUZZLE

Taking the basket, Hittya started for his sister's house.

THE STINGY WIFE

FAR away in the East there lived a man named Hittya, who was married to a stingy wife. She was only stingy and grudging to the husband's relatives, but to her own kin she was very generous.

One day Hittya's sister came to his home while Hittya was out in the fields working.

Hittya was very fond of his sister and when he found she had come for help he said to his wife:

"Wife, give my dear sister plenty to eat and drink, and give her a full bag of our best rice, so that she will have something to eat when she returns to her home. I must return to my work."

But the stingy wife instead of giving the sister plenty to eat and drink, gave her only a piece of stale cake and instead of a well-filled bag of good rice, gave her an old bag filled with chaff and dust and other refuse.

But as it chanced the sister passed near the field where her brother was working, and she was weeping and lamenting saying:

"Oh! If Hittya had stayed at home she would have treated me better, only a stale cake to eat and this worthless chaff!"

Hittya heard this complaint and listened as his sister continued: "But no matter what Hittya's wife does, I still wish good to them both!"

Hittya came to her side. "Weep no more, my sister, but go home and I will soon go to your house and see that you no longer want for anything."

So the sister went on her way and Hittya returned to his house.

"Wife," he said, "did you do as I told you and give my sister ample to eat and a bag of our best rice?"

"Of course," said the stingy wife. "I gave her just what you told me to bestow."

"Very well," said Hittya, who said no more for two or three days. Then he announced:

"I hear your mother is ill. Cook me some rice and other things to eat and I will take them to her."

So the wife cooked the rice and some dainties, but she opened Hittya's box where he kept his money and taking out 30 ridio, which are small silver pieces of money, she hid them in the very bottom of the case of cooked rice.

Taking the package, Hittya went to the house of his sister and opening the package told her to eat, but at the very bottom he found the money.

"I see," he said, "why my money disappears," and he stayed on with his sister.

But at his own home the wife wondered at his long absence and when a washerwoman came by the house she asked:

"Washerwoman, did you see my husband at my mother's home?"

"No," replied the woman, "but I saw him at his sister's, where he is now staying."

But the wife was frightened, remembering the 30 ridio, and she began to mutter: "Thirty ridio, 30 ridio, 30 ridio," over and over again.

By and by she began to change, to lose her human form, but still she kept repeating, "Thirty ridio, 30 ridio," and she finally became a lapwing that ever cries in alarm, "Hotae tikiri, hotae tikiri," which in the Ceylonese language means "Thirty ridio, 30 ridio."

"Well, that was nice, wasn't it? You like having a ride on uncle's knee, eh?"

Small Nephew—"Not bad—but I had a ride on a real donkey yesterday."

GAMES TO PLAY

Bounce Ball.

A circle of three or four feet in diameter is drawn, into which one of the players, holding a basketball steps. About 12 feet away a large semi-circle is drawn. The other players toe this circle. The player in the circle bounces the ball against the ground and on the rebound catches it and immediately throws it at the running players. If he hits one, the one hit must take his place. If he misses, the ball is returned to him and he tries again. When the center player begins to bounce the ball the other players run in all directions.

Fire.

For this game two captains are chosen and each chooses in turn his players. All are then seated in two rows facing each other. One captain suddenly throws to one of the players opposite a knotted handkerchief, at the same time calling out either "Earth," "Water," "Air" or "Fire." If the word "Earth" is called the player into whose lap the handkerchief falls must name immediately, before the captain can count ten, some animal which lives on the earth. If "Water" is the word he must name a fish. If "Air" he must name a bird. If "Fire" he must remain perfectly silent. Should the player fail to name the right creature or speak when he should be silent, he must drop out of the game, and the one who threw the handkerchief must try again. If the player answers correctly, it is his turn to throw the handkerchief and call out the names of the elements.

The game goes on until all of one side has dropped out, when the opposing side has won.

The Fleet of May.

Two adjacent rows play a game together. The first of May is moving time and the seats are houses. One player is chosen to be "It," and he walks up and down the street between the two rows. The residents along the street change houses before and behind him and he tries to get a house while it is vacated. The seats not occupied and one more must be marked and not used in the game, so that there is at all times one person without a house. If the players do not move often enough the one who is "It" may number the players, and then, when he calls two or three numbers, they must change places.

Beetle Goes Around.

The players form a circle, facing inward and standing close together. Hands are grasped behind, right hand in the left. One or more of the players run around the outside of circle with a beetle. He gives this beetle to a player without being seen by the rest and calls out, "Beetle, strike!" The one who receives the beetle begins chasing around the circle, the one standing to his right striking him as often as possible with the beetle. Beetles can be made by the boys. Use strong cloth, making them about 12 inches long and four in diameter. The bag is filled with cotton and a cloth handle is attached.

This game is suitable for boys or girls.

Toronto Nationals Win Senior Hockey Honors

SEA FLEAS WIN ALLAN CUP BY 1-0 OVERTIME VICTORY McMULLEN SCORES WINNER

Late Rally of Thundering Herd Held in Check By Clever Defensive Hockey.

A SHORT SERIES.

Queen City Takes Senior Championship for First Time Since 1927.

FORUM, Montreal, April 7. —The Allan Cup, representing the amateur hockey championship of the Dominion, was taken to Toronto last night by the Sea Fleas of the National Yacht Club. Jimmy McMullen's unassisted goal, after 4 minutes and 35 seconds of overtime, beat the thundering herd from Fort William, Western Canada champions, 1 to 0, and gave the Torontonians the title which Winnipeg captured last year. Toronto had not won the Canadian title since 1927, when it was captured by University of Toronto Grads.

The Nationals beat the Westerners, 7 to 4, in overtime on Monday night, and the victory last night gave them two straight wins in the three-game series. The cup was handed to the Nationals immediately after the game, while a crowd of 4,500, well sprinkled with Toronto people, cheered themselves hoarse.

Cleverly Scored Goal.

McMullen's polished goal was the bright spot in a dull game. Skating quickly down centre, with Lough patrolling the other wing, McMullen dodged through the defence and whipped the puck into the net. He cut across right in front of Goldie Hacquoil.

The Herd tried a comeback, but it was too late, and the Nationals sat back for the remaining six minutes and played clever defensive hockey. Collins got a penalty in the last minute of play, but the Nationals managed to hold off the desperate Herd till the bell ended the game.

Buoyed by the consoling memories of their 7-4 victory in the first game, the Nationals were vastly improved over their first appearance. They presented a tricky and close-checking defence that foiled the fast Forts at nearly every turn, and their smooth passing thrusts at the Westerners' goal were always dangerous. Twice the Nationals stood off the heavier Herd with three men against five, exclusive of the goaltenders.

The Western champions started at a fast clip, and kept up a steady drive through the three periods and right up to the end of the extra overtime period. The adverse score in overtime merely served to spur them on.

"Stuffy" Mueller, chubby Toronto goaltender, showed himself as a clever netminder last night, and was largely responsible for the Nationals' victory.

Both goalers looked better last night than they did in the first game. Opposing forwards were through to them on many occasions, and only lucky guesses and smart stops kept the puck out of the twine on half a dozen occasions.

The Westerners handed out many robust body checks in an effort to slow the fast Red Shirts, while the husky Western forwards sped through the Toronto defence more easily. Harnia Hermanson was the outstanding figure on the Forts' squad last night. He was always in the thick of the play, and his swinging stick hemmed the Nationals in behind their own blue line for a minute at a time. His shooting was deadly in the Toronto defence area, as "Stuffy" Mueller found out.

Cleverer hockey earned the title for the Toronto squad. They broke quickly, made their plays cleverly, and were better stick-handlers. They turned on more speed last night and held their own with the Forts in that department.

Phar Lap's Remains To Be Shipped Home

MENLO PARK, Cal., April 7. — Phar Lap, monarch of the Australian turf in his lifetime, is to be sent home to perpetuate the memory of one of the greatest thoroughbreds ever reared under the Southern Cross.

The great red gelding, whose untimely death here Tuesday stunned the racing world, is to be mounted in this country. A San Francisco taxidermist started on the work today.

Rumors Prevalent

Although colic has been generally accepted as the cause of Phar Lap's death, rumors flew thick and fast yesterday. In some quarters it was hinted the horse had died from poisoning placed in his feed-bag.

Newspapermen were told today by David J. Davis, the owner of the horse, valued at $500,000, that he definitely had accepted the first findings of veterinarians.

DETROIT QUINTET ROLLS HIGH TOTAL

Team of Ten-pin Topplers Knock Over Maples For 3,080 Point Average.

DETROIT, April 7 (C.P.)—For the fourth time in the current American Bowling Congress tournament, a team of ten-pin topplers has rolled a 3,080 total.

The cheney-Trombleys, crack Detroit quintet, bowled games of 995, 1,005 and 1,010 last night—the most consistent shooting of the tournament—to vault into fourth place in the standings of the main event with a 3,010.

To-night, the celebrated Canfield Oils of Cleveland, rated by the fraternity as one of the highest-powered fives in the country, swung into action. The quintet is led by "Skang" Mercurio. This has been a tough season for highly-touted teams, but tournament followers are expecting this quintet to shake up the standings.

There were only two changes among the leaders in the minor events yesterday. Hartman and Ehrle, Detroit, tied for sixth position in the doubles with a total of 1,295, on games of 403, 460 and 432. Hartman rolled 237, 235 and 237 for a 709, to which he added 580 for his singles event score. A 617 for his team score gave him a total of 1906 and tenth position in the All-Events.

CANINE WIN BLOW TO TECS

London Need Victory To-night to Retain Round Robin Series Lead.

MAY UPSET DOPE.

TORONTO, Ont., April 7. (CP)— With every club in the hunt, to-night's games in the International Hockey League's round-robin play-off series will have a good deal to do with which squad will hold the league title and the Oke trophy for the ensuing year. London Tecumsehs, with a point lead over Detroit and Buffalo, stand out as the most threatening contenders. Their chances can be dimmed, however, if Bulldogs manage to inflict the initial defeat on the Londoners in the play-offs.

Bulldogs are by no means out of the race and a victory on London ice will put them right in the battle for the King circuit title. Having scored three straight shutouts in the play-offs to date, goalie Herb Stuart will be after records to-night when his squad engage the Border sextette. Thirteen shutouts to his credit in the regular schedule, Stuart has surpassed the former league record by four and will attempt to blank Herbie Mitchell's squad in order to keep Tecumsehs on the top rung.

George Hay and his fighting Detroit Olympics invade Buffalo to-night in the other scheduled tilt. Both squads are in need of a victory to remain in the championship hunt and a lively tussle is ensured.

Leafs And Rangers Resting In Boston

BOSTON, Mass., April 7. — The Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers with one game already to the Leafs' advantage in the Stanley Cup hockey series, arrived here yesterday to renew the struggle in the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Shunted out of Madison Square Garden in New York by the invading circus, the Rangers named Boston their "home ice" for the second game of the three-out-of-five series.

Each team will enjoy a full day of complete rest here. The rival managers had planned workouts for their squads late yesterday, but were forced to call off these preparations when it was learned the Boston Garden ice had been removed.

Manager Conny Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin of the Leafs will start tonight's game with the same line-up that turned back the Rangers 6-4 Tuesday night. The "kid" forward wall of Charley Conacher, Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau will again get the call here, but this time they will be opposed at the start by the Ranger veteran trio, the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher. Manager Lester Patrick opened the first game with his reserves on the front line.

Knights Win Four Points On Tuesday

With the nine teams of the Inter-Alley Bowling League completing half their schedule at three different alleys Tuesday night, the winners of the three groups all made a clean sweep of the points. Group 1 teams played at the K. of C., with the Knights capturing four points and blanking both the "Y" and Duffus' bowlers. The absence of Fred Hickey, ace Duffus' pin-spiller, made a great difference.

Group 2 teams, which rolled at the "Y," saw the K. of C. entry cleaning up with all four points points over Duffus and Y.M.C.A. The Group 3 outfits burned them down the Duffus' alleys with the Duffus boys annexing four points, holding "Y" and Knights off the score sheet. The teams, and the game-results follow:

DOLAN INVESTIGATION.

MONTREAL, Apr. 7 (By The Canadian Press)—Choosing Vancouver as the scene of the next Allen cup finals and Toronto as the venue for next season's Memorial Cup finals, reporting on the charges against Maritime hockey made by Dr. D. Leo Dolan, and electing Frank C. Greenleaf, of Montreal, president, in succession to J. W. Hamilton, of Regina, the fifteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association concluded here yesterday.

It was decided to allow Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Edmonton Superiors, Toronto Nationals and an all-star team from the Maritimes to tour Europe next season. The control of these tours were placed in the hands of the British Ice Hockey Association.

With regard to the Dolan charges the committee appointed to investigate them in their report stated that Dolan "did not feel it obligatory" to appear before the executive of the maritimes branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, found "it to be impossible' to come the annual meeting here and "in his letter he states that he only knows what he was told and that he "did not take any trouble to secure affidavits."

Other officers elected besides Mr. Greenleaf were: first vice-president, E. A. Gilroy, Portage La Prairie, Man.; second vice-president, Cecil Duncan, Ottawa; registration committee, E. G. Murphy, Fort William; Leo Burns, Montreal; H. P. Conklin, Brockville, Ont.; H. O. Schryer, Bathurst, N.B.; Stanley Smith, Vancouver; W. A. Hewitt, Toronto, chairman, F. H. Marples, Winnipeg, secretary and W. A. Hewitt, Toronto, registrar-treasurer, continued in their offices.

The finance committee granted $2,000 to the Canadian Olympic committee to help send Canadian representatives to the Olympic game at Los Angeles, this summer.

Scotch Strain Helps Conditions In Canada

TORONTO, April 6. (C.P.) — "Conditions are better in Canada because Canadian were not as madly excited as Americans by post - war conditions," declared Arthur Stringer, famous author, in an interview here to-day. "There is a stability among Canadians that is probably due to the Scottish strain among them" he said. Mr. Stringer is visiting Toronto.

He does not approve of the mutilation of stories for the films. Of his own story, "The Prairie Wife" he said: "I didn't see it in the process of making. I didn't see it until it came around to the neighborhood theatre. It was my story and I thought I would take the family—make it a real family event. At the end of the first reel, I reached under the seat for my hat and sneaked out by the fire escape. What they did to that story was awful. I was so ashamed when I saw it."

PLAYERS DIVIDE HALF OF RECEIPTS

Rinks and Athletes Receive Greater Portion of Receipts in Hockey Play-offs.

TORONTO, April 7. — According to the financial arrangements for the National League and Stanley Cup play-offs, the rinks in which the games are played and the players get the greater poportion of the gate receipts. In all five series, the two first place clubs for the league championship, which was of the best two out of three game variety, the three home and home total goals to count in series and the Stanley Cup final, which is also of the three out of five games nature, the rinks in which the games are played get 42½ per cent. of the gate.

Of the remainder the players divide half of it on a 60-40 basis, the winners naturally getting the bigger share. The other half is divided 27 per cent. to the winning club, 18 to the losing club and five per cent. to the league. This plan is followed in the three "home and home games" series and for the first three games in the best "three out of five" struggles. The players share only in the receipts of the first three games of the longer series. In case there are one or more additional games played to decide the winning team the gate receipts are divided, after the customery rink's share is deducted, 57 per cent. to the winning club, 38 per cent. to the losing club and five per cent. to the league.

Leafs Get 60 Per Cent.

Summed up, the Leafs have secured the winners' 60 per cent. of the players' half of the gate in the series against Chicago and Montreal, four games, while the Rangers have picked up the winners' per cent. of three games against Canadiens. The players' pool of the Leaf-Ranger series will be closed after Saturday night's game at Maple Leaf Gardens. The locals will share in the receipts from seven games, two each against the Chicago Hawks and Montreal Maroons, and three against the Rangers, while the latter will share in six games, three each again the Canadiens and Maple Leafs.

Portugal expects to enlarge its public-works construction program.

CHOATE GIRLS ARE DEFEATED BY 4-1 SCORE

Packed Gallery Sees Thrilling Battle in Junior Basketball Finals.

CLOSE-CHECKING AFFAIR.

Mary Brooks and G. Hawks Are Point Getters of the Fray.

Blue Petes captured the junior championship and the Industrial Trophy in the Ladies Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. last night, turning back the Choate girls 4 to 1 in the final playoff game. It was a close, thrilling battle, played before a large crowd, and the winners showed a slight superiority to take their second game, after dropping the other one.

The score of the first playoff affair was 11-3 for the Petes, and the Ashburnham outfit took the second, 2-0. Last night's game was another close-checking argument with the players flashing lots of speed but taking few chances throughout. The victors led 3 to 0 at the end of the half, and both sides notched a point in the last hectic stanza.

Mary Brooks was the main factor in the win, counting all four points for the champs. G. Hawks sank the lone point for Choates. Play was about even most of the way, but Blue Petes showed a little better teamplay. The two defences worked unusually hard to hold opposing forwards out of range a good part of the time. The East City crew missed a number of chances in the second chapter, having no luck around the baskets.

Set Fast Pace

They set a hot clip from the start, the ball being carried rapidly from end to end on zig-zag attacks, with the guards crowding the ball-carriers in close to keep the shots off the mark. M. Brooks dropped in a penalty-throw for the first point, and made it 3-0 a little later on a clean toss from a piece out. Despite good offensive work for both teams in the last session, there was no scoring outside of a point apiece garnered by G. Hawks and M. Brooks on free throws. The losers put up a stiff fight in the final few minutes in an effort to tie the count, but poor shooting and effective defence work held them off.

M. Brooks proved the best for the Petes, but had good support by her teammates, G. Sorby, L. Lundy and A. Mark, all turning in a fine defensive performance, and the other forwards going good, also. While G. Hawks notched the lone Choate marker, the whole team worked hard, the attackers and guards deserving credit for their fine showing. The teams:

Choates: B. Blade, G. Hawks, Y. Rees, M. Blade, forwards; M. Self, L. Heffernan and L. Ellis, defence.

Blue Petes: M. Brooks, H. Bradley, M. Harvey, P. McLellan, R. Millyard, forwards; G. Sorby, A. Mark and L. Lundy, defence.

SUDBURY CITIZENS HONOR CUB WOLVES

Nickel Belters Parade Streets Until Early Hours in Glorious Celebration.

SUDBURY, April 7 (C.P.)—Sudbury's hockey mad thousands are resting to-day after the greatest welcome ever accorded any party entering this nickel belt. From the time the western train blasted into the station last night carrying Cub Wolves, Junior hockey monarch of the Dominion, the Nickel Belters were on a continual tear, and paraded the streets during the night shouting and yelling with triumphant glee.

Elaborate celebration plans, instituted late Monday when it was learned the plucky young Sudbury squad had captured the Memorial Cup, Junior hockey's highest emblem, were unable to be carried out as the crowd was unmanageable.

The welcoming speech of Mayor Fenton, scheduled to be delivered as the players stepped from the train at the depot, had to be postponed until late in the evening, when it was given from the balcony of Sudbury's largest hotel.

Headed by five bands, including the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Band from North Bay, the large procession weaved its way through the downtown streets and not until the early hours of the morning did official welcome finally end.

CASUAL COMMENT

A pretty fair crowd, for a mid-week one, attended the Foster Club boxing show last night, and they couldn't kick at the brand of entertainment dished up. A few of the early bouts were just so-so, but the four Belleville-Peterborough battles were good. Only one of the Quinte City scrappers won, but the Gardner-Kline tussle should have been called a draw at least.

• • • • • • •

With a little more ring experience, Gardner will make good at this game as he has done in half a dozen other lines of sport. He was paired off with a shifty, experienced pug in Kline and did well. And he and Mick McGee put on a fine grappling exhibition of the Hart-Kasaboski type. When they learn to groan and make terrible faces, they'll be right up in the pro class, or is it down?

• • • • • • •

Jimmie Dugan is another promising local mittser and he showed plenty until the tough George Semark dropped him in the daisies. That shouldn't discourage him in the least as he ought to take Semark in another month or so. There may be a show in Belleville about then.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

The main go was good with Art Hunter rattling vicious left drives off Angell's chin in every one of the five rounds. Both fighters were fast, clever and hard hitters, but Hunter showed a big edge both in boxing and infighting. Everytime, that left of his landed, we got a headache, which after a while became steady, and even the wicked right uppercuts couldn't make it any worse.

• • • • • • •

Art is figuring on taking in those Ontario semi-finals in Toronto in a week or so, and he might do all right. Jimmie Gordon is likely to be his toughest opposition. Two or three other Peterborough boys may go up also just for a try, and why not? The dates are to be announced later.

• • • • • • •

Of the all-local bouts last night, Heffernan looked pretty good against Wahl, though he was very careful of that hard right duke. He boxed well toward the end and grabbed himself the decision with lefts to the head and one fast exchange. Sid Bennett was too tough for Peel, winding up and smacking him hard until the kayo.

Earl Smith won the fans' support in his joust with Caccavella by his aggressiveness. Cack managed to win on points, and he could have won by a K.O. but he was too cautious. He let the other do all the leading, being content to outstep him and counter jabs to the head. Both boys should improve with a few more scraps under their belts.

Amateur boxing has come a long way around here in the last year or so. Three good stables are training a flock of boys and there are a number of excellent prospects in Peterborough now. Under the proper supervision, the "manly art" is a good game, popular both with the boxers and the public. A couple more shows are likely to be put on here before baseball takes the spotlight.

National Sea Fleas brought the Allan up back to Toronto last night with a nifty 1-0 overtime win from Fort William in Montreal. Another Toronto outfit, the Maple Leafs, resume the Stanley Cup series to-night, playing the Rangers in Boston in the second game. It starts at 8.30, and may be heard over CFRB and other radio stations.

An excellent group picture of the Rotary Junior City League hockey champions is in the Roy Studio window, along with the team crest and both the Capitol Theatre Cup and the Tully Trophy won by the boys this year. Ches Mowry managed them, practically all the players being formerly on South-end League teams.

Blue Petes won the championship of the Junior Girls' Basketball League at the Y.W. last night in another classy low-scoring battle with Choates, the final count being 4 to 1, it being the second win in three starts for the Petes. A fine finish to a fine series for the Ladies' Loop this season. St. Paul's won the Senior title.

HUNTER GAINS VICTORY OVER ARTHUR ANGELL

Continual Barrage of Lefts to Chin Spells Defeat for Belleville Boxer.

FOSTER CLUB SHOW.

Peel and Jimmie Dugan Losers By Knockouts—Bill Hope Cops Victory.

A hard left smash to the face that struck like a battering-ram round after round gave Art Hunter all five rounds of the main bout on the Foster Club boxing card at the Legion Hall last night. His opponent, Angell of Belleville, took a terrific beating about the head but was battling gamely at the final bell, and both boys drew a big hand from the crowd at the finish.

Two clean knockouts featured the program of eight boxing bouts and a wrestling exhibition. Only one of the four Belleville scrappers was successful. George Semark putting Jimmie Dugan to sleep in the second round with a right hook to the head. Sid Bennett K.O'd. Jack Peel in the first round of their scrap, landing a jolting one-two to body and jaw. A fair-sized crowd of fight fans saw plenty of action, topped off with a fine exhibition of amateur grappling.

Pat Jordan and Joe DeNoble, 80-pounder, started things with a lively no-decision curtain-raiser. They showed plenty of action and hard haymakers, but fortunately both missed by a wide margin. They both show promise of good ringwork, and were applauded loudly.

Listless Affair

Tommy Heffernan, 110, got the nod over Chink Wahl, 108, in a slow affair, Tom taking the last two after Wahl won the first. Chink jarred his opponent early with two hard right swings to the chin, and they stalled the rest of the round. Tom was more aggressive in the second and dropped a flock of light lefts in Wahl's face. The third was easily Tommy's as he showed nice boxing and staggered Chink with a hard barrage to the head. Wahl missed many, and connected twice for neat ones, but was clinching and backing off at the finish.

Peel Takes Count

Sid Bennett, 125, finished Jack Peel, 112, after two minutes of the first round. Jack started fast, counting with lefts to the face, and then Sid slowed him up with a two-fisted attack to the head and hurt him at infighting. Peel jabbed in a couple of lefts but Sid wound up again and tore in with both mitts flying and landing, Jack finally taking the count from a left to the pantry and a hook to the jaw.

Wins Close Decision

Maurice Caccavella, 152, took a close decision over Earl Smith, 148, in three rounds. Smith won the first, a fast, exciting session, with his speed and aggressiveness. He tore in in southpaw style to pound Cack hard, but the other made him miss plenty with fast footwork. Cack jolted him just before the bell with a whistling right uppercut to the whiskers. The second was close, though Maurice looked a bit better, letting Smith rush him picking him off with left hooks to the jaw. Earl continued forcing the fight but was almost floored at the close with a hard right to the button. Cack took the last go which started very fast but slowed up later. Cack was bashful and kept away from Earl's right duke but managed to garner a few points with short blows to the head when the other came to him. Cheers and boos greeted the decision.

Winner on Knockout

George Semark, Belleville 137-pounder, kayoed Jimmie Dugan, 135-pound Foster fighter, after two minutes of the second round. The first was even and furiously fast, Dugan landing a mean right to the button early, but later being nearly driven through the ropes from a terrific two-handed rushing barrage. They threw leather continuously, and battered each other hard in the clinches. Dugan landed a bunch of light lefts to the head and they were mixing hard and evenly at the bell.

Both wove in close in the second, shooting hard punches to head and body, but Semark was hitting harder. He drove Dugan across the ring with a quick rush, having him half-through the ropes, and then put the local boy down for nine seconds with a left to the midsection. Jimmie rested and got up fast to tear into Semark, but the latter met him with a jarring right hook to the eye and Dugan went to the floor groggy, being counted out. It was a great fight and pleased the fans.

Gains Unpopular Win

Jack Gardner got the duke over Scotty Kline, 142, of Belleville, outweighing him five pounds. The decision was none too popular as Kline looked to have a slight edge in the extra round ordered. Both sparred around a bit, Kline posing for the crowd and doing some fancy ducking and blocking, then Jack rocked him with a right uppercut to the mouth. Kline was better at infighting, but Jack connected again to the head and pounded his stomach as they clinched. It was Gardner's round. Scotty took the second with his experience, picking his spots and slamming in lefts to the head and the odd right jolt to the pantry. He was better at infighting and hurt Jack with backhand hooks while clinching, but Gardner continued aggressive.

The third was even, Jack being better at first on close-in exchanging, but Kline balancing it up when he piled up points with a neat left to the face and two right crosses. Gardner staggered him later with a good right smash that caught him square on the button, but Kline showed more in the clinches at the end. A fourth round was ordered, and Scotty pounded his rival's midsection with both hands in close. They mixed hard and Jack's nose was bleeding, and later he went down for no count from a hard hook to the face. He rallied and was landing oftener and harder at the bell. There was a mixture of cheers and boos at Gardner's hand was lifted, and Kline drew a big hand when he left the ring.

Hope Gains Victory

Bill Hope, 149, won all three rounds from Fred Beare, 147, of the Quinte City. Fred started each stanza fast, but Bill was too strong for him, jabbing his face often with lefts and landing the occasional right uppercut, though he missed many too. In the third round, Hope got peeved when Beare tried to hit him through the handshake, and he landed four of his wicked right swings to the head and one to the ribs, besides smearing up Beare's face with his leftjab. The other boy was game and could take it, trying hard to land some, but had to hang on at the last as Bill kept on top of him. Both were cheered heartily at the end.

Best Bout on Card

The final bout of five two-minute rounds, saw Art Hunter, local 118-pounder, win decidedly from Art Angell, Belleville 122. It was the best on the card and both boys showed plenty of speed and fine ring generalship. But Angell was a sucker for Hunter's damaging left smash to the face, and the latter took every round with this blow. He caught Angell twice early in the first with it and they mixed in ...ious fashion, Angell jarred him ...h a right to the point and they kept hammering hard at each other the rest of the way.

Hunter took the next one too, after stopping a right hook to the chin. He drove that devastating left to the face twice in a row and they wrestled each other down. The pair were tearing into each other like angry dogs and putting plenty behind every blow to give the fans a real battle. Art began stepping back as the other rushed and then countering with rights and lefts upstairs. He breezed through the third with more of those to the head, doing more leading and drawing the claret from the visiting gladiator. Near the end, Hunter staggered him with a right uppercut to the button, but the other came back for more.

Hunter pounded him around in the fourth with both hands to the head, as they clinched considerably, the other boy weakening under the hard pummelling. The infighting was fast and hard, with Hunter showing superiority there, also. Early in the last round, Angell nearly went down from a stiff one-two to the jaw, and they mixed again, pumping both hands up and down. Hunter had a bid edge with those left smashes to the face, crossing a few whistling rights to the same spot, but Angell was both durable and game and stayed in there to the finish. Applause accompanied both mittsers out of the ring.

A ten-minute no-decision wrestling exhibition was put on between Mick McGee and Gardner, 147 and 150 pounds respectively. It proved popular with the fans as the boys demonstrated the new style of grappling as seen in pro bouts. Body slams, airplane spins, flying body scissors, nelsons, flying tackles and rouging up each other gave the pair a tough ten minutes of it, and both were tired and sore from hard falls at the finish, which found them going along about evenly. They drew a good hand as the spectators began wending their way out.

Hitler Orders Troops Ready For Elections

MUNICH, Germany, April 7 (A.P.)—Ernst Roehm, Commander of Adolf Hitler's Nazi storm troops, said to-day the troops would assemble again on Election Day, next Sunday.

He said he gave the order for mobilization of the troops at the first election, March 13, with the full knowledge of the Minister of the Interior, and that he would repeat the concentrations customary at previous elections because the storm troops were used to distribute campaign documents.

He denied charges of espionage made by Karl Severing, Prussian Minister of the Interior, and said some of the material upon which those charges were made was forged.

SHADOW GOES ADVENTURING.

Who doth not for adventure yearn
What life may hold will never learn.
—Shadow the Weasel.

Shadow is a born adventurer Peace and security may do for some but not for him. So from the time when he first started out in the Great World he never has remained long in one place. If he should find a place containing everything he could desire to make him comfortable he would after a little leave it all to venture out where he would not know where the next meal was coming from nor where he would find a bed the next time he was sleepy. And then only would he be truly happy. The spirit of adventure keeps him restless, continually on the move, seeking new scenes, new excitements. There are other people like that.

Had he not supreme confidence in himself of course he could not go wandering about wherever his fancy leads him. But he has supreme confidence in himself. Little as he is he seemingly is without fear. And he has the boldness of fearlessness, and this boldness often serves him well. He goes where those less bold, though bigger and stronger than he, do not dare to go, and more often than not through his very boldness he gets what he wants.

So when Farmer Brown's Boy set him free from the box trap over on the ledges deep in the Green Forest, he was not in the least troubled or afraid to find himself in a strange place, a place he never had been before. He stopped only long enough to turn and snarl and spit angrily at Farmer Brown's Boy for having prevented him from catching Whitefoot and Mr. Whitefoot in the sugar house, then promptly forgot all about them in the excitement of exploring among the cracks and crannies of the rocky ledge.

This was a place after his own heart. With so many places to pop in and out of he could appear and disappear as if by magic. There were countless places in which to curl up in safety for a nap whenever he felt sleepy. Yes, sir, those ledges suited Shadow so well that had he been that kind of a person he would have been grateful to Farmer Brown's Boy for bringing him there. But Shadow never was grateful for anything in his life. He believes that what he wants he can get and that when he gets it, no matter how he gets it, there is no one to thank but himself.

So while Farmer Brown's Boy was tramping back to the sugar house Shadow was busy exploring and making himself thoroughly acquainted with his new surroundings. It was a small crack indeed that he could not slip into and didn't slip into and find out all about.

"It is well to know at all times wherever you are the nearest place of safety," said he as he ran from one hole to another. "One advantage of being small is that you have just that many more hiding places. The smaller you are the easier it is to hide. This is the best place to live I ever have seen That is, it is if there is enough to eat around here."

Just then a Mouse darted into a hole between the rocks and in a flash Shadow was in after him. When he came out his face wore a satisfied expression. "I am going to like this place," said he. "I wonder whom I will have for neighbors."

He continued exploring every opening he came to and at length came to a large opening the entrance to which was partly hidden by bushes. He paused and wriggled his nose. There was a strong odor that warned him at once that this was the home of some one, and so it was wise to be careful. Any of the little people of the Green Forest but Shadow would, on getting that strong scent, have turned hastily, and stolen away and kept away But Shadow did nothing of the kind. His is of a venturesome disposition.

So instead of turning and running he boldly but watchfully entered. He wanted to find out if the owner was at home. A long passage led to a cave in the rocks. It was dark in there, but Shadow is quite at home in the dark. Presently he stopped. He had heard a slight sound in the darkness beyond. The owner of that cave was at home.

2,000 Telegraphers Will Take 10 P.C. Cut

MONTREAL, April 7.—Under the terms of a new agreement, 2,000 commercial telegraphers and associated employees of the Canadian National Railways Telegraph department from coast to coast will take a 10 per cent reduction for one year from May 1, according to an announcement made today.

By arrangement with officials of the International Telegraphers Union who helped to carry on negotiations between the men and company heads during the past two months, basic rates of pay will remain the same. The deduction will be made from the monthly or semi-monthly pay check.

What To-Day Means To You

"ARIES"

If April 7th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:50 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 9:20 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 7:40 p.m.

Unsettled conditions are prophesied for April 7th, and events and circumstances will give lie to most hopes and conjectures of the previous day. It will be a time of sewing and planting, rather than a time of harvest. A hectic time for young people.

The child born on this April 7th will have a pensive and an impressionable nature, and will be greatly influenced by its surroundings and associates. It will love reading and the less strenuous games, but will not care for an overly active life. It will demand a great deal of love and affection, and will need considerable outside stimulation.

Born on April 7th, you have neither a cheerful nor optimistic nature and are down in the mouth much of the time. You often live tied down, as you think, by circumstances which debar you going further than your eyes can see. You are afraid to make any leap unless you know exactly where you are going to land, and even then you feel you must have a clear, running jump, unhampered by any outside opposition. You are over-anxious to always do the right thing, and even after you have made a decision, handicap your actions by vague doubts and apprehension. Your post-mortems should be done away with.

You give a tremendous attention to trifles, thus making your work laborious and your life altogether more difficult. You allow yourself to become upset by incidents unworthy of the importance you give them. You are not slipshod about your work, and are very proud about your personal appearance. You have a very good memory, especially for those things in which your feelings have been affected. You never forget a slight or injury.

If you be a woman, your house will never be neglected, although you may make yourself too busy to become a real companion to the rest of your family. You will look after the physical and material wants of your children, but will not be their playmate.

News Presses Halt Budapest In Turmoil

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 7. — (C.P.).—The Hungarian Parliament was in a turmoil to-day and the people much agitated by a buzzing current of rumors as a result of the failure of newspapers to appear this morning, following the suppression by the Government of the official Socialist paper, Veraszava, yesterday.

Typesetters on all other newspapers walked out after the suppression order was made public. Veaszava was suppressed on the ground it had published "articles urging the workers to arm."

The Socialist deputies marched out of Parliament during the turmoil there, protesting the suppression of their party organ and shouting "murder of the press!"

The city was heavily policed.

MARK ST. LEAGUE VISITS AT KEENE

Entertaining Program Given Under the Direction of Charles English.

On Tuesday evening of last week over eighty young people from Mark Street United Church, Peterborough, motored to Keene to spend the evening in worship and recreation with the young people of United Church, Keene.

The very inspiring program was in charge of Charlie English president of Mark Street League, which consisted of a reading, "Mother's Little Letter" by Edythe Elmhirst; a solo, "Song of Songs" by Bertha Binks; a reading "The Sin of Steve Adain" by Mabel Reynolds; a short talk by Rev. C. D. Daniel; a guitar selection by Rodney Theobald; a talk "Building Memorials" by Cleveland Robb; a solo by O. Howland; a solo, "Open the Gates" by Rev. C. D. Daniel.

About an hour of recreation was conducted by Edythe Elmhirst, literary convenor of Keene society, after which lunch was served to almost one hundred and fifty young people.

A vote of thanks for the kind hospitality of Keene members was moved by Charlie English and seconded by Rev. C. D. Daniel.

PLANS ARRANGED FOR APRIL PARTY

Several Matters Discussed at St. James' Church Ladies' Aid Meeting.

With the president, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, presiding, the Ladies' Aid Society of St. James' United church held their April meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

There was a good attendance as usual when this group of active church workers met for business. In this case there was a happy mingling of pleasure with the necessary routine of plans and arrangements for the coming months.

After the opening hymn of the short devotional period, Mrs. Ingham and Mrs. Jobe offered prayer for guidance and success in the work to be undertaken. Fitting beautifully into this thought was the Scripture reading by Mrs. Beavis.

The reports of secretary and treasurer were given and letters of appreciation for kindnesses shown to shut-in members were read.

Mrs. Sloane and Mrs. Roberts of the visiting and flower committees, reported their work, showing that the sick members of the society were being remembered.

The 'April birthday party" has become somewhat an annual event. A little variation this year is that the admission fee be the same as the date. An invitation is specially extended to any woman whose birthday is in this month.

During the social hour a delightful duet, "Only to Know," was contributed by Mesdames George Cuff and A. R. Church. Both humorous and realistic was the reading, "The Ladies' Aid," given by Mrs. J. A. Fry.

Promoting a friendly and get-acquainted spirit, the contest of 'modern proverbs" did this as well as providing a keen test of wits.

A pleasing feature of the tea hour was the kindly and hospitable gift of the ice cream by Mrs. Jobe, a member who has just celebrated her fifty-first wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Pratt, with efficient staff, served tea from the prettily arranged tables, on each of which were gay spring flowers.

Sewing is being done in advance for the annual bazaar and parcels were given out to the members by Mrs. Fell, who is the convenor of this department.

The afternoon, under the leadership of Mrs. Sargent, proved a decided success.

ARGENTINE RADICALS TERM MINISTRY ILLEGAL

BUENOS AIRES, April 7 (C.P.).—The Argentine Radical party of former President Hipolito Yrigoyen, which was overthrown by the revolution of 1930 and whose ticket was ruled out of the elections last fall by Provisional President Uriburu, to-day called the present government of Dr. Augustin P. Justo illegal.

The election of last November 8, at which Dr. Justo was elected, was invalid, a resolution passed by the Radical party yesterday said, because the Radical nominee for President, Marcelo T. Alvear, was not allowed to run.

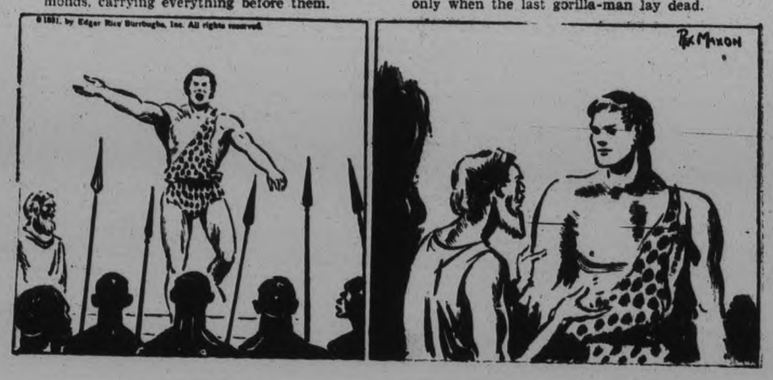
TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 64 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Swarming down the jungle trail came the long awaited Gomangani reinforcements. "JUST IN TIME!" exclaimed Tarzan of the Apes. "Hasten!" he shouted, the Bolgani are upon us. Come and avenge your wrongs." Calling the other blacks about him, the ape-man leaped forward to meet the oncoming gorilla-men. Behind him, wave after wave of Gomangani rolled through the east gate of the Palace of Diamonds, carrying everything before them.

The shouting and the fighting worked Jad-bal-ja into such a frenzy that Tarzan with difficulty restrained him from springing upon friend and foe alike. And so frantic were the Gomangani with the bloodlust of revenge, and so enthused with the first fruit of victory that they went fully as mad as the golden lion himself. The wavering wall of Bolgani was hurled back. No quarter was given and the fighting ended only when the last gorilla-man lay dead.



The battle over, Tarzan with his followers returned to the throne room from which the fumes of the somke bombs had now disappeared. He summoned the headmen of each village to appear before him. "Gomangani of the Valley of the Palace of Diamonds," he addressed them, "this night have you won your freedom from the beast-masters that have oppressed you for so long. You have no leader capable of ruling you wisely and well. Choose one now."

"YOU! YOU!" cried voice after voice as the head men clamored to elect Tarzan their king. "That may not be," replied the ape-man, "but there is one who has lived among you, knows your customs and hopes. He will make you a good king," and Tarzan pointed to the old man. But he of the grey beard looked at Tarzan in bewilderment. "Surely you will not desert me," he cried, "back would I go into the world of civilization from which all these years I have been buried."

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

NEW ENGLISH LINE OF COSMETICS

H. R. (Ross) Madill of H. R. Madill & Co., Hamilton, is in the city with this famous English line introducing it to the drug trade. Tokalon is the largest selling line of cosmetics in England and Europe and is extremely moderately priced for an imported article. Wherever it has been introduced in Canada it has had an immediate success.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

Mrs. Ada Craig of Rogers street, (Telephone 2923J), would like to get children's clothing in any size, especially childrens' boots.

STOVE WANTED.

The Examiner would like to get a cook stove for a home where the present stove is falling to pieces, and where the man of the house is ill and the home-maker is elderly and unable to purchase a new one.

Please telephone and we will call.

We would also like to get, if possible, some flat irons and window blinds.

Second Demonstration Of Fighting Oil Fire

Within four seconds from the time the new fire-fighting apparatus recently purchased by the City Council was brought to bear on the oil and gasoline fire at James Stevenson Park last evening, the flames which had been shooting skyward were completely subdued.

The demonstration conducted under the direction of Fire Chief George Gimblett was watched by a large crowd of interested citizens, who lined Hunter Street Bridge in the gathering twilight.

After the oil and gasoline, in the specially prepared pit, had been ignited, it was allowed to burn unchecked for four minutes. The fire presented an awesome sight, the monster tongues of flame and the huge volume of black smoke leaving nothing to the imagination.

The test conducted the other afternoon at the same place resulted in the fire being extinguished in 6 seconds.

Sunworthy Paper Is Being Displayed

The Examiner's south display window shows an interesting assortment of Sunworthy wallpapers that are well worth a second glance, as they illustrate the new ideas in such wall coverings, in papers that resist the fading qualities of sun and light. They come in many patterns, the rolls on view showing the milder colors of beige, pale brown, pale green and mauve, with conventionalized and freely-running designs in flowers and foliage.

Aside from the benefit which is to be derived from purchasing these low-priced papers at the present time, is the consideration that such work provides employment when it is somewhat scarce. Besides having a newly-furnished and attractive home, one may have the pleasant consciousness of "giving a man a job" at a small outlay.

Rotary Club Plans Annual Street Fair

Wednesday evening, June 15, was the date fixed last night by a special committee of the Rotary Club for the annual Street Fair on the Market Square.

When it became known that the Rotary Club had decided to hold the Street Fair, Mr. Limberner, a lumberman at the head of Storey Lake, handed a cash donation to the local Rotarians with the remark that he wanted to be one of the first to show his appreciation of Rotary's splendid achievements, especially in the work among crippled children of this district.

Fires caused nearly $200,000 damage in Edinburgh, Scotland, last year.

KINSMEN PLAY IS IN COSTUME

Pre-Review of Rivals Reveal Actors Ready for Big Night.

PARTS WELL TAKEN.

The man with the mangled hand who was waited on by Dr. Herbert Young last night must have had something to distract his attention from his injuries, for the doctor answered the summons in the scarlet outfit with brass buttons that he wears in "The Rivals", in the role of Fag, servant to Captain Absolute.

Then Rod Davis, in the sober livery that dresses his part of David, factotum to Bob Acres, jumped in a car and went after the doctor. The two must have made rather an unconventional appearance.

Rod David has an outstanding part in this old costume play that has survived the ravages of time and comes to twentieth century ears with as much freshness and interest as it had for the listeners of 1775 when it was first produced at Covent Garden, the maiden effort of its author, Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

Mr. Davis is the cripple of the piece, and he takes so much interest in the role that he actually throws his left hip out of joint, to gain the highest aspect of reality.

In these foreboding times, how pleasant it is to watch the studied leisure and complacence of an age when artificiality was watchword and when sentiment ruled the hearts of the women and the minds of the gentlemen of the period.

Here are the artistic poseurs of a time when whims and vapors were the proper caper for the fair sex, and when valorous prating about honor was the small change of the men's conversation.

Here is the lovely Lydia Languish, longing for romance—for an elopement—for opposition to the suit of the favored one among the "Rivals" who vie for her hand; here are the three fire-eating gentlemen who want to marry her; here is Mrs. Malaprop, she of the peculiar language and a conversation noted for "a nice derangement of epitaphs"; here is Faulkland, whose sensitive jealously is such that he can never believe in the constancy of his lady.

There are two duels in "The Rivals" one with pistols, the other with swords. There is sentiment and romance and an inter-play of guileless deception and plenty of sparking wit.

And there are some marvellous costumes—period outfits that just suit the roles portrayed. They are beautiful, with silver cloth and embroidered taffetas for the women, with satin suits sparkling with buttons, and scarlet uniforms glowing with braid, for the men. The wigs and the accessories are just the last word in eighteenth century furnishings.

"The Rivals" to be presented at the Collegiate Institute auditorium on Friday evening, under auspices of the Kinsmen Club, with Adrian Macdonald directing, promises to be a very successful rival to "Hay Fever" so popularly presented last year.

WOULD ABOLISH HARBOR CONTROL BY COMMISSION

Report of Sir Alexander Gibb Tabled in House of Commons.

14 RECOMMENDATIONS.

St. Lawrence Waterway Threat to Montreal Largely Illusory.

OTTAWA, April 8 (C.P.)—Lashing out at the present system of administration of Canadian ports, Sir Alexander Gibb, eminent London, Eng., port engineer, recommends the abolition of all harbor commissions and the establishment of a central board at Ottawa to administer the ports.

The central board, located at the seat of government, would be under the jurisdiction of the Department of Marine, independent of the Deputy Minister, and answerable direct to the Minister of Marine. The body would have a personnel of three: a controller of harbor finance; a director of port engineering, and a director of port operations.

Manager in Each Port

A harbor manager would be appointed to each port. This officer, under the central board, would be assisted by a purely advisory committee, composed of outstanding citizens named by the provincial government, the municipal council, board of trade, steamship companies, railway companies and labor unions.

A most voluminous document, the report was tabled in the House of Commons to-day by Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine. The recommendations are the result of an exhaustive survey and personal inspection of Canadian ports by Sir Alexander and his assistants.

Most of the capital expenditures of all the harbors—with the exception of Montreal and Vancouver — should be written off, Sir Alexander declares.

The Recommendations

Major recommendations in the report may be summarized as follows:—

1.—The Canadian ports are an inherent and vital unit in a national system of transportation.

DANUBE PARLEY ENDS ABRUPTLY; NO AGREEMENT

Germany, Italy Refuse to Waive Rights in Most-Favored Nations Clause.

FURTHER MEET UNDECIDED

Big Four Decide States Must Reach Some Solution Themselves.

LONDON, April 8. (AP) — The Four-power Conference called by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to consider means of extending financial aid to the nations on the Danube ended shortly before noon to-day without an agreement.

A communique issued by the foreign office after the close of the conference said each of the four governments, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy agreed to address to the other three as soon as possible a statement of its views on points reserved and on the best means of further advancing the proposals considered.

It was expected that the Danube nations would be represented at the coming conference at Geneva. The four powers represented here agreed that [illegible] help alone would not suffice to prevent an economic collapse along the Danube and that the states themselves must reach agreements concerning their future welfare.

The conference split up on the question of the waiving by Germany and Italy of their rights under most-favored nation clauses in their commercial treaties with the Danubian states. This step was urged by Great Britain and France to give the afflicted nations freedom to make customs and fiscal arrangements among themselves and thus establish normal commerce.

The conference adjourned without setting a definite date for the resumption of the parleys.

JOE BOMBERRY TO STAND TRIAL

Five Give Evidence Relating to Killing of Woman at Brantford.

SHOT IN BACK.

BRANTFORD, April 8. (C.P.) — Joseph Bomberry, Six Nations Indian and alleged slayer of Mrs. Elizabeth John, was committed for trial for murder by Magistrate Blake in county court to-day. Bomberry was undefended by counsel at the preliminary hearing.

Five witnesses were called, including Mrs. Levi Bomberry who broke down as she gave evidence against her son. Bomberry appeared unmoved as the committal was made, having kept his eyes on the floor throughout the hearing. Dr. Walter Davis, Reserve physician, told of the death of Mrs. Johns from injuries received when she was shot in the back allegedly by Bomberry.

Asked by Crown Attorney W. M. Charlton as the the direct cause of death Dr. Walter Davis stated that it was hemmorhage caused by gunshot wound. He described the wound as being a hole below the shoulder blade, pellets from a shotgun shell having been taken out. The pellets had riddled the base of the heart and a hole about two and a half inches in diameter had been made in the lung.

Provided Shells

John Harris who lived across the road from Bomberry, told of having given three shotgun shells to Bomberry, the latter having stated he wanted them to shoot pike. This was the day before the tragedy. He identified an empty shotgun shell produced by the crown as similar to those had had given to Bomberry.

Claudia Johns, 17 year old daughter of the dead woman denied Bomberry had been in the house when her mother returned. There had been no words passed between her mother and Bomberry previous to the shooting. She had not seen Bomberry take anything out of the house when he went out after her mother.

Shortly after they both went out she heard mumbling and a shot and she and other children went to the door to find the mother lying on the ground. The shook her but she was dead.

Holds Up Bank, Pauses to Eat, Lands in Jail

SYRACUSE, Kas., April 8.—Jack Murphy, 35, is in jail for bank robbery to-day, a victim of his appetite.

Officers said he didn't flee after obtaining $300 in a holdup of the First National Bank after closing hours yesterday.

He walked across the street to a restaurant and ordered a dinner. He started shooting when Sheriff Louis Henderson and a deputy interrupted him there. Brandishing a pistol, he paraded the streets.

Then the officers closed in. Murphy was wounded in one hip. Stray bullets injured two bystanders slightly. In addition to robbery, the officers accused Murphy of being drunk.

STATE OF SIEGE RULES IN CHILE

President Acts Swiftly After Run Upon National Bank.

FORMS NEW CABINET.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 8.—(AP)—President Juan Esteban Montero, backed by the congress, declared a state of siege through Chile today. He struck swiftly at political opponents whom he charged with responsibility for a stirring day yesterday which began with a run on the national bank and ended with a new cabinet.

Immediately after the congress approved his request for martial law early this morning the president issued a manifesto in which he denounced an alleged conspiracy of opponents of the government to undermine the administration and seize power.

The cabinet resigned last night following a serious run on the central bank of Chile and a defeat in Congress for the presiden's plan for solving the country's financial troubles.

The president immediately appointed Victor Robles, former member of the chamber of deputies and one of his close advisers in the radical party, to form a new cabinet. Robles completed his list shortly before midnight, with himself as minister of interior. Three of the members of the old cabinet appeared on the new list.

WOODMEN GIVEN $8,107 DAMAGES

Case Arose Out of Breach of Duty By Auditors.

COSTS ALSO ALLOWED.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, April 8.—The Canadian Woodmen of the World were plaintiffs in an action against J. A. G. Clarke, stock broker, and O. C. Hooper, head clerk of the order, and Edwards, Morgan and Company, well known auditors, for $10,000.00 damages alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiffs through failure of the broker to deliver Grand Trunk Pacific bonds to the society. The trial lasted four days before the Honorable Mr. Justice Raney, at the city hall. G. A. Mason, K. C. appeared for Mr. Hooper, the head clerk; H. H. Davis, K. C., appeared for Edwards, Morgan and Company; Gordon Waldron, K. C., appeared for J. A. G. Clarke; the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C. of Peterborough, appeared for the Canadian Woodmen of the World.

Mr. Justice Raney gave judgment yesterday afternoon against all the defendants for the sum of $8,107.00, and interest, and this is said to be the first case in Ontario of an action for alleged breach of duty by auditors in making auditors' reports which failed to disclose that the Grand Trunk Pacific bonds had not been received by the head clerk when purchased, and placed in the strong box of the company. Costs were awarded the plaintiffs against the defendants.

ONE-THIRD PAY CUT SEEN FOR DETROIT OFFICIALS

DETROIT, April 8 (C.P.).—Faced with the flat refusal of bankers to extend further loans until the city's budget is balanced, Detroit city officials to-day said a general reduction in city salaries, possibly as high as one-third, is imminent.

In an effort to avoid a straight salary cut, councilmen are seeking means of meeting salaries through issuance of certificates for one-third of the salaries due, but this plan has not met with approval of the bankers.

ASKS PRESIDENT NOT TO ABOLISH OATH TO CROWN

Want Nothing Done to Disturb Cooperation Between Sister States.

GOOD WILL MOVE.

Free State Chief Answers People Demand Conscience Test Go.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, April 8 (C.P. Cable). — Publication to-day of a communication by Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog to President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State reveals a tactful move on the part of the South African Premier to dissuade the Irish President from pursuing his policy in regard to the abolition of the oath of allegiance.

In his communication Premier Hertzog "as a sincere supporter of independence and the freedom of the Dominions" expressed "the earnest hope that nothing would be done which would seriously disturb the friendly co-operation between the oldest of these sister states," and trusted that "present differences might be approached in a spirit of mutual goodwill and understanding and brought to a satisfactory solution soon."

De Valera Replies

Replying yesterday rPesident de Valera declared that while he appreciated Premier Hertzog's motives he was obliged to explain the issue was was not a mere question of a divergence of views regarding the interpretation of an agreement. Ireland, he said, refused to acknowledge Great Britain's right to insist on the imposition of a conscience test on the members of her parliament, such an imposition being opposed to the fundamental rights of Ireland as a nation distinct from Britain and forced on an unwilling people. This people had now declared their will in a most emphatic manner that the conscience test be removed and they intended to remove the test from the constitution through the action of their representatives in Parliament.

The South African Premier in a further cable to-day affirmed that his telegram had been prompt solely by his sincere desire to promote the chances of a satisfactory solution of the dispute by contributing towards the creation of an atmosphere of mutual good will and it in no way was intended to be an expression of opinion on the meritts of the case or the propriety or otherwise of raising the issue.

LESS DRINKING OVER ENGLAND

Figures Show Per Capita Outlay is $28, Less Tahn 1930 by $2.

MORE HAPPY MARRIAGES.

LONDON, April 8 (C.P. Cable).—John Bull is both more happily married and drinking less.

Four thousand replies to 50,000 questionnaires issued by the London School of Economics revealed to-day many novels of real life. "One hardly ever get any accounts of unhappy families except here and again from a widow or widower," said Sir William Beveridge, Director of the school, revewing the results.

"There has been a loosening of the family ties of authority—and a strengthening of the real ties," Sir William added.

And the annual review of the drink bill, issued coincidentally by the United Kingdom Alliance shows the per capita expenditure on alcoholic liquors in 1931 was £5 15 shillings and 6 pence, or $28 at par, and this was 2 per capital lower than in 1930.

Beer consumption dropped approximately 100,000,000 bulk gallons, although the reduced consumption of beer is attributed partially to the increase in the tax on beer.

VETERANS WANT CASH.

WASHINGTON. — Marching behind bands over a thousand veterans went to the Capitol to-day with a truck load of petitions urging cash payment of the bonus and were promised by majority spokesmen of the U. S. House of Representatives and Senate their plea would receieve consideration.

Dance Marathon Finishes Abruptly

ALBANY, April 8 (C.P.). — Twenty-six fatigue-wracked young men and women who had been competing since March 10 in a dance "marathon," were granted a much needed rest when State troopers stopped the contest to-day. A $1,000 prize was to be awarded to the survivor. Three of the backers were arraigned on charges of violating a section of the penal law which forbids exhibiting human beings more than 12 hours out of each 24.

ST. JOHN'S QUIET FOLLOWING RIOT

Workmen Busy Repairing Damage—Premier's Next Move Uncertain.

SPECIAL POLICE ON JOB.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 8 (C.P.). — Workmen pottered around the Colonial Building to-day, repairing damage caused by rioters who broke up a session of the Legislature on Tuesday.

Just when the next session would be held was indefinite but there was a report to the effect that the House would stand adjourned until May.

Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires, who was forced to flee during Tuesday's disorders, has not announced the immediate plans of the Government.

He has made it clear, however, that he has "absolutely no intention whatever of tendering his resignation." He went to Harbor Grace last night and is still there.

Special police, sworn in to assist the regulars, seem to have the situation well in hand, and last night passed quietly.

The rioters did not get into the assembly room of the Colonial Building during the disorders on Tuesday, but late that night someone broke several locks in the building, and rifled members' desks.

OFFICIALS CLOSE GUAYAQUIL PORT

Hope to Prevent Seizure of Shipping by Mutinied Ecuadorean Navy.

SEEK TO STARVE REBELS.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, April 8.—(AP)—The port authorities, acting under extraordinary power granted the government by the council of state at Quito, closed this port to all traffic today while the Ecuadorean navy, manned by mutineers, remained in control of the harbor and fort at Punta Piedra.

Yesterday the rebels darted out and seized a British oil tanker with its cargo and provision. It was to prevent a recurrence of raids of that kind that the port was ordered closed.

All traffic bound in past Punta Piedra, where the river is two miles wide, will be shunted away in an effort to starve revels out.

Yesterday the mutineers seized the gunboats Cotopaxi and Tarqui and steamed out of the harbor as a liner put in with General Leonidas Plaza Gutierrez, former president. The authorities thought that the mutiny was inspired by the general's political opponents.

There was complete order in the rest of the country.

Seeks $120 Damages Following Accident

Claim for damages of $250.00 and costs is entered for hearing at a special sitting of the County Court on Monday by plaintiff C. R. Hagerman, salesman of this city, against E. A. Radcliffe, travelling salesman of Toronto. Defendant Radcliffe is also counter-claiming for $120.00 damages and costs.

The action to be heard before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke arises out of a motor accident which occurred at about 1 o'clock a.m. on the morning of October 25, 1931, on King's Highway No. 2 in the vicinity of Newcastle. Plaintiff was driving in an easterly direction towards Peterborough and defendant was travelling towards Toronto. It is alleged that defendan ' car was without lights, a factor which resulted in a collision.

Defendant claims that plaintiff was driving at an excessive speed and did not have his car under control.

J. A. O'Brien is counsel for plaintiff and Phelan, Richardson and Haines of Toronto, for defendant.

FORMER CHIEF NARCOTIC SQUAD GIVEN 4 YEARS

Montreal Officer Also Draws $200 Fine on Two Counts.

SOLD DRUGS.

Prisoner Convicted Mainly Through Man He Once Arrested.

MONTREAL, April 8. — Already convicted of distributing narcotics illegally, Hector Valade, former chief of the city police narcotics squad, pleaded guilty to a charge of selling drugs when he appeared before Mr. Justice Charles Wilson today. Valade was sentenced to 4 years in the penitentiary and a fine of $200 on each count, the sentences to run concurrently.

Valade was a constable on the Montreal police force detailed to the morality or vice squad directed by Captain Lucien Vaillancourt. Valade was later raised to the rank of sergeant-detective and given charge of the narcotics department.

The arrest of Valade was effected at his father's home on Feb. 4 when constables of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police took him into custody with the aid of a special agent, Arthur Viau, who later became chief witness for the prosecution at Valade's trial.

Viau said on the witness stand that he had been convicted some time before largely through the efforts of Valade. Then he became an agent of the Mounted Police.

Wrote For Supply

From Saint John, N. B. Viau wrote to Valade asking to be supplied with drugs and enclosing money orders. He said the drugs were sent to him by mail.

Returning to Montreal, Viau made an appointment with Valade to buy drugs. Leaving Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers outside the Valade home, Viau testified he entered and bought two ounces of heroin from Valade, giving him marked money. Viau signalled the Mounted Police constables as he left the house. They went in, led by staff Sergeant Frank Zaneth, and placed Valade under arrest after the city police officer had surrendered the marked money which he had hidden in a coal bin.

Vallade was immediately suspended from the police department.

SUIT GIVES WAY DIVER DROWNS

Expert Rushed From Cobalt By Plane Arrives Too Late.

BODY RECOVERED.

NEW LISKEARD, Ont., April 8. Trapped at the bottom of the Quinte river when his diving suit burst from pressure of water, William Duval, 36, drowned yesterday according to reports received here to-day.

Despite the efforts of Joseph Nadeau, rushed to the scene by aeroplane yesterday, Duval's body was not recovered until to-day.

Duval, employed by the Federal Government, was examining the bottom of the Quinze River storage dam. His diving suit was forced open and an emergency call sent to headquarters of the Canada Northern Power Corporation here for aid. Nadeau, an experienced diver and member of the Cobalt town council, went to the scene in an aeroplane and located Duval's body but was unable to bring it to the surface until to-day.

Duval was unmarried, and lived at St. Augene de Guigues.

Hawks' Condition Holds Unchanged

WORCESTER, April 8 (C.P.). — "No change appeared this morning in the condition of Capt. Hawks," said Dr. George A. MacIver, superintendent of the City Hospital, where the speed flyer was taken yesterday after his plane cracked up at the North Grafton airport in an attempted take-off for Boston. Dr. MacIver said the famous record holder slept fitfully throughout the night, and that his temperature this morning is normal.

X-ray pictures are to be taken to learn the extent of possible internal injuries of a fracture of the skull. Dr. MacIver said no skull fracture was apparent.

MILLION DOLLAR DRUG CARGO SEIZED ON NEW YORK WHARF

Narcotics Disguised as Toys Are Landed From French Liner.

ONE ARREST.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The seizure of 24,000 ounces of narcotics, with a retail value of $1,000,000, which had been camouflaged as toys, was disclosed to-day when the contraband was taken from a North River pier to the Barge Office.

Customs agents seized the five packing cases containing the narcotics yesterday after they had been unloaded from the liner Ile de France. The liner arrived Tuesday from Havre and Cherbourg.

It was learned that Federal agents took Joseph Frankel into custody at Grand Central Station last night as he was about to leave for Canada. He was detained overnight for questioning.

The Federal agents said they received a tip yesterday that an attempt was to be made to "hi-jack" the narcotics from the pier. This information added to the result of two months of investigation here and abroad led to the seizure.

TWO HURT IN CRASH

KITCHENER.—Two men were injured here to-day when their automobile was struck on the Louisa street level crossing by a Canadian National railway train. George Forewell, the driver, received medical attention at his home, while Ignatus Weber, Victoria street, suffered severe head injuries which necessitated his removal to St. Mary's hospital. The car was badly smashed.

REFUSES RESCUE

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y.— Overpowering a reservation patrolman who tried to prevent him from ending his life, an unidentified man leaped into the Niagara River near Prospect Point to-day and was carried over the American Falls to his death. A hat found on shore bore the label of a Cleveland department store, and reservation officials think the suicide may have come from that city.

Doctor's Fast Run Saves Four Lives

HAMILTON, April 8 (C.P.)— Only the prompt arrival of a doctor saved the lives of four persons last night, when fumes from a gas furnace filtered into their apartment. R. W. Bishop, his wife, daughter and a friend were sitting in a room when all four were suddenly overcome by gas. Bishop was able to reach a telephone and call Dr. R. Y. Parry. The doctor rushed to the apartment and removed all four from the room. All will recover.

CLEAN-UP MADE ON BOOTLEGGERS

Third Within Three Weeks Pleads Guilty in Police Court.

GIVEN TWO MONTHS.

With the city free of crime, police three weeks ago turned their attention upon bootleggers and a clean-up has folowed. James McGuire, the third within the past week, pleaded guilty to-day to selling liquor and was sent to jail for two months.

McGuire's activities had been known to police, but last night they secured the evidence against him when he sold a bottle of liquor to a local young man, who was later arrested in an intoxicated condition at a dance hall. McGuire was picked up this morning and faced with the charge.

"Yes," Chief Newhall told the Magistrate, "McGuire never gives us much trouble in court. When he is caught he pleads guilty and has it done with."

The young man pleaded guilty to being drunk in a public place and was fined $10 and costs.

FLOOD OF CRITICISM STIRRED FROM ALL SIDES OF COMMONS; FINAL JUDGMENTS REQUESTED

Suggest County Court Judges Be Conscripted Till Congestion Disappears.

EIGHT BILLS PASS.

Ontario Given Right to Collect All Court Levies Under Criminal Code.

OTTAWA, April 8. (C.P.) — Dashing along at a fast clip, the House of Commons buckled down to serious business yesterday and cleared the order paper of many semi-contentious matters. Eight bills were passed, interim supply totalling $35,345,000 was voted together with departmental estimates totalling many millions of dollars.

In a flood of criticism from all sides of the house, the machinery for hearing pension claims of war veterans proved a stumbling-block. Conservatives, Liberals and Progressives dropped their party lines for two hours and described the machinery as inadequate to carry the number of pension claims. Thirty thousand cases, it was charged, congested the various courts. Some were heard a year or more ago, yet no final judgments had been rendered.

Congestion in the courts would pass away eventually, predicted Murray MacLaren, the minister. This view, however, was not shared by many members. Peter McGibbon, Cons., Muskoka and Ross Gray Lib., West Lambton, suggested the conscription of county court judges to hear cases until the congestion d appeared.

Ian Mackenzie, Lib., Vancouver Centre, proposed that each of the twelve travelling tribunal judges hear cases by himself.

Abolish Appeal Right.

Alfred Speakman, U.F.A., Red Deer — And this view was shared by several members—advocated the abolition of the right of appeal by the Board of Pension Commissioners when a soldier-applicant won a case. This right, it was claimed, was the direct cause of the congestion.

One of the most important Bills passed during the day affected Ontario only. Results from litigation over the $60,000 Amelius Jarvis fine, the Province was given the right to collect all court levies under the Criminal Code. At the present time the money, in some instances goes to the municipalities. Final distribution of the fines will be determined by the Ontario Legislature.

Under another Bill passed, the Dominion will have the right to grant a moratorium in connection with the work required to be done each year on mining claims.

The Dominion was authorized, in another Bill, to guarantee securities of the Canadian National Railway to the extent of $11,372,498. This amount was required by the Government road in connection with 1931 financing.

HONOLULU TRIAL BEGINS MONDAY

Darrow Not Sure How Far He Will Go in Refuting Second Degree Murder.

NONE SAW SHOOTING.

HONOLULU, April 8.—(AP)— It is barely possible the world may never know who killed Joseph Kahahawai, a reliable source revealed today following selection of a jury to try Mrs. Granville Fortescue, eastern society matron, and three naval men on charges of lynching the young Hawaiian.

This source revealed that not even Clarence Darrow, gray-haired leader of the defense, was certain how far he would go in refuting the second degree murder case against his clients.

However, two alienists who figured in sensational murder trials of the Southwest United States were here today to confer with Darrow, indicating that the defense is prepared, if necessary, to have one of the four accused admit the shooting and plead emotional insanity. Only if forced to this last resort, is the defense expected to reveal one of the quartet as the slayer of Kahahawai.

Reopens Monday

Court adjourned until Monday following the unexpected completion of the jury yesterday. The jury is preponderantly Caucasian, an unusual circumstances for this mid-Pacific meeting place of East and West.

Nevertheless it contains representatives of six nationalities or races —five of United States descent, three Ohinese, one Dane, one Portuguese, one German and a Hawaiian

The evidence against Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, her son-in-law, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, sailors, is entirely circumstantial since no witnesses the territory has summoned saw the shooting of Kahahawai, as far as known.

Town Over Caverns Ordered Evacuated

STANTO STEFANO, Italy, April 8—(A.P.)— Complete abandonment of this two thousand year old town of 2,400 people was ordered by Premier Mussolini to-day following the collapse of its central district last week into ancient caverns with which it is undermined.

The Premier's order was issued after experts found that the partially wrecked town rests on volcanic rock honeycombed with caverns which may collapse at any moment and swallow the remaining 200 houses left standing after last week's catastrophe.

A dozen houses tumbled into the gaping earth on March 30 and [illegible] then th 50 others whose walls were cracked have gradually fallen into ruins.

AL CAPONE'S BUSINESS MANAGER STARTS ON FIVE YEAR SENTENCE

Move By Government Slips Major Cog Out of Gang Leader's Vice Machine.

DODGED INCOME TAX.

CHICAGO, April 8 (C.P.).—The Government has slipped another major cog out of "Scarface Al" Capone's liquor and vice machine and put him on a train with the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth the consignee.

The cog was Jack Guzik, reputed business manager of Capone's underworld syndicate. He left last night in the luxury of a private drawing-room coach he himself had paid for to begin serving a five-year term for dodging the income tax.

An internal revenue agent stepped up before the train started and served him with a lien for $832,000, the sum of his unpaid tax, which he must remit besides a $17,500 fine.

WILD REMARKS CREATE UPROAR

Opposition Leader Calls Highways Minister "Dirty Skunk."

APOLOGIZES LATER.

REGINA, April 8 (C.P.). — Comparative harmony prevails among members of the Saskatchewan Legislature to-day following an exchange of bitter epithets last night. James G. Gardiner, leader of the Opposition, called A. C. Stewart, Minister of Highways, a "dirty skunk," and invited him to "meet outside.' ' Previously Mr. Stewart had said he "did not get married to avoid going overseas."

Later in the session Mr. Gardiner apologized to the Speaker and the House. The interchange took place during the debate on the Redistribution Bill which cuts down the size of the Legislature by 11 seats.

Mr. Gardiner took Mr. Stewart's remark about going overseas as applied to himself, out the Minister later said he had not been referring to the Liberal Leader The Speaker said he had not heard either remark.

Gardiner Apologizes.

"In the first instance, on my own behalf, I wish to apologize to you, Mr. Seaker, as the first gentleman in the Province for the remark I made," said Mr. Gardiner "I also wish to apologize to the House I also wish to express my appreciation of the manner in which you dealt with that remark." Mr Gardiner said that no doubt his attitude was tempered by the injustice of the statement which provoked the retort.

Numerous indications that this Government was not sympathetic to the people from foreign countries were apparent by the way the naturalized members of the Opposition benches were being deprived of their seats, said Mr. Gardiner during his discussion of the Bill.

One Mistake Costs Prisoner Freedom

ATLANTA, Ga.—Roy Johnson, sentenced to six years for robbery, had all his arrangements made to escape from the Fulton County Jail yesterday, but made just one error.

He sawed too small a hole in the bars and jailors said they found him squeezed into the aperture so tightly they had to cut other bars to bring about his release.

CASSIDY PAYS

and after a few words argument, Cassidy whipped a pistol from his pocket and shot Marshall. He died a few minutes later. They had never met before.

Cassidy was twice convicted of murdering Marshall and twice sentenced to death. Arrested two days after the crime, he was tried and convicted on Nov. 27, 1930, and sentenced to be hanged on Jan. 30, 1931. Leave to appeal was granted and later a new trial ordered.

Cassidy went on trial a second time on January 18, 1932, and on January 30 again was found guilty and the sentence of death was imposed. Recent attempts in Montreal to gain leave to appeal were unsuccessful.

Chose Life of Crime.

Although he was brought up in a respectable middle-class home, Cassidy early chose a life of crime and had a lengthy record dating back to 1910 when he was only 13 years of age. Convicted of different charges of theft and shopbreaking he escaped four times from industrial schools. Later he was twice convicted for having drugs.

Two months before the Marshall slaying he had been released from Portsmouth after serving more than four years of a five-year sentence for robbery while armed.

This morning a hundred or more people gathered on Main Street across from the jail awaiting the running up of the black flag. Only the coroner's jury and jail attendants witnessed the execution.

WINNIE JUDD MOVED FROM CONDEMNED ROW

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 8.— Her condition bordering on hysteria, Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted 'trunk' murderess, was in the women's ward at the state prison here today.

Prison officials would not discuss their transfer of Mrs. Judd from her call in condemned row, but it was learned the woman, under sentence to be hanged for the slaying of Agness Anne Leroi, had been acting abormally several days.

Mrs. Judd's appeal from her conviction was filed yesterday with the state supreme court. Her appeal will automatically stay execution, set for May 11.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED IN GRIFFITH CASE

George Johnston and W. E. Griffith, Belmont Township, Sued for $78.

HEARD AT HAVELOCK.

(By A Staff Reporter)

HAVELOCK, April 8.—George Johnston, farmer, and William E. Griffith, former warden of Peterborough county, were defendants in an action brought by Fred F. Fry of Belmont Lake before Judge E. C. S. Huycke in Division Court yesterday for payment of a promissory note for $78.

Judgment was reserved at the conclusion of argument by counsel, W. F. Huycke representing Mr. Fry, and F. D. Kerr, K.C., acting for Mr. Griffith.

Mr. Johnston did not dispute the claim, and in his behalf Mr. Kerr announced with the expressed desire of sustaining the good reputation of Johnston in Belmont township that he had deposited with Mr. Kerr $50 to be applied on the debt to Fry.

Mr. Griffith's defense was that he was only an endorser and not a co-maker of the note, and as an endorser he had not received notice of default in payment by Johnston, nor had the note been presented to him for payment. On these grounds he claimed release from any liability.

The trial elicited several fine distinctions of law which Judge Huycke said he wished to consider in conjunction with the evidence. It transpired that Fred Fry and William Griffith had been quite friendly, their relations finding substantial affinity in their political opinions and especially in regard to the municipal administration of Belmont Township. His Honor expressed the hope that the old felicity between the two men had not been disrupted, but there were no reassuring replies from the two litigants—only silence and Mr. Fry's sharp comment that he was "going to see this thing through" to the very end.

Mr. Fry's Evidence.

Examined by W. F. Huycke the plaintiff Mr. Fry said: "I didn't know Johnston. In December 1929 Griffith came to me and asked me if I would lend Johnston a couple of hundred dollars. I told him I would if Griffith would back the note. He said he would endorse it. I met Johnston the night the note was signed on December 27, 1929. It was at Fred Chase's house in Havelock.

Johnston and Griffith both were there. Griffith seemed in an awful hurry to get the money. I thought he wanted it to pay his taxes on the farm Johnston was occupying as a tenant.

Griffith told me Johnston was a good man and he was willing to back the note. I gave Johnston a cheque for $200, and I got two promissory notes, one for $100 payable in six months, and the other for $100 due in twelve months."

Second Note Unpaid.

In this action Fry was sueing for $78 on the first note, Johnston having made one payment when this note was renewed. Mr. Griffith stated in court that he had recently been notified of an impending suit on the second $100 note. The $200 cheque was dated December 30, 1929.

"I told them they could get the money in the morning," plaintiff said.

Mr. Huycke—You and Mr. Griffith were running well together at that time?

Mr. Fry—Yes. I thought he was

WAIT ADVANCES BY KIDNAPPERS

Norfolk Trio Have Not Abandoned Hopes of Getting Baby Back.

POLICE CONTINUE HUNT.

HOPEWELL, N.J., April 8 (C.P.). — Three intermediaries seeking the kidnapped Lindbergh baby awaited a new summons to parley to-day, while in Hopewell optimism ebbed.

The three—Rear-Admiral Guy H Burrage, John H. Curtis, and the former Canadian rector, Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, all of Norfolk —have not abandoned hope of getting Charles A Lindbergh Jr., back through a person who approached them and represented himself as a go-between for the kidnappers.

All three were in Norfolk, pursuing a watchful waiting policy, while police who express scepticism about that angle of the search went on with the endless task of checking and re-checking leads.

Mr. Curtis has announced thrice that he had contact with the person he believes to be acting for the kidnappers, and that he was assured the baby was well. To-day he was awaiting a call for another secret rendezvous. Admiral Burrage said Col. Lindbergh had asked the Norfolk men to continue their efforts.

Developments were so scarce a new white gate on the Lindbergh property was the hottest news it was put up after a motorist drove right in with a suggestion for the Colonel.

He wanted a piece of the baby's clothes to attach to a bell in a church at Newton, N.J. Then he would ring the bell until it struck remorse into the hearts of the kidnapers.

State troopers escorted him away.

RIOTING IN DAMASCUS

JERUSALEM, April 8 (A.P.) — Several persons were killed and many others injured in election rioting at Damascus, according to unconfirmed reports reaching here to-day. The reports said the public square was barricaded and the city closed to traffic.

ROOSEVELT ADVANCING IN PRESIDENTIAL DRIVE

WASHINGTON, April 8 (A.P.)— The Presidential candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt continues to sweep all obstacles aside with such spectacular regularity that many Democratic leaders now speak of his nomination as an accomplished fact.

Some still hope for his defeat, but they concede that only an extraordinary reversal of form or a desperate stand in the convention can stop him.

The Opposition has been surprised not only by his strength, but by their own weakness. The major reliances of the combination against him are fading one by one.

SENATE SPEEDS TARIFF DEBATE

Controversy Threatens to Drag Through Whole Summer.

IMPORT DUTIES HELD UP.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(A.P.)—Determined to settle the new tax legislation at the earliest moment, U. S. Senate Finance committee members are thinking of reconsidering the decision by which they left the door open for tariff revision.

The prospect of an all-summer debate on the tariff as well as taxes prompted formal assurances last night from both Republican and Democratic leaders that every means to speed the revenue legislation would be employed.

There is no way of precluding the offering of tariff amendments when the tax bill reaches the Senate floor but the anti-tariff group is hoping to muster a solid majority that will preclude endless discussion of the import duties.

Democrats will resume consideration of the subject at a conference next week. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the party leader and Senator Harrison of Mississippi, ranking member of the Finance committee, both stated a disposition for prompt action. They were joined by Chairman Smoot.

As for the tax bill itself, a boost in the higher surtax rates seems likely. Senator Connally (D. Tex.,) is preparing a schedule raising the maximum rate of 40 per cent to 50 per cent. He would keep the present schedule which reaches the maximum on incomes over $100,000, but would carry the graduation on to about 50 per cent. at incomes over $5,000,000.

A considerable group is forming to combine in favor of copper and wood pulp import duties as well as [illegible] oil and coal import levies voted by the House.

VICTORIA BOARD TO BE ABOLISHED

Interference With Law Enforcement by Polie Commissioners is Alleged.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 8 (C.P.)—Alleged attempts of police commissioners to interfere with law enforcement in the City of Victoria have brought prompt action from R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General, who proposes the immediate abolition of the present Board of Police Commissioners and the adoption of the three-man commission now in use in Ontario for Victoria and other British Columbia cities.

Speaking in the Legislature last night Mr. Pooley said his information was that the course of the law had been interfered with on more than one occasion, and that Chief of Police Thomas Heately had been told that he wouldhave the "shirt taken off his back as had happened to his predecessor.

Much Comment On Council's Action

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—Much comment is being made by the citizens of Campbellford at the action taken by the town council at their last meeting in not authorizing the annual auditor's report to be printed. This will be the first break in this procedure in the past fifty-five years. All the reports for the past 55 years, since 1876, are on fyle in the town office and show some interesting reading as they do the growth of the town, then the village of Campbellford, over that period of years. The report for the year 1876 shows gross receipts of $3,830.78 as compared with the gross returns for 1931 which totalled $171,368.49. The treasurer for 1876 was the late Richard Cockburn the auditors being J. S. Grundy and H. O'Neil.

Degree Exemplified Springbrook Meeting

BONARLAW, April 8.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday evening, April 5, the Stirling Lodge I.O.O.F. degree team exemplified the work of the second degree at Springbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 429. There was a good attendance of local members and all were pleased with the impressive manner in which the work was put on.

The Stirling team was as follows: Degree Captain, H. Farrell; Noble Grand, George Carlisle; vice-grand, Ed. Fyear; warden, Alex Parks; conductor, John Thompson; chaplain, George Weaver; traveller, John Carlisle; inside guard, Arthur Vandervoort; R.S.S., Roy Thrasher; L.S.S., John McGee; Rbs., W. Anderson, Carl Sine, Earl Fox and W. Patterson; Supp. of V.G., J. Butler and Bert Eggleton; Supp. of N.G., E. Carlisle and E. Jackman; orchestra, S. Murphy and M. Fraser.

Noble Grand, Hiram Mumby, of Springbrook Lodge expressed his appreciation to the Stirling Brethren and called on several to speak. Short addresses were given by District Deputy Grand Master E. R. Carlisle, Brother Thomas Montgomery, Ed. Fyear, W. Anderson, H. Farrell, George Thompson, Abe Smith and others. Bro. Alex Parks delighted the members with several Irish recitations and Bro. J. Lunch was served by the Springbrook Brothers. Mr. J. Butler and others did some clever step-dancing. The meeting closed by all singing "Auld Lang Syne."

ACCIDENTS AND COMPENSATION.

There were 3,836 accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board during the month of March, as compared with 4,023 during February and 4,523 during March a year ago. The fatal accidents numbered 18, as against 20 in March last year.

The total benefits awarded amounted to $501,-965.02, of which $429,880.04 was for compensation and $72,084.98 for medical aid.

The accidents reported for the first quarter of 1932 numbered 11,460, as compared with 128,683 for the same period last year.

The total benefits awarded during the first quarter of 1932 were $1,359,526.96, as compared with $1,-646,188.71 during the same period a year ago.

The decreases noted can for the most part be accounted for by the fact that fewer men were at work than in the same period last year.

THE MUNCIE PLAN.

It is interesting to note in connection with the Chamber of Commerce's appeal to Peterborough citizens to repair, redecorate and modernize their homes now when labor and material costs are favorable and thus create jobs for the unemployed and steadier business for the retailer, that Muncie, a typical Indiana small city, has made a complete success of a similar experiment.

It is a simple plan, but it works.

An investigator for the Rotarian Magazine learned that within two weeks after the publicity campaign started in April last year unemployment in the building trades had shrunk from 80 per cent. to 20 per cent., while calls on relief agencies had dropped by more than one-half. Similarly favorable results have followed more recent efforts. "Not only that," the magazine's survey reports, "but retailers were benefitted, too. Corner grocers sold more bread and beans and ham; dairymen, more milk. Dry goods merchants noted that assets, long frozen in accounts, began to melt. One dealer in building supplies publicly declared that 15 per cent. of his business could be directly traced to the campaign."

It should not be lost sight of that Muncie used newspaper advertising to put over the idea; an initial budget of $2,000 was raised and this way all spent for display advertisements in the newspaper.

That $2,000 actually released in wages for the unemployed more than $100,000.

The Muncie plan, similar to that announced by the local Chamber of Commerce, did not aim at a sudden building boom, but rather a steady development through home improvements.

The slogan, "Let those who can afford it do the thing that ought to be done," was reiterated in newspaper publicity and in speeches before service clubs, women's clubs and other organizations, with results that even surpassed the anticipation of the originators of the drive for jobs.

THE REACTION TO THE BUDGET.

Canada's general reaction toward the Rhodes budget, after taking time out to study its provisions, seems to be a feeling of relief that it was not as bad as the forecasts had indicated that it would be.

Of course, nobody feels like cheering for any form of taxation, and it is realized that what is involved in the proposals of the Minister of Finance is the taking of fifty-five million dollars of fresh taxes out of the pockets of the Canadian people, but most citizens appreciate the fact that additional money must be secured, and they are taking Mr. Rhodes' revenue hunt on the whole philosophically.

The Globe perhaps expresses the general opinion accurately when it remarks that, considering all circumstances, it is difficult to see how the Minister of Finance could have followed any other course, and that the elementary fact is that taxation is heavier because business is down and cannot support the Government in a normal way.

Additional taxation will mean a new strain upon business, and it will entail sacrifices on the part of many individuals, but most Canadians realize that in the face of existing conditions it has become necessary for the Government to seek revenue wherever there is reason to expect a yield; the business of the country must go on, and all who are able must contribute a share toward the revenue necessary for that purpose.

That is recognized on all sides, which doubtless explains the calmness with which Mr. Rhodes' budget has been received.

These are unusual times, but Canadians have never faltered when a national emergency has put them to the acid test.

A CREDITABLE FINANCIAL RECORD.

One feature in regard to the budget address of Hon. E. N. Rhodes in which Canadians generally should be able to find cause for satisfaction was the Minister of Finance's recital of the financial achievements of his Government.

"Well may Canadians look back with satisfaction over what has been accomplished," said Mr. Rhodes, and he was undoubtedly justified in that statement.

Canada's credit has been stoutly maintained and her national integrity protected; despite the situation created by Great Britain's departure from the gold standard, the Dominion was able to meet every dollar of her external debts on the dates they were due.

That was indeed an achievement upon which the Government deserves every credit.

The serious nature of the financial problem that had to be dealt with can be appreciated that the Dominion, Provinces and municipalities had $72,000,-000 in debt maturing at New York or London between October 1, 1931, and March 31, 1932, and there was an additional $80,000,000 of external interest charges to be met.

Canadians should feel proud to think that this $72,000,000 principal was provided for, and that the holders of Canadian securities with obligations for external payments received their eighty million dollars of interest as it became due.

The policy of the Government was aimed at bringing about two results—the prompt payment of all obligations due abroad according to contract and to maintain normal currency and credit conditions within Canada.

In both of these objects splendid success was achieved, and the whole record was of a nature to inspire the people of this country with pride in an outstanding financial accomplishment.

THE MILLAR WILL.

The late Charles Millar was an odd man with a Puckish sense of humor, and we can imagine him chortling and saying to himself, "what fools these mortals be!" if he could know the bother that has been raised with regard to the Attorney-General's proposal to make a reasonable disposition of his half million dollar estate. He had no heirs, and one of the few really serious ambitions he expressed during the last years of his life was to leave his money to the University of Toronto for the assistance of poor students, as he himself had been. Perhaps with a premonition of his sudden and quite unexpected death, he spoke of this desire an hour before he died, and also of a jocular will he had written for his own amusement, and which he intended to invalidate.

The fate which overtook him before he had a chance to rectify matters is a warning that no man should get funny through the vehicle of a thing so prolific in seeds of litigation and misunderstanding as a will. Mr. Millar, could he know of recent fulminations, would laugh to high heaven over the use of the word "sanctity" in connection with the document he intended to cancel. Grotesque throughout, it contained bequests of property he did not own to personal friends. For instance, he left the late James Haverson, K.C., a non-existent property in Havana, and the latter had a good deal of trouble in explaining to his friends, after the will was published, that the gift was fabulous.

The more sensational provisions, Mr. Millar was lawyer enough to know, could not be carried out; and he had left with it another will containing the disposition that he actually wished to make of his estate. That he spoke so frequently of the latter document may have been a precaution on his part to make people understand that the other will was a joke and nothing more. But the mere fact that he dated the burlesque document is the cause of all the trouble, and what makes it "sacred." We cannot regard the persons who have been expressing indignation as boobs (although that is what Mr. Millar would have called them); but their melodramatic remarks were obviously intended to appeal to boobs rather than intelligent beings.—Exchange.

ALWAYS GOING TO THE DOGS.

It is only about six months ago that Great Britain was declared in many quarters to be on the verge of bankruptcy, and that the sphere of British influence in world affairs had definitely passed from her. To-day, Great Britain has not only recovered her sphere of influence—if it was ever lost—but she has balanced her income and expenditure, and has even a bit in hand to start off what promises to be a very much more prosperous year. Meanwhile, the gold-gorged United States faces a tremendous deficit, and financiers are afraid of a partial collapse of the almighty dollar.

Britain's strength, founded on the character of the people, always comes to the top when the call comes.

As Mr. Mantalini would have put it: "The country is always going to the demnition bow-wows."

A London correspondent shows that nearly two hundred years ago Wilberforce said: "I dare not marry; the future is so dark and unsettled."

Later, the Duke of Wellington "thanked heaven he would not live to see the consummation of ruin that is gathering about us."

Later still, Lord Shaftesbury declared that "nothing can save the British Empire from shipwreck." Not long after that, Disraeli announced that "in industry, commerce and agriculture there is no hope."

Since then the fall of Great Britain and the British Empire has been predicted with recurring monotony. But here they are to-day, breasting the waves of depression, and soon the rest of the world will be envying them again as they have done before.

And hasn't the same sort of thing been said about Canada? Whichever side of politics is in the cool shades of opposition, it predicts the inevitable ruination of the country unless they are put in power instead.

So the game of politics goes on.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is something worse than the budget, i.e., the debate it precipitates. Let us hope that on this occasion it will be confined to decent length.

With no tariff changes, Parliament should not find so much as usual to argue about in the budget.

Mr. Ferguson declares that he paid his own expenses back to Canada to testify before the Senate committee. That will disarm the critics who have been protesting that the expense involved might have been avoided.

There is still much that is mysterious about that $125,000 to John Aird, Jr. The Ontario Government's plain duty is, let what light can be done on the transaction to help clear up the situation.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, April 8.— The local egg market showed signs of returning strength yesterday, a good demand and light receipts forcing prices for graded lots higher. Brokers were finding business fairly good and were able to raise their price to 16½c to 17c for extras, 14½c to 15c for firsts and 13 to 13½c for seconds, graded and in free cases. Prices to country shippers were steady at 13c to 14c for extras, 11c to 12c for firsts, and 9c to 10c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. There were reports of storing activities at outside points and graded eggs for storage, in special cases. Retailers were offered supplies at 20c for extras in cartons, 18c for extras loose, 16c for firsts loose and 15c for seconds loose.

Butter was offered at a range of 23½c to 24c for No. 1, with the general asking price 23½c, but buyers were all keeping clear of supplies. Trade was very dull and prospects of lower prices were evident.

Cheese was lower, also at 10¾c for new large, 11c for twins and 11¼c for triplets.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 8. — Butter slipped off 2c to 2½c on the produce and dairy market here yesterday in the continuance of the downward movement of the last two weeks which has sent the price 7c lower. Egg quotations advanced, while cheese and potato prices remained firm.

Increasing arrivals of fresh butter, combined with poor demand and the desire of holders to sell present stocks before the new butter begins to arrive in volume, pushed No. 1 regraded butter, in broken lots, down to 21c a pound, 2c to 2½c lower than yesterday's closing quotation. Weakness in outside markets also tended to force the price down. Fresh butter was quoted at 19c to 20½c a pound. Receipts were 1,796 boxes.

Fresh Ontario or Prairie eggs, in car lots or less, were mainly higher, extras at 19c and firsts at 17c being up ½c, with seconds at 15c a dozen being unchanged. Quotations to retailers were unchanged and receipts totalled 1,175 cases.

Current cheese was quoted steady at 10½c to 11c, as was summer make at 12c to 12½c a pound.

The potato market was unchanged, quotation of broken lots per 80-lb. bag, being 30c to 40c for Quebec whites and 45c to 50c for Quebec and New Brunswick Green Mountains. Carlot prices were 10c a bag cheaper than the broken lot levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 8.—Despite widespread belief that houses with Farm Board connections were selling on price bulges in wheat, grain markets went upward anew yesterday.

Crop reports from the Southwest and West proved increasingly bullish, and one authoritative unofficial estimate put the Texas panhandle 1932 probable wheat harvest at not more than 50 per cent. of last year's total. There were also Winnipeg reports that 10,000,000 acres in Canada showed deficiency of sub-soil moisture.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅜c to ⅞c above Wednesday's finish; corn, ¼c to ⅛c off to a shade advance; oats, ⅛c down to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to 7c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 8. — Nervous and at times erratic, wheat hung tenaciously to fractional gains scored in early session trade to close unchanged to ⅜c higher.

May wheat closed unchanged at 52⅜c, July ⅛c higher at 64¼c, and October ⅜c higher at 66⅜c.

There was no trace of export trade worked overnight.

Pit trade was comparatively light, and, with the exception of a little selling for Chicago account, entirely local in character. Crop news from the American South-west was of a bullish nature, but in the absence of export demand it was found difficult to raise prices up.

European news was without color. France reported good rains, which will benefit new crops, (but this was offset by official German reports confirming damage to winter wheat from frost.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains was dormant. Closing differences generally were unchanged.

BICYCLE STEALING

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: Will you please allow me space in your valuable paper to voice my opinion on bicycle stealing?

On the first of September last year my boy's wheel was taken from the side of the house. I advertised for it and after waiting for three weeks, hoping that it would be discovered, we replaced it with a brand new wheel. I may say that wheel Number one had only been in use a little over a year, as it was a birthday present.

Wednesday night he went into the men's waiting room at the C. N. R. station. He was only gone a couple of minutes, but when he came out he found his wheel had disappeared. I always kept telling him never to leave it anywhere without locking it.

Now, I think it is the meanest low-down action, and if this should meet the eye of the person who stole kindly helped himself to the wheel, I should like to remind him which he has evidently forgotten, that there is a commandment.

This wheel means so much to my boy, as he has a long way to go to school, and also a large Examiner route to deliver; the party would be doing a good turn if he would kindly ride the wheel back to my address.

I only hope that one of these days some of these characters will be caught in the act and given a good long term up on the hill as a reward. Now my earnest appeal is that whoever took the wheel will he please return it and greatly oblige the boy's mother.

BRITAIN UNABLE TO AID HER EMIGRANTS ABROAD

LONDON, April 7 (C.P. Cable.)— The question of emigrants from Britain who have gone out to the Dominions and in certain cases now find themselves in a bad plight was again raised in the House of Commons this afternoon, when J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominion Affairs, replied the migrants had taken the risk and the Mother Country could not take the responsibility of bringing them back home, where unemployment was equally as bad as in other parts of the Empire.

DISTRICT NURSE
by Faith Baldwin

When they reached her home they found something of an assembly. Pete was there. He had come to take Carol around to view the apartment Dr. Travers had renovated for them over his own. Pete was saying seriously that as soon as they could afford it they'd put in an elevator. For there were flights to climb. Office floor, and the doctor's bachelor quarters next and then theirs. And to Ellen's astonishment, Frank Bartlett was there also, with Bill. He had, he solemnly explained, a date with that young man, and Bill had expressed a desire to come calling.

Bill was arrayed like the lilies of the fields. Bartlett had taken him shopping on the previous day and had outfitted him from sturdy square toed shoes to the cap which rode rakishly the red crest of his unruly hair. Bill had a suit with knickerbockers and a vest although Bartlett had a little protested against this final glory. He had a shirt, in fact several shirts, although to his sorrow he could not wear more than one at once; the same held true of ties and socks. He also had sweaters, and a leather, wool-lined coat. And warm underwear. And wool-lined gloves. He was absolutely radiant and every freckle shone as if it had been polished against the tan, now paling, which he had acquired on the farm.

Hig tea was in progress, presided over by Nancy. The little group appeared to be in accord. Even Mrs. Adams unbent toward Mr. Bartlett, the outsider, under Bill's benign influence. Bill was now attending school with an astonishing regularity. Bartlett had somehow persuaded him, and Bill, set upon following in his idol's footsteps, was reluctantly confessing that once you got the hang of it, studying wasn't so "turrible" hard, after all.

On Ellen's entrance with Jim a slight awkwardness pervaded the little group.

Jim, to make an understatement, was not markedly cordial to Bill's hero. But Pete was there to carry things off with his high hand, and Carol, and Nancy. They were soon laughing, all of them.

Frank and Bill took their departure presently. But Bartlett had a word with Ellen at the door, Bill standing beside them, small and sturdy ,regarding with almost hypnotic fascination the toes of his shining shoes.

"That was grand of you," Ellen said. "I had no idea that you—"

"Oh, it was our secret. We wanted to surprise you. We carried all the bundles home, yesterday. Bill wouldn't hear of having them sent. You see, he was afraid something would happen to them en route. Weren't you, Old Timer?"

Bill nodded, partially comprehending. Some instinct of chivalry, of astonishing tact, caused him to move off down the hallway, hands thrus into new deep pockets, whistling shrilly through his teeth. Bartlett said, "I phoned and Nancy told me you were out. But I decided to come and wait, anyway. Will you go out with me soon, Ellen?"

She said she would and laid her hand in his for the brief but close and hurting grip. She smote Bill lightly on the shoulder, desiring to flutter a kiss on the tip end of his snub nose but refraiing sacrificially, knowing Bill's prejudices. Presently she turned back, smiling, and went into the living room.

INSTALMENT 20.

When Ellen returned from saying good-bye to Frank and Bill, she was informed that supper would be late. Mrs. Adams had decided to go around to Dr. Travers with Coral and Pete and look at the apartment. "Oh, no, all those stairs!" argued Ellen distressed. Pete flexed his muscles. "I'll carry her up," he promised. But Mrs. Adams looked wounded. "I'm perfectly all right," she said briskly, "I'll take them slowly."

She nodded, "Jim will stay to supper, of course."

Jim would, acepting with a de-

Jim would, accepting with a deteeth. Nancy effaced herself in the kitchen, leaving Jim and Ellen alone. They could hear her singing, stacking and washing the tea things and looking over the constituents of the supper menu.

"Plays up to you a lot," said Jim smoking furiously. "Bartlett, I mean."

"What do you mean, exactly?" she asked.

"Oh, with that kid. Gentleman Be Bountiful or something. As if it meant anything!"

"He's very fond of the boy," Ellen told him quietly, "and intends to give him every opportunity to make the most of himself."

A sententious sentence. But there still was between them that awkwardness which had its origin in the two men's meeting. Jim burst out so loudly that Nancy, overhearing, dropped a pan to acquit her, a fleet second too late, of unintentionally eavesdropping.

"Are you going to marry him, Ellen?"

She replied, flushing, "I have no intention of marrying anybody"

"And that goes for me too, I suppose?" His hurt dark eyes turned to her own. He said desperately, "Why I hang around here and keep on hoping, I don't know. I don't get anywhere with you."

He made a gesture as if he repudiated her and everything about her. She did not answer, having no true words to console or reassure him. He said, presently, rising, "Guess I'll go on—"

"I thought you were staying?"

"I don't feel like it," he said bluntly.

"Very well."

She watched him gather up overcoat and hat. He was sulky as a child is sulky, a child who has been reproved and disciplined. She smiled a little, inwardly. Jim had really never grown up, and never, she supposed, would grow up.

But there was nothing she could do. With each day that passed she realized her, as yet but half confessed, allegiance to Bartlett. Coming into the familiar room, seeing him there unexpectedly this afternoon, had made the room seem strange to her for a moment, the other people in it, beloved as they were, as aliens, shadows. She had come in talking to Jim, laughing; and there he had been rising to greet her. Bill scampering about like a puppy at his feet, shouting at her, "See my new suit, Miss Ellen—" (Bartlett had weaned him away from that absurd 'Mis Nois')

Lamplight in the room and dusk outside, winter dusk. But for a split second in Ellen's heart it was spring.

This was pure love, which she carried hidden with her, which walked with her day by day and dreamed with her by night. There was to be no permanent denial of it. That he waited, she knew. That he imposed upon himself a close restraint, she knew also. Had she not heard him say so, in as many words? "I've got to let you go now, if I don't I'll keep you here in my arms. I can't. I musn't."

That he relied on her to come to him earnestly and tell him that everything was clear before them, she knew. And thought, some day, she must. Things were altered, somehow. There was Coral, returned, and all the changes her coming had brought. Their mother would not now perhaps be so stubbornly set against the intrusion of Frank Bartlett in the family circle. Ellen realized suddenly and blindly that perhaps she would never have been set against it at all had she realized the possibility. It was merely that she had thought him casual, not serious, and therefore dangerous. Once regarded in the light of a sedate suitor, a genuine claimant, her attitude would surely change. Ellen had not thought of this before. Now it pierced her with its certainty.

And meantime, while she thought all this, while the swift thoughts and images passed through her mind, she was looking at Jim, watching him shrug his broad shoulders into an overcoat, take his hat in his strong dark hand. She was tender toward him momentarily as all gentle girls are toward men who love them and whom they do not love. She said, "I wish you'd change your mind and stay."

"You don't mean that." But his face was eager, the look of the reprimanded child vanished. He dropped the hat somewhere and came over to where she was standing and took her hands in his own. "Ellen, don't be so kind to me. I can't bear it, you don't mean it. All these months, ever since last spring I've been losing you. To him—" he added savagely. "You've been going further and further away from me—"

"Please," she said, "don't be foolish—"

But he had taken her into his arms. She tried to laugh, to free herself, twisting, turning her flushed cheek aside. "Jim, let me go. Nancy's coming in any minute."

For they could hear her banging oven doors, taking down plates, still whistling.

"Oh, damn Nancy—"

They did not hear the light knock on the door, which was not after all, quite closed. Bill's head came in, cautiously.

Bill said, "Say, Miss Ellen—" Bill stopped, appalled. "Jees," said Bill out of his old habit.

Jim arm's had loosened. "Why, Bill," said Ellen between laughter and embarassment.

"I forgot me new gloves," explained Bill, "I run all the way from home."

She found them for him.

He departed, thoughtful. Should he tell? You shouldn't never tell on a lady. But, if she was two timin' his pal?—That was different. Bill's loyalty went out to his own sex. Bill's allegiance was as fixed as a star. If she was double-crossin' the best guy God ever made—?

Uses Wooden Leg To Break Window

KITCHENER, Ont., April 8 (C.P.). — Sam Pullman, of Mitchell, evidently doesn't like railway trains. Sam, it seems, became rather peeved while travelling between Stratford and New Hamburg. He unstrapped his wooden leg, and promptly proceeded to bat out windows in the railway coach. A Canadian National Railway detective objected and put Sam under arrest. At New Hamburg, he was removed and injuries to his arms dressed. Still clutching his wooden leg tightly, he was taken to the Stratford Police Station, where he put up another furious battle when they tried to take the artificial limb away from him.

INTERLISTED STOCKS DROP TORONTO LIST

Bell Telephone Equals Low Record of 98, Falling 1½ Points.

ALLIED GROUP EASES.

Nickel at 6½ is Lowest it Has Ever Been on Toronto Market.

TORONTO, April 8.— (C.P.) — Sharp price reductions in certain quarters of the list, minor setbacks in others, carried a number of pivotal shares down to new lows for all time on Toronto stock exchange this morning.

Pressure was directed against inter-listed issues principally, though other issues also suffered in consequence. The selling was due to a reactionary Wall Street rather than to any inherent weakness not already known in the Canadian situation.

Bell Telephone equalled its record low of 98, falling 1½ points below last night. In the Allied group, Brazilian slipped off to 9¾ and C.R.R. went down to 13½, both approaching their record lows. Ford of Canada made a new low at 10, off ½ point from last night, with turnover quite heavy Page Hersey also more actively traded, dropped 3½ points to a record low of 46½ and Steel of Canada slipped fractionally to make a new record under 17.

Nickel at 6½ was lower than it had ever been on the local board. Noranda was comparatively steady and Smelters higher.

A peculiar situation existed in the market for Walkers with the old comomn above 3 and the new common down to 2 7-8 and the prefered unchanged at 9½ to 9 5-8.

MONTREAL, April 8. —(CP)— Popular issues lost ground on the Montreal stock exchange this morning. Trading was light all morning. At noon losses ranged up to 2 points.

Brazilian eased ⅝ to 9¾ and Canadian Pacific sold off ¾ to 13¼. Nickel dropped to 6¾ off ⅝ from yesterday's close and Charles Gurd sagged ½ to 12½. Dominion Textile appeared at 48, off 2 points from the previous close.

Canadian Car and Foundries common was unchanged but the preferred issue registered a drop of 1½ points at 12. Smelters was firmer, advancing a full point to 42. Cockshutt Plow, Massey-Harris and a few others were unchanged.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, April 8 (C.P.) — Stocks finished weak on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day. Volume of afternoon sales was quite heavy, although price range was not especially wide, except in the case of the leaders.

International Nickel and Noranda suffered heaviest losses, dropping almost a dollar each. Noranda's annual meeting was held to-day, but the decline in the stock was attributed to market conditions rather than any development at the gathering. Falconbridge and McLeod also closed lower, while Eldorado went against the trend, gaining 3.

Oils were steady and dull.

In the higher-priced golds, Lake Shore, Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes lost 10 cents or more, Dome and Hollinger lost about a nickel each.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, April 8 (C.P.). — Short covering in the last half-hour checked a broad decline in stocks to-day, reducing by a point or two extreme losses of 1 to 5 among active leaders. The closing was heavy. U.S. Steel, after touching the new low of 34¼, came back a point. American Telephone rallied above 106 from an earlier low of 105, where it had been 3 3-8 lower. Similar recoveries were made by American Can, Union Pacific, American Tobacco "B," Eastman and others. Transactions approximated 2,000,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, April 8.—(C.P.) — The selling movement in progress for several days past on the Montreal Stock Exchange gained momentum to-day, forcing prices down, in a number of cases to new low levels. Selling apoeared at the opening of the market and increased rather than diminished as the session advanced. Final prices were at the low points of the day.

Internatoinal Nickel moved down to 6¼ in the late trade, a new low point and a net loss for the day of 7-8.

Bell Telephone was subjected to further pressure to-day, and broke 1¾ points to the new all-time record of 93¾. The drop is attributed to general weakness in similar issues on Wall Street.

Canadian Pac lost 7-8 to sell at 13 1-8. Brazilian, at 9½, was off 5-8.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, April 8 (C.P.).—Toronto Stock Exchange market broke into new low ground in to-day's reaction, which embraced all the leading stocks except the food and distillery issues, and which saw the market values melt away five and six points.

Pivotal shares which reached new lows included Nickel at 6⅛, Smelters under 40, Bell Telephone at 94, Ford of Canada at 10, Page-Hersey Tubes at 44½, Steel of Canada under 16.

Bell Telephone at 94 was off between five and six points, and Page-Hersey in heavy turnover went down a like amount. Humberstone Shoe came out above 6 points under its previous sale, while C.P.R., Brazilian, Nickel, Ford of Canada, Canadian Dredge, Gypsum, and the oils were off fractions.

The oils, while down only fractions, were weak all day.

F. J. A. Morris Gives Horticultural Talk

F. J. A. Morris, author of the best known book on orchids, "Our Wild Orchids" and a recognized authority on wild flowers, last night addressed an open meeting of the Horticultural Society in the lecture hall of the Public Library on the subject, "Orchids and Wild Flowers."

About one hundred of the flower lovers of the city heard the interesting and instructive address in which Mr. Morris told of some of his travels and adventures in finding new species of orchids. His lecture was illustrated with slides taken from pictures of flowers in their natural settings.

Dr. A. J. Madill, president of the society, was chairman of the meeting. He urged that the members make a drive to increase the interest in flowers among residents here and also drew attention to splendid option list of flowers offered to the members of the society th' year.

WEAKNESS FELT IN INDUSTRIALS

Interlisted Stocks Bear Brunt of Liquidation on Standard Exchange.

SILVERS ARE STEADY.

TORONTO, April 8 (C.P.).—Selling pressure was directed on several issues on the Standard Stock and Mininig Exchange Market in the forenoon to-day, reflecting renewed weakness on industrial boards. Interlisted stocks bore the brunt of the liquidation, with the general list fluctuating within a narrow range.

International Nickel opened soft and when taken at midday showed a net loss of 50 at 6.75, a new low for the year. Noranda, whose shareholders meet later in the day, was relatively steady, but Waite-Ackerman, closing down operations, turned over at 50, down 10 from previous sales.

Teck-Hughes was a soft spot in gold section, price dropping 13 to $4.25. Wright-Hargreaves, after displaying considerable resistance around $2.50, fell to $2.45, off 5. Granada was down 4 at 91, and Premier changed hands at 40, off 5, and a new low for the stock. Changes among cheaper issues were confined to small fractions.

Eldorado was practically unchanged at $1.26, and other silvers were steady.

WOULD ABOLISH HARBOR CONTROL

2.—The national ports have to serve more than local interests, and in the interests of the whole country must be directed on national lines and in accordance with a definite co-ordinated policy.

3.—The operation of the ports is consequently precluded from being measured solely by the ordinary criteria of business and economics. The ports, in fact, must for some years at least be dependent on Federal funds.

4.—For these reasons they must be subject to a considerable amount of Federal control.

5.—The operation of the ports has in the past involved a heavy drain on the National Treasury, and more definite and more effective control of expenditure is necessary.

6.—The engineering of capital works ought to be improved and strengthened.

7.—The local administration and executive of the ports require strengthening and stabilizing; and the disorganization caused by the changing of the executive heads with each change of government should be eliminated.

8.—A form of port executive more suitable to Canadian conditions is to be found in a port manager, rather than in a harbor board.

9.—Adequate representation of local interests and of the port users, which at present is almost non-existent, is essential to the progress and efficiency of a port, and a strong local harbor council should be established on an elective basis.

Outgrown Control

10.—The growing complexities of the transportation question and the extensive development of the ports have outgrown departmental control.

11.—The co-ordination of policy, the general control of finance and engineering, and the elimination of delays can be more adequately secured by the appointment of a separate board to deal with the national harbors.

12.—One of the special duties of this board should be to examine the question of the national routing of Canadian imports and exports.

13.—The services provided by the ports are on the whole adequate for the requirements of traffic; and the costs to users of the ports are not unduly high.

14.—With regard to the future development of the ports, the last decade had been a period of heavy expenditure on capital works; and the immediate requirement is a period of organization and consolidation, to enable full advantage to be taken of this expenditure.

No Threat To Montreal.

"The threat to Montreal is largely illusory," Sir Alexander asserts in discussing the St. Lawrence deep waterways proposal. The port authority declares: "In my opinion, after giving the matter my close thought, and hearing all sides and expressions of opinion, the threat to Montreal is largely illusory. All the traffic that at present uses Montreal is likely to continue to do so. Large ocean-going vessels would be at a very heavy disadvantage in attempting to operate inland in competition with the specially designed lake freighters. The additional time required by them would mean a larger fleet to maintain existing schedules, or the abandonment of present schedules and working arrangements. Moreover, existing coastal shipping laws would have a restrictive effect on the participation of non-Canadian shipping in regular routes above Montreal."

Sir Alexander continues: "So far then as ocean-going ships are concerned, the principal users of the deep waterway will be confined for the most part to (1) the small and medium-sized tramp that will bring in a cargo for a lake port and seek a return cargo, and (2) the coastwise traffic connecting the lakes with the lower St. Lawrence, the Atlantic seaboard and Newfoundland. These activities exist already and are likely to receive some impetus, but they will not imperil the position of Montreal.

TWELVE BOOKED FOR GREAT BRITAIN

C. P. R. Registered 12 Booking in City for First Sailing.

Recent reductions in ocean fares, which now makes it possible to travel third-class from Canada to Britain for as little as $60.00 one way or $108.00 return, with proportionate decreases in all other classes, promises to provide a decided stimulus to trans-Atlantic travel this year, according to local steamship ticket agents.

At the Canadian Pacific offices this morning, The Examiner learned that there are already over a dozen bookings by local people for the S.S. Duchess of York, the first C.P.R. liner of the season out of Montreal sailing on April 22. Advance bookings for boats sailing in May, June, and July have also been made.

The Canadian National ticket agent reports bookings for British ports by liners sailing from New York this month. He also states that he has received an unusual number of inquiries which he expects will result in bookings in the near future.

The ocean fares as recently revised are as follows: First-class round trip, $208.00 and up; one way $112.00 and up. Tourist Class round trip, $148.00 and up; one way $84.00 and up. Third-Class round trip $108.00 and up; one way $60.00 and up.

At both agencies here it was agreed that the number of bookings already made and the volume of inquiries received were unprecedented at such an early period of the season.

"The reductions in fares have brought travel within the reach of the most moderate purses," stated Alec MacGregor, chief clerk at the C.P.R. offices, "while the present rate of exchange is also another favorable factor to intending visitors to Britain."

NO RADIO CHANGE IN NOVA SCOTIA

Representative Does Not Believe Province Would Favor Government Ownership.

AT OTTAWA PARLEY.

OTTAWA, Apr. 8 (C.P.)—Evidence so far advanced before the House of Commons committee on radio broadcasting has not been such as to convince the government of Nova Scotia that there is any justification for the proposed establishment of a publicly-owned system of broadcasting. Col E. C. Phinney, chairman of the Halifax harbor commission, appeared before the committee yesterday and presented a brief on behalf of the Nova Scotia government.

If that province could be convinced that a drastic change in the present system, involving heavy expenses to the people, was the best solution for what radio problems existed, then there would be no objection.

Col. Phinney did not think that the proponents of public ownership had presented a true picture of the state of public opinion. Speaking for Nova Scotia he could say that there was no large body of public opinion in that province favorable to a government owned monopoly.

The Nova Scotia Government was in accord with any proposal for greater government supervision over allocation of wave lengths and program arrangement, without interference with private enterprise, Col. Phinney said.

Floods Subsiding Across Rumania

BUCHAREST, April 8. —(AP)—Floods which have left a trail of death and destruction throughout Rumanian river valleys for the last two days were subsiding today but reports of the damage done continued to increase.

As an example, it was reported that 1,500 houses were destroyed at Arad and that thousands of villagers were left homeless in Bessarabia, many of whom were saved from death by rescuers while they clung to the roofs of their homes and churches.

HAY FAMINE HITS MARMORA DISTRICT

Supplies Being Shipped in From Frankford and Rawdon Township.

MARMORA April 8.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—There is quite a hay famine in the Marmora district just now so that hay has to be imported from Frankford and Rawdon township. As one of the importers remarked, 'It is a case of selling hay while the demand is good.' Dr. R. E. Lumsden, who is running a flour and feed store is courteously linking up prospective buyers with those who have hay to sell.

Marmora's leading poultry man at the present time is Vincent Lynch. About a year ago this enterprising young man took over the hen house which had been kept by the late Horace Leonard. Mr. Lynch is concerned solely with the raising of White Leghorns. He has added another storey to his hen house to accommodate cockerels. He has well over two hundred of them in one large pen while another large pen which has been divided into two smaller pens, houses a thousand three week old chicks.

TWEED BURGLARS CAUGHT IN WEST

Pair Admit Robbing Quinn Stores—Not Likely to be Brought East.

TWEED, April 8 (Examiner Correspondence). — Although considerable distance separates Tweed, Ontario, from Lethbridge, Alberta, word was received here on Wednesday that two young men arrested in that city have admitted the theft of a large number of articles from the stores operated by Messrs. M. J. and Raymond Quinn, which are situated on North Victoria Street.

The admission followed their arrest in the Western city on other charges. At the time of the theft in Tweed, District Inspector Lougheed, of the Provincial Police, sent out circulars all over the Dominion describing the stolen property. It was revealed that the men, both of whom reside in Western Canada, were wearing clothing stolen from Raymond Quinn's shop at the time of their arrest. As the expenses of bringing them back to Tweed would be heavy, they are being tried on the Lethbridge charges, and it is entirely unlikely that they will be brought here.

Herbert C. Treneer Speaks At Marmora

MARMORA, April 8 (Examiner Correspondence)—The work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was ably portrayed by Herbert C. Treneer in an address given at the Marmora Town Hall on Wednesday under the auspices of the local Women's Institute a few months. Mr. Treneer who at one time was organist at St. Andrew's, Peterborough, relinquished his position as organist at King Street United Church, Oshawa to become one of the field organizers for the Canadian Institute for the Blind. His talks are so interpersed with pianoforte and vocal selections so as to make his two hour program attractive and interesting.

He was introduced on Wednesday evening to a goodly sized audience by H. W. Sabine, who acted as chairman. He explained that the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford was not to be confused with the National Institute for the Blind.

Four entertaining numbers were here interspersed: pianoforte solo, "Gondoliers"; recitation "Mr. Brown gets his hair cut"; songs, "Sing, Sing, bird on the wing" and "Old King Cole." Thirty-three lantern slides were then shown in the course of which Mr. Treneer mentioned that the Institute is faced with the raising of $70,000 this year for the maintenance of its work. Two short vocal numbers, "Tommy Lad" and "You'd better ask me" and a pianoforte selection; "Valse Chromatic" were the concluding numbers on this finely balanced program.

Though born blind, Mr. Treneer has a very cheery personality and as a speaker, belongs to the breezy type.

Many of his forthcoming engagements are under the auspices of branches of the Women's Institute and the local branch felt well repaid on Wednesday evening for having added itself to the number sponsoring this unique lecture and concert.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED IN GRIFFITH CASE

a good friend of mine.

"What became of the $200?"

"I don't know. I suppose Johnston got it."

"What did you mean about Mr. Griffith's taxes?"

Mr. Fry—He was running for Reeve. Johnston was on Griffith's farm, and I thought Griffith had to get his taxes paid so he could run for Reeve.

"When are the taxes paid?"

"I generally paid them in the early part of December."

Mr. Fry said he handed the cheque for $200 to Mr. Griffith. Each note was signed on the face of it by George Johnston with his mark (X) and below his name was that of William E. Griffith.

Bank Manager Called.

L. A. Gould, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, was the first witness called by Mr. Kerr for the defense. He said the $200 cheque was cashed by George Johnston. The note was later placed in the bank. It became due June 30, 1930. About that time Johnston paid $25 to Mr. Fry's account.

"Mr. Johnston asked for a renewal for three months. I told him I couldn't renew it without Mr. Fry and Mr. Griffith. He told me he had seen Mr. Griffith and that Mr. Griffith told him it would be all right. Mr. Johnston said he would sign it anyway, and Mr. Griffith would fix it up when he came in. The note laid there a couple of months. Mr. Griffith came into the bank early in September. Mr. Fry was there and I said "here's the man you are looking for." Mr. Griffith then signed the renewal note for $78."

Mr. Kerr—When the renewal fell due it was not paid?

Mr. Gould—No. We had it in the bank until a few weeks ago when Mr. Fry took it.

Not Positive of Notice.

Witness said he could not swear positively that a notice had been mailed to Mr. Griffith informing him that the note was past due and unpaid.

Mr. Huycke—On October 3, 1930, when the renewal was due what was the state of Mr. Griffith's account in the bank?

Mr. Gould—It was insufficient to pay the note.

"You told Mr. Kerr that you did not know definitely what was done in regard to notifying Johnston and Griffith?"

"No, except that we always send out notices to every one when a note is maturing and to endorsers also when past due."

Mr. Huycke—You were present when the renewal was signed?

"Yes. Mr. Grifiith said something had been paid on it and it was brought down to $75. He signed in the place where the maker usually signs."

George Johnston.

Mr. Johnston, replying to Mr. Kerr said: "I saw Mr. Fry, and he told me that if Mr. Griffith would endorse the note I could have the money. I wanted the money to pay another note down at Marmora."

Mr. Kerr—Who signed the notes?

"I did, and Mr. Griffith."

"What did you do with the $200 cheque?"

"I cashed it at the bank."

"What did you do with the money?"

"I went to Marmora, and paid the notes there."

"Mr. Fry suggests you got the money to enable Mr. Grifiith to pay his taxes?"

"He had been paid his money long before that."

Mr. Kerr—Mr. Fry says he handed the cheque to Griffith, and Griffith handed it to you?"

"I can't remember whether he did, or just handed the cheque to me; but I got the $200."

"Did you tell Mr. Fry what the money was for?"

"I don't remember telling him anything about it."

"You paid $25 on the note?"

"Yes, and interest."

Admits Liability.

"Have you paid Mr. Fry any more since then?"

"No."

"But you admit you owe the balance?"

"Oh, yes."

"How much of the $200 did Mr. Griffith get?"

"Not a cent."

To Mr. Huycke, Mr. Johnston said that in December he was a tenant on Mr. Griffith's farm on the Trent River road. In June 1930 he was on the Buchanan farm.

Mr. Huycke—Whom did you owe the money to at Marmora?

"I borrowed $200 from the Bank of Toronto there on a couple of notes."

"Who endorsed that note?"

"I can't tell you now. I have been seven or eight years away from there, and I can't just remember."

"When did you give the Bank of Toronto those notes?"

"Before I left there. I have been away from there seven years."

Mr. Johnston said the bank "got after" him to pay the debt, but he didn't keep the letters because he didn't think he would ever need them again.

Mr. Johnston said he could not read or write. He received one letter from the bank in Havelock telling him when his first note to Mr. Fry was coming due, but he had no recollection of getting a notice about the renewal when it was maturing at the first of October in 1930. He said his wife could read and write and if the letter had come she would have told him about it. He made the payment of $25 and interest.

Bank Practice Explained

J. Seeney of the staff of the Bank of Toronto in Havelock explained the practice of sending out notices.

According to that custom he had no doubt of having sent a notice to Mr. Johnston about the maturing of the renewal, but a post-due notice would not be sent to Mr. Griffith unless Mr. Johnston hadn't made his payment.

"There is no doubt about notifying Mr. Johnston about the renewal, but I don't remember notifying Mr. Griffith."

Witness said copies of such notices were not kept on file. The notices were simply forms with dates filled in.

Mr. Griffith sort of hesitated when he signed the renewal note. I didn't see it signed, but it went through the books as if Mr. Griffith was a joint maker of the note."

To Mr. Kerr, witness said he had no distinct recollection of having sent a notice to Mr. Griffith except that it was part of the bank routine. A post-due notice would not be sent to Mr. Griffith except on special instruction from the manager. Mr. Johnston's payment on July 11, 1930, was $25 and interest, amounting to $28.35.

Mr. Johnston, recalled, said that on July 26 he broke his leg, and was unable to carry on his farm work for a time, with the result that he got behind in bills, including the sum he owed the doctor.

William E. Griffith.

Mr. Griffith, examined by Mr. Kerr, said he had endorsed Johnston's notes for $200.

"Johnston first went to see Fry if he could get the money, then Johnston came to me and asked me to endorse the notes. It was done at Fred Chase's house. Mr. Fry drew up the notes", Mr. Griffith stated. "Johnston signed them first, and he was the one who got the cheque and the money."

Mr. Kerr — Mr. Fry says he handed the creque to you, and you then gave it to Johnston?

"Mr. Fry never gave me the cheque."

Didn't Get A Cent

"As to the money the cheque represented did you get any of it?"

"Not a dollar; not a cent."

"Mr. Fry said he was under the impression you wanted ready money to pay your taxes because the elections were coming on?"

Mr. Griffith—Mr. Johnston settled up his rent to me in November. During the summer he had done some work for me that amounted to around $60. The rest he paid in wood and money.

"Did Johnston owe you anything at the time he signed the note in December?"

"Not a cent. I never said anything that would have given Mr. Fry an impression that I needed money."

Judge Huycke—I don't think Mr Fry said in his evidence that Mr Griffith had said anything about taxes.

Mr. Griffith declared that he had never received any notice from the bank that the note was overdue "The first I knew about it was some time in 1931 when Mr. Fry himself told me, and he went and brought me a statement from the bank. The amount on the slip of paper was $78.

Mr. Kerr—From June 30 onward what notice did you get from the Bank of Toronto that the note was not paid??

Mr. Griffith—I have no recollection of any notice from anybody.

Mr. Kerr—Then the second note fell due?

Mr. Griffith—I just got word of that the other day.

Did you get no notice of the October renewal falling due?"

"Nothing but the statement from Mr. Fry in 1931."

Paid Taxes In December

To Mr. Huycke, defendant said he had paid his taxes around December 15 in 1929. He was not sure of the exact date. He said he did not get the cheque from Mr. Fry. He had told Fry that he had always found Johnston straight and honest.

Mr. Griffith said he ran for reeve in 1930. He had no expenses for hiring halls or anything like that because that was not customary.

Mr. Huycke—Didn't you have any expenses in campaigns?

Mr. Griffith—Not much in elections, but sometimes afterwards.

This obvious allusion to the protested election caused a ripple of laughter in the audience, and Mr. Griffith smiled in the recollection of the episode.

Defendant acknowledged that he had signed the notes on their faces Mr. Huycke read the first one—"Six months after date we promise to pay, etc." and signed "George Johnston, W. E. Griffith."

Mr. Huycke—Isn't it traditional for a court to believe that a note signed that way is signed by the maker?

Mr. Griffith—It was not my intention.

Mr. Huycke—You swear that you didn't receive any notice from the bank about the note being post-due in October 1930?

Mr. Griffith—I stat positively I did not, nor in June.

Dominion Bank in Marmora

Mr. Gould, recalled, told Mr. Huycke that it was customary to have the endorser's signature on the face of a note.

Mr. Gould—If that isn't safe we might as well tear up our files.

Mr. Huycke—Has the Bank of Toronto a branch in Marmora?

Mr. Gould—No.

Mr. Huycke – That's what I thought. What bank is there??

Mr. Gould—The Dominion.

Mr. Kerr -And the Dominion acts as agent there for all banks?

Mr. Gould—Yes.

Influenced By Griffith

In his argument, Mr. Huycke said the money would not have been lent to Johnston if Griffith hadn't signed the notes which were made out in the form of joint makers in regard to the signature.

"The defense will be that there was no presentation" Mr. Huycke said. "While it has not been definitely shown that a notice of default was not given to the defendants, yet according to the uniform practice of the bank notices are always sent out."

No Notice of Default

Mr. Kerr contended that Mr. Griffith was an endorser of the note, and as such he did not receive notice of the default of payment by Johnston as required in the Bills of Exchange Act. There was no dispute on the part of Mr. Johnston; the only dispute was that Mr. Griffith was the endorser and was known as such to Mr. Fry.

Neither of the witnesses from the bank could prive that notices were sent to Mr. Griffith. Even if Mr. Griffith had a sufficient account in the bank when the note fell due that would not dispense with the notice of protest, Mr. Kerr said. Referring to a judgment given by Mr. Justice Raney in a case of Kupferschmidt vs. Ammoniet and Russworm Mr. Kerr said it was therein shown that a man might be an endorser even if his name appeared on the face of a note, although an endorsement was usually made on the back.

Secretary's Report

Mrs. F. M. Somerville in presenting the secretary's report quoted Sir Arthur Salter, celebrated British economist and member of the League of Nations for the past two years, when speaking over the air from London, England—'No one can tell what will happen in the coming year but whatever comes let us meet it with courage magnanimity.'

The membership of the Circle is around seventy-six with an average attendance of thirty. Three life members have been added during the year, Mrs. George E. Johnson, Miss Emma J. Aldridge, and Miss A. H. Bryant. The Circle is composed of six groups led by two of the members which are responsible for the program of the meetings in turn.

During the past year two members were removed by death, Miss Margaret Kidd and Mrs. Robert Scott.

The practical work of the Circle consisted of two boxes sent to Pithapuram, India; scripture calendars to India and Bolivia; two comfort boxes to Rev. James Taylor, Cochrane in time for the Christmas distribution.

Four Bible women are supported in India, three by members of the Society and one by the Society as a whole.

Financial Statement

The financial statement showed as sent to Foreign Missions $358.89; Home Missions, 245.59; Indian Fund, $16; Mission Homes and Cottages, $5; expense fund $47.46; proceeds of social by East and South End groups, $14, making a total of $686.94.

The Mission Band reported a successful year, 80 having been raised and divided equally between Home and Foreign Missions. Mrs G. Post was in charge of the Band last year and Miss Florence Lasenby is taking the leadership this season.

The Willing Teens under the leadership of Mrs. L. J. Pettit also reported a most gratifying year A Mother and Daughter banquet was sponsored by them and at each of their supper meetings interesting inspirational programs were given. The treasurer reported $64.35 being raised with $46.20 being sent to Foreign Missions and $10.20 to the Home Mission treasurer.

The secretary of the Young Womens' Circle reported two outside speakers, the Rev. J. E. Chute in March and the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe for the Fall rally. Two teas were held and showers for the Missionary boxes were received at each meeting. Boxes were sent to India and Christmas boxes to Grande Ligne and Mrs. Lipinski at Toronto. Christmas and Easter cards are sent to the Missionaries by this Circle. About two hundred dollars was raised.

The program was in charge of group number six, under the convenorship of Mrs. A. W. Wray and Mrs. F. Irons.

Following this interesting afternoon's program, a delightful tea was served in the Ladies' Parlor.

St. John's Class To Cater Banquet

The monthly business meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church was held on Wednesday evening at the home of the President, Mrs. G. Packenham, Water street.

Among other business it was decided the ladies would cater for a banquet being held by the Men's Club on April 22, Mrs. J. Bacon being convenor for this occasion.

It was also decided to hold a May Day Tea on May 3, in the Parish Hall; Mrs. G. Pakenham is general convenor, with Mrs. Lemmings in charge of the tea table. In connection with the Tea a sale of home cooking and sewing will be held.

After all business was dispensed with, the meeting was brought to a close after which a dainty luncheon was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Toronto Chef Turns To Carving Bronze

TORONTO, Ont., April 8 (C.P.)—John Belinfante, chef at Whitney Hall here, will exhibit a bronze head and a "Study of a Young Man," when the Sculptors' Society of Canada opens its exhibition here to-day. And the transition from chef to sculptor is not so great, according to Belinfante.

It seems that when he first came to Canada five years ago, he studied carving under Jan Balleul. Later he studied with Emanuel Han in Toronto, following these studies only with the idea of improving his deftness in making ice ornaments or even in cake frosting.

The art of scupture eventually fascinated his interest beyond table-pieces and cakes, and he finally started to work in bronze. The pieces to be exhibited to-night are a result.

SCHOOL BOARD TO SAVE $7,000

Lindsay Will Divide Work Among Present Staff—No New Teachers.

COLLISION SETTLED.

LINDSAY, April 8. (Examiner Correspondence).—The local Board of Education plans to effect a saving of $7,000 in its estimates this year, as compared with its demand last year. This will be accomplished largely by dividing up the work of the schools among the different teachers, thus avoiding the necessity of securing new teachers to fill vacancies.

Beverley Scott was found guilty of negligence in connection with a car accident by His Honor Justice Ruddy, of Whitby, at a local court session on Tuesday. The plaintiff was Charles Grozelle, who was awarded $133.00 damages. A counter claim of $40.00 brought by the defendant was disallowed by Judge Ruddy. Scotts' car collided with one driven by C. Grozelle on William street on January 21 last.

The funeral took place on Thursday of Catherine O'Connell, of Lindsay, who passed away suddenly on Monday in her seventy-fifth year. The deceased was born in Ops township, her uncle familiarly known as "King" O'Connell, being the first white settler of the township.

Quite a number of local citizens as well as residents of Mariposa township gathered, at Oak-Oakwood cemetery yesterday at the interment of the late Morgan J. Lewis, who passed away at Peterborough this week. The deceased, while a resident of Lindsay, conducted a creamery and was also associated with Flavelles Limited. He also served on the town council.

The council of Fenelon Falls has decided to erect a new Continuation School in the village, the present school being condemned by the Government. Debentures totalling $36,500 will be issued to meet the cost of the new structure.

PLATINUM MIST IS LATEST FIND

Precious Vapor is Condensed Into Thin Film on Variety of Materials.

PERMANENT COAT.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(A. P. Science Editor)

NEW YORK, April 8.—Platinum is caused to evaporate like water by a discovery from the California Institute of Technology.

This precious vapor, probably the world's highest-priced mist, condenses into thin films upon a wide variety of materials. It coats them virtually permanently. Smoother than dew it will cover fibres, converting them into pliant, filmy threads that seem made of pure platinum. These threads are prized as wires for various precision instruments. A Midas might even be able to pay for a platinum gown.

Platinum mirrors, interferometer plates and a number of valuable scientific instruments can be made by platinum evaporation.

The process was developed by John Strong, National Research Fellow, who reports it in the Physical Review, a scientific journal. Formerly the nearest approach to platinum mist has been the process of "sputtering" in which the molten metal is reduced to minute droplets and sprayed like paint.

Dr. Strong produced evaporation in a vacuum by a slight change of methods which had failed. The heat is supplied by a wire or filament of tungsten, one of the metals with a higher melting point than platinum. The failures occurred when platinum was laid in the tungsten coil. Apparently too much heat was lost in the small space separating the metals.

So Dr. Strong tried electroplating the platinum directly upon the tungsten wire and that worked to perfection.

METROPOLITAN OPERA STRAIGHTENS FINANCES

NEW YORK, April 8 (C.P.) The Metropolitan Opera Company, threatened with extinction because of heavy losses, apparently has straightened out its finances sufficiently to continue.

Reports, apparently authentic, that the company would shorten its season and reduce prices next year were received by newspapers.

The season will be 16 weeks instead of the present 24, it was understood, and the price of tickets will be slashed about 25 per cent. A voluntary pay cut by the singers and the rest of the personnel helped.

TRENT RIVER

NAVY LEAGUE SCORES HOOVER'S NAVY POLICY

WASHINGTON, April 8 (A.P.)—A new, sweeping denunciation of President Hoover's naval policy was issued to-day by the Navy League of the United States.

The president was charged with neglect of the navy and with wrongly parading armaments as the scape-goat for the great increase in taxation.

The league said Mr. Hoover had done virtually nothing to replace vessels which have passed or are reaching the limit of effective age, and that while Europe smolders and Asia is ablaze, the President insists that we cannot now afford even to start moderate measures for building up our fleet to treaty terms.

ENGLAND SCANS BUDGET EAGERLY

Financiers Believe Canadians Escape Lightly Compared With Motherland.

PRESS COMMENTS FEW.

By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer

LONDON, April 8.—(C. P. Cable)—It is highly gratifying to find another Empire country balancing its budget, was the consensus in old Threadneedle Street, financial heart of London, today as the new Canadian budget was studied. Outstanding English newspapers did not hasten to comment on Finance Minister E. M. Rhodes, budget statement, but its details were eagerly scanned in the city.

One banker attributed the satisfactory result largely to the courage and experience in big business of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett himself, and expressed the opinion it showed Canada was ready, despite influences much nearer at hand, to follow the lines of financial principles practised in London.

It was recognized here that Canadian banks have always exhibited a healthy team spirit with the government and that control of their operations has been very close.

The increase in the sales tax from four to six per cent was generally expected here and bankers were interested to learn more about the graded increase in stamp taxes, especially regarding cheques, for considering the fact that every cheque here bears a four-cent stamp tax it is held that Canada so far has been easy-going concerning such an imposition.

Considering most English people pay such an income tax that they work three months in the year for the state alone, Canadians may consider themselves happily placed, was another comment from a responsible financier.

HIS HEALTH IMPROVED 40%

After Use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

If you are constipated, read this letter which Mr. Murray had attested by Notary Public:

"Two months ago I commenced using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to relieve constipation. I am in better health today than I have been in years, due to the use of your wonderful bran. My bowels move regularly, and my general health has improved 40%."—George A. Murray (address upon request).

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much better to use ALL-BRAN than to abuse your system with pills and drugs—often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

ENGINEER GETS 10 YEARS ON ESPIONAGE CHARGE

WARSAW, Poland, April 8.—(A.P.)—Anthony Stanlaszewski, an engineer charged with espionage on behalf of a foreign power, was sentenced yesterday to 10 years' imprisonment. A woman friend was sentenced to 3 years in jail.

Stanlaszewski was arested last July 21 as a co-plotter with Major Peter Demkowski, who was executed by a firing squad a few days before that as a spy in the service of Soviet Russia.

Police said at that time they found in the engineer's hotel room a camera of Soviet make and numerous photographs of Polish military operations.

"The Proof of the Pudding"—

LIFE insurance benefits.... can be Proved while you are still ALIVE!

LIVING policyholders of the Sun Life were paid in benefits during 1931 $68,000,000—THREE TIMES as much as, beneficiaries of deceased policyholders.

This was due, partly, to the fact that trained Sun Life representatives, when selling insurance, counsel their policyholders how to secure a dual advantage—the maximum benefit to THEMSELVES, and the greatest protection to their DEPENDANTS.

The insured no longer have to "die to win."

The wisest insurers vigilantly protect their policies and allow nothing to impair them. The Sun Life enjoys a remarkable record for the persistency of its business—largely the result of sound advice and expert service to its policyholders, by its representatives.

Sun Life representatives sold $528,000,000 new paid-for insurance last year, making the Company's total business in force over Three Billions—an impressive reflection of public confidence.

To-day prudent men are not only taking on MORE life insurance; they are doing so after consultation with competent representatives of such a company as the Sun Life.

Consult a Sun Life representative or return the attached coupon to the local or head office of the company:

VIOLIN RECITAL SET FOR MONDAY NIGHT

Deane Miner to Give Recital in Hall of Conservatory of Music.

The violin recital to be given by Deane Miner, assisted by Dorothy Allan Park, on April 11th, in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, promises to be a very interesting musical event.

Mr. Miner, playing a violin loaned by the widow of the late Dr. Luigi Von Kunitz, conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, will include in his program the famous violin Concerto by Mendelssohn (Allegro molto appasionata, Andante and Allegro vivace movements), also a Prelude and Air by Bach, two Fantasy pieces by Schuman, and folk music of France and Russia, in two old French dances by Marais, who was Master of the Music of the King's Chamber under Louis Fourteenth, and two airs by Wieniakski.

Mr. Miner will play also "Bratislaba", a Bohemian melody arranged by his teacher, Sexcik.

Mrs. Park is singing the famous Schumann Song Cycle, "Frauenliebe and Leben," translated into English by the eminent English critic, Fox Strangways and Stewart Wilson, and published by the Oxford University Press.

This cycle is considered one of the most gigantic contributions ever made to song literature, and makes exacting vocal an interpretive demands on the singer.

It depicts the life of a woman and runs the gamut of every emotion. It tells of the awakening to a great love, the courtship, the bethrothal, the marriage, the coming of a child, the joy in the baby, and, in the last tremendous song, of the loss of her loved one.

Mrs. Park will sing also a group of Irish folk songs.

ILLUSTRATED TALK HELD AT HAVELOCK

"Travelogue Around the World" Pictures Shown in Knox Church.

HAVELOCK, April 8 (Examiner Correspondence) — There was a splendid attendance at Knox Presbyterian Church, Havelock, Monday night, when "Travelogue around the World" moving pictures were exhibited under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

The first part of series of pictures was across western Canada through the Rockies to Vancouver, especially featuring the beautiful scenery at Banff. Then down the St. Lawrence to the sea coast, from New York via C.P.R. steamship "Empress" to the Mediterranean Sea, visiting cities of note in Italy, India, Egypt, Holy Land and Turkey.

The last reel featured China and city of Pekin (once known as China's forbidden city).

The pictures were interesting as well as educational and gave a splendid conception of places of note of the ancient world as well as our own country. The president Mrs. C. Jamieson expressed thanks on behalf of the Society to those who attended also to Mr. Fred Platt who operated the moving picture machine and through whose efforts the entertainment was made possible. The films and picture machine were loaned through the kindness of the C.P.R. The meeting concluded with the Lord's Prayer in unison.
